S. S. OPENING.—The New Hall just completed by the congregation of St. Andrew's Church, for the use of the Sabbath School, and other congregational purposes, was opened on Tuesday evening last, with appropriate exercises. The chair was taken at 7.30 o'clock, by Judge Dennistoun. The devotional exercises were conducted by the Minister, the choir leading in the hymn, "Before Jehovah's awful throne"; and after prayer, singing a Doxology. Anthem. Addresses, interspersed with music were then delivered by the Rev. Mr. Beck, J. Murray Smith, Esq., Rev. Mr. Clementi, and Rev. Mr. Williams, relating to school and church work, and were listened to with evident attention and pleasure. The audience numbered between 250 and 300 persons. The lecture room is 60 ft. long by 31 ft wide, with a side entrance by porch. The ceiling is finished with trusses supporting the roof, and has a very pleasing appearance. Two class rooms are taken off the end of the hall, and fitted up with folding doors, so that they can be used separately or form part of the general hall as may be desired. The plan of the building was prepared by Mr. Jno E Belcher, and carried out by Mr. A Rutherford, under the superintendence of a committee of the congregation, composed of Messrs. John Carnegie, Thomas Stowman, A. H. McDougal. The cost of the building is about $1500, of furnishing, $200. The addition thus obtained to the equipment of the church will prove serviceable in use, as it is attractive in appearance. The music furnished by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. Joseph McClelland, was highly appreciated by the audience.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society was held on Tuesday in the Council Chamber. When the following officers were elected for the current year.

President.—George Barker

Vice President.—John McClelland

Secretary & Treasurer.—R. A. Brown

Directors—Messrs. John English John Burnham Rev. V. Clementi, A.W. Kemp, James Bell C. Ormond, George Stanton C. F. Henderson James Betwood. The following is the annual Report:

In presenting their Report for the year 1875 the officers and directors of the County of Peterborough Horticultural Society feel that they may justly congratulate the Members of the Society on the past year having been successful, as there appears to have been a more general interest taken in the Society than there has been for some years, which is evidenced by the facts that the membership has been very materially increased and that the entries at the summer Exhibitions (that being the only Horticultural show proper held during the year) were more numerous than on former occasions at that season.

The Specimens sent for Exhibition also show a decided improvement, more especially in vegetables, which no doubt has been encouraged by the Judges very properly awarding prizes to quality not size in that class. Ornamental and greenhouse plants and flowers the competition was not what might have been desired, still it compared favorably with former Exhibitions. Having been invited by the Committee of the West Riding Agricultural Society to join them and other Societies in getting up a Central Exhibition, a Meeting of your members was called at which a Resolution was passed to contribute $200 towards the funds of the wider undertaking. The Horticultural Annual Exhibition was therefore merged in the Central Exhibition the general success of which is too well known to need any comment in this Report, but though in vegetables the Horticultural Society was well represented and in both sections a fair share of prizes the Exhibition under noticed, your Committee for Sweetz, as gardens which two weeks earlier were a blaze of color at that time were blackened by frost.

The following Statistical Report is herewith submitted.

PORT HOPE

The Guide says—An accident, which might have resulted fatally, occurred to Mr John Breen, as he was clearing out Mr Cary's well, at his residence, near the schoolhouse, Englishtown. He was being lowered into the well by means of bucket and windlass, when the rope broke and caused him to fall a distance of forty feet. His presence of mind did not forsake him, and to that he may attribute the saving of his life. While falling he stretched his arms against the sides of the well, thus reducing the velocity of his descent. Another fortunate circumstance was that the bucket on striking the water at the bottom of the well, turned to one side so that Mr Breen did not fall upon it. He escaped without any broken bones, but severe internal injuries and some bruises.

A report of the Chief Constable of the business done at the Port Hope Police Court in 1875 shows that the number of cases was 343; and the amount of fines and costs imposed was $740 79. The fines and costs collected were $655 60. The prisoners committed to jail were as follows; vagrants 27, drunk 18, larceny 7, unsound mind 3 obtaining money under false pretences 1, assault 1, total 57.

OSHAWA.

THE JOSEPH HALL WORKS.—The Reformer says:—The Creditors of the Hall Works met on Wednesday and have been in session up to last night, when we believe a settlement was arrived at as follows: Messrs Whiteley, of the firm of Whiteley, Easler & Kelly, of Springfield Ohio, and Barnes, of the firm of Sweet, Barnes & Co. of Syracuse, purchase the whole establishment, including buildings, stock and assets for the sum of $130,000 to be paid one half in one year and the other half in two years from date. The employees are glad to learn are to receive their wages in full. A meeting of the Creditors will be called at an early day to ratify this arrangement. Mr. W F. Cowan was appointed assignee, and Messrs T N Gibbs and L H Lee of Oshawa and Mr Fairman, of Montreal were elected inspectors. The people of Oshawa will be glad to learn that work is likely to be resumed in a very few weeks.

SUDDEN DEATH

A few days ago Mrs. Richard Swithson fell down stairs receiving a very severe injury on her head, breaking her arm a little above the wrist and dislocating the wrist joint. She is recovering under Dr. King's care. The sap of the sugar maple flowed freely on December 30 and 31, and January 1 and 2. The weather has been so mild that plowing was commenced by one or two parties on 1st January Union prayer meetings are being held this week in the Methodist Church near Bensfort, large numbers attend every night and are deeply interested. Just as the meeting was about to commence on Friday night it was reported that Mrs Thomas Dodds had expired after about one hour's illness, later the report is confirmed.—Com

To the Editor of the Examiner,

SIR,—By reports of a meeting lately held with the object of devising means to procure work for the unemployed poor of the town during the winter season, I observe that two or three plans have been proposed, all no doubt praiseworthy and well meant by the gentlemen who proposed and spoke on them. Some there were who advocated hauling stumps into an angle of the road leading down to the Little Lake Cemetry. Others proposed getting tenders for purchasing and hauling stones to the drill shed, there to be broken into road metal, and one or two had the temerity of suggesting that employment might be found in making the approaches for a bridge on Smith street over the Otonabee river. As to the filling in of the angle to the Cemetry, although it might be necessary, and a fit object for corporate attention, the question may be asked, what proportion of the expenditure upon it would go to the deserving poor. And as for the project of employing poor men in the drill shed, whom it is ostensibly sought to relieve by charitably seating them on a pile of stones for 8 or 10 hours a day, when the thermometer is at zero or many degrees below it, the height and wisdom, if not the philanthropy, of its promoters is fairly open to question. Assuming that stones to sit on and break were provided for the poor men and that the stones were broken, what then? How much of the outlay would come to the poor man's share? What effective or useful work would be done? Very little indeed. Make the whole town seat on a bed of Nails, a good mental by the world, and the very ar[illegible] upon which the drill shed stands, [illegible] it is proposed to deposit the stones [illegible] break, to shelf of the best quality for road making. Many great improvement streets in town much need, [illegible] ting water by cutting down hills, a[illegible] tables and culverts, filling up [illegible] ditches and hollows, etc. and removing good road material which is everywhere in abundance, to where it is required. Why not do some really useful work of this kind instead of committing the childish folly of "hauling coals to Newcastle"! If the capitalists and others who have figured in this movement wish to employ the poor at useless labor let them head a subscription list for that purpose and cease their display of doubtful generosity in trying to assist the poor people out of the taxes paid by themselves as well as by their would be generous donors.

A Few Words To Feeble and Delicate Women

By R.V. Pierce, M.D., of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo N. Y., Author of "The people's Common Sense Medical Adviser," etc; etc.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more difficult to cure, and the more serious, as a physician, who sees daily the effects of your sex, desire to say, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been benefited in the least, and they have a confidence in their correspondent and have asked me to write them over to take another step. One step, or to be cured by any means. Many had rather die and have their sufferings ended than to live and suffer as they have. They say they are worn out by suffering, and are only made worse by treatment. Of anything more discouraging, we certainly cannot conceive, and were there no more successful mode of treating such reducing and depleting of the vital forces of the system, when the medicament dictate a treatment directly the reverse of the one adopted by them, their case would be deplorable indeed. But, lady sufferers, there is a better and far more successful plan of treatment before you; one more in harmony with the laws and requirements of your system. A harsh, irritating course treatment and strong medicines will never cure you. If you would use rational means, such as common sense would dictate to every intelligent lady, take such medicines as embody the very best invigorating tonics and nervines, compounded with special reference to your delicate system. Such a happy combination you will find in my Favorite Prescription, which has received the highest praise from thousands of your sex. These tonical, invigorating cordials, by using you will be speedily able to go on your feet or ascend a flight of stairs; that continual drain that is sapping from your system all your former elasticity, and driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces that renders you irritable and fretful,—may all be overcome and subdued by a perseverying use of this marvelous remedy. Irregularities and obstructions to the proper working of your system are relieved by this mild and safe means, while periodical pains, the excessive of which is a sure indication of serious disease that should not be neglected rapidly yield to it, and it its use to be kept up for a reasonable length of time, the special cause of these pains is permanently removed. Further light on these subjects may be obtained from "The Peoples Common Sense Medical Adviser," in which I have devoted a large space to the consideration of all forms of disease peculiar to our sex. This work will be sent (post paid) to any address on receipt of $1 50 My Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

READ THIS TWICE.—Five to thirty drops of Thomas' Eclectric Oil, will cure common Sore Throat. It never fails in Croup. It will cure a cold or cough in twenty-four to forty-eight hours. One bottle has cured Bronchitis of eight years standing; recent cases are cured in three to six days. It has restored the voice where the person had not spoken above a whisper in five years. As an outward application in all cases of pain or lameness, nothing like it has ever been known. One bottle will cure any case of Lame Back or Crick in the Back. For diseases of the Spine and Contraction of the Muscles it is unequaled. In Rheumatic or any other pain the first application does you good. It cures Sore Ache and the pain of a burn in three minutes, and is altogether the best and cheapest medicine ever sold red to the people—the cheapest, because it takes so little to do you good. It is composed of six of the best oils known, and nothing but oils. It is worth its weight in gold. Why not buy it to-day?—A. B. Des Rochers, assistant postmaster, Arthabaska ville, P Q writes;—"Thirteen years ago I was seized by a severe attack of rheumatism in the head, from which I have nearly constantly suffered. After having used 'Thomas' Eclectric Oil' for nine days, bathing the forehead, I have been completely cured, and have only used half a bottle. This I can certify under oath if you wish."—Rev J Mallory, of Wyoming, N Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil cured me of Bronchitis in one week. Dealers all over the country say, "We have never sold a medicine that has given such complete satisfaction as this"

DEEDS OF KINDNESS.

BY N. S.

Suppose the lit le cowslip
Should hear the little carp
And say, "I'm such a tiny flower
I'd better not grow up;
How many a weary traveller
Would miss the bright perfume
And how can a bee or butterfly be
To me attracted to the spot.

Suppose the glittering dewdrop
Upon the grass should say,
"What can little dewdrop do?—
I'd better stay away"
The little boy who thirsts to-day,
Before the day was done,
Without a drop to moisten it
Would wither in the sun.

Suppose the little breeze,
Upon a sultry day,
Should think themselves too small to cool
The traveller on his way;
Who would not miss the smallest
And gentlest zephr that blow,
And think they made a great mistake
If they were talking so?

How many deeds of kindness
A little child may do,
Although it has so little strength,
And little wisdom too!
It wants a loving spirit
Much more than strength to prove
How many things a child may do.

WEDDING ANECDOTES.

A clergyman on one occasion waited for a couple in his parlor one evening, and as they did not keep their engagement, he went to bed. Just about half past eleven o'clock the door bell rang violently. He put a cap and a wrapper on, and in a state of general undress opened the second-story window and looked out. Three stood the tardy candidates for matrimony.

"Well, it's too late now," said the clergyman, "and it's too cold."

"Yes," called up the man, "but we missed the train, and I intend sailing to-morrow."

"Well, then, go to some other minister," answered the irate person.

"We can't now," both shouted up from the garden walk; "it's too late."

"Well I cannot marry you now," he said; "the servant has taken the front door key and has gone to sleep."

"Well, then, marry us out of the window," came up from below.

And so the minister took the book in hand and called out the directions from the second story casement, and the parties complied with the several orders, and finally left the fee in an envelope under the front door, and went out of the garden gate man and wife.

The levity with which some persons enter upon the solemn service of matrimony is very strange.

Persons often act as friends and witnesses, as parents and relatives, who only do it as they would act their parts in a farce or a charade. Actors and actresses have been known to be married just in the same way in which they would perform a certain role upon the stage, with that cynical indifference which a life of familiarity so often involves on the part of those who realize that, "all the world's a stage."

On saturday evening an Irish man and woman came to a certain minister's house to be married, but, finding him at a service, went over to his church and waited his pleasure. They wanted to be married at once, but they had no friends or witnesses with them. The minister demurred for some time, but the woman was too much for him; and at last he was "blarneyed" into compliance. When it came to the woman's turn to respond, she broke out laughing, and could not answer.

"That will do," said the minister.—"I am sure now there is something wrong; I can proceed no further."

"Oh, now, your reverence!" said the woman; "go in like a man; get that there ring on my finger once, and the I'm as good as the next one."

But still the minister refused.

"Shure," said the woman, "you wouldn't stop half-way who it's only a few words more will do the job entirely?"

But there was no more "g" to that alarmed clergyman, who was only to much relieved to stand clear with his conscience, and, like Paul, amid the wreck at Melita, to throw off the villainous beast in the fire, and, like him, to feel no harm!

On one occasion, a clergyman after pronouncing the benediction upon the kneeling couple before him, put forth his hand to congratulate the young husband, when he, with an indignant air, waved his hand away, saying, at the same time, "It's all right, sir; the first gentleman will attend to that." The same minister has another story of an old uncle, who brought his niece to the rectory on a cold, rainy day, to be married, and who, after the ceremony was over, fumbled about for a two dollar bill, and not being able to find it, said, as he handed the person a five dollar note, "Take the change out of that for a two dollar job; it's kind of wet and cold like to-day, and I guess two dollars will be about the thing."

Speed of Railway Trains.

Trains are now run at about the rate of 40 miles an hour,—sometimes much later, and generally somewhat slower. The fastest trains in England run at 60 miles an hour. To run at this rate, the piston or driving rod of the locomotive must travel at the speed of 800 feet per minute, or so rapidly that it cannot be seen to move at all. George Stephenson, the first to claim that the locomotive could run at 12 miles an hour, was called insane until he proved it. It was but a few years after this that prominent engineers said that railway trains could be regularly run at the rate of 10 miles an hour; and Stephenson was again called insane because he said that 50 miles an hour was as fast as trains could be regularly and safely run. But it is now discovered that he was nearly right, and locomotive makers are no longer building engines to run faster than at this rate. But they are trying, instead, to save the time out in taking coal and water for supplying the engine. On some lines a long open trough, 40 feet long, laid between the rails. This is filled with water. As the locomotive passes at the speed of 50 miles an hour, a pipe or scoop is lowered from it into this trough the water is thus dipped up and placed in the water-box for use by the engine. Another invention is a huge box raised above the road and filled with coal. As the locomotive passes, it touches a spring, the box turns instantly upside down, and the coal drops into the tender, which runs behind the locomotive. The time which is thus saved will of course make the trips shorter, without calling for an increase of speed.

The model husband lives in Philadelphia. He never allows his wife to do more than half the work. He puts up all the canned fruit in the summer, and puts it down in the winter.

The Eruption.—There is an idea here (says an Edinburg correspondent) that the Arctic Navis ready the North Pole for will be received by Shetlandman. We shall see when we see Captain Nares.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

French Potato Planter.—The Journal of Agriculture Pratique states that among the new machines which specially attracted the attention of agriculturalists at the recent meeting of the Palais de l'Industrie was a potato planting machine, invented by M. Coutan, and constructed by M. Peltier, jr. By means of an ingenious contrivance, worked by a gear, the tubers, previously placed in a box, are conveyed successively depositing the seed with perfect regularity in the furrow made by a share with which the machine is provided.

Mr. Russel Swanick, of the Circucester, England, Agricultural college, sold the other day a splendid boar and a promising sow of his celebrated Berkshire breed, the former at 70 guineas and the latter at 50 guineas, both for export to this country.

Richard Evans of Earville, N. Y., has a ewe seven years old that has raised fourteen lambs; the weight of which was from 130 to 150 pounds. All of the lambs, except one, have been sold in the fall after birth for from $8 to $11. The ewe is a half blood Leicester, and weighs 190 pounds.

The Iowa Agricultural College is said to be in excellent condition financially, the retails from the college lands more than meeting the current expenses. A new laboratory building has been finished recently, without exhausting the sum appropriated by the Legislature for the purpose.

The roads in some parts of Germany are lined during the entire distance with rows of poplars, of apple trees, the branches of which latter bend beneath the weight of the fruit. A fine of three shillings is the penalty for plucking the fruit, consequently it is permitted to ripen, and the owners or the community reap the benefit of their foresight in making shade trees at once beautiful and profitable.

Orchard in Winter.

The old, rough, loose ark affords a holding-place for many worms, and if scraped off, the worms will either be crushed by the operating, or left exposed to be frozen to death. Old hoes that have been worn too short for convenient use in hoeing, may be used for scraping the trees, and if the handle is shortened to one and a half to two feet, it will add to its convenience. If in addition to scraping off the bark, the trees are washed in the spring, with soft lie, or diluted soft soap, it will increase the healthy action of the bark. Another word for winter in the orchard is manuring. There is no doubt that orchards need feeding liberally, to bear successive crops of good, fair fruit. Farm-yard manure, lime, ashes, muck, commercial fertilizers, anything that will promote the growth of trees or fruit can be applied in the winter at less cost out, than during the busy season, and if the ground was plowed in the fall the manure can be harrowed and cultivated in, during the spring and summer. An orchard should receive some pruning, every winter, as every year's growth will produce more or less water sprouts, and so enlarge and extend the branches so as to bring some in contact that did not touch the previous year. An apply tree that needs to have large limbs cut off, in evidence of past neglect or mismanagement, for a judicious annual pruning would have obviated any such necessity. A tree can of have large limbs removed without injury to its vitality, and although in neglected orchards, it may be necessary to occasionally cut off too large a limb, it should only be done when it cannot be avoided by removing smaller ones.—Rural Home.

Educating Horses.—Horses can be educated to the extent of their understandings as well as children, and can damaged or ruined by bad management. We believed that the great difference found in horses as to vicious habits or reliability comes more from the different management of men than from variance of natural disposition in the animals. Horses with high metal are more easily educated than those of less or dull spirits, and are more susceptible to ill-training, and consequently may be as good or bad, according to the education they receive. Horses with dull spirits are not by any means proof against bad managements, for in them may be often found the most provoking obstanacy; vicious habits or different characters that render them almost entirely worthless. Could the coming generation of horses to this country be kept from their days of foaling to the age of five years in the hands of good, careful managers, there would be seen a vast difference in the general characters of those noble animals. If a colt is never allowed to get an advantage, it will never know it possesses a power that man cannot control; and if made familiar with strange objects, it will not be skittish and nervous. If a horse is made accustomed from his early days to have objects hit him on the heels, back, and hips, he will pay no attention to the giving out of a harness or of a waggon running against him at an unexpected moment. We once saw an aged lady driven high horse, attached to a carriage, down a steep hill, with no hold-back straps upon the harness, and she assured us that there was no danger, for her son accustomed his horses to all kinds of images and sights that commonly drive the animal into a frenzy of fear and excitement. A gun can be fixed from the back of a horse, an umbrella held over his head, a buffalo robe thrown over his neck, a railroad engine pass close by, his heels bumped with sticks, and the animal take it all as a natural condition of things, it only taught by careful management that he will not be injured thereby. There is great need of improvement in the management of this noble animal; less bearing wanted and more of education.

To dress Red-Birds.—Pick, open and carefully wash one dozen or more birds, place them between the folds of a towel, and with a rolling-pin mash the bones quite flat; season with salt, and a little of boto Cayenne and black pepper, and either fry as oysters, or broil on a gridiron made broiling oysters. This must be done over a clear fire, and when a light brown on the under side turn, and brown the other; when done, season, but on each a lump of butter, and serve hot.

Chocolate Pudding.—Three-quarters of a cupful of chocolate grated to one quart of milk which has not been skimmed. Let it boil; then set it cold. Beat until very light and thick the yolks of four eggs, reserving the same number of whites, with which to make a meringue. Sweeten with half a pound of white sugar, and flavor delicately with vanilla. The chocolate being cool gradually stir in the sweetened eggs, put it into a baking dish, and let it bake slowly but not til overdone. To make the meringue, beat up the whites until they will stand alone; add by degrees four table-spoonfuls of sifted pulverized sugar, and flavor with a little vanilla or lemon juice. When the chocolate portion is again cold, heap up the meringue upon it, and brown slightly by holding over it the red-hot lid of an oven, or some-thing of the sort. This quantity of pudding suffices for about six persons.

VINEGAR BITTERS

Greatest Known Remedial Agent ever combined with the Curative Properties of a Nauseous Preventive.

VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. In certain cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often this unseen and subtle tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing those obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness will find immediate relief and continuing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

THE MARRIAGE KNOT.

I know a bright and handsome May. Who knows I love her well; But if she loves, or will some day, I cannot make her tell. She sings the songs I write for her. Of tender hearts betrayed; But not the one that I prefer, About a country maid. The hour when I its burden hear Will never be forgot; "Oh, stay not long! but come, my dear, And knit one marriage knot."

It is about a country maid I see her in my mind. She is not of her love afraid, And cannot be unkind. She knits and sings with many a sigh. And as her needles glide, She wishes and she wonders why He is not by her side. "He promised he would meet me here, Upon this very spot, "Oh, stay not long! but come my dear, "And knit our marriage knot!"

My lady will not sing the song. "Why not?" Long, And she, Tossing her head, "it is too long," And I, "too short maybe." She has her little wilful way: But I persist, and then "It is not maidenly," she says, "For maids to sigh for men." "But men must sigh for maids. I fear: I know it in my lot, Until you whisper, 'Come my dear, And knit our marriage knot.'"

Why is my little one so coy? Why does she use me so? I am not a fiend and loathsome boy To lightly come and go. A man who loves, I know my heart, And will know her's are long For, certes, I will not depart Until she sings my song! She learned it all, as you shall hear, No word has she forgot; "Begin my dearest," "Come, my dear, And knit our marriage knot!"

R. H. Goodland in Scribner for January.

MARVELS OF MATTER.

Think of the acorn, of the earth, and of the solar light and heat—was ever such necromancy dreamt of as the production of that massive trunk, the sweeping bows and whispering leaves from the inter-action of those three factors? In this inter-action, moreover, consists what we call life. Consider it for a moment. There is an experiment, first made by Wheatstone, where the music of a piano is transferred from its sound board, through a thin wooden rod, across several silent rooms in succession, and poured out a distance from the instrument. The strings of the piano vibrate, not singly, but ten at a time. Every string subdivides, yielding not one note, but a dozen. All these vibrations and subvibrations are crowded together into a bit of deal not more than a quarter of an inch in section. Yet no note is lost. Each vibration asserts its individual rights, and all are at last, shaken forth into the air by a second soundboard, against which the distant end of the rod presses. Thought ends in amazement when it seeks to realize the motions of that rod as the music flows through it. I turn to my tree and observe its roots, its trunk, its branches and its leaves. As the rod conveys the music, and yields it up to the distant air, so does the trunk convey the matter and the motion:—the stocks and pulses and other vital actions—which eventually emerge into the umbrageous foliage of the tree. I went some time ago through the green-house of a friend. He had ferns from Ceylon the branches of which were in some cases not much thicker than an ordinary pin—hard, smooth and cylindrical—often leafless for a foot or more. But at the end of every one of them the unsightly twig unlocked the exuberant beauty, hidden within it and broke forth into a mass of fronds almost large enough to fill the arms. We stand here upon a higher level of the wonderful; we are conscious of a music subtler than that of the piano, passing unheard through these tiny boughs, and issuing in what Mr. Martineau would opulently call the "clustered magnificence" of the leaves. Does it lessen my amazement to know that every cluster and every leaf—their form and texture—be, like the music in the rod, it the molecular structure of these apparently insignificant stems? Not so.—Prof. Tyndall

EVENING PARTIES.

Nothing has contributed to deprive evening parties of an intellectual and conversational character, and to reduce them all to the same level of dullness and barrenness, more than the invariable introduction of music. It is known that almost every lady "has brought her music," and expects to be asked to play or sing; and it is proper to give any gentlemen who is reputed to have "a voice," or to cultivate the science of harmony, an opportunity to display his accomplishment. Of course there ought to be no talking at all, and there can be no general conversation while these performances are going on. Instead of an agreeable interlude they become too often the staple of the evening's entertainment. The expectation of them is quite sufficient to prevent the introduction of subjects of a nature to engage the interest of a considerable number of those present. Or if by chance a group has entered into the discussion of a question, or is listening to a good story, the first notes of the piano are a signal for the abrupt abandonment of both talk and narrative; and after the song or sonata they cannot be very effectually resumed, especially as, when once begun, music is thenceforth the order of the evening. No disparagement is intended in this complaint to music as an art, or as an accomplishment of either sex. Its influence in society, in education, and as a public amusement, is elevating and refining. Large or small parties formed for the purpose of practising and enjoying music, are by all means to be encouraged in every class among us. But both musical taste and social intercourse would be improved if a distinction were established between musical soirees and ordinary evening parties. It would contribute to the satisfaction of all, and the relief of many, if, as in the case of dancing, music were always announced on the card of invitation when it is intended that music shall be the chief engagement or entertainment of the evening. After all, however, it is probable that the introduction of music is the consequence, as much as the cause of the dullness and emptiness of our ordinary parties. It has been found necessary, in order to relieve the ennui which is experienced after the first hour or so, when everybody has arrived, and the weather and kindred topics having been thoroughly chattered out, it is universally felt that there is nothing to say and nothing to do, so that the remedy for the "weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable" character of our social reunions is not to be found in the mere relegation of music to strictly musical parties.—Leisure Hour.

Forgive the Debt.

About a year ago I went to a neighboring city to see an old customer of mine, who owed a balance of account, to see if he would not pay up. I had noticed that the payments had been made with great difficulty, and for some months had ceased altogether. I had heard that he had been somewhat unfortunate.

He called at the hotel at my request. I saw at once that he was poor, he had lost his him, and the elastic spirits of old were removed by the dull, heavy sullenness of despair. I stated my business; but before I had finished he stopped me with the positive word that he had nothing in the world that he could use in payment; and then he told of his losses and poverty; his wife keeping boarders; he in debt $5,000, and assets all used up; he was bound hand and foot—helpless. I suggested a release.

"How can I be released with nothing to pay with?"

"I will ask for you."

"Yes, but they will not do it without something."

"Only ask through me. I will intercede for you, and you may yet be released a free man."

"I have long since lost all hope, but perhaps there is a chance yet;" and with tears he held my hand for the parting.

Every firm signed a legal release, and I sent it to him with a letter of encouragement; and what a letter I got in return! He is now in business again happy and hopeful.

I have often thought how it illustrates our condition. We are all helpless, bound with cords of sin; a pardon waits us, if we will but ask through the intercession of Christ. How many messages have gone to Christ on the wings of prayer, in thankfulness for the release from the bondage of sin.—"American Messenger."

The Sword of Gold.

Disraeli from writing romances has taken to enacting them. His purchase of the Suez Canal is the event of modern politics. No hint of his purpose was given, no suspicion of it entertained; the negotiations were conducted in absolute secrecy; when consummated an order was telegraphed to draw on Messrs. Rothschild at sight for four millions sterling; and England and America learned the news the same morning. Great Britain now controls the highway between the East and the West. Parliament has yet to ratify the purchase and vote the money; but the pride of Englishmen in the coup is so universal that even the opposition will hesitate to question or cavil. The boldness of the act, the romance of the achievement, has carried Great Britain by storm.

We say she controls the highway. It is true that her purchase does not give her a majority of the shares. But English capitalists will follow their government. It is not improbable that even now the Suez Canal is owned in England.

The suddenness of the coup is not the only nor perhaps the chief attractiveness of it to the Englishmen Disraeli has shown him an open way to resume his lost power in continental affairs. He cannot compete with Germany or France in armaments. He is coolly left out by Germany, Austria, and Russia, in their conferences concerning Turkish affairs. He was humiliated by the fee that the fate of Italy, of Austria, of France, was settled, and he was powerless to influence, much less to control. His sword has rusted in its scabbard. But now Disraeli has shown him that he has a sword of gold. By a peaceful victory, won with a despatch at one end of the wire and a purse at the other, he has become master of one of the great highways of commerce. Continental Europe can find no cause of complaint. The Suez Canal was private property; it would be strange cause for war, or even for diplomatic correspondence, that the English government chose to invest in it. Some attempt may be made to secure by treaties and international neutrality in the canal, but it is not likely to succeed. And the diplomats of Europe will find themselves compelled, in their future calculations, to count on the new power, the efficiency of which Disraeli has so signally demonstrated England has not only won a most significant victory; she has introduced a new element of power into European politics by her use of the sword of gold.

How to Avoid a Bad Husband.

1. Never marry for wealth. A woman's life consisteth not in things that she possesseth.

2. Never marry a fop, or one who struts about dandy-like, to show his silk gloves and ruffles, with silvered cane, and rings on his fingers. Beware! there is a trap.

3. Never marry a niggard, or closefisted man, sordid wretch, who saves every penny, or gives it grudgingly.—Take care lest he sting you to death.

4. Never marry a stranger, or one whose character is not known or tested. Some females jump right into the fire with their eyes wide open.

5. Never marry a rogue or a drone, or one who drawls and drags through life one foot after another, and lets things take their own course.

6. Never marry a man who [illegible] his mother, [illegible] ordering her about [illegible] Such unmanliness [illegible] disposition of a mean and wicked man.

7. Never on any account [illegible] a gambler, a profane person, or one who speaks lightly of God or religion. Such a man can never make a good husband.

8. Never marry a sloven, a man who is negligent of his person or dress, and is filthy in his habits. The external appearance is an index to the heart.

9. Shun the rake as a snake, a viper a very demon.

10. Finally never marry a man who is addicted to the use of ardent spirits. Depend upon it you are better off alone than you would be were you tied to a man whose breath is polluted, and whose vitals are being gnawed out by alcohol

In the choice of a wife, take the obedient daughter of a good mother.

THE POWER OF TRUTH.

The truth as it is in Christ has power to save. He who fairly sees through a mathematical demonstration is convinced by it. He needs no exhortation to believe it. It carries its own weight with it. He who sees what sin is in the sight of God, and what evidence of sin there are in his own heart and life, is by that very sight convicted of sin. He who in reality sees the love of God in Christ Jesus and the unbounded compassion of the Heavenly Father, as shown in his free offer of a complete pardon and acceptance, is touched and melted by it and gives to God gratitude in return for His kindness. We love Him because He first loved us. He who sees what the divine claim on him is,

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 20, 1876.

THE PACIFIC RAILWAY.

It is not surprising when partizan editors mislead their readers, by allowing their feelings to get the better of their conscientiousness," when now and then fiction takes the place of facts. But respectable journals like the Dominion Churchman should avoid the errors of the political press, and publish only the most reliable information. In the last Churchman we find the following paragraph :—

"The Pacific Railway, it would seem "at last, is to be entirely shelved. A "minute in council proposes that the "agreement to build the railway shall "be cancelled, as well as the compromise "since made : also that seven hundred "and fifty thousand dollars shall be paid "down in cash to the Province of British "Columbia, instead of commencing the "Esquimault and Nanaimo Railway, and "spending two million annually on con-"structions within the limits of that "Province. It is urged that all that the "British Columbians wanted was to have "money spent in their colony.

It will appear strange indeed when it is known that there is no foundation whatever for the first assertion of this paragraph, namely: "It would seem at last, is to be entirely shelved." The Government propose to give British Columbia $750,000 towards building a portion of the railway that runs parallel to the Pacific coast, and which is not needed at all, except in the interest of Victoria, but as we understand it, they are still engaged in the surveys of the railway and have it located to Esquimault on the Pacific. The late government made promises they well knew they never could perform. They were ready to promise a railway to China, if thereby they could secure the vote of the British Columbians in the hour of Sir John's distress. Mr. Mackenzie, however, is endeavoring to carry out the pledges of the government, and their offer of $750,000 is as a bonus to that province and then let them build any road that is only of provincial or local value. This differs very materially from shelving the whole Pacific rail way. The Churchman, we believe, has no desire to mislead its readers, but political news items and reports against the government should not be relied on merely because appearing in the Mail. The influence of a religious paper can be seriously affected by political one-sidedness.

PARLIAMENTARY

Since the House re-assembled, very little of importance has transpired. Some private bills have been moved forward a stage, a bill by Mr. Mowat to amend the election law and to relieve parties who have been disqualified because of some trifling offence has been submitted. It contemplates relieving men of both shades of politics, viz:—Mr. Stock and Mr. Barber, whose crimes, if guilty of crime at all, were considered too trivial to disqualify them for eight years.

Mr. Crooks has submitted his bill providing for the proposed change in educational matters, and providing for a Minister of Education instead of a Chief Superintendent. The Railway Policy of the Government has not yet been even foreshadowed, a very large number of Companies and projects are looking for aid, involving an outlay of nothing short of $3,500,000.

The Government will in all probability grant aid, but perhaps not to the extent asked for, nor yet to the amount sought by the Railway promoters.

There have been but two vote taken since the holidays one was on a private measure providing for accepting a verdict of a majority of Jury in Civil Cases. The change was negatived by eight. The other was on securities of official by 24 to 45.

WEST PETERBOROUGH

It does not yet appear that the member for West Peterborough has been sent for to form a government. He is not very talkative on public matters. The fact that the member for East Peterborough is expected to lead, has placed Mr. Scott in a very unhappy position. His senior colleague is very reticent, unless on matters affecting particular interest, and the junior member is therefore compelled to be discreet. Mr. McDougall has also taken the wind so completely out of both their sails that they do not understand their true position. But they do understand that there is a dense mist between them and the Treasury Benches.

Mr. Scott has moved for a return of the cost of the Municipal Elections at the begining of this year. How will he get the information? The municipalities are not obliged to make these returns, and if they were obliged no full returns could be obtained till about the middle of the year, or perhaps till accounts are audited next spring. No one knows this better than does Mr. Scott; and he knows well that his motion is buncombe. He is in favor of calling the House together at a fixed period of each year. What a reformer he is when in opposition. During the period his political friends were in power, not a word was heard about fixing the period for calling the House together. Things were then done to suit the dominant party, and Mr. Scott was then ready to defend even their worst acts. He is so quiet in the House that few will be able ever to use his own sayings against him, or to quote his speeches.

The Doctor has not yet voted Mr. Mowat, that most extravagant Minister, out of power. The vote on the Orange question has not yet been taken. A strong desire is manifested to shift the responsibility of the vote on the Orange lady, but why should either of these gentlemen do so? Are the Catholics of Peterborough willing that the advice of the Orange lodges should prevail, or are the Orangemen prepared to accept the dictum of the Doctor? They must not now be permitted to shirk the responsibilities of their own acts.

INCONSISTENCY OR LAZINESS

A motion was introduced in the Legislature on Tuesday to reduce the necessary quorum of the Public Accounts Committee from 9 to 7 members.

This was called for because the members of the Opposition neglected to attend the meetings of the Committee on several occasions not one Opposition member appearing. These are the guardians of the public interest. These are the men who carp about extravagance. These are they who howled about the way Mr. Crooks and others cooking the accounts and falsifying their surplus. When will the country awake to the hollow hypocrisy of those men who went about crying extravagance.

The way in which Mr. Scott berated the Government over their surplus during the Contest, was amusing, but now that he has the accounts before him, item by item, and a full opportunity to expose their extravagance, where is he? Either too lazy to attend or too indifferent to public interest to trouble himself about those things. And where was the Doctor who so eloquently held forth on the Debenture Sale, which in his speeches he condemned as corrupt and extravagant, but had not time or ability to prove either? Where was he? In the smoking room dilating on the charitable nature of his profession and his readiness to alleviate suffering humbnity! Wherever he was, or wherever Mr. Scott was, and the entire Opposition, not one of them attended the meeting of the Public Accounts Committee. What guardians of the Public Interest! How they do investigate the accounts. Will they be able to calculate their sessional allowance?

SPECIAL ATTENTION.

Mr. John Carnegie has been paying special attention to Mr. J. B. McWilliams and the Sheriff of late. Mr. McWilliams gets too large a salary, and there are two Sheriffs for one pay. These are no small crimes. Extreme modesty prevents Mr. Carnegie from saying that he is hankers the best of these two offices. The honor and the emoluments are tempting. He has lost hopes of becoming a member of the Scott-O'Sullivan Cabinet, and would now be satisfied with smaller favors. There is a rumor that a certain race on Hunter street has something to do with his visions of office, and the extravagance of the government. Mr. McWilliams has a yearly salary of $2,000 and pays his own expenses on all things connected with his office. If he is compelled to do work outside of his fixed duties he gets repaid any money he expends, and has he not a right to it? Mr. Carnegie, when he gets the chance, takes all the pickings he can obtain; but then he is the public guardian of the peoples' interests, since neither Mr. Scott nor Doctor O'Sullivan has time to attend the meetings of the public accounts committee.

READ THIS

SCOTLAND'S POOR:—Those who are out of employment in Glasgow, and are therefore provided with work on the improvement of the public parks, are paid a shilling a day, with a warm dinner in addition. About 260 are employed on such terms. Twenty five cents and dinner per day is not very encouraging remuneration. The fact that so many are glad to avail themselves of it shows that the hard times are not confined to Canada.

And all this under the Disraeli Government. A Conservative one, and the only one that can control the affairs of Great Britain honorably. And there is suffering in Scotland, and men out of employment. How is this? Will those Conservative croakers who attribute the tight times in Canada to the Government explain. Will that Conservative idol, Sir John, explain how it is that under Desraeli the stringency has reached Great Britain. Yet so it is.

CRIMINAL WITNESSES.

Mr. Mowat has introduced a Bill providing for paying witnesses in criminal cases. This great big-bear is now removed, although the conservative party never attempted such a thing during the twenty years they were in power.

Mr. Mowat also introduced a Bill in reference to securities for public officers. At present the securities are liable until the bonds are cancelled. Mr. McDougall moved an amendment that they be not liable longer than one month after the death of the officer. But this only showed the weakness of the Opposition, as it was lost on a vote of 24 to 45. Where is our local prophet? Why, he must surely be a false prophet.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL

This body will meet on Tuesday, when expectations will be on tiptoe as to the Warden for 1876. We respect the late Warden, Mr. Birdsall very highly. He discharged his duties honestly and honorably, we believe and in consequence we would not be disappointed at his being re-elected to the honorable position. We, however, think that the honor should go round. Mr. Sanderson is an old councillor, a very careful and honorable one, a man whom everyone of his colleagues honor and respect, and although he may not aspire to it, it certainly is his due. The Reeve of Dummer, too, is an old councillor, of considerable experience, well acquainted with municipal matters and a gentleman who would worthily fill the office.

The Reeve of Ashburnham, Mr John Burnham, is also well qualified to fill the office. He is careful, economical and in his intercourse with his colleagues amiable and would be a worthy successor to Mr. Birdsall or any of the gentleman who have been raised to the position heretofore. It is true there is nothing wrong in re-electing good Wardens, men who have performed their duties faithfully and satisfactorily. But the system of selecting a new man when available in rotation to be appointed of three "third terms" or even two terms by adopting this mode the honor would touch all in turn and the men who would consider the honor sufficient reward for faithful public service.

In these days of politics in everything, we may be accused of introducing them into the election of Warden, but to this, if raised, we only say, by no means. If Mr. Burnham be selected his election will meet our approbation, and we only bring forward the names of Mr Sanderson and Mr. Choate because they are old councillors and deserving of honor. All the members of the County Council will not aspire to the position, but even if they do, the order of merit will surely be long and faithful service, and fitness.

The gentlemen named possess all those qualifications. There are others, it is true, qualified, whose turn would come round in order. All men are ambitious, and ambition to act an honorable part so as to obtain an honorable position is commendable and deserving of honor in turn.

OTTAWA MATERS

The Inspector of Public Schools was lately charged by a teacher, J. W. McDowal, with having opened the examination papers previous to the day of examination, and with showing those papers or some of them to favorite teachers. He was also accused of having given the answers to the questions to several of the candidates, thus giving undue advantages not afforded to the others.

A commission was appointed by the Chief Superintendent to investigate the charges, and that commission has found the charges sustained, and find that the Rev. Mr. Borthwick has been guilty of showing favor to some candidates, and of granting certain aids to teachers not granted by other examining boards.

The Chief Superintendent directs that teachers who received assistance be required to be examined, and he has done away with the Ottawa City Board of Examiners. But there is not a word about punishing the parties who opened the papers and gave them and their answers to the favored candidates. The report also blames the teachers for accepting assistance, yet pass es leniently over the fault of those who tendered the assistance. The distinction is certainly a very nice one, but few will be able to arrive at the conclusion that the teachers are the more guilty party. Perhaps in both cases the sense of having done wrong would be sufficient punishment, and that the wiser course would have been to consider the certificates granted to those favored teachers as valid, only in the district to which the Board was limited, namely the City of Ottawa.

HOW PURE

The Mail has been making a great fuss over a few dollars spent in furnishing the Speaker's rooms. The whole matter is one of those unprincipled attacks on the government for the purpose of making political capital.

The following letter to the Mail from the Speaker settles the matter, and shows that the Mail party have been accustomed to do the very things of which it now complains :

To the Editor of The Mail.

SIR,—Will you permit me to give the following explanation as to the charges of extravagance and impropriety made against me in your issue of this morning. My attention has frequently, of late, been called to charges of the same character in other newspapers, but I have hitherto refrained from answering them.

Your observations this morning would have been entirely unobjectionable had they been confined to the general question of whether the Speaker has any authority whatever in the spending of public money, or whether in the present instance he has not exceeded the fair limits of his authority. But I submit they went too far in charging him with personal impropriety—with stating that he had unjustifiably spent several hundred dollars for furniture, robes, etc, and in calling upon his constituents "to send a man to the Assembly who is able to pay for his own shoes and stockings."

Such charges ought not to be made against any public servant until after a careful examination into the facts—nor until after a careful consideration of the usages applicable to them

I will not now discuss the general question of the power of the Speaker to spend public money upon his own responsibility. The rules of the House, both here and at Ottawa, give the Speaker large powers with respect to the employment of sessional clerks messengers, etc., and in unprovided cases we are to look to "the rules, usages, and forms of the house of Commons of Great Britain." I understand that according to those "usages and forms," and according to those "usages and forms," and according to the well-established custom which has hitherto prevailed in the old Assembly of Canada, in the Commons at Ottawa, and in all the Provincial Assemblies in this country, such expenditures as are now in question are made upon the sole authority of the Speaker.

That may or may not be correct in principle, but I submit that I ought not to be charged with personal impropriety for doing what at all events has been heretofore done without question in this Province.

With respect to the charges themselves allow me to make the following explanation: ..When I took possession of the Speaker's rooms, I consulted the Clerk of the House, who is well known to be an authority upon the rules and usages of the House—as to getting some new curtains and re-covering some old chairs. He informs me that the previous Speakers had been accustomed to order such things upon their own authority and we accordingly together selected the material and had the work done. Subsequently, and if my rooms began to be used as a consulting room and quasi Executive Council Chamber by members of the Government, and as much on their account as my own I rarely used the room I caused an expense to be incurred of about forty dollars. These two matters comprise the whole sum of my extravagance in the Speaker's rooms.

The bills of Mr Hay submitted to the Committee on Public Accounts, amounting to $783, began from a time several months prior to my accession to the Speakership, and include everything which he furnished to or did for the whole Parliament Buildings. They are bona fide furniture for and repairs to the Assembly room, the Library, the Clerk's room the Council Chamber, the smoking-room, the Queen's Printer's Office the Post Office, the Telegraph Office, &c. With these I have no more to do than you have.

As to the official garments procured for myself I may say that I have never even ordered them. They were ordered by the Clerk of the House just precisely in the same manner as he had been in the habit of doing from the first for previous Speakers. The articles consist of a robe, a hat, a Queen's Counsel coat and waistcoat. Nothing else has ever been ordered, procurred, or paid for. These articles have always heretofore been furnished to my predecessors, and to all other Speakers in this land, I suppose, in every other country where they are worn. With the exception of the hat, they are also furnished to the Clerk of the House, and, with the Sergeant-at-Arms. Under these circumstances, and considering that the house has always sanctioned the same expenditure for my predecessors, I fail to see why I should now be more the subject of censure than they.

I make these explanations very reluctantly; but the extraordinary misapprehension which has prevailed upon this subject will, I hope, justify me in doing so—at all events in the eyes of my friends

I am, sir,
Your obedient servant,
R. M. WELLS.

THE Government intend employing women as copying clerks in the different departments. It has been found to work well at Washington.

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL SESSION.

Friday, Jan.. 14, 1876

The Council met on Friday evening, all the members present but Mr. Hamilton.

The Mayor informed the Council that he had called them together to receive the report of the Committee on the new Bennett Chamber.

The Minutes were then read and confirmed after some amendments.

Mr. Beal urged that no other business except that for which they had been called together should be taken up.

Mr. Beal then read over a report that the new hall be leased for a term of five or ten years at the option of Mr. Bradburn, from January 1st, 1876, and that Mr. Bradburn be paid six months rent in advance during the time of the lease.

Mr. Rutherford enquired if the intention was to pay rent from first January, and if so when the Council was to get possession.

Mr. Helm said it was the fault of the Council that they had not possession. They had delayed it to make some fixings.

Mr. Rutherford opposed paying rent for the place three months before they could occupy it.

The report was then adopted.

Moved by Mr. Paterson, seconded by Mr. Beal—That the Mayor be authorized to sign the lease in accordance with this report.

The Mayor suggested that the Council should pass a certain by-law to enable the Committee of councillors and citizens to meet what they think necessary.

Mr. Hopkins thought this matter should be left to the new council. This was agreed to.

Mr. Beal said that the Committee had neglected to provide for lighting the new council chamber, and as Mr. Stevenson who was present would give the Council information,

Mr. Stevenson addressed the Council, but it was held that the matter should be left in the hands of the Council.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Thornton,—That Mr. Rutherford be added to the committee on the crib work at the Little Lake, and that the work be proceeded with under their direction as soon as convenient.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks.

The Great Blunderer.

With all Mr. Wm. McDougall's ability and opportunities for success there is probably no public man in Canada who has so marred his usefulness by blunders as has Mr. McDougall. Many years ago he blundered fearfully when he took it upon himself to say, in effect, that we had no Crown Lands in Upper Canada fit to offer to immigrants. Again he blundered when he had the effrontery to publicly say, in effect that he looked upon the demand for Rep. by Pop. as a cry which might be used by himself when out of office and disregarded when he had reached that haven. He blundered when he made the speech that made the Tories give him the name of "Look-to-Washington-McDougall." He blundered when he separated from his old political associates and surrendered himself to the fickler mercies of Sir John A. McDonald. He blundered when he allowed Sir John to trick him out of a Cabinet office by the delusive bribe of a Lieutenant Governorship that he was never destined to occupy. He blundered when occupying a variety of commissionerships to Europe, he left his employers free to either acknowledge and pay him for his work there or do the opposite. He blundered when on his return to Canada he entered into an alliance with Mr. Cameron, with whom he had neither personal nor political sympathies. And he is now involved in his greatest blunder—one of his own making—that of occupying a seat in the legislature to which he has no legal right, and to which, if he can acquire such right, he can only do so through the generosity of the men whom he holds it his duty to condemn as being bad and inefficient. And to these the fact that he has through his whole political career, been blunderingly flitting from one party to another until all parties have lost faith in him, and it is easily understood why it is that he now plays second fiddle in the minority in a Legislature that he professes to hold in contempt, and that even in that position he has already made so many mistakes as to make his deputy leadership something of a farce.

What we have now to specially deal with is his present position in the Legislature. It is now all but universally acknowledged that he has no more legal to a seat in the Ontario Assembly than he has to a seat on the throne of Great Britain. The fact that as a Privy Councillor his election to the Legislature for South Simcoe was void, was first brought before the public in a series of letters to the London Advertiser written over the signature "D. M." It is no secret that the writer was Mr. David Mills, M. P., for Bothwell, whose intimate acquaintance with constitutional and Parliamentary law would have made his mere opinion of great weight even if he had not accompanied it, as he did, with such proofs of its correctness as placed his view of the case beyond dispute. So forcible were his arguments and proofs that even Mr. McDougall is understood to be convinced and Mr. Mowat being no less so, is seeking by an act of the Legislature to relieve Mr. McDougall from the results of his own blundering. We may say in this connection that those who heard Mr. Mowat's speech on the relief clause in question are aware that the opinion he expressed was that he had no doubt that Mr. McDougall was disqualified. The Globe in its report chose to make it that Mr. Mowat was in no doubt as to whether Mr. McDougall was qualified or not, but the motive for that little specimen of Globular garbling is well known. The point against Mr. McDougall was first raised by an outside journal, and worst of all, it was made by that detested "schoolmaster" Mr. Mills, whose offence in seeking to make the Senate elective contrary to the Globe's desire is one that is held by that journal to "smell to heaven." It finds it it easier and more pleasant to its nasal organ to sniff the Cacchon "smell" than to forgive Mr. Mills, want of submission to Globe views, and it takes a noble revenge by garbling the Premier's speech rather than allow its readers to know that the rebellious "schoolmaster" had so far carried his point as to have its correctness endorsed publicly in the Legislature by Mr. Mowat.

By reference to an extract we give elsewhere, from a letter from Mr. Mills, it will be seen that he now contends that the Ontario Legislature cannot make Mr. McDougall's election valid. His reasoning is strong, and appears unanswerable that if Mr. McDougall continues to sit in the Legislature, he must do so by virtue of an Act of Parliament and the vote of the House, instead of as the legally elected member for the constituency. If that be the case, then the only remedy will be to relieve Mr. McDougall from the penalties he has subjected himself to by sitting in the Legislature so far (the House, we presume, can do that); to repeal the law disqualifying Privy Councillors and then allow the re-election of Mr. McDougall to a valid way for the constituency which now he does not legally represent. The motion taken already by Mr. Mowat shows that there is no desire on the part of the Ministerialists to treat Mr. McDougall otherwise than fairly and generously, but lest if they cannot keep him "in" still without violating law, the only safe way is to place him in such a position that he can return to the House as a legally qualified member.

With all due sympathy for Mr. McDougall, and every desire to see him retained as a member of the House and leader of the reckless section of the Tory party, it is not possible to view his position as being other than ludicrous. He had loudly arrived in Canada before he proclaimed himself one of the fathers of the constitution, and took Mr. Mowat severely to task on the alleged ground that he either did not understand or did not properly value, that cognizance; on every platform and stump that was open to him Mr. McDougall vaunted his profound knowledge of Constitutional and Parliamentary law, and solemnly avowed it the purpose of his life to secure their due observance. But as a painful commentary on all this self-assumed knowledge we have it, as Mr. McDougall's first great act in his new political career, that he secured for himself a nominal election for South Simcoe in profound ignorance of the law, and is now willing to retain his seat in open defiance of the law. It would be impossible for any public man to stultify himself so completely as Mr. McDougall has done, and no man but himself could have so ingeniously blundered into so ridiculous a position.

THE CONFESSION OF FAITH

In the last number of the Presbyterian appears the following, anent this subject :

"Admitting the force of much that has been said on both sides, and the ability with which it has been said; and without in the smallest degree undertaking to settle the question or to discuss or vindicate the Confession of Faith, we may venture a few remarks in dismissing this subject more with reference to the character of the discussion which has taken place than to the circumstances which led to it or to the doctrines passed under review. And first with respect to the Confession of Faith we would say that, whatever place too ardent admirers amongst either our ministers or our people may claim for it, we do not suppose there are any who would for a moment aver that it is 'perfect' 'infallible' a fin'ality' or the 'ultimate authority' for the doctrines taught in our church. Its place is it is simply and only that which by her formal deliverances in her corporate capacity the Church has given it, namely that of a subordinate standard. And this is all the Church is responsible for despite all insinuations and bold assumptions to the contrary. The charge or perhaps we should rather say the assumption has been persistently made, the impression sought to be conveyed that the Confession is regarded as 'perfect, infallible,' the ultimate authority. We know not who may consider it as such, but the fact that it is called subordinate by the Church in official documents clearly defines her position with respect to it

THE BUSINESS DEPRESSION.

Mr. John Macdonald, whose monthly and annual trade reviews are generally depended upon for their fairness and accuracy, has issued one with reference to the business transactions of 1875 that will be read with interest.

Not long ago we issued one in which he held that the manufacturing interests of the country needed more in the way of Protection than any Canadian Government had yet been disposed to give them. This view was fully endorsed by the friends of our home industries of both political parties.

In his present circulars he says; There "can be no doubt that the year just closed "has been a trying one, not only in Canada, "but throughout the world. * * In "the Old World business has not only been "depressed, but unprogtable * * In "the United States it has been a year of "extraordinary trial. We find from their "own commercial reports that the depreciating process of merchandise have continued "unprofitable through a longer period than "at any time in the commercial history of the "nation. Trying therefore, as many have found the year to be, and heavy as have been "the losses which many have sustained, we "are convinced that in no part of the world "has there been less commercial disturbance "than in our dominion." He adds that every crisis is largely produced by excessive importations, and that the true cure is dimished imports by wholesale dealers and cautious and restricted purchases by retailers. In another place we show from Montreal figures that this effect at contraction has been going on. If continued the results will be most beneficial.—Hamilton Times.

IF YOU have a discharge from the nose offensive or other wise partial loss of the sense of smell, taste, or hearing eyes watery or weak, dull dull and stupid or depilitated pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more decepive, or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect Specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the head" or Catarrhal Headache, which he sends to any address, post paid, for SIXTY cents, or four packages for $2. Sold by most druggists everywhere.

THE protest against Mr. K. Chisholm M. P. P. for Peel having been withdrawn, that gentleman took his seat in the Legislature on Tuesday amid rounds of applause. The Peel case is one of those which were pointed at as an evidence of the terrible corruption in in the Reform party, but all that is over now, and the tory papers are almost unanimously silent respecting the withdrawal of the petition. One of the reasons given by the petitioner for withdrawing the petition is that their was not sufficient evidence to support it.

Tuesday evening a young man unknown, entered the jewellery establishment of Mr. Taylor, on James street, Hamilton, and requested to look at some gold watches, stating that he wanted to purchase one to present to one of the employees at Messrs. Warner & Co.'s. Three watches were placed before him, and after examining one he said it would suit, and then pulled out a bag of fine powdered iron dust, threw the contents in Mr. Taylor's face, took up two of the watches and ran out. Before Mr. Taylor could recover himself the thief had decamped. The same man endeavored to entice Mr. Mallett, jeweller, to show him some watches a short time previous.

Early in the spring of last year, two priests from the St. Albert's (Big Lake) Mission, of the French Roman Catholic Church, accompanied by a young man who was only 18 years of age, belonging to the Christian Brothers, and a little girl with half-breeds, and an Iroquois Indian, who was acting as a guide, left the above mission on their way to Lac La Biche, in the North West. One morning, the brother left the camp to go and see a hill near where it was said salt could be got. He never returned. Some days afterwards his bones were found and buried. Shortly after he left the camp a shot was heard fired, and it is believed he met his death in that way, at the hands of the Indian, who instantly disappeared, and has not been found since. The poor fellow was either roasted, died or made prey to the bears; it is feared the little girl has shared the same fate, as no tiding have since been learned of her whereabouts Lac La Biche is situated 70 miles to the north-west of Fort Pitt; the population is mostly French half-breeds.

SAD CASE OF DROWNING.—The Napanee Express, in its last issue, has the following :—We must regret to record the untimely end of Mr. William Sharp, of Fredricksburg, and a nephew, a boy of about eight years of age, by drowning in Bay Bay on friday evening last. Mr. Sharp had, during the day, been working with a son on his farm in North Fredrickburg, and towards evening started for his home south of the Bay, in company with his little nephew a son of O Sharp, of Violet. They were not seen alive afterward. It appears they walked across Hart's Island, near No 1, and then went on the ice to cross. As he did not reach home that night his wife became uneasy about him, and next day went to make inquiries about him, and it was at once suspected that he was drowned. Search was made on Saturday at a hole near the shore and both bodies were found.

THE PARTITION OF TURKEY

We have trustworthy information that with a view to the solution of the Eastern question, the three Northern powers are separately courting the alliance of England, and that the following distinct proposals have been made to the Foreign Office :

BY GERMANY.

1. That Wallachia and Moldavia (now constituting the Roumanian Principality) and all the territory north of the Danube should federate to the German Empire.

2. That Bosnia, Herzegovina, Bulgaria and all the territory along the south bank of the Danube (except we presume Servia) should be annexed to Austria.

3. That Constantinople and Roumania Provinces should be incorporated with Montonegro into one State.

BY RUSSIA

That England should obtain Egypt on condition that it should take Constantinople. It is known that Russia would go to war against the carrying out of the German scheme, and it is not probable that Germany would acquiesce in the Russian proposals without obtaining some at least of the advantages it seeks by the partition of Turkey. The frequency of recent Cabinet councils is now explained. None, however, of these proposals will be accepted by Her Majesty's present Government. Should either of the Northern empires attempt to carry their plans into execution England would not defend Constantinople, but would probably take an island in the Levant and occupy the Euphrates Valley, thus securing the route to India.—London World.

COLLEGE BURNED.—The destruction of the University of Bishop's College, at Lennoxville, by fire, will be regarded as a national calamity. Only a few small buildings adjacent were saved, the main building and one half of the library being destroyed. The loss is estimated at $50,000. The University was established for the education of young men prepairing for the Ministry of the Anglican Church. Incorporated in 1843. Subsequently enlarged and improved it became a University by Royal charter in 1853. No doubt it will be immediately rebuilt.

DROWNED.—A young man named Smith was drowned in Toronto Bay on the 14th inst., while out skatin .

THE HARVEST QUEEN.—It is reported that the "Harvest Queen," a sailing vessel from San Francisco for Queenston, collided with the Steamship "Adriatic" on the morning of New Years, when the former sank with all on board. This lacks confirmation.

THE EDDY ESTATE.—Mr E B. Eddy, the lumberer and match manufacturer, has become insolvent lately, the Baliff attempted to take possession of the property but Mr. Eddy's men drove him off the premises. There is great excitement oterit.

BENGOUGH, OR GRIP.—Do not fail to hear Mr. Bengough this evening in the music hall.

FOUND DEAD.—Peter Morrison, a carpenter, well known in Peterboro, was lately found dead on the road near Lake field. He was fond of "strong drink" and it is feared that it finally overcame him.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.—The anniversary of the birthday of Scotland's greatest poet will be celebrated by a Concert in the Old Methodist Church, on Tuesday evening, January 25th Songs, Glees, Trios and Quartettes will be sung by some of the best talent in town. The Instrumental part will be furnished by Ch Gericke, the great Violin Soloist, accompanied by F. Hammerschmit, Musical Director of the Peterboro' Philharmonic Society. Secure seats in time.

Use CLARK & CO'S EXTRA QUALITY SIX CORD COTTON, with ANCHOR ON SPOOL. Leading Sewing Machine Agents say it is the best.

HIGH SCHOOL ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS.—We have compared the marks of candidates as published in different localities with the marks obtained by the candidates at Peterboro, and find that the marks compare favorably with the highest marks we have seen published, some of them even exceeding the highest we have seen published since the last examination

AUDITORS.—The Council met on Monday and organized. Messrs. C. D. McDonald and W. H. Perry were appointed Auditors. Very few of the ratepayers will consider the change to the interest of the Town. The objection to Mr. Pearse on the grounds of his being a County Official is not of very great force. How many in town will believe that Mr. Pendry is a good choice? Should he turn out to be, we will be ready to admit our mistaken notions of his fitness or qualifications.

THE ORANGE BILLS.—The Orange Bill for Western Ontario has been before the Bills Committee and lost, 9 to 16—What's the matter? The member for East Peterboro will not be allowed to distinguish himself, and the member for West Peterboro will be saved against it. It is now well known that several orange men, strong Conservatives in this county, begin to think they don't want orange incorporation. Well, truly—they have changed their minds in a great hurry. This was the crying sin of the Grit party that they would not incorporate the association. "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

THE MERCER WILL CASE.—A case known as the "Mercer Will Case" has been before the courts in Toronto during the last week. It arises out of the following circumstances: An Englishman named Andrew Mercer, died some time ago, in Toronto. At his death in 1871, his property valued at £37,000 was taken possession of by the Government, because Mercer had left no legitimate heir or will. After some years a paper in pencil mark was discovered which purported to be a will leaving the property to a boy which was the son of his housekeeper, Bridget O'Reily, and who claimed to have been married to Mr. Mercer in 1851 by Father Reily of Weston, the entry of which marriage appeared in the marriage register of that Priest. The evidence is very conflicting, but the weight of it favors the prevailing opinion that Mercer was never married; that the defendant, Andrew Mercer is the son of said Mercer, by his housekeeper Bridget O'Reily; that the entry in the Registry of the parish Priest of Weston was made by Father Reily who is long since dead, and that the defendant is consequently only the natural son of the late Andrew Mercer. The game is not yet concluded.

LITERARY ENTERTAINMENT.—We are glad to learn that the Oddfellows of this town have made arrangements with Mr. J. S. Harrison, M. A., of England, who is now on a tour through Canada, to give Readings at the Old Methodist Church, on Tuesday, 1st of February. From the Professors well known reputation we predict for our citizens a rich intellectual treat. In speaking of the Professors entertainment, the Quebec Herald says:—"Mr. Harrison is one of the most eloquent readers we have ever listened to." As the object is a charitable one—The relief of the poor of Peterboro,—we bespeak for him a large attendance. Particular will be announced by large posters.

PRESBYTERIAN.—The Peterboro Presbytery held a meeting here on Tuesday. At the meeting a unanimous call from the Bobcaygeon and Dunsford Church was submitted to the Rev Andrew Tolly, and we understand that he has accepted it and will be ordained in three weeks. The subject of a call from the Centreville and Millbrook Churches was under consideration. At one time a unanimous call had been given to the Rev Mr Cameron, of Lancaster, but at the Presbytery there was a counter petition. This we understand was amicably arranged and Mr Cameron has one month to make up his mind on the matter. It is generally believed that he will accept it. Rev Mr Bennett was appointed to moderate a call whenever the Peterboro Church may express their desire to that end.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.—At the conclusion of the Christmas examination at Auburn School Peterboro, Miss Mary Stenton and Miss Elizabeth Sullivan on the part of the pupils of the school read an address to their late teacher, Mr. W. Wood, expressive of their thankfulness for the kindness and attention he had shown to them, and sorrow at his departure, at the same time presenting him with a beautifully bound copy of the Bible in French kid and gilt, and a vase containing a set of Photographic picture stands richly ornamented in bronze.—Mr. Wood in reply thanked them for such unexpected kindness as they had manifested, and assured them that he would long retain pleasant recollections of his connection with Auburn School, of which he would be reminded by their valuable present already named.

THE FIRE BRIGADE.—The fire brigade is not working as harmoniously as could be desired. At the last meeting of the Town Council the Secretary addressed the Council in reference to the appointment of an Engineer and Assistant Engineer. Afterwards Mr Robinson addressed the Council stating that the Chairman or Captain carried a resolution to appoint certain persons although the vote was 9 for and 13 against. It therefore appears that the members are not in harmony on this point. Since that they accuse each other of speaking everything but the truth, in reference to this, we must conclude that there is a screw loose somewhere. There is a large number of citizens who believe that Mr. Wrighton makes a good Engineer The people have confidence in him, and his desire is to do justly to all property holders in case of fire; and while believing that the other gentlemen named would make good officers, they are persuaded that if Mr. Wrighton will retain the office, his doing so will give general satisfaction. The disagreement among the members must militate against the usefulness of the Brigade, and will cause public confidence to abate. The dispute has been referred to the Fire Committee, and it is to be hoped that they will take decided action in removing the contentions.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY CONCERT.—The Peterborough Philharmonic Society gave their first concert in the Old Methodist Church, on Thursday evening, for the benefit of their Musical Director, Mr. F. Hammerschmit. There was not as large a number present as was anticipated, although there was a very good house—Mr. Clinton, as President of the Society read a letter from the Governor General, in which he regretted that he could not be present on the occasion, but wished the Society every success. The playing of Mr Hammerschmit was generally admired Messrs F E Burnham, F Hall, Ch Gericke and F. Hammerschmit in the pieces "Tean nire" were well received and loudly encored. The vocal trio, "Oh, hear me," by Mrs. Bowman, Mr T Brown and Mr. Lasher, was very fine, the performers doing their parts admirably The playing of the band in all their different pieces was excellent, & reflected great credit on their Bandmaster Mr Hammerschmit, for the improvement which has taken place since he has taken charge of the 57th Band. Ch. Gericke's Violin solos were well rendered, and we doubt if there is his equal in the province.

We believe it is the intention of the Society to give monthly concerts during the winter in the same place, which will, no doubt, prove to be a success, and that the music loving citizens of Peterboro' and vicinity will patronize them and thus aid the Philharmonic Society in their effort, to cultivate musical taste amongst our citizens.

THE PROGRESS OF THE SESSION AND THE STATE OF PARTIES

The Session of the Provincial Parliament now tolerably well advanced, does not promise fairly to present a Ministerial crisis Nothing is more clearly apparent to us now than that the Opposition and their leaders in respect of results have come far short of their expectations. At the present moment, with at least two-thirds of the Session gone, the Government presents a front as bold and as impregnable as last Session, if not more so. Reports seem to agree that the Premier and his colleagues are managing matters with much more of the tactician skill than formerly; while if the Opposition is more respectable than of old it is scarcely more successful. A great deal was expected from the acquisition of Mr. McDougall. The Treasury Benches were adjudged by Opposition orators and scribes to be many degrees nearer since the election of the member for South Simcoe. But it is not improbable that those whose hopes were the most ardent have by this time begun to discover how greatly mistaken were their calculations. We, for our own part, did expect that the Opposition would appear to be materially strengthened by the addition to their fighting men in the House that was sent them from South Simcoe. We did not accept the idea of some that Mr. McDougall's entrance to the House was likely to prove the death knell of the Administration; our estimate of the event was vastly more moderate than that. There was ground for the impression which we formed that the physical rather than the moral power of the Opposition would be stimulated rather than strengthened by the advent of the member for South Simcoe. It would appear now that this anticipation was more nearly correct than any other. Mr. McDougall brings no moral power to his party in the House although he contributes to the debate and to the division list. It may be thought unfortunate that talents such as his should accomplish so little; but it can hardly be surprising.—Freeholder.

PROTEST WITHDRAWN.—We are glad to learn that at the last moment the protest against Mr. Shibley's late election has been withdrawn, and now he will be permitted to retain his seat without further molestation. The course pursued by Mr. Waggoner in connection with this affair was so vexations and annoying that few, even of his own supporters, had sympathy with him.

MILLBROOK.

ACCIDENTS.—A son of widow Lytles, 17 years of age, met with a severe accident in Mr Armstrong's saw mill on Friday last. He was engaged in sawing some lumber, and in pushing it away from the saw with his foot, it came in contact with the saw and mutilated it badly. Drs. Might and Turner amputated the foot at the instep, and the young man is, we are glad to say, progressing favorably. Another accident also occurred of a similar nature on Monday last, to Wesley Might, son of Mr. James Might, near Millbrook. He was chopping in the woods and the axe slipped on one side and cut three of his toes off.

COBOURG.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—On Sunday night or Monday morning, an old man named John Griggs strayed into an outhouse on the premises of the Ontario Foundry, and there cut a gash in his throat. He was found in that condition in the morning, and the razor in his pocket. Dr. Powell was sent for and dressed the wound, and the man was afterwards removed to gaol. He used to work about the foundry; but has latterly been in the country. He has evidently been lately indulging in drink. —World.

Our contemporaries, all over the country, are recording their local feats about ploughing, sabsoiling, and such things during the mild season, as though Spring were already here; or as though this winter were one continued autumn. Well, we think we can beat them all.—We saw a man ploughing in his potatoes on New Year's Day. We invite our contemporaries, if they think they can beat this to bring on their little feats.—World.

Ashburnham School Trustees.

The Board of School Trustees of the Village met on Friday evening last.

Present, Messrs Bennett, Wright, Calcutt, Ingram, Smith and Roxbough.

On motion of Mr. Calcutt, seconded by Mr. Roxbough, Mr. Bennett was appointed Chairman.

It was moved by Mr. Roxbough, seconded by Mr. Wright, and carried, that Mr. Ingram be Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Calcutt, Mr. Menzies acct. of $2.70 was ordered to be paid.

Moved by Mr. Calcutt, seconded by Mr. Ingram,—That owing to the crowded state of Miss Sanderson's rooms the scholars be divided, and that the boys attend during the forenoon of each day and the girls during the afternoon, until the 1st of March.

Moved by Mr. Calcutt, seconded by Mr. Roxbough, that Miss Stratton's salary be increased fifty dollars.—Carried.

The Board adjourned to be called together by the Chairman.

A review of the trade and commerce of Milwaukee for the past year, shows the increase in receipts of wheat as compared with 1874, to be two million of bushels.

HARVEST.

The Township of Manvers has had a church difficulty. On a certain Friday of last month interested parties forcibly opened the doors of the "Brush" Church (late New Connexion,) took off the old lock, and put on a new one, in the interest of the Methodist Church of Canada. Sometime before Sunday the trustees of the church found it necessary to remove said lock, and replace it with another. On Sunday morning, at the time of the regular appointment of Rev. Mr. Thomas, B. C. Minister, Rev. Mr. Kenner, Canada Methodist Minister, 1st Preacher, J. P., of the Lifford (late Wesleyan Methodist) Society, and others, went to the Church, and found the door locked. The person having the key took out on Friday, thrust it in the keyhole, to open the door, when to his shock was gone, and the key disappeared through the hole. When Rev. Mr Thomas arrived, a crowd had gathered around the door, and immediately a trustee of the church said "Open the door" and it was opened from within. Mr. Thomas as usual entered, took the pulpit and proceeded with the service as usual, a large congregation being present. The other party left the door while the first hymn was being given out.

WHAT WHISKEY DID

He [illegible] had a cottage white
With its curtains clean and simple as Bright,
And happy children, rudiest little
Without a thought of grief or care.

When the little tired eyelids closed,
And each curly head in sleep reposed,
Two good men laughed with honest pride
[illegible]

How bright and happy the years to come
Appeared to all in that quiet home—
Alas! that hopes so pure and fair,
Should prove but [illegible] built in air!

'Twas on a dark [illegible] day,
That the Whiskey Demon passed that way
He and a[illegible] cottage met his [illegible],
Called [illegible], and see what Whiskey can do.

He entered. The [illegible] grew stern and cold
He shook the [illegible] of [illegible]
They were robbed by [illegible] years toil now,
And a [illegible] spread [illegible] each brow.

The fence be[illegible] down, once so neat and trim;
The lamp that was once so bright grew dim,
The gentle wife wore a look of care,
And no longer children frolicked there.

From the east, [illegible] bright they had [illegible],
For the Whiskey-Demon stilled it so:
Yet the gentle wife did not complain
The children wept, but their wept in vain

The wind swept through the tenement old
Tossed with [illegible] shivered in the cold
Till the children, one by one, were laid
In the little grave that the sexton made

The weary mother lay down and died
And they laid her by her children's side.
(To mark their grave there is no stone,
The scratched drunkard was then alone.

With no hand to hold his aching head,
At last he is numbered with the dead!
Then the Whiskey Demon [illegible], "Five men,
Come here and see what mischief they have done!"

ALL FOR LOVE

A YOUNG CANADIAN'S MELANCHOLY END. HE SHOOTS HIMSELF BECAUSE A GIRL WON'T MARRY HIM.

The Cincinnati Inquirer, of a few days back, gives details of the evidence at the inquest, on George W. Hamilton a young Canadian who committed suicide because a young lady there, for whom he had formed an attachment, would not marry him. John W. Hamilton, a brother of the deceased, deposed that he lived at Montreal; that his brother was born in Ireland, and at his death was 24 years of age, had not seen his brother since he left Montreal in 1871 until a few days previously, when he came to see him on hearing of the state he was in.

Dr. C. S. Mountcastle, who called to see deceased at the hospital, said he found a hole in his scalp, as if by a pistol ball, from which blood and brains flowed on his examination. He asked deceased if he had shot himself, but he replied, "Joe" or "Josie." He never would acknowledge he had shot himself; but said he had "run against a pistol or a locomotive." Aaron A. Colter testified that he was a wholesale grocer, and that he had known deceased since April last, when he came to see his second daughter Josie. As far as he knew, deceased was of temperate habits.—About ten days previous to his death, deceased called at the store of witness, and asked if he had any objection to him and Josie being friends. Witness replied, "Certainly not George; we are all your friends." Witness gave him to understand, however, that it would not do for him and Josie to marry. He several times threatened to kill himself if witness' daughter did not marry him, but witness never heard him say so till Thanksgiving day. On that day he showed her a pistol, which Josie took from him and hid. She said Friday was an unlucky day and turned it off in that way, he having insisted that she should marry him next day. He called on the following Sunday, but did not see her; and on Monday he met her on Fourth street, and again threatened to take his life, showing a pistol, saying it was "Life with her death without her." He met her on the front steps of witness' house on the following Monday, and told her he was crazy and going to kill himself. Witness' daughter seemed to know his disposition thoroughly, and had told her sister that she never would marry him on account of his peculiar temperament. Witness didn't like to say anything to him, as he was always a manly, courteous and upright boy. His daughter never encouraged the deceased, except in a friendly manner. J. E. F. Maddox testified to knowing deceased as an exemplary young man for four years. He had never heard him threaten to take his life; but believed he had shot himself because Miss Josie Colter had declined to marry him. George S. Holmes who had roomed with deceased, corroborated the first part of his testimony. A medical certificate was put in; showing that Miss Colter was unable to attend Court, in consequence of her feeble state. The jury found that deceased shot himself, and that the cause was disappointment in love and family troubles.' The Enquirer says that among other causes which may have preyed on young Hamilton's mind were the fact that he lost his favorite sister by drowning last summer; that just previous to the calamity the father failed in business: and that his style of living was much too expensive for his limited income. He had always been a favorite amongst the ladies, and had plenty of their society. Miss Colter, it is said, asking him, sewing his hopes for marrying her were utterly futile, to transfer his affections to some one of his hundred lady friends, who would only be too glad of the preferment. But no! He would marry her or die by his own hand. And die he did—a sad warning to all over-amorous swains.

A landlady who had some very weak chicken broth for dinner the other day, was asked by one of her boarders if she couldn't coax that chicken to wade through that soup once more.

COOL ROBBERY.—On Wednesday night last, as Mr. John Sanderson of the 7th Con. Markham, was returning home from Toronto with his team and sleigh he overtook two men near the German Mill Hill who respectfully asked for a "lift." Mr. Sanderson complied with there request and they seated themselves along side of him. When they reached the German Mills Hill one of the traces became unfastened, and one of the men alighted to fix it; but after fumbling about for ten minutes and not succeeding, Mr. Sanderson requested the man seated in the sleigh to hold the lines while he fixed the trace. Immediately on his commencing to get out the man dropped the lines and threw his arms around Mr. Sanderson, and they both rolled to the ground together. Mr. Sanderson succeeded in regaining his feet, when the other threw himself upon him and took all the money he had ($25). Mr. Sanderson was then told to get in the sleigh, the man getting in with him. After going a couple of miles the men got out, shook hands with him and asked his post office address, giving him thirty cents to drink their healths with. Mr. Sanderson is sanguine of having the during high waymen arrested.—Markham Economist.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM

The Editor of the Prairie Farmer, Chicago, Ill., is in receipt of many enquiries as to where good Ayrshire cattle can be purchased.

B. B. Olds, of Clinton, Wis., says "Any other crop than corn should follow buckwheat, as that does very poorly. Such is my experience.

There were probably 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels of old wheat in the U. S. at the close of the crop year, Aug. 31, 1875, which with the surplus of the new crop, will give a fair amount for export, but less than for the last two crop years.

A Nova Scotian farmer who sent a sample barrel of apples to the recent fruit exhibition at Birmingham, Eng., has been informed officially that "tho' there was an exceptionally good show of English apples, the American fruit beat them in size and very far indeed in color."

Peter Young, Menlon, Ill., says "Follow buckwheat with oats; it will not damage your oats the least, and you will never be bothered with buckwheat. Buckwheat in corn, or any hoed crop, is worse than cockleburs to keep clean, and damages the crop ten times as much."

According to the most comprehensive reports we have seen, the slaughter of hogs at the different markets of the West, as compared with those of last year up to date, there is a falling off of nearly 900,000 head. Last year the number slaughtered was 2,800,000; this year, 1,900,000.

The "Farmer's Journal", of Iowa, says that no less than 150 species of grasses have been found in Nebraska, one-fourth of which, and those the most widely distributed, and in the front rank for pasture and hay. Many of them are rank and tropical in growth, showing rich soil and good climate.

I think smut is caused by sowing mixed wheat, in this neighborhood at least. We have been raising Fife and Red Chaff about equal parts. Red Chaff smuts badly. Fife not any.—When clean seed of the Fife, Club or Golden Drop is sown, it does not smut alongside of Millers' wheat that smuts badly.—Cor. Rural New Yorker.

The Denver News describes the stock ranches of John S. Cleve, Bresque Grand, New Mexico, which was recently sold to Col. R. D. Hunter, of St. Louis, for $219,000, one-half cash.—The purchase, however, includes 30,000 cattle now on the ranche, 20,000 head having been sold during the year to Colorado, Kansas City and St. Louis dealers for beef cattle. The ranche is 150 miles in length, and it extends as far on each side of the Pecos River the whole distance as stock can range without water.

CHICKEN CHEESE.—Did, you, reader, ever eat any? We like it. Boil two chickens till tender; take out all the bones and chop the meat fine; season to taste with salt, pepper and butter, pour in enough of the liquor they are boiled in to make moist. Mold it in any shape you choose, and, when cold, turn out and cut into slices. It is an excellent travelling lunch.

TO BOIL SALMON.—Clean it carefully boil it gently, and take it out of the water as soon as done. Let the water be warm if the fish be split. If underdone it is very unwholesome. Shrimp or anchovy sauce.

TO BROIL SALMON.—Cut slices an inch thick and season with pepper and salt; lay each slice in half a sheet of white paper well buttered, twist the ends of the paper and broil the slices over a slow fire six or eight minutes. Serve in the paper with anchovy sauce.

TO BOIL DUCKS.—Choose a fine fat duck; salt it two days, then boil it slowly in a cloth. Serve it with onion sauce, but melt the butter with milk instead of water.

TO BROIL PIGEONS.—After cleaning, split the backs, pepper and salt them, and broil them very nicely; pour over them either stewed or pickled mushrooms in melted butter, and serve as hot as possible.

ROAST PIGEONS should be stuffed with parsley, either cut or whole; and seasoned within. Serve with parsley and butter. Peas or asparagus should be dressed to eat with them.

RUSSIAN SEED, OR GROUND RICE PUDDING.—Boil a large spoonful, heaped, of either, in a pint of new milk, with lemon peel and cinnamon. When cold, add sugar, nutmeg, and two eggs well beaten. Bake with a crust round the dish.

A WELSH PUDDING.—Let half a pound fine butter melt gently, beat with it the yolk of eight, and whites of four eggs, mix in six ounces of loaf sugar, and the rind of a lemon grated. Put a paste into a dish for turning out, and pour the above in and nicely bake.

LEMON MINCE PIES.—Squeeze a large lemon, boil the outside till tender enough to beat to a mash, add to it three large apples chopped, and four ounces of suet, half a pound of currants, four ounces of sugar, put the juice of the lemon and candied fruit as for other pies. Make a short crust, and fill the pattypans as usual.

EGG MINCE PIES.—Boil six eggs hard, shred them small; shred double the quantity of suet; then put currants washed and picked one pound, or more if the eggs were large; the peel of one lemon shred very fine, and the juice, six spoonfuls of sweet wine, mace nutmeg, sugar, a very little salt, orange, lemon, add citron candied. Make a light paste for them.

ICING FOR TARTS.—Beat the yolk of an egg and some melted butter well together, wash the tarts with a feather and sift sugar over as you put them in the oven. Or beat white of egg, wash the paste, and sift white sugar.

TURKEY PATTIES.—Mince some of the white part, and with grated lemon, nutmeg, salt, a very little white pepper, cream, and a very little bit of butter warmed, fill the patties.

ORANGE TART.—Line a tart pan with thin puff paste; put it into orange marmalade that is made with apple jelly; lay bars of paste, or a croquant over, and bake in a moderate oven.

ORANGE MARMALADE.—Take one dozen sweet oranges, and their weight in lump sugar; grate the outer rind of four of them; peel the remaining eight, and cut the peel into very narrow strips with scissors. Separate the orange into sections, removing the seeds. Soak the chipped peels in weak salt and water over night. Put the grated peel and skinned sections of pulp with the sugar. Next morning put the orange chips into pure boiling water, and boil until tender; then break them up with a spoon, and mash them fine; add the sugared pulp, and boil for twenty five minutes; put into jars, and cover with paper dipped into the white of an egg.

VINEGAR BITTERS

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS PROVES VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic

For all the purposes of a Laxative [illegible]

[illegible] is so universally [illegible] quered by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any medicine so universally adopted into use. [illegible] its wonderful [illegible] cures in all parts of the country can almost supersede the necessity of any one's making his own. There is [illegible] but has, in his immediate [illegible], some one who has been cured of [illegible] by this medicine. Almost every one has tried it, knows that it cures them. Those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does it does thoroughly—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, as by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disease or to remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels generally well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effects on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything been so widely and unreservedly used in the treatment of pulmonary complaints, as has this wonderful remedy, during a long series of years, and among most of the nations of the earth. Its unparalleled success in the cure of these terrible diseases has made it known, wherever they prevail, as the most reliable antidote for them. Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease was supposed to be settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health, by the Cherry Pectoral. So certain is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could help them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and the system, [illegible] Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved, and often cured by it.

Bronchitis is rapidly cured by the Cherry Pectoral, when used in connection with the proper remedies.

The West Riding Agricultural Society.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

On Wednesday last, the 19th inst., the annual meeting of this Society was held in the Council Chamber a 2 o'clock p. m., in accordance with the statute, Joseph Walton, Esq., in the chair.

The Secretary presented the following report:

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

In presenting their annual report for the year 1875, your Directors have much pleasure in being able to congratulate the members of the Society upon the unexpected success which has attended their efforts to bring about a Central Exhibition for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, and the counties of Peterborough and Victoria. Immediately after the last annual meeting of the Society, your directors appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. Joseph Walton, Rev. V. Clementi and J. Carnegie, to see what could be done in the way of holding an Exhibition in Peterborough last autumn which would be likely to secure the support and patronage of the surrounding Ridings, as well as that of the one in which it was to be held, and at the same time determined to dispense with the usual spring show in order that every possible dollar might be available for the larger exhibition proposed.

This committee, feeling that as this Town and County would be chiefly benefitted by the holding of such an exhibition in Peterborough directed their efforts in the first place, to securing grants from the Municipal Councils of the Town and County, and were so successful as to get these two bodies to contribute $250 each, upon condition that the prize list for the exhibition should amount to no less than $2,000, or such smaller sum as would equal one fourth of the same, provided that it should not be less than $1,500, a minimum which many thought at the time could never be reached. Having secured these grants, the committee next directed their attention to the local Societies in the Riding, and the Smith Branch Society, and the Peterborough Horticultural Society at once generously agreed to contribute towards the funds of the exhibition the sums of $140 and $200 respectively. With this much accomplished, combined with the facilities which they possessed in the Drill Shed and the old burying ground, a lease of which had already been procured, for the holding of the first really "Central" Exhibition, the committee felt that the time had arrived when they could with some show of reason and some prospect of success, appeal to the several Agricultural Societies in the four counties, for their aid and countenance in the undertaking. Circulars were accordingly issued by the Secretary to all the surrounding Agricultural Societies, asking them to send representatives to a meeting to be held in Peterborough early in the month of June, and in response thereto, the Societies of East Peterborough, East Durham, South Victoria, Townships of Hope, Verulam, Asphodel, Otonabee, Cavan, South Monaghan, Smith and the Peterborough Horticultural Societies sent representatives, who entered most heartily into the scheme, and at which meeting the following resolutions were passed:—

1st.—That the General Committee for the proposed Exhibition be organized on the following basis, viz: That besides the Warden and Mayor of the County and Town of Peterborough, each Society contributing to the funds of the Exhibition shall have a representative for every fifty dollars contributed,

2nd.—That the members of the Societies contributing shall be entitled to exhibit at the Exhibition free of charge. A list of such members to be furnished to the Secretary of the Exhibition on or before the 1st of September by the Secretaries of the several contributing Societies,

3rd.—That the Exhibition be open to the Province of Ontario on the payment of $2.00 by Exhibitors who are not members of contributing Societies.

4th.—That the surplus funds (if any) remaining after the Exhibition shall be held as a reserve fund for the next Central Exhibition, and in the event of the Riding's contributing to this year's one.

5th.—The Committee would recommend that these Central Exhibitions should be held alternately in the rear and front of the district.

Having once succeeded in getting the scheme into workable shape and placed the exhibition beyond doubt, the greatest interest was manifested therein by the Press and the people of the district for which it was designed, and it was at once felt that that portion of the old burying ground under the control of the Society would be quite inadequate for the purposes of the exhibition. This difficulty however, was easily surmounted through the kindness of the Rev. Mr. Lynch, and the trustees of the Roman Catholic School, placing the three acres adjoining and belonging to them not only at the disposal of the committee, but, in dismissing the school during the days of the exhibition. With no experience to guide them as to the probable financial result of the show, it was with no little trepidation that the local committee faced the expenditure necessary for fencing, shedding and other requisite improvements, for the proper accommodation of exhibitors without any previous substantial provision having been made to meet the same. Feeling, however, that without proper accommodations the exhibition must be a failure, and feeling that in a matter of that kind they might almost as well be hung for a sheep as a lamb, they decided to incur the responsibility of making the improvements which they deemed absolutely necessary, and it is almost needless to add that it is highly gratifying to them, that after paying for these improvements, the success of the exhibition was so great—so much beyond their most sanguine expectations—that more than $1,000 remains to be carried forward to the exhibition of the present year to be held in Port Hope.

Gratifying however as has been the success of the exhibition financially, notwithstanding bad weather in the early part of it, and an accident on the Midland Railway which prevented many who would have otherwise visited it from doing so, it was still more gratifying in the character of the articles and animals exhibited, and which we have been informed compared most favorably with in several departments, the Western Fair at London this year, and in the beneficial results which must inevitably follow from such a commingling of the people of the four counties.

The total number of entries made was 2,800 and from the amount of money taken at the gates, there can be no doubt that at least 10,000 persons must have visited the exhibition. Before passing on to the future, it may not be amiss to mention that the first Agricultural Exhibition ever held in Peterborough, was held just thirty-two years previously, and that, although the district represented in the exhibition, extended from Asphodel in the east, to Mariposa in the west, and from Cavan in the south to the North Pole, yet the prize list amounted to just $128 and the number of entries to 58—from such small things have our Agricultural Exhibitions grown.

While your Directors are most anxious that every member of this Society should do their utmost to render the coming exhibition at Port Hope a decided success, they are of opinion that the current year will be an opportune time for placing the annual exhibitions of the Society upon a broader and healthier basis. With grounds and buildings affording every facility which can be desired, your Directors are of opinion that your exhibitions instead of being limited to exhibitors resident within the Riding, should be thrown open to competitors no matter where they come from, believing that the true way to promote improvement is by letting the people see the best. Another question which might be fairly raised in view of the Central Exhibition scheme having become a fixed fact, is one as to how far it might be desirable at the Riding Exhibitions to give particular prominence to some one department, instead of putting the money of the Society into prize lists which should be largely copies of the Central Exhibition one. Were such a course pursued a different department could be given prominence to in each successive year.

Having obtained a lease of the old burying grounds on most favorable terms, your directors would recommend their successors to, if possible devise some scheme for rendering it an ornament to the town, and at the same time self-sustaining, so far as the proper care of the same may be concerned.

Appended herewith is a copy of the Auditor's report of the Central Exhibition accounts; also the Auditor's report of your Treasurer's accounts for the current year, showing a balance on hand of $98.50

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOS. WALTON, President. J. CARNEGIE, Secretary.

The report was adopted.

The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year:—Joseph Walton, Esq., President; Vice-Presidents, T. Garbett, Esq., and Rev. V. Clementi; Secretary and Treasurer, John Carnegie, Esq.; Directors, Wm. Rutherford, John Kerr, Thos. E. Bell, Geo. Fitzgerald, H. Collins, Wm. Helm James Campbell, Alex. Scott, and Lewis Davis, Esqrs.; Auditors, James Edwards and John McClelland.

Messrs. Joseph Walton, J. Carnegie, James Campbell and H. Collins were appointed delegates to the Port Hope Central Exhibition.

General Richard Montgomery.

FACTS GLEANED FROM PERSONAL AND FAMILY DOCUMENTS.

The N. Y. Post publishes the following interesting reminiscences from a correspondent:—

The Lundredth anniversary of the unfortunate expedition against Quebec, in which General Montgomery fell, is at hand. It was on the 31st of December, 1775, that the attack was made. His little army had undergone inexpressible hardships during the campaign and the soldiers were half starved and half naked Montgomery was greatly loved by his men, but it took all his influence to stir them into renewed exertion, disheartened as they were by fatigue, "Men of New York," he exclaimed, "you will not fear to follow where your General leads: march on" then placing himself in front he almost immediately received the mortal wound which suddenly ended his life.

The hero of Quebec was born at Conroy House in the north of Ireland, and was the second son of an Irish baronet. His desire for military life was gratified at an early age by a commission in the British Army, and he gained his first laurels with Wolfe on the same field where he was destined to end his brief and glorious career. During the origin and progress of the difficulties between Great Britain and the colonies, Montgomery formed opinions favourable to American independence, and in 1772 he left the king's service to seek his fortunes and future home in America. He soon after purchased a farm at Kingsbridge, from which he moved to Rhinebeck, on his marriage with Janet Livingston. He now turned his attention to farming and left the village of Rhinebeck, where the principal thoroughfare is still called Montgomery street, and went to live on a farm at a distance of about two miles south of Rhinebeck. Country pursuits were to his taste, and he had laid out for himself a quiet scheme of life, which was soon broken up by the war. With such feelings of ardent devotion did he give himself up to the cause of American liberty that when called upon by Congress to quit the retirement of his farm, as one of the first eight brigadier generals appointed, he wrote to a friend that the honour, though entirely unexpected and undesired, he felt to be the will of an oppressed people, which must be obeyed, and he accordingly went immediately into active services.

Mrs. Montgomery had about this time purchased several hundred acres of land near what is now called Barrytown on the Hudson. Here she was building a house during Montgomery's absence in Canada. She had bought the land from an old Dutch farmer, but it originally formed part of the Schuyler patent. "I long," wrote the General to her from Canada, "to see your new house, and wish you could get it piazza'd in the hall, they are the most comfortable things imaginable." To this house, when completed, Mrs. Montgomery removed, but General Montgomery never saw it. Here Mrs. Montgomery passed her long widowhood alone, for they had no children. By his will General Montgomery had bequeathed his farm at Kingsbridge to Lady

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 27, 1876.

HURON & QUEBEC RAILWAY.

On Friday afternoon the Mayor received the following telegram:—

Toronto, Jan. 21, 1876

To Mr. Toole, Mayor,—

Just met the Mayor and others. A good deputation from Perth going to Government about railway subsidy. They wish a deputation from Peterboro to meet them to add more strength. See Claxton. Dumble and others; get a good deputation to go to-night; there is danger. I am going to Perth this morning.

JOHN FOWLER.

In consequence he telegraphed to Mr. Scott, and received the following answer:—

TORONTO, Jan. 21, 1876.

To Wm. Toole, Esq.,

I think you better come. Come to the house to-night when you come up.

W. H. SCOTT.

He then called a public meeting, at which the following resolution was passed:

Moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Menzies—That this meeting after hearing the telegrams from Messrs. Fowler and Scott, deem it advisable to send a delegation to urge on the Government the claims of the Huron and Quebec Railway scheme, and that the Mayor be requested to attend, together with such gentlemen as he deem desirable to accompany him at the expense of the Town.

On Friday evening, a meeting of citizens was convened in the Council Chamber, to consider the propriety of sending a deputation to Toronto, with a view to presenting the claims of the Huron and Quebec Railway for aid, in case of the Government scheme of aid being completed this session. There was a very large attendance of the business men of the Town.

The Mayor occupied the chair.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Menzies,—It was agreed to ask the Council to send a deputation to Toronto, and Messrs. Jas. Hall, M.P., the Mayor, McClelland, Hazlitt, Bradburn, and Stratton were selected to lay the matter before the Attorney-general, and as the government were to consider their scheme on Saturday, the deputation were advised to proceed to Toronto at once, which they did.

On arriving at Toronto the deputation proceeded to the House about 11 o'clock, p.m., and were kindly received by Mr. Scott and Dr. O'Sullivan, who succeeded in obtaining an interview for them with Mr. Mowat, about 2 o'clock on Saturday morning. At the interview a deputation from the Town of Perth was also present in favor of the same Railway scheme.

Mr. Mowat received both deputations graciously in his own room. Mr. Scott introduced them, and also introduced the object of the deputation and the public nature of the scheme. Dr. O'Sullivan also advocated the claims of the object. Messrs. Toole, Hall and Stratton laid before Mr. Mowat the claims of the Huron and Quebec Railway, the benefits it would confer on the whole Country and especially on the section of country through which it would pass, and the means it would afford of benefitting comparatively new and back settlements which were almost cut off from markets on the front, and the fact that no aid had been granted to any road in the County of Peterboro except the small sum to the Cobourg road to Mud Lake.

The Gentlemen from Perth, appeared to be there to prevent any discrimination in favor of the line of road that would not run near their Town. Mr. Mowat informed the deputation that the Government had not yet agreed on any scheme of support to Railway projects in general, that they intended to give it some consideration on that day if time would permit. He said that the Government had not yet promised aid to any road not being able to show a fair financial basis, but that they would give it due consideration in connexion with other railways projects asking aid. It is due to both our representatives to say that they did all they could to bring the matter before the Attorney-General and to secure a interview. Mr. Mowat appeared favorably inclined to encourage the schemes soon as a financial basis sufficient to guarantee the construction of the road could be predicated.

The members from Hastings County are endeavoring to revive by Act of Parliament the $75,000 By-law in favor of the Grand Junction R.R. and are pressing the Members for Peterboro to forego their opposition to it. As the Grand Junction is distant or almost so it is very unwise to keep this matter in dispute. The distance from Campbellford to Peterboro is not less than 35 miles, while the distance from Campbellford to a junction with the Huron and Quebec R.R at the "narrows" would not be more than 7 to 9 miles. The wise course would be to join the Huron and Quebec road at this point and thus avoid the necessity of construction of the Grand Junction from Hastings village to Peterboro, a distance of 24 miles, and no expense should be spared to prevent the revival of this unnecessary By-law, as the expenditure of at least $480,000 additional to build a road through Hastings, while the Huron and Quebec road would pass through Norwood, would be a piece of great folly, and this too while Hastings Village is no part of the county of Peterboro, and Peterboro should not be called on to spend one cent in the interest of Hastings Village. Money expended to build a road to Norwood will benefit a very large portion of the county, and would tend to build up Norwood which as a part of our county and which will remain to assist in paying the taxes of the county.

If, however, the two roads should meet at the Narrows and pass through the centre of our county it would be very different from building a road to Hastings. It is said to be proposed by the Grand Junction Company we believe, to run from Hastings to Norwood instead of by way of Keene. If so why should Otonabee be taxed to build a road from Hastings to Norwood? or why should the county aid in building a road to Hastings at all. They separated from the county to suit their own interests. Let Northumberland build railways for them. The people of our county should also consider the illiberal conduct of Northumberland in refusing a paltry $1,000 to rebuild the Rosa bridge, because it would take trade to Peterboro instead of Port Hope or Cobourg. Then why should Peterboro aid in building five miles of a useless road at a cost of $75,000 to benefit a part of the county of Northumberland in particular? If this $75,000 be secured to the Grand Junction, it will be lost to the Huron and Quebec Railway project, and this alone should be sufficient to unite the friends of the road to resist the revival of the Grand Junction By-law.

The Grand Junction people propose opposing a bonus to the Huron and Quebec Railway in Hastings County if the By-law in the county of Peterboro be opposed by our Members. If the people of the county of Hastings should be so blind to their own interest as not to see the wisdom of the course we propose and the benefits of the Huron and Quebec Railway, then blind indeed must they be, but we cannot believe that they are, especially the people of North Hastings, through which portion of that county the Huron and Quebec Railway must pass.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

We had the pleasure of a visit to the Legislative Halls of Ontario on Friday last, and of hearing what might be termed a farce and no honor to the representatives who are manifesting their weakness at the expense of the people.

Our readers will remember that at the opening of the Parliament the speech from the Throne indicated that during the Session a Bill would be brought down to provide for a Minister of Education, and thus do away with a Chief Superintendent of Education, and also with the Council of Public Instruction.

This Bill, which we give in another column, was read a first time on Wednesday last and distributed among the members. On Friday it came up for a second reading and was discussed from 2 to 6 o'clock p.m.

After recess the discussion was resumed. Mr. M. C. Cameron, who had remained in his office all the day, entered the House after six o'clock, and said that he had not read the Bill, and in consequence asked that the discussion of it be postponed till Tuesday.

Mr. Mowat pointed out the inconsistency of the Leader of the Opposition in remaining in his office all the day when the Bill was being discussed, and then asking that the Legislature of the country should be retarded till Tuesday to suit his convenience. In consequence the Premier refused to defer the passing of the Bill. Mr. Cameron then announced the determination of the Opposition to speak against time, till Saturday night at 12 o'clock and thus prevent the Bill being read; and he made a motion of adjournment in order to carry out this intention. At once entering the House Mr. Cameron was speaking against time, but confined himself to the want of courtesy of the Premier to the Leader of the Opposition.

Mr Lauder followed. His speech consisted of readings from an Almanac published during the campaign in Simcoe.—He read page after page of it, applied the figures to the Premier, and his speeches, and thus passed about 30 minutes of the time of the House. Mr. Barr, member for Dufferin, also spoke, but being a young member, and not a very pleasing speaker, he was so interrupted that he sat down somewhat annoyed and confused.

Mr Creighton, member for North Gray then arose, announcing his intention of speaking 20 hours if need be, to frustrate the object of the Government. For the amusement of our readers we will give this gentleman a speech which lasted two hours and 30 minutes, and until the members of both Opposition and Government sides left the House without a quorum, when the Speaker left the chair—at five o'clock, a. m., Saturday morning. Mr. Creighton's speech:

Mr. SPEAKER.—I have forgotten what the House is discussing. I do not remember whether it is the Bill on Education or an adjournment. (Am like the old minister who preached a sermon so long and so divided that he forgot his text, and appealing to the audience he said, "I have forgotten my text, but if you give me one, I will preach you a sermon." If some member will tell me what is being discussed I will make a speech. But I have a text in my hand, an anecdote, I will tell it for the benefit of the Honorable the Treasurer. He, I believe, is to be appointed Minister of Education. If he will wake up I will tell it to him. I have given readings at public meetings—I have read to full houses—wake up the Honorable Treasurer—I never was treated in this way before. Will some honorable member wake him up till I read this anecdote to him? It occurred at a school house. He will have to do with school houses. It reads thus: "She appeared at the school house, half an hour before the time." She was about 40 years old, tall, with a jaw showing great determination, shy, but rather good looking." Does the Honorable Treasurer hear me? This will afford him a lesson. I say, this woman appeared at the school house, half an hour before the time. She was about 40, as I said before. She was tall, thin, with a jaw showing great determination, shy, but rather good looking. This might fit the hon. member for South Brant. He is a bachelor I believe. He is not courteous. He is looking to Washington just now, if not with his head, at least with his heels. Is the Honorable Treasurer awake? If he is, I will read him this anecdote. He must be ready to receive information on educational matters. As I said before, this tall woman, with a jaw showing great determination, was at the school house half an hour before the time, and she had Linder with her. Who Linder was, does not yet appear. The story will yet show. But she was with the tall woman about 40 years old, thin, with a jaw showing a great determination, shy, but rather good looking. I say, she had Linder with her. She that is Linder was sixteen. The member for Norfolk would do well to remember, Linder was sixteen, but who Linder was, doth not yet appear. As I said before, she was sixteen. She was with the tall, thin woman, as I did say before, about 40, thin, with a jaw showing great determination, shy, but rather good looking. I say, this woman was over the school house about half an hour before the time, and she had Linder with her. Who Linder was sixteen, and good looking.—Now, as I said before, I will tell the anecdote for the benefit of the Honorable Treasurer if some one will wake him up. The tall woman was at the school house, as I said before, half an hour before the time, and she had Linder with her. Who Linder was sixteen, and good looking.—Now, as I said before, I will tell the anecdote for the benefit of the Honorable Treasurer if some one will wake him up. The tall woman was at the school house half an hour before the time. She was tall, thin, with a jaw showing great determination, shy, and rather good looking, and Linder was with her."

Now in this way the House was amused with nonsense that a simpleton of a school boy would get well thrashed for reiterating twice. What can the people think of a representative who could thus throw aside his manhood, his intelligence and his self respect and allow himself to become a mountebank for the sake of party! Yet the House had to endure this for more than two hours and a half, while the Hon. member for North Grey manifested such traits of character, and forms of speech as might be permitted in a Lunatic Asylum, or be listened to if the incoherent nonsense of an inmate thereof. Talk about the dignity of the House and honorable members! If their actions on Friday night and Saturday morning indicate the ideas of self respect the dignity of the House, and their mode of discharging their duties to their constituents, then all honest men will say—Save us from ever going to such a place. The truth is, it was more like an asylum than a parliament, and some of the members exhibited more the character of children than of men imbued with a proper sense of their responsibilities.

Could all the electors of Ontario witness the scene on Friday night, listen to the repetition thereof, hear the rapping of desks, the flapping of desk covers, the knocking of books and general confusion, they would leave determined in future to send men to parliament, not boys; honorable men, who would respect themselves, who could rise above party or partizan influence when they tended to lower them in their own estimation, or that of others. And who would be prepared to discuss the questions brought before them, with calmness and sobriety, and when outnumbered could bow to the decision of the House in a graceful, sober and gentlemanly manner.

If an Opposition is reduced so low that it can not command a hearing, it must be because of something in them, or in the Government. And no better proof could be given that the cause is in the opposition itself than was given on Tuesday night, as no set of men can retain their own self respect, nor that of the House, nor yet long of the Country, who can allow themselves to descend to act as they did on Friday Evening.

ELECTION APPEALS.

The result of the judgements given by the Court of Appeal on Saturday last, is as follows:

Mr. Millar, (Ministerialist) of Muskoka, and Mr. Brown, (Opposition) of South Ontario, were confirmed in their seats. Mr. Neelon, (Ministerialist), looses his election, and is disqualified for eight years. The petition against Mr. McCraney, the Dominion member for Halton was dismissed as very frivolous, and the costs have to be borne by the petitioners. In the case of Mr. K. Chisholm, the member for Peel, the application to allow a new petitioner to be substituted was dismissed.

We clip the following from the Globe's Legal Intelligence of the 24th inst.:—

COURT OF ERROR AND APPEAL.

Present—Chief Justice DRAPER, Mr. Justice BURTON, Mr. Justice PATTERSON, Mr. Justice MOSS.

JUDGMENTS.

Re LINCOLN ELECTION.—This was an appeal against a judgement of Mr. Justice Gwynne, unseating and disqualifying Captain Leslon, the member elect. Chief Justice Draper referred to the evidence as to the Clements case and came to the conclusion that although a corrupt practice had been proved there had been nothing to connect the respondent with it.

As to the treating of polling day, after discussing the effect of section 66, he came to the conclusion that the tavern keeper alone was affected by keeping the tavern open and liable to a fine, and but the word "give" he would have felt induced to hold that the whole section applied to the tavern keeper only, but with that word inserted he held that the section applied to others than the tavern keeper. In this case Larkin had been guilty of treating on the polling day and he was sufficiently proved to be an agent but the judge below had held that the election had not been avoided on this ground and there was no appeal on the point.

As to the Stewart case, the facts were repeated from which it appeared that the wife a lone Stewart, a coloured man and a voter, had some years before the election been injured by a runaway team of Capt. Neelon's and her husband had said he would not vote for Neelon because he had not done the right thing about his wife. Capt N. had sent one Patterson, a person in his employ, to see Mrs. Stewart and she wrote a letter to Mr. Neelon. Subsequently a payment was made to her or her husband. Captain Neelon denied having seen the letter before the election. His Lordship considered that this case was proved, and the election was void for this corrupt practices by agents.

Mr. Justice Burton passed his decision wholly on the Stewart case. He found it impossible to disagree with the finding of the judge below.

Mr. Justice Patterson took the same view. He agreed with the argument of Mr. Robinson that the London case did not apply. That was a city constituency and bribery had been in the air, and a very large sum spent almost under the eyes of the candidate, and it was impossible he could have been ignorant of it. This case was different. The constituency was a rural one, the bribery had not been so extensive, nor carried over the same length of time.

Mr. Justice Moss arrived at the same opinion with some doubt. Appeal dismissed with costs.

Re MUSKOKA ELECTION.—Mr Justice Burton pointed out that at the conclusion of the trial Mr Justice Wilson reserved four cases. The first he subsequently held disproved. The second, Hill's case, and the third, Sufferin's the judge below said he would have found in favour of of respondent but for the effect on his mind of the 4th.—the speech at Mathias Hall, and the further effect of the respondent and three witnesses, one in each case, being at variance in the three cases. None of the cases were of bribes, but at most of mere offers, and in this case the law required that the language in which the offer was made should be established beyond all doubts. There was no difficulty here as to the conduct of the witnesses, because of judge distinctly said that Sufferini did not give his evidence satisfactorily, and the Hill was blamed, while the respondent, he said, gave his evidence well. As to Hill's case, besides what was said below, the charge was to be doubted because, (1) Hill never thought of the time that an offer was being made to him; and (2) because he he did not think he could be was told it with an oath. The story was improbable and contradicted by two witnesses being present. As to the speech at Mathias Hall it was impossible to say it came within the clause as to undue influence. If it was more like a bribe or offer, for the judgment of the Court below is the answer to that. Appeal allowed. Chief Justice Draper agreed with the judgment, and added that his impression was against any such principle of cumulative testimony as had been referred to by Judge Wilson. Mr. Justice Patterson also expressed the opinion that the judgment below was predicated on a principle of law that did not exist. Mr. Justice Moss concurred.

Re SOUTH ONTARIO ELECTION.—In this case the appeal was by the petitioner. The chief charge was treating by agents on polling days. It was held that sec 66 applied to tavern-keepers only, and the appeal was dismissed with costs, Chief Justice Draper dissenting, and holding to the opinion expressed in the Lincoln case.

MURDER AT LYNEDOCH, CO. NORFOLK. A brutal murder was committed on Saturday last, January 22nd, about two miles from this place. A Mrs. Hopkins was killed, it is supposed, by her husband Samuel Hopkins. Hopkins had a contract to build a bridge, and a short time after dinner he came down where the men were at work. It was observed by them that he had a cut on his neck and was bleeding. With some suspicion as to what had happened they went to the house and found Mrs. Hopkins lying lifeless on her face on the floor in a horribly mutilated condition. It was evident she had been stabbed with a butcher-knife and her skull broken in with a grub hoe. Hopkins is under arrest.

THE Bill for the payment of Crown witnesses in criminal cases provides that in case of a prosecution or trial for felony or treason, or any offence which is punishable by imprisonment only, or any offence for which whipping may be imposed, the judge who holds the Court before which a prosecution or trial for the offence takes place may grant to any one who attends on recognizance or subpœna to give evidence, or who gives evidence, on the part of the Crown, an order for payment of such sum of money to the judge shall seem reasonable and sufficient to compensate such witness for the costs and charges incurred by him in his attendance as such witness, such sum not to exceed the amount then payable to the like witnesses in civil cases in the Superior Courts, and no allowance is to be made to any witness who resides in the county town where the offence is tried, or within one mile thereof, except in the case of medical or indigent witnesses. Where no indictment has been prepared, or where the trial has not been proceeded with, the Court may still order any person who has attended in obedience to a recognizance to be paid as though they had actually been called upon to give evidence. The order of the Court in any case is not to be made except on a certificate of the counsel acting for the Crown and the County Attorney. The order is to be paid forthwith by the Treasurer of the county and one third of the amount so paid is to be reimbursed to the municipality from the municipality out of the Consolidated Revenue fund.—Globe.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The County Council met on Tuesday, 25th instant, at 3 o'clock, P.M. Present: Messrs. Sanderson, Bell, Choate, Brown, Golborne, Birdsall, Choate, Boulton, Costello, Mansfield, Millar, Blezard, Collins, Burgess, Maloney, Blewitt and Burnham.

It was moved by Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. J. Burnham,—That R. E. Birdsall, Esq., be Warden for the current year.

There being no other motion, the Clerk pronounced Mr. Birdsall as duly elected.

After taking the oath of office he was conducted to the Chair by his mover and seconder, and thanked the Council for the honor conferred on him, and said that he would always discharge his duties to the best of his ability, and for the county in general.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and confirmed.

It was moved by Mr. Golborne, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—That Mr. J. J. Hall be one of the Auditors for the County for the current year.—Carried.

The Warden named Mr. C. Barton as the other Auditor.

He drew their attention with reference to a letter he had received from Mr. W. H. Scott, M. P. P., in reference to the Grand Junction Railway.

The Warden said that he had received a letter from the Warden of the County of Victoria, stating that they had given Mr. Spriggs $50 for damage done to a horse, and that the horse was valued at $10, and he had given his order for $50 to meet his.

Mr. Millar thought that it was not right for the council to pay for the damage done to horses throughout the county and that they would only get into trouble with other people applying for remuneration also.

Moved by Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Golborne,—That Messrs. Sanderson, Choate, Brown, Miller, Blewitt, Boulton, Burnham, and the Mover and Seconder, be a committee to draft the standing committee for the current year,—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Golborne, seconded by Mr. Burgess,—That John Carnegie be appointed Sessional Clerk for the current year.—Carried.

The Council adjourned.

WEDNESDAY SESSION.

The Council met at 2 o'clock. The Clerk read the minutes which were confirmed.

Mr Collins explained that there was a deputation present from North and South Monaghan in favor of building a road from the town towards South Monaghan, and also in favor of rebuilding the Rosa Bridge.

Mr. Barnard addressed the Council. He stated that the people of South Monaghan were not so favorable to the road as they were to the Rosa Bridge. He said the Peterboro' market was their market for all their produce except wheat and barley, and if the Huron and Quebec R.R. be built, Peterboro will be the best market and would benefit Monaghan people very much. He further said that the Monaghan people would assist if it were undertaken.

Mr. Millar, Reeve of Otonabee, then addressed the council, stating there was a million on the books to go and build the Rosa Bridge if Monaghan, Northumberland and Durham should assist.

Mr. Waterman also addressed the council on the same subject.

Mr. Wm. Rutherford also supported the building of the bridge as a work of the counties on each side, and thought that South Monaghan would build the Monaghan approach, which was very costly.

A motion by Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Bell,—To lay the matter as it is now by resolution, viz: That this council would aid in building the bridge if South Monaghan would join the county.

Moved by Mr. Burnham, seconded by Boulton,—That the matter of Rosa's bridge be referred to the Road and Bridge Committee to report thereon.

Moved by Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr. Blewitt,—The Committee on Standing Committee reported.

BOSS TWEED.

The Hamilton Spectator gives the following:

Some four weeks ago "Boss" Tweed, one of the most remarkable men that New York has ever produced, escaped from jail in that city, and up till a few days back, in spite of the strenuous efforts of the officers of the United States secret service and in spite of the large offered for his capture, he has never been seen save by those immediately interested in his welfare. His steps, however, have been tracked through this city as far as Ancaster by a private detective named Patrick Connors, in the employ of the New York Herald, and who, with the keenness and persistency of a sleuth hound, has tracked him step by step and has him now almost within his grasp.

The circumstances of Tweed's escape to this city, as far as our reporter can learn—for private detectives are not the most communicative in the world—are these:

On the night of the escape the "Boss" received a clean shave, inside the cab which conveyed him from the jail, and he was furnished with a coarse suit of clothes a grey wig and a pair of green goggles. Mounting to the box seat with the driver he was driven to the outskirts of the city where a covered caudy wagon was waiting He was locked in, and a spirited span of horses being attached to the rig he was driven rapidly into the country. In this manner the "Boss" was conveyed across the country in much the same style as a menagerie man.

TRANSPORTS A LION.

When between seventy-five and one hundred miles from the city of New York Tweed took the train at a small station on the New York Central and deliberately crossed the Suspension bridge in broad daylight, and reached this city on the train due here from the Bridge at 5.20 Tweed's movements since then are well defined. He is described as he stood on the platform (by a gentleman in this city who intends claiming half the reward) as a large fat man, clean shaved, and coarse dressed in grey Canadian tweed. He carried a heavy walking stick and wore green goggles and a white stove pipe hat—where he got the hat is a question. After walking up and down, the platform for a few minutes he entered the waiting room, bought a cut of pie, a glass of beer and a cigar. It will be well to mention here that Tweed was acting in concert with a friend, the arrangements being that he was to do whatever his friend did as far as travelling was concerned.

TWEED TOOK THE TRAIN

going west which left a few minutes after his arrival and got off at Dundas station having paid his fare in cash on board the cars Tweed after getting off the cars instead of going into the town walked up the mountain to Bullock's Corners, where he put up at Morden's Hotel representing himself as a party who intended buying a farm in the neighborhood. He gave his name as Henry Hays, but never once put his hand to paper that Mr. Morden can remember. Two days after his arrival he hired a buggy and drove as far as Freelton, where he stopped and had some thing to eat. While there he called for pen, ink and paper, and which he put in his breast pocket. He then drove as far as the village of Strabane, where he posted the letter. While in the office the 'Boss' was struck by the appearance of a young child lying in its mother's arms. Tweed bought the child a handful of candies for a Christmas present, and told the mother that it reminded him of his own little child at home in San Francisco. On his way back to Bullock's Corners an accident happened, which may yet prove FATAL TO TWEED'S LIBERTY.

WROTE A LETTER

When about a mile out of Greenville he met Miller's stage, running between Guelph and Hamilton, and by a piece of bad horsemanship ran into the vehicle, which only contained two passengers, a drunken father and a commercial traveller—the same party who saw Tweed at the Hamilton station. Tweed jumped out rather hastily, and in doing so disarranged his wig and lost his goggles, displaying to the interested traveller a physiognomy remarkably like that of a certain individual whose picture is one of the ornaments of the walls of our city police office. The delay was only of a few minutes' duration, but it was enough to satisfy that commercial traveller, who, on his arrival at Freelton, telegraphed as follows to the New York Herald:—

"FREELTON, Ont., Jan. 8, 1876,

"I think I've got Boss Tweed. Send me a detective. I claim half the money.

"THOMAS GILLESPIE."

Shortly afterwards he received the following reply:—

"NEW YORK, Jan. 8, 1876.

"We've got a detective at Suspension Bridge, communicate with him.

"MANAGER N.Y. HERALD."

Two days after this occurance a party from the township of Ancaster drove to Bullock's Corners and took Mr Tweed, alias Hayes, away with him. The party's name we suppress. He is Tweed's brother-in-law, and one of the most respectable farmers in the township, and it was to this party that tweed wrote the letter from Freelton. At this gentleman's house Tweed has remained ever since, while every detective in the United States has been looking for him in vain. Last evening Connors and Gillespie hired a rig from Mr. Bennet, livery stable keeper on Bark street, and drove out to Ancaster. They returned this morning early, when Connors took the first train for the Bridge, while Gillespie, after remaining a few hours at the American Hotel, returned to Ancaster.

OUR LITERARY TABLE.

MUSIC.—We have received from A. S. Irving & Co. Toronto, the following pieces in five cent music:—"Our Good Old Friends," or the "Friends of my Youth," "Gently down the Stream of Time," "Come back to Erin," and "Skidmore Guard." Each of these popular songs for sale at the Bookstores.

SEEDS.—We have received from Mr. W. H. Marcon, Seed Merchant, Guelph, his Illustrated Seed Catalogue and Guide for 1876. It is very neatly got up and we would recommend our readers who are in want of fresh, reliable seeds, to send for a copy. Mr. Marcon's reputation as a seedsman stands high, as shown by the many testimonials received by him. We notice that he is also manufacturing Bone Dust for manures.

"WIDE AWAKE" for February is a very noticeable number of this rapidly growing magazine for the children and young folks. The engravings are unusually fine. The magazine opens with an an excellent picture by Miss C. A. Northam, illustrating a charming Valentine Story by Miss Mary E. Bradley, "How they made it up." Of the two serials, "The Cooking Club," by Ella Farman, the editor is full of deeper wisdom than commonly goes to the making of a Juvenile Story, while "Young Rick," by Miss Eastman is delightful in depicting actual little child-life, Miss Eastman has very few equals. The remaining contents are varied, story, poem and paper, with several admirably conducted departments. Dr. Lougee's medical page contains a list of invaluable value to every person who teaches music to children. Only $2.50 per annum. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

AN INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

A REMARKABLE DUEL BETWEEN THE COMMANDERS OF A FEDERAL AND REBEL SCOUT.

On the 12th day of June, 1863, I witnessed a duel between a Captain Jones, commanding a Federal scout, and Captain Fry, commanding a Rebel scout in Greene county, East Tennessee. These two men had been fighting each other for six months, with the fortunes of battle in favor of one and then the other. Their commands were camped on either side of Lick Creek, a large and sluggish stream, too deep to ford and too shallow for a ferry boat; but there a bridge spanned the stream for the convenience of the travelling public. Each of them guarded this bridge, that communication should go neither north or south, as the railroad track had been broken up months before. After fighting each other for several months, and contesting the point as to which should hold the bridge, they agreed to fight a duel, the conqueror to hold the bridge undisputed for the time being. Jones gave the challenge and Fry accepted. The terms were that they should fight with navy pistols at 20 yards apart, deliberately walking toward each other, and fighting until the last chamber of their pistols were discharged, unless one or the other fell before all the discharges were made. They chose their seconds, and agreed upon a Rebel surgeon (as he was the only one in either command) to attend them in case of danger.

Jones was certainly a fine looking fellow, with light hair and blue eyes, five feet ten inches in height, looking every inch the military chieftain. He was a man that soldiers would admire and ladies regarded with admiration. I never saw a man more cool, determined, and heroic under such circumstances. I have read of the deeds of chivalry and knight-errantry in the middle ages, and of brave men embalmed in modern poetry; but, when I saw this man Jones come to the duelists scratch, fighting, not for real or supposed wrongs to himself, but, as he honestly thought, for his country and the glory of the flag, I could not help admiring the man, notwithstanding he fought for the freedom of the negro which I was opposed to.

Fry was a man full six feet high, slender, with long, wavy, curling hair, jet black eyes, wearing a slouch hat and grey suit, and looking rather the demon than the man. There was nothing ferocious about him, but he had that self-sufficient non-chalance that said "I will kill you." Without a doubt, he was brave, cool and collected, and although suffering from a terrible flesh wound in his left arm that he received a week before, he manifested no symptoms of distress but seemed ready for fight.

The ground was stepped off by the seconds, and pistols exchanged, and the principals brought face to face. I shall never forget that meeting, Jones in his military, boyish mood, as they shook hands, remarked that—

A soldier braves death for a fanciful wrath;
When in glory's romantic career.

Fry caught up the rest of the sentence, and answered by saying:

Yet he bent o'er the foe when in the battle laid low,
And bathes every wound with a tear.

Then they turned and walked back to the spot designated. Jones' second had the word "Fire" and as they slowly said, "One—two—three fire!" they simultaneously turned at the "one," and instantly fired. Neither was hurt. They cocked their pistols and deliberately walked toward each other, firing as they went. At the fifth shot, Jones threw up his right hand, and, firing his pistol in the air, sank down. Fry was in the act of firing his last shot; but, seeing Jones fall silently lowered his pistol, dropped it to the ground and sprang to Jones' side, taking his head in his lap as he sat down and asked him if he was hurt. I discovered that Jones was shot through the region of the stomach, the bullet glancing around that organ and coming out to the left of the spinal column; besides he had received three other frightful flesh wounds in other portions of his body. I dressed his wounds and gave him such stimulents as I had. He afterwards got well.

Fry received three wounds—one breaking his left arm, one in the left and the other in the right side. After some months he recovered. Neither of them asked for a discharge, but both resumed their command after they got well and fought the war out to the bitter end, and to-day are partners in a wholesale grocery business down South, doing a good business, and verifying the sentiment of Byron that—"A soldier braves death," etc.

Trusting that the above truthful narrative will be a lesson to some people north and south that stayed on the outside and yelled, "Seek dog!" and are still not satisfied with the result of the war, let me subscribe myself a reconstructed CONFEDERATE SURGEON.—Chicago Tribune.

A Practical emperance ermon.

A young man entered a tavern and called for a drink. 'No,' said the landlord, 'you had delirium tremens once an I cannot sell you any more.' He made room for young men that had just entered, the landlord waited on them. The other stood by silent and when they had finished he thus addressed the landlord:—'Six years ago, at their age, I stood where those young men ate now—I was a man with fair prospects. Now at the age of twenty-eight I am a wretch, body and mind. You led me to drink, in this room I formed the habit which has become my ruin, now sell me a few glasses more and your work will be done! I will soon be out of the way, there is no hope for me, but they can be saved. Do not sell to them. Sell it to me and let me die and the world will be rid of me, but for Heaven's sake sell no more to them." The landlord listened, pale and trembling. Setting down the decanter he exclaimed, "God help me, this is the last drop I will sell anyone!" And he kept his word.

FLED TO CANADA.—Cincinnati, Jan. 8—Mr. N. C. Williamson, proprietor of the Caledonia Stave Works at Belmore, O., one of the largest establishments of the kind in the United States obtained $20,000 cash from the Lima, (Ohio) Bank, and fled to Canada. Farmers to whom he owed large sums for timber, hearing of his flight, assembled in a large force, formed in procession, marched to the factory, began loading with staves, machinery and whatever valuables they could lay their hands on. The Sheriff with a posse attempted to stop operations, but were seized and locked in a room, when the factory was completely riddled. They went to a store, in which Williamson was a partner and seized it. Williamson's liabilities will reach over $100,000

Boss Tweed is now credited with being in Montreal.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

Take good papers and read them.

Keep an account of farm operations.

No farmer ever gets rich by keeping a dog.

Do not leave implements scattered over the farm, exposed to rain and snow.

All experience points to a diversified system as the really successful way of farming.

Use money judiciously, and do not attend auction sales to purchase all kinds of trumpery because it is cheap.

Practice economy by giving shelter during the winter; also good food, taking out all that is unsound, half rotten or moldy.

Corn fed hens do not lay in winter for the simple reason there isn't any albumen material in the corn. When Wheat is fed there is fat enough in it to supply all that is needed for the yolk, and gluten enough to make the white, and lime enough to furnish the shell; it does not thus seem difficult to understand why corn fed hens should not lay, as they do not, and why wheat fed hens should lay as they do.

An English farmer accidentally dropped a grain of wheat among some seeds he was sowing in his garden, and having a curiosity to protect it, gave it every chance to come to perfection." The result was 63 heads, (40 very large), containing 3,044 counted kernels not including some picked away by an enterprising hen. He leaves readers to draw their own conclusions, only adding that, as the result of frequent investigation, he never found more than 25 ears to one root growing in his fields

CABBAGE FOR STOCK.—Cabbages are rich in nitrogen, and for making milk or flesh are valuable. In gathering a patch of cabbage for market, there will always be more or less soft heads, unsaleable, but will answer for stock feeding, and where heads are cut off and sold instead of being pulled up by the roots, the leaves make good feed. It is very hard to induce farmers to change their practices, but we think that if they would try the experiment of raising an acre or two of cabbages for stock feeding, they would be so well pleased with the result as to make it a part of their system of farming. When cabbage are high, the larger, firmer heads could be sold, and the poorer with the leaves are fed.—American Rural Home

WINTERING STOCK.—A writer on wintering stock remarks:—"My winter quarters for them are not so large as they should be, being only twelve feet square for from twenty to thirty fowls, but they have the run of the yard whenever the snow does not forbid. Instead of cleaning out these quarters weekly or oftener, as frequently recommended in books, I occasionally throw a few shovelsful of earth, (from boxes filled for the purpose) over the droppings. Their quarters are not as warm as I should provide were I to build a house expressly for them; but I have two large windows in the south and east sides, which give them all the benefit of the sun's warmth, and in a measure make up for considerable lack of battening. Cold weather is the trying time when most people complain that their hens do not lay. It requires more attention to the fowls to get eggs in the winter than in summer; but they can be had. Give them sun light and keep them warm in the first place, and secondly, give them varied food and plenty of it. I feed principally corn through the winter, but vary it with wheat, oats, buckwheat and meat scraps. Part of the corn I feed whole, and a part I have cracked or ground into meal. I prefer the cracked. I feed whole grain at night and ground in the morning, on the principal that through the long night they need something that will stand by them: that having digested all their night's food by the morning, they need something upon which they can act without delay. For the same reason, in the very coldest weather, when I go out to give them their morning's feed I carry a basin of warm water from the kettle and wet up their dough with that. It will warm them quickly and make them feel comfortable—an essential, as I have said before, for a supply of eggs. The wheat I feed is screenings, which can be had at any mill or feed store. Mashed potatoes, fed warm, are just the vegetable food they need, and were I on a farm I should carefully husband a few bushels of small potatoes for this The meat scraps I buy of the butcher in large cakes, and I believe it is as cheap as corn, while it answers a purpose like that of the bugs in summer.

HINTS ABOUT WORK.—An account should be opened with every field upon the farm, and with every kind of stock kept, commencing with the first of the year. Each field should be numbered or named, and whatever labor, seed or manure goes into or upon that field should be charged a fair price, just as if it were sold to a neighbor. When the crop is sold or used, the proceeds should be credited to the field just as if it had been received in payment from a neighbor. If some of it be fed to stock, the stock should be charged with the full value, as if it had been bought for them, and the field credited with the amount. To commence the accounts an inventory should be made, and the value of everything fairly estimated and put down. If any work has already been done upon a field, that should be charged to it. It may not be very easy at first, but very soon will be, and when once it has begun it will be kept up. Do not mind some mistakes at first.

Stock should be well fed at this season. Do not spare feed, but do not waste any. It is easier to keep flesh on an animal now than to put it on in March.

Perfect cleanliness should be the rule in all the stables, pens and sheds. Filth is the most frequent cause of disease. Too much warmth is not healthful. Pure air, dry beds and clean skins, will keep well fed animals in sleek condition.

Icy paths and roads are dangerous for man and beast. After every fall of snow the roads should be broken down with a snow plow or a snow boat, and the path shoveled out or packed down in a similar manner. A heavy plank drawn along the paths will clear off or pack down the snow. Coal ashes or sand are the best material to scatter upon roads and paths when they become smooth and slippery.

Work horses should be either sharpened or protected in some other secure manner against slipping on icy roads. Sharp calks are dangerous, and many horses are badly blemished by them. The rubber overshoe is an excellent device. It is an effective preventive against falling or slipping. We do not advise the use of sharp calks when these can be procured.

Young stock will need close attention to keep thriving and free from vermin. A mixture of lard and kerosine oil rubbed along the backbone from head to tail will free them from lice. Young animals need better protection from the cold than full grown ones, which have thicker hides, and are better furnished with fat as protection from the cold.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

GRATEFUL THOUSANDS proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glossy hue of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Invet cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination that they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that we publish scarcely enough to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unsuspected tenant of the organism undermines the constitution and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal disease without exciting a suspicion of its presence. And it seems to breed infection throughout the body, so that, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs, heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the necessity of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla in a family, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in many cases, a perfect cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions and visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required to subdue those obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will alter the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, which are caused by accumulations of extraneous matter in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising from this cause, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Drowsy and Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the specific symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

FULL TEXT OF THE BILL TO Amend the Law Respecting the Sale of Fermented or Spirituous Liquors.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the act passed in the thirty-seventh year of Her Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to amend and consolidate the law for the sale of Fermented or Spirituous Liquors:"

Therefore Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:—

1. All powers and duties conferred and imposed upon the commissioners of police and municipal councils respectively, by virtue of the said recited Act, shall hereafter exclusively belong to and be exercised and performed by a board of license commissioners, except where express provision is otherwise made in this Act; and such board shall be composed of three persons to be appointed from time by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for each city, county, union of counties, or electoral riding or division as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may think fit; and each of the commissioners shall cease to hold office on the thirty-first day of December, but shall be eligible to be re-appointed; and the said office shall be honorary and without any remuneration.

2. The number of tavern licenses to be granted in the respective municipalities shall not in each year be in excess of the following limitations: In cities, towns, and incorporated villages respectively, according to the following scale, that is to say, one for each full two hundred and fifty of the first one thousand of the population, and one for each full four hundred over one thousand of the population; but in no case shall this limit authorise any increase in any municipality in excess of the number of licenses therein issued for the year ending the first day of March next; unless from the future increase of the population the license commissioners shall think a larger number has become necessary, but not in any case exceeding the limit imposed by this Act,

[2.] And for the license year ending on the thirtieth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, in cities the reduction need not be more than one fourth of the number under license now for the year ending the first day of March next;

(3) The council of every city, town, village or township municipality may, by by law to be passed before the first day of March in any year, limit the number of tavern licenses to be issued therein for the then ensuing year: Provided such limit is under the limit imposed by this Act. The council shall also certify a copy of such by law to be sent immediately after the passing thereof to the license commissioners.

3 the number of the population which is to determine the number of licenses under this Act shall be according to the then last preceding census taken under the authority of the Dominion of Canada, except where the commissioners shall be of the opinion that owing to a large increase of population since such census an increased number of licensed taverns is needed for the convenience and accommodation of travellers, and in that case, if the commissioners so certify, and the council of the municipality memorialize the Lieutenant-Governor for such increase, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may authorise a new census to be taken under the authority of a bylaw of the municipality and at the expense of the municipality, and the limit for the number of licenses shall then be, one for each full two hundred and fifty of the population under one thousand and one for each five hundred over one thousand of the population.

4. The license commissioners may by resolution regulate and determine the several matters provided for in the ninth section of the said recited Act, as any three of them may think fit; and each of the commissioners shall cease to hold office on the thirty-first day of December, but shall be eligible to be re-appointed; and the said office shall be honorary and without any remuneration.

The number of taverns licenses to be granted in the respective municipalities shall not in each year be in excess of the following limitations: In cities, towns, and incorporated villages respectively, according to the following scale, that is to say, one for each full two hundred and fifty of the first one thousand of the population, and one for each full four hundred over one thousand of the population; but in no case shall this limit authorise any increase in any municipality in excess of the number of licenses therein issued for the year ending the first day of March next; unless from the future increase of the population the license commissioners shall think a larger number has become necessary, but not in any case exceeding the limit imposed by this Act,

AUDITORS.

Mr. C. D. McDonald who was appointed Auditor by the Town Council for 1876, sent in a letter on Monday evening declining to accept the appointmen...—Some rumour has it that this is caused by unwillingness to meet the other Auditor. There is a spirit of general dissatisfaction on account of the appointment made by the Mayor. No man in Town believes Mr. Pendry qualified to intelligently and satisfactorily audit the Town accounts, and the fact that he is a violent partisan increases the non-confidence of the people.

The fuss about a certain $423, and the suspicious circumstances connected with it, raises a suspicion that there may be something else to pass over. This view of the reason for his appointment, we cannot accept until something wrong is shown to exist which we cannot yet believe exists But, notwithstanding this, the appointment is exceedingly unpopular. It is not at all likely that the County Council would appoint the Town Treasurer as one of their Auditors, no matter how well qualified he might be to discharge the duties of that office. Hence we did not feel surprised when the County Treasurer, although well qualified to be Town Auditor, did not get reappointed. But when the Town Council made the change, a gentleman at least equal to Mr. Pearce should have been selected, if possible.

There are no two opinions of the unfitness of Mr Pendry for the office of Auditor. Mr. Eastland who is now appointed Auditor by the Council, may restore confidence to the public, but it is to Mr. Eastland that the people will look for a proper audit of our accounts for 1875.

THE TOWN COUNCIL.

This august body met on Monday evening, and commenced this year's work in a very spirited manner. The discussion proper, originated on the report of the committee on appointments. That report recommended the appointment of Messers Rowe and Wm. Johnston, as assessors, at a salary of $175 each. Mr. George Johnston, as chief Constable at $600, and Mr. Cumming as collector, assistant Constable and health Inspector at a salary of $500 a year. The report so far as the appointment of the assessors, and chief Constable was concerned, was concurred in, but in reference to Mr. Cumming, Mr. McClelland, moved seconded by Mr. Cook, that Mr. Cumming, be Collector and street inspector, at same salary as last year, viz: $500.

Mr. Rutherford, as Chairman of the committee on appointments argued that Mr. Cumming's, had too much to do last year, and that with this in view the committee wished to relieve him of some of the work, and to appoint some other person Street Inspector, Messrs Toole, Thornton, Cahill, Patterson and Hopkins, held the same views.

Mr. McClelland, considered that Mr. Cumming, if the street committee did its duty, could have all or nearly all his work done by the time the collecting commenced, and that in this way the salary of a second officer could be saved, which would be considerable this hard year.

Mr. Rutherford, stated that as Chairman of the Street and Bridge committee he had now two gangs of men at work on Dublin street between Stewart and Rubidge street, with two overseers. The men at 75cts a day, the overseers at $1 00 per day, and the horses and carts at $1.00 per day This he had done in order to provide labour for those out of employment, and who in consequence were requiring aid. Mr. McClelland, remarked that while he was in favor of giving employment to those in need he could not help thinking that Mr. Rutherford as chairman of the Street and Bridge committee had over stepped his instructions, as he was only directed to get a survey of that work, a profile of the grade, and to report. If the chairman could commence any work he pleased, without instructions from the Council, then the council could not tell when or where their expenses would end. It was the entering in of the thin end of a wedge that would be dangerous indeed. Mr. Rutherford admitted that he had done more than he was instructed, but was actuated wholly by a desire to get the men to work who were in need of assistance. The debate on this question, and that of the grading of Murray Street between Bethune and Stewart Street continued to about twelve o'clock, except while two by-laws appointing assessors, auditors, chief Constable and Mr. Cumming, were being read.

It requires no prophet to foresee that the expenses of 1876, are likely to be greater than those of the past years. It is said that about 50 men are looking for employment already and their number will increase as the winter advances. In the County Council Major Boulton, gave an instance of a flower his firm had engaged at $38 a month, and pay his expenses to the shanties which was about $19. He worked about six weeks but hearing that Peterborough, was providing work for men, he left the shanty and came home at a cost of $12 and is now awaiting labour without any means of support, while if he had remained in the woods he would have had steady work all winter. This is one case of charity.

THE BILL to allow of women voting at Municipal Elections in Ontario was lost on a division of 51 to 23; pretty close that for women's rights.

CHEAP GAS.—The town of Wood stock has just been supplied with gas, and the price fixed by the Company is $3.50 per thousand cubic feet. Is that cheaper than candles?

CLEMENTS AND FLAHIN who have been tried in Toronto, one as accessory before, and the other after, the fact of the murder of the girl Jane Vaughan Gilmour, have been acquited, largely owing to the want of credence in the evidence of Arthur Rial Davis, who has been convicted of being the murderer. Notwithstanding the verdict in favor of Clement public opinion does not wholly free him from being cognisant of the abortion, but that he advised the course pursued by Davis's, people are willing to doubt.

East Riding Agricultural Society.

The annual meeting of the East Riding Agricultural Society was held on Wednesday of last week. There was a very fair attendance.

After the formal opening of the meeting, the Secretary, Mr. Wm. F. Roxburgh, read the following valuable and interesting

ANNUAL REPORT:

The report of your Directors for the past year is necessarily brief, as their transactions were few and duties limited.

The proposition to merge our annual exhibition in a Central Fair to be held in the Town of Peterboro, was first formally submitted at a meeting held in Keene in April, when the decision arrived at was that, as Keene had the right to claim that the Show for 1875 be held there, the matter be left entirely to the Local Directors of the Otonabee Society. At a subsequent meeting held in the same place, they concluded to amalgamate, and your Directors contributed the sum of $200 toward the prize list of the Central Fair, attaching to the grant the condition that members of this Society exhibiting and obtaining premiums, a dollar be retained by the Treasurer of the Central Committee, and handed over by him to your Treasurer, as their member subscription for the current year. From this source nothing has yet been received by your Treasurer.

The Central Fair was successful beyond all expectation. The entries were numerous, the attendance of visitors in spite of the rather unfavourable weather, very large, and the financial result highly satisfactory, over $1,000 remaining on hand after all expenses were paid. We concur in the suggestion which has been made, that the Societies which contributed to the funds of this Central Fair should have a representation on a committee for the management of the next fair, in the proportion that the amounts they contributed bears to the surplus now on hand.

As the list of members of your Society has been annually kept up to a large extent by the dollars retained from exhibitors, our roll this year has been very materially curtailed in consequence of but few of our members having been prize takers at the Central Fair In order, therefore, that the membership may not fall short of the minimum required by law, an effort will be necessary, on the part of our successors to replace the names of those that have been lost to the Society from the cause referred to.

The funds of the Society are in a satisfactory condition, as the statement of finances appended hereto exhibits.

The ploughing match committee did not arrange for the holding a match during the past fall. We believe that their failure to carry out the instructions of your Directors was occasioned by delaying till it was too late in the season, waiting to see whether a generally talked of scheme to hold a District Ploughing Match under the auspices and management of the Central Fair Committee would not be carried into effect. This, however, from some cause fell through, and the result was, "No Ploughing Match in the Riding."

Your Directors regret that they cannot report so favorably of the crops of the past season. The summer was exceedingly favorable for the growth of both cereals and roots, but the showery weather which prevailed during the harvest months, rendered it exceedingly difficult to save the former, and a good deal of sprouted new heads and discoloured barley has been the consequence. Potatoes would have been an excellent crop but for the ravages of the potato bug. This terrible pest threatens to render the successful cultivation of that valuable esculent almost impossible unless some simple and effective means can be devised for its successful extermination.

Several Cheese Factories have been established in the Riding during the past year, and we understand that, notwithstanding the depression in the value of this article, they have been worked with satisfaction and profit to their patrons. In the 4 factories an aggregate quantity of about 240,000 pounds was manufactured, the principal portion of which was exported directly to the English market.

Your Directors cannot conclude without referring to the great loss sustained by your Society through the melancholy death of Peter Pearce Esq., and expressing their tribute of respect to his memory whose whole life during his long residence in the Riding was one of active and zealous devotion to the people, and whose name will long be associated with its history and progress.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

On motion, the report was received and adopted.

The meeting then proceeded to the election of officers for the current year, and resulted as follows:

Mr. P. M. Grover, President.
Mr. F. Birdsall, 1st Vice President.
Mr. J. M. Drummond, 2nd do
Mr. W. Roxburgh, Sec'y Treasurer.

Directors.—Messrs. T. Blezard, R Fife H Nelson, R E Birdsall, John Breckenridge, W. Burgess. Charles Payne, A. J. Wright and J. B Brown.

Auditors.—Dr. Ford, and Mr. J. A Butterfield.

On motion of Mr. F. E. Birdsall, seconded by Mr. Blezard, four delegates were to attend the Central Fair at Port Hope, by giving an additional $35 on the basis laid down as published.

On motion, Messrs. F. Birdsall, Thos. Blezard, J. M. Drummond and Joseph Redmond were appointed delegates to the Port Hope Central Committee meeting.

On motion, Mr. Joseph Redmond was appointed delegate, and Mr. F. Birdsall co-delegate, to attend the next Provincial Exhibition.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the officers and Directors of the Society for their efficient management of the affairs of the Society for the past year.

HURON AND QUEBEC R. R.

As intimated last week Messrs Toole Scott and Fowler met the Limerick Council on Wednesday last, to submit a By-law for a bonus to the above Railway.

Mr Scott was heard. He said the scheme was to be committed both from a local and provincial point of view. For some years, Peterborough, had been working to further this project, and now looked at its present condition with great anxiety. They felt they were removed from the water communication and the line of railway along the front of the province, which to a great extent reduced the value of the productions of the soil at home and impaired the material resources of the locality. When the Board of Directors was organized, the people of Peterborough, feeling that the prosperity of the place depended a great deal on the success of this scheme, and apprehensive that it would not succeed without great effort, deputed Mr. Fowler to work the affair up, with others to assist him. They knew the scheme had merits of its own, but their aim was to set the ball rolling and it would then run itself. All railways now building in this province were projected under what is called the bonus system—that of aid by way of bonuses from municipalities along the route, and accordingly the character of the Bill would be changed from time to time to take in directors resident in municipalities interested, though the organization Board took the responsibility of incurring the expense and trouble of getting the scheme into shape and on its legs. Thus the Board were now in a good position to ask a bonus from the grouped municipalities embodied in the petition, the provisions in such were pretty much the same as those contained in the original by law prepared for this Council last year. He alluded to the visit of the Perth delegation to Toronto and their meeting with the Peterboro' deputation and the promises made by the Hon. Mr Mowat, of liberal aid, provided the scheme was firmly established on a good financial basis.

Mr. Toole, was next heard He spoke of the Huron & Quebec railway from a provincial point of view,—describing it as the medium for removing the western products eastward through our own territory, instead of having them pass over and benefit the American railways. This was the "missing link" wanted for making the shortest railway communication between the east and west. He showed how the Grand Trunk R R., by scooping ruinously low rates for freights west of Toronto, where there were competing railways, was compelled to charge exhorbitantly high freights—as a from points between Toronto and Montreal—an evil which the construction of this railway would cure. He stated that the town of Peterboro had voted altogether $300,000 towards railways, and if it was to be a question of whether it were or were not to get this railway, it would give 150,000 more. They had paid a good share of this already, but such was the increased prosperity, that their rate of taxation was only 8½ mills in the dollar. He explained that the cautious farmers in his county had calculated that by marketing their produce along the line of the railway, instead of teaming it to Peterboro, saved the extra taxation they would have to pay, and therefore voted generally for the bonus by-law. He pointed to the immense advantages enjoyed to-day, in rapid and cheap travel, and better prices for produce, over those possessed twenty-five years ago, and it should still be our aim to keep up to the times. One thing was certain now.—People could not get railways without they helped to pay for them. It was found that there was a large amount of dead capital in railways which could be paid only by bonuses, and the farmers who gave these bonuses were afterwards amply repaid in many different ways by the existence of the railways thus assisted, independent of the benefits of a direct expenditure among them of at least double the amount of the bonus granted, while the road was in course of construction. The tax to pay the bonus being extended over twenty years was not perceptibly felt.

We are glad to be able to state that a By-law for $125,000 was submitted.—Perth Courrier.

Dr. O'Meara, of Port Hope. The subject will be "A visit to Manitoba." Those who last winter listened to the highly interesting lecture by the Rev. Dr. O'Meara, on "His life among the Indians," will not need to be urged to attend, and all who may do so may be assured of a rich intellectual treat. An admission fee of Ten Cents will be charged to defray expenses.

ANNIVERSARY I. O. GOOD TEMPLARS.—The twentieth anniversary of the Independent Order of Good Templars will be held on Friday, (to-morrow evening,) in the Temperance Hall. A varied programme is prepared, and a pleasant evening may be expected. Very few Temples have remained so long in active and earnest work, and this certainly reflects great credit on those who have proved so tenacious to their temperance principles as to maintain them during twenty years. We trust that they may be favored with a large house on this anniversary, to encourage them in their faithfulness.

CEMETERY COMPANY.—At the meeting of Directors for the current year, held in the Council Chamber, last Monday, Judge Dennistoun in the chair, the Auditors report was presented, which showed that there was a balance in the Treasurer's hands at the end of the year of $239.02. Rev. V. Clementi was re-elected Presid't. It was resolved that a fee of $1.50 for an adult, and $1.00 for a child, be charged for the use of the vault during the months of January, February and March, and that in the event of the friends not wishing to make use of the vault an addition to the above be made to the charge for digging graves during the same three months.

PROTESTANT HOME.—The committees of the Protestant Home and Dorcas Society acknowledge with thanks the following donations:—Parcels of clothing from Mrs. G. Shaw, Miss Dugan, Mrs. W. G. Thomson, Mrs. V. Clementi, Mrs. Post and Mrs. Mitchell; 7 pairs of boots and 1 pair of slippers from Mr. Keele; 2 pairs of boots from Mr. Adam Hall; 2 bags of apples from Mr. Mann; 1 bag of flour from Mr. Black; also, $6 collected by Mr. Webber; $2 from Mr. B. White, per Mr. T. Donnelly; $1.50 from Miss Calcutt, being part of the surplus from the "young ladies leap year party."

DORCAS SOCIETY.—The committee of the Dorcas Society acknowledge with thanks the following contributions in aid of their work:—Parcels of clothing from Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Erskine and Mrs. Fairweather; from Messrs. Hall & Innes, goods amounting to $4.50; Rev. V. Clementi, $5; Mr. Wallis, $1 Mr. Haslitt, a barrel of flour. At the first meeting of the Society it was resolved that each lady present should pay a dollar, as a commencement of a fund necessary for the purchase of clothing, &c; in this way $30 have been subscribed, but the committee feel that much more will be required to enable them to relieve the really deserving cases that have come under their notice, and would again urgently ask the assistance of friends, particularly in the country, who could so easily send in potatoes, beef, flour, etc., all of which are so much needed and so gratefully received by the suffering poor.

Several of these have refused work at $1.00 per day, and some of them have been seen buying their whiskey even this week. Many of the above deserve aid; but drunkards and schemers should go to work or want. Mr. C. Edwards was in Town this week hiring men and could not get one man to go with him.

CHURCH IMPROVEMENTS.—Side galleries have been erected in the Methodist Church here to accommodate the increasingly large congregations worshipping there. About 200 additional sittings have been provided by recent improvements. Last Sabbath Methodist services were conducted in the Presbyterian Church in consequence of repairs going on in the Methodist Church. At the evening service the church was crowded, extra seats having to be provided, with an attentive and interested congregation. The Rev'd W. R. Barker occupied the pulpit. A delightful feeling of harmony and brotherly love pervades the churches of this Village.

KILLED BY A TREE.—As some men were chopping for George Singleton, of Lot 24 Con 1 of Dum, on Friday the 28th ult., one tree lodged in another, and Alexander Singleton, and George Davidson, went to chop down the tree in which the other was lodged. The tree cracked a little, and they both left as the tree did not fall then, Alexander Singleton, went back to chop it a little more, when the tree suddenly splintered and broke off some feet up, and shot back. The end of the tree caught Alex Singleton's leg and threw him down, and the lodged tree fell across his body The other man ran to him and lifted up the tree, and got him out; but he died in a few minutes. Deceased was born in Ireland, but for some time previous to his coming to Canada last summer, worked in a ship yard in Scotland. He was 19 years of age. His parents are both dead George Singleton, with whom he was working is his uncle, and Mrs. E. Little, of Dummer, is his aunt, the young man, Davidson, that was chopping at the tree with him, is his cousin, and came from Scotland about the same time he did.—COM.

KEENE.

EXCITING EPISODE.—On last Saturday night, while the Keene Division of Sons of Temperance was in Session, and, just in the midst of the interesting Ceremony of initiation, the Chimney of the Division Rooms caught fire, as may be expected from the state of the night, it caused no small excitement. The wind blew very high at the time, and for a while affairs looked very ominous, some rushed from the building to ascertain the extent of the danger, and others on the streets vigorously raised the cry of fire. By the prompt and vigorous exertions of some who were present the fire was soon got out under subjection. Danger being past, the excitement subsided and the Division proceeded with their business to the close.—COM.

PORT HOPE.

Some time last August a man named Levi Brighton, hired a horse from a Mr Sandford, of Brighton. Shortly afterwards he came up to this section, trailed the horse with Mr. Ellis, tavern-keeper, near Rice lake, and the buggy with Mr. Levi Reversolds, and sold the harness to a man in Milbrook. Mr Ellis got wind a short time ago that there was every probability of the horse having been stolen, and went to Brighton and saw Mr. Sandford. The result was a warrant for the arrest of Brighton, who was accordingly brought before our Police Magistrate, who, upon hearing the evidence, committed him for trial.—Port Hope Times.

Sad Case.

One of the most sad and heartrending cases of death from poverty and exposure occurred in St. Catherines, Ont., on Friday night last. A woman named Murphy entered a house on York Street, occupied by an old and infirm woman, and asked for shelter. The relatives of this aged woman had moved out the day previous, taking all the furniture, including the stove, the old woman refusing to leave till the new place had been settled in proper order. Such accommodation as the place offered was given the woman Murphy, a quantity of straw for a bed, and an old horse-blanket for a covering.—About two o'clock on Friday morning she was delivered of a child, having no help but such as the old, infirm and crippled woman could render. The attention of the Very Rev. Dean Mulligan was called to this sad case a few hours afterwards, and he at once proceeded to extend relief. Visiting the house, he found the woman in the condition above described, the infant without a stitch of clothing on it or other means of warmth than the old blanket afforded. The Rev. gentleman at once sent a stove, provisions and help, but the relief was too late to save the lives of either the woman or her offsprings they both died before succor arrived.—The woman came here about a year ago from Barrie, and was for some time employed as a domestic in the General Hospital. Since then she has erred, and this was the distressing result.

LITTLE GIANT PELLETS.

The huge, drastic, griping, sickening pills, constructed of crude, coarse and bulky ingredients, are fast being superseded by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules—the "Little Giant" Bathartic or Multum in Parvo Physic. Chemical Science enables Dr. Pierce to extract from the Juices of the most valuable roots and herbs their active medicinal principles, which, when worked into little Pellets or Granules, scarcely larger than mustard seed, renders each little Pellet as active and powerful as a large pill, while they are much more palatable and pleasant to collect.

DR. IRA A. THAYER, of Boonesberg, Ohio, writes; "I regard your Pellets as the best remedy for the conditions for which you prescribe them of anything I have ever used, so mild and sure in effect, and leaving the bowels in an easy and healthy condition. It seems to me they must take the place of all other cathartic pills and medicines."

LYON & MACOMBER, druggists, Vermillion, D. T., say, "We think they are going to sell like hot cakes as soon as people get acquainted with them and will spoil the pill trade, as those who have used them like them much better than large pills."

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM

WORMS IN THE LIVER OF CATTLE.

(From Canada Farmer.

Editor of Canada Farmer,—Many farmers residing in this vicinity and for miles around loose more or less cattle every year, myself included, from a disease pronounced "Bloody Marrain." I will relate what has come under my notice since living here for the last three years. Healthy looking cattle, apparently are suddenly attacked and in a few hours die. The first symptoms of the disease are: the animals wander away from the herd, seemingly to get alone, ears drooping, and circulation very much increased. Shortly after the attack the beast begins to pass blood either in urine or otherwise, and from that time they become more frequent until death. The animals are in great pain and agony, with a desire to lie down. Having lost some myself I had the curiosity and wish to see if I could find any cause. Accordingly I opened a beast and found the bladder extended to full size, filled apparently with blood; the gall enlarged to about three times the natural size, and the liver perforated with small holes. On inspection of the holes I found in them what were apparently leeches. I have seen in one that was killed to put it out of misery, these leeches (or maggots they are) alive in the liver, all over the lung, and the liver eaten in full of holes that in places it was almost rotten. Have you heard of the like before? If so what are these things? How do they come there? Is there any remedy? Could cattle in drinking take them into the stomach and they from there get into the liver? I have heard of numbers of people giving the same account as I have here.

Waubuno, Co. of Lambton.

ENQUIRER.

The disease above described appears to be due to the presence within the liver of worms, somewhat resembling those that are found in the liver of sheep, and producing a disease known as "Rot."

The ovum which finally forms the worm, after undergoing various changes and passing through certain stages, are supposed to enter aquatic insects, and these insects are taken into the digestive organs by means of the food or water. After entering the true stomach, the action of the gastric juice destroys the mac, and the larvae passes into the duct coming from the liver and thereby gain access to that organ, where they are rapidly developed.

Worms in the liver are most likely to exist in cattle that are grazing on low lying or woody pastures, or where the ground is somewhat swampy—and are likely to be most prevalent either during or after a wet season.

We are not aware of the nature of the evil, and kinds of grass in the locality referred to, but we have no doubt that the disease is dependent upon some local influence, whatever that may be.

After the acute symptoms are developed as above mentioned, but little can be done in the way of treatment, as the disease appears to be rapid in its course, but possibly close observation would detect some premonitory symptoms not so violent in their character as are exhibited in the later stages.

Something more than treatment must be looked for, and that is prevention; and we have no doubt, as the lands become drained, well cultivated and otherwise improved, the disease will gradually disappear. Until that can be done, or during wet seasons, we would recommend in addition to the the natural food, the moderate use of what are sometimes called artifical food, as Indian corn, linseed cake, &c. When animals are suspected to be attacked, we would recommend the oil of turpentine in one ounce doses, given with two or three ounces of raw linseed oil, every morning and continued for four or five days.

Cattle should also be allowed plenty of salt, and it also might be advisable to apply salt to the pastures, which not only increases the growth of pastures, but might also act as preventive of the disease. In the disease usually known as "Bloody Murrain" or "Red Water," although the liver is frequently implicated, worms have never been noticed.

CHEESE-MAKING IN OTSEGO CO., N.Y.—At a late meeting of the Farmer's Club of the American Institute, the following from J. H. Rawlings, Gilbertsville, N.Y., was read:—Agreeably to your report I will tell you how that cheese was manufactured which you so highly complimented at a recent meeting. For a full-sized cheese, which is fourteen inches in diameter and four and a half to five inches thick, we take ten pails or 120 quarts of milk and set it at a temperature of eighty-four degrees, according to the heat of the season. Then annatto is rubbed in the milk, a piece about the size of a walnut. Next about a teacupful of rennet is put in, or a sufficient quantity, according to its strength, to coagulate in one hour. It is then carefully broken with a breaker made of wire, the meshes about one inch in size, and allowed to stand one hour for the curd to settle. The whey is then dipped off carefully and the cloth put over a box with holes in the bottom, the curd put in and crushed dry. It is then put in the tub again and broken up fine and three handfuls of Ashton salt are mixed thoroughly in. Then a cloth is put over the hoop and about two-thirds of the curd are put in and crushed nearly dry. A clean, dry cloth is put on then, the cheese is put in press for twelve hours, taken out and salted and a clean cloth put on in press again for three days. Every night and morning the cheese is turned and salted. The press weighs about 700 pounds. The cheese is then taken out and put in strong brine for twelve hours, then washed clean and wiped dry and put in the airing room on shelves and turned every day for three months. After that every other day. But no rubbing or greasing is allowed whatever, if it is rightly made and well taken care of. If any milk is left over, it is put into pans, then skimmed, warmed and the cream stirred in again and mixed with new milk enough to make another cheese. There are some very essential points connected with cheese making which must be observed in order to be successful. First, it requires good feed and water and plenty of it. Second, that all utensils used in making cheese should be kept scrupulously clean and must be attended to at the right time. Like many other trades, making cheese must be learned by practical experience more than by theory.

CONFEDERATE PUDDING.—Rub thoroughly into four tea-cupfuls of sifted flour one tea-cupful of suet, shredded and chopped fine, one tea-cupful of raisins, seeded and chopped, the same quantity of currants, washed and dried the day previous, and one tea-spoonful of cinnamon; stir into this one tea-cupful of molasses, and the same quantity of sweet milk. Pour into pudding bag well floured in, flatter still, a pudding mould, and steam for two hours. Eat hot, with sauce. If there is any left, it may be heated well through and will be found just as good as when fresh.

RIPE SEED.—Twenty-five years ago, when the Mushanock was the potatoe, by careful selection and by planting only the blossom ends, we increased its medium fully a week, the yield being quite uniform in size and free from blemishes. For twelve years we made no change of seed and kept the standard good. This was accomplished by setting aside a certain portion of the crop, from which the seed was to be selected. That from which the seed was again to be saved was carefully sorted and the balance planted for the market. Thus we always had seed that could be depended on. The same plan was adopted with seed corn. None but the ripest and fairest ears were saved for seed, and this again was sorted carefully, the selections being used for the seed crop and the rest planted for marketing. So the best of any given variety of grain may be selected by throwing it across a barn floor from side to side. The heaviest and plumpest seeds will fly farthest, and if saved and passed through a sieve that will retain only the largest grains, these may be sown for the seed crop and the rest for marketing. Thus, in a few years, you may have crops of superior excellence, and at comparatively light cost. But in no case must any seed be gathered until it is fully ripe, for as surely as the potatoe ripens so surely will it deteriorate and degenerate the quality and change the vigor of the plant until it finally becomes a prey to every disease, or climatic conditions unfavorable to growth, and it perhaps eventually dies out entirely, to be supplanted by something new.

Take wheat, for instance. If perfectly ripe, the starch and gluten is in the best state for being absorbed by the young plant, giving it vitality and vigor: and the bran, or skin outside, will retain its shape for a considerable time. If the seed be unripe or shrunken, the plants come up weak, and never become as vigorous as they should. There is no doubt but a great deal of trouble from the attacks of the insect depredators arises from this lack of vigor in the growing plant; and this is essentially true as uncut until after the barley is secured, if desirable. This year has established the reputation of the "Mainstay." It is well known to all how disasterously the wheats in this country were rolled and knocked down by the winds and rains of July. Wherever grown, the "Mainstay" stood erect or only slightly tilted, was free from blight, and produced from 8 to 11½ sacks per acre of good sample, while other varieties grown on the same farms were laid and blighted to such an extent that the produce does not come to more than 6 or 7 sacks of thin poor grain.

THE POT ON THE FIRE.—There is one mode of preparing food in general use in many parts of Europe which we should do well more generally to adopt; that is, "gentle simmering." In every, or almost every French household there is the pot au feu. This permanent pot on the fire, after the manner of the old fashioned digester, occupies a quiet little corner of the stove or fire place. It can hardly be said to boil, but it simmers on gently for hours. There it is the receptacle of many a little bone, whether the trimmings of poultry or butchers' meat. It matters not, every stray fragment of wholesome meat finds its way there. A bit of liver is considered an immense improvement, and any vegetables that happen to be about add to its pleasant flavor, whether the tops of cellery, Jerusalem artichokes—which, par excellence, make it delicious—or otherwise carrots, turnips, leeks, &c. But supposing it were to be made altogether of fresh materials—which, indeed, in France is rarely—this would be the proper recipe. Put a gallon of water into a pot, put into this either three or four pounds of shin of beef, or any similar thing. Add to this an onion or two, or some leeks, carrot or other vegetables, three or four teaspoonfuls of salt, one of black pepper, three of cloves. Give it one boil up, skim carefully. Now cover the pot closely, and let it cook gently for four hours at least. About every hour throw a wineglassful of cold water into it, to make it clear. Taste, it may require a little more salt and pepper, according to taste. Pour this soup over toasted crusts of bread. Both soup and bread will be found delicious. The whole secret of this lies in the gentle simmering in covered vessel, whereby the flavor is wholly preserved and nothing is lost. A bullock's head so cooked is excellent.—EX.

MILK AS A MEDICINE.—The American Journal of Medicine, St. Louis, says:—"This article once looked upon with distrust, has now become a valuable agent in the treatment of disease, and is, on all hands, recommended by practioners of medicine as being a safe and reliable article in the list of curables. Given warm, it is declared to be almost a specific in diarrhœa stomach ache, incipient cholera and dysentery. It is also pronounced invaluable in typhoid fever. We believe that nourishes in fever, promotes sleep wards off delirium, soothes the intestines and, in fine, is the sine qua non in the typhoid fever. This gentleman further says: 'In scarlet fever give all the milk the patient will take ever during the period of greatest fever; it keeps up the strength of the patient, acts well upon the stomach, and is in every way a blessed thing in sickness.' The authorities in this case say that the milk should never be boiled, as that unfits it for use."

In "Practical Dairy Husbandry," (by X. A. Willard, A. M., and published at the Rural office,) is an excellent chapter on "The Use of Skimmed Milk as an Exclusive Diet in Disease," which gives, from medical and other authorities, several interesting cases in which persons were cured of various and dangerous diseases by the use of milk. Those of our readers interested should refer to Prof. Willard's work and carefully peruse what is therein said and quoted upon the subject.—Rural New Yorker.

ALMOND SPONGE CAKE.—Pound in a white mortar until very fine one ounce of bitter almonds; take out and put into a bowl, pouring over them fourtable-spoonful of boiling water, and let them simmer three or four minutes. To the yolks of twelve eggs, well beaten, add slowly one pound of sand sugar, and beat light; then after wiping the almonds dry, add them. Beat until very stiff the whites of the eggs and add to the yolks and sugar, alternating with the flour; stir well but very lightly together, as beating destroys the lightness of sponge-cake. Bake in tins with upright sides, and in a moderate oven.

THE largest recorded yield of a single cow that is perfectly reliable and well authenticated, is that of an ordinary hog in the jail at Lewes, England. In eight consecutive years she gave 9,720 gallons, or an average of more than 1,340 gallons a year. She was milked one year, 325 days, and gave 1,230 gallons, which made 450 pounds of butter, or at the rate of a pound of butter from twenty-two pounds of milk.

VINEGAR BITTERS

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS proves VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

None was ever any before so universally [illegible] into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient preparation. The extreme roughness, that is more or less visible and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does cure it does always—that a cure fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of the most remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. A trial is all we ask of invalids in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has any remedy been so widely relied upon the confidence of mankind, as have our several remedies for pulmonary complaints. In the early stages of these, and even during the first years of their development, they are easily cured by a little attention, as it has become better known. Its medicinal character and power to cure the most alarming of the lungs and the throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against consumption. When subject to sudden forms of disease and by young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the like serious affections of the throat and lungs. As a preventive against sudden attacks of croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although called Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the lungs and throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Hoarseness is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of those who have used it, than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bromine, Zinc, nor any other mineral or mineral poison, it is, in whatever it in no wise injurious to the system in the smallest degree. This antidote for the various forms of fever and ague, and the affections caused by them, is certainly the most perfect that medical science has ever been able to produce, and although we have abundant proofs of its having cured cases of the most obstinate character, after all other remedies had failed, we do not deem it necessary to publish them here. Our pride is gratified to know that we have in the cures effected by its use in the most distressing cases, and when other remedies had failed. Unprincipled persons, therefore, who would attempt to counterfeit it, or vend worthless stuff under the same name, will be prosecuted to the utmost extent of the law.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, in cases which other remedies had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all druggists around the world.

Choice Poetry.

THE DRUNKARD'S WIFE.

Within a darken, cheerless room,
A lonely mourner stoops:
Through the long night, 'mid cheerless gloom,
Her weary watch she keeps,
Waiting in grief, and shame, and fear,
Her husband's well known step to hear.

An infant on her bosom lies,
And in the wretched bed
A pining minister, restless, cries
"O mother, give me bread!"
While she—the wretched—breathes a prayer
For strength her mighty grief to bear.

Oh! woman's heart, and woman's love,
Must many trials know;
But language has no words to prove
The ago'ny and woe,
When he, who sends her anxiety bliss,
Sinks in the drunkard's foul abyss.

For him she changed her father's name,
And left her mother's care;
With sweet, confiding fondness, came
His vacant lot to share;
And meekly bowed on life's stern road,
His love would lighten every load.

Those hopes were vain; and yet in woe
Her love is still the same;
No change her gentle heart can know,
Through years of want and shame,
That heart may break, but cannot chill—
The wanderer is welcome still!

He comes at length—to mock the tear
Upon her pallid cheek!
To taunt with language stern, severe,
The suffering and the meek!
Heedless he hears his infant's moan,
Intemperance turns the heart to stone.

Lovers of revel and of strife!
Tempter's to ruin's brink!
Who sing the drunkard's fatal joys,
Who praise the drunkard's drink!
Your envied victims, who can count?
What mind conceive their dread amount?

Oh! widely spread the Temperance plan
That heals a grief like this;
That raises fall'n, degraded man,
And seals domestic bliss;
That bids intemperance vile depart!
And pit'ying binds the broken heart.

DONALD AND HANS.

A CANADIAN TALE.

BY CAPTAIN TOTHERBY.

Old Donald Mcdonald, a Highland Scotsman, and his neighbor, Hans Von Dunner (both wealthy farmers,) lived on opposite sides of a road in Waterloo, Ont., and they were opposite in almost everything Donald's farm was hilly, and he delighted in the hills, and laughed at the Dutchman's meadows. He kept a fine stock of sheep, and a couple of collie dogs to drive them about the farm, while Hans was proud of his sleek cows, and vowed ther were far more profitable than sheep.—Donald lived in a little log house without a bit of paint either inside or out; Hans lived in a great two story'd welling painted a bright red Hans was short and fat; Donald was long and thin. Hans loved a mug of beer and his big pipe. Donald was par'al to snuff and whiskey. Hans wore baggy white breeches, and when it was cold weather an overcoat with a dozen capes on the shoulders, while Donald wore his long plaid, and no fur breeches, had it not been for the cold in winter and the mosquitoes in summer he would have worn none at all. Hans had sons to rear all the year round; Donald could not do without his oatmeal porritch, with an occasional haggis. Hans was a great singer, with a full, mellow voice, and often in the summer evenings he would seat himself on his stoop in front of the house, and sing lustily the songs of "Fader-land." Then Donald would come over with his bagpipes, and placing his open snuff box on the window sill would march back and forth like a conquering hero, making the hills and valleys resound with his shrill music as he played, "The Campbell's are Coming," and a host of other Scotch tunes, till the Dutchman was fairly drowned down and driven into the house with a flagon in each ear. In fact, they carried the spirit of opposition and antagonism so far that they would scarcely speak to each other when they chanced to meet, and as for them little neighborly exchanges of help and the lending of tools so common among farmers, they would have lost their whole season's crop or the best of their stock before they would have asked help one from the other. In one or two things only were they alike: they were both widowers, and they had each an only child, and though the one dented on his strapping new Dansen, and vowed he was the bravest lad he ever picked a mutton bone," and the other dearly loved his fair haired pretty Maria. I verily believe that at the time my story begins they would rather have seen them fall in love, their graves than fall in love with each other. But the young people were far from being unkindly feelings, and were evidently well pleased to meet occasionally, and the softly whispered "gotten nacht" of Maria, and Dansen's fond "grid nicht," accompanied with a sly kiss at parting, proclaimed them to be lovers. And their love might have glided quietly along for an indefinite length of time had not old Highland Katie, who kept house for the McDonald's, happened to be a witness of one of these stolen meetings, and carried the news at once to her master. Great and fearful to behold was old Donald's wrath at the discovery and he vowed that if ever his son spoke to the girl again he would turn him from the door without a penny. And the manner coming to the ear of Hans, he too was very indignant, and scolded Maria at the top of his voice until the poor girl was glad to steal off to her room and have what women folk call "a good cry."

But the stream of true love that had started to run was not to be dammed up or turned into other channels by all the cross words of Donald and Hans, and though they had to be a little clyer they still had their meetings, and at length they planned to have a runaway match.

Everything was quietly arranged, and one fine winter morning, while the old men were still comfortably snoring in bed, Dansen hitched his father's horse to a cutter, and skiing sweet maria in by his side, set off for a minister's house some ten miles distant.

Oh, what an uproar there was on each side of the road when their flight was discovered Hans came out to his gate and shook his fist at the opposite house and went through a string of Dutch expletives in his highest key, and as though they were not high enough, he hopped up and down in the snow as he jerked them out till his heels slipped from under him till he measured his length in a snowdrift. Just in time to escape a blow from Donald's walking stick that came whizzing over him! The Scotsman was not at a loss for hard words both Dutch and English, to hurl at his neighbor; they kept up a steady fire until both were tired of the game, and then they made preparations to follow the fugitives. Donald mounted his mare and Hans got into a sleigh and started almost simultaneously from their gates in pursuit Donald was a Scotsman and bound to keep on, while Hans seemed determined either to pass him or run over him. Donald's blue bonnet was pressed firmly on his brow, his switch played steadily on the mare's flank, and his plaid flattened out behind, while Hans puffed out great clouds of smoke from his pipe, and flourishing a long whip shouted to his team.

On they went, up hill and down, over bridges and through toll gates without pausing even on their rocking horses until in the town of some two miles from Waterloo village where two roads met, Donald drew up and was overtaken by Hans. Words were exchanged, and the two men were conversing on the disappointment of their hopes, when the parson of the town appeared at the door of his house, and Donald and Hans, forgetting their anger, hurried up to him, and in the presence of the parson's house, there pulling and scratching a little in favor of the gentleman in the rear. Just as the ceremony was finished in came breathless Dansen and Maria, who had followed in their sleigh. The ceremony went they hurried into being hearty congratulations, and after their guests had partaken of some refreshments, they started on their return home, Donald and Hans riding in the same sleigh, and Dansen driving the mare behind. When they got into their own neighborhood the people could scarcely believe their own eyes when they saw the two together, but greater still was their surprise when they heard of the marriage, and got invitations to come over to a grand supper to be given at Von Dunner the following night — Donald and Hans were sitting in the kitchen eating a hearty meal after their ride, and thus fortifying themselves for the storm they expected to burst over their heads. But had a real thunderbolt come smashing through the room, they could scarcely have been more thunderstruck than they were when Hans and Donald came bouncing in like a couple of boys, and kissed the blushing bride, and shook the hand of the bridegroom till his arms ached That night as they sat around the Dutchmans great open fire, it was agreed that they should all live together in the big house, and Dansen should work both the farms. On the following night there was a great supper and great rejoicing. A fat turkey graced the end of the festive board, and a huge haggis the other, while the intervening space was filled with dishes of sourkrout, sausages, sweet beef, mince pies, and all the other dishes and dainties that Maria, with the aid of old Katie could devise After supper they had a jolly good drinking, and with the bride, and cutting such capers as only a Highland man can go through; and when he finished off with the Highland Fling, there went up such a shout of glee as might have been heard a mile off After the party things settled down into a quiet routine. Hans smoked his big pipe, and passed it to Donald. Donald took his turn at it, and passed the box to Hans; and they lived quietly together, without a word of dispute, save that when young Donald Van Duser McDonald made his appearance, Donald would insist that he was a Scotsman to the back bone, and Hans was equally positive that he would "shoost pe a Van Dusper vrom top to toe."—But these little differences never came to a serious quarrel, and they still live in peace and plenty, and always celebrate the anniversary of that happy day that made them such great friends, and witnessed the happy union of Scotch and Du ch.

The following romantic story recently appeared in the National Baptist:

About twenty-five years ago a company of young men started out from Damascus, headed for Jerusalem. They had not gone far before a band of armed horsemen surrounded them and ordered a halt The leader said the caravan might move on, unless any unburned, if they would deliver up one of their number, a young man named Randall, who should not suffer if he would come along with them peaceably. The terms, though hard, were accepted to, and the lone took his companions and of him was to see him mourned on a fine horse attended by the gay trappers of the Bed

PARLIAMENTARY

The labors of the Session are about coming to a close. The House will adjourn to day, if it has not adjourned already. The position of parties appears to be much the same as when the House met, except that the Opposition is feebler and less united. The accession of Mr. McDougall to the Opposition has proved a source of weakness instead of strength. We need not again tell our readers that Mr. Scott has not succeeded in ousting Mr. Mowat, as was predicted. Indeed we may safely say that Mr. Scott returns from his Parliamentary labors this time a much weaker man than when he appeared before the electors. He has distinguished himself in no extraordinary manner. He is as harmless in the House as is his Eastern colleague, who only twice during the Session uttered a word, and this word was in defence of principles that every Orangeman who voted for him must condemn, if honest. Neither of our members respected their promises to the electors anent the "Orange Bill" Both of them promised it their support. They received Orange votes on the strength of those promises. But these were made to be broken, and their supporters are now undeceived. All their clap trap about the Orange Bill was just so much chaff to blind a certain class of electors, whose gullibility required some 'blind.' If the Orange votes of this County are satisfied with the course of the men they elected, we have no great cause to complain, for we held nothing in common with the Candidates, and were satisfied that their Orange principals were puny indeed. We may now assert with confidence that Mr. Carnegie is a false prophet. Not one of his predictions have come to pass, and having proved this, no one can reasonably put confidence in his predictions for the future.

The following votes afford tests of the strength of parties on the great questions of the session just concluding:

On a motion of Mr. McDougall to limit Shop License to shops where liquor only are to be sold the vote stood 18 to 52, or a majority of 34.

On amendment by Mr. Meredith to delay the time for the law to come into operation to March 1877, was lost.

A motion of Mr. Scott to add towns and incorporated villages to the word cities in sub-section of section 2 was lost, 29 to 41, or 12 of a majority out of a house of 70.

A motion of Mr. Lawder to make Mayors and Wardens one of the Commissioners was lost by 31 to 49, or 18 of a majority in a house of 80.

Mr. Creighton moved to refer the Bill back with instructions to abolish saloon licenses.

Mr. Crooks stated that the Bill did not contemplate the perpetuation of saloons, and that if the license commissioners honestly discharged their duties, no den of iniquity called a saloon could exist.

The amendment was put and lost by a vote of 29 to 53.

It will thus be seen that the majority for Government varies 20 from to 1 according to the importance of the question

The Government Railway aid Bill however affords an instance of uncommon unanimity, and proves how fairly Mr. Mowat must have made his Railway Aid Scheme.

Mr. Grange moved a six months hoist, which was lost by 2 to 78, or by a majority of 76.

And notwithstanding amendment after amendment was proposed to embarrass the Government their majorities were from 16 to 38 each time; so that Mr Mowat finds himself stronger at the close of the session than at the commencement thereof.

Neither Mr. Scott, Mr. O'Sullivan, or Mr. Carnegie need hope to be sent for during the next ten years, and two or three more sessions will show the utter failure of all the hopes of the Conservatives of East and West Peterboro'.

LICENSE BILL.

There is no little uneasiness just now in the minds of saloon and small hotel keepers over the new License Bill.—They think the hope of their gain is gone, and hence their tears. The License Law in the hands of the municipal authorities has been largely a dead letter. Several unlicensed houses have been plying the trade in our midst, and no one to molest them. Of course we will be told why not inform on those parties. In reply, it may be said, put it into the hands of men whose interests will not require them to look to those law violators for influence at elections and then there will not be interference with officials.

The Review raises the cry of the loss to the municipalities through the new Bill. If it is only a matter of dollars and cents, there is a remedy, viz: raise the rate of license. The Council can raise the rate to $200 a year, and now that the best houses will be protected in so far as law is concerned, the increase will be willingly borne. Our convictions are against granting licenses, but the law is against us, and we therefore advocate carrying out the law—and as the evil must be borne with, for some time longer, let it pay, to suit the ideas of the Review. to the tune of $3,000 for its protection, and then raise the price to consumers.

The money consideration, however, is a small one compared with the suffering, poverty, shame and misery it costs annually.

On enquiry we find that with few exceptions all those requiring aid and labour have been reduced to this state through the use of strong drink, or largely so. If this be so, and there is no denying it, then do away with the cause and the result can be readily anticipated.

It may be said that this law will not do away with the whole of the evil. Admitted: but it is an instalment of the measure, prohibition will follow. Let us accept even half measures, if we can obtain no better.

In Peterboro, this license year, we have one grog shop to every 100 of the population, taking the census of 1871, and assuming 5 persons in a family, one grog shop for every 20 to 25 families. The result we all know—and knowing it, the wonder is that the churches, especially the leaders in churches, do not unite with the temperance people to get the most that can be secured under the new law. A greater wonder is that the leaders of churches are found raising the question of money when men's comfort here, and eternal happiness here after are concerned. This is unaccountable, except on the plea that such men believe in the annihilation idea, and therefore accept the theory, "Dum vivimus vivamus," and thus enjoy themselves, satisfying their appetite for money and strong drink.

In 1874, the taverns in the following places were in the following proportion:

Welland—one to every 35 adult males.
Niagara Town—one to every 23 adult males.
Bothwell—one to every 17 adult males.
Waterloo—one to every 235 of population.
Brant—one to every 360 of population
Hamilton—one to every 102 of population.
Clinton—one to every 59 of population.
Peterboro—one to every 50 males.

Would it not be interesting to have a table showing how many in the churches do not drink, not forgetting office bearers? Let the people petition the Council to raise the license to the limit of the law, and thus satisfy the cravings of carpers about money and direct taxation.

If the liquor traffic is not an evil why interfere with it? If it is not an evil why tax the tavern keeper $100 a year while other citizens are not taxed in this way? But if it is an evil why take money to condone it or permit it to exist? If money is the only consideration raise the license.

THE QUESTION—MONEY.

In the last issue of our southern confrere contains the following morceau which in its way deserves a passing notice. Here it is:

NOT DIRECT TAXATION!—When the opponents of the Mowat Government, in recent election campaigns, pointed out that we were practically, fast drifting towards "direct taxation" in this Province, the idea was pooh-poohed by the "party of purity" as absurd—but what do we see? A Bill introduced by the Mowat Government which will, at least, reduce between two and three thousand dollars per annum the revenue of the Town of Peterborough, for the benefit of the Provincial Treasury. When as a consequence, the Council is compelled to levy just this much more on the ratepayers, of course it wont be direct taxation... Review.

Now if this morsel means anything, it means this: get money, and no matter how, but get it.

The Bill referred to is the License Bill. The evil sought to remedy or ameliorate is the liquor traffic. Every sane man in the Dominion of Canada nay in the broad world, who has seen the effect of the traffic, who has witnessed the misery it has produced and is producing, and who is not lost to every feeling of humanity, morality and religion wishes to see this evil removed or abated. The money question with the philanthropic and patriot is a small one if bounds can be set to this traffic—which all admit to be destroying thousands of our fellow men, our sons, and in not a few instances even our daughters become its victims.

The appeal of the Review to the pockets of the ratepayers is a strong evidence that he is willing to make political capital out of this question, if possible. His social and religious position should temper his indiscretion on this great moral question. It is true this amendment does not go as far as all friends of morality and humanity could wish, but in as much as it is believed to be a step towards lessening the evil, wise men accept it and are glad that the matter is to be taken out of the hands of the Municipal Councils entirely. It is well known what a lever it was and is in elections, both parliamentary and municipal. Two or three saloons could manipulate a few whisky and beer "bloats" and these are supposed to turn the scale in favor of those who use them, one did it in this Riding. If our confrere were desirous of securing pure municipal and parliamentary elections he would hail with pleasure the movement in that direction. The appeal to the mammon of unrighteousness does not speak much for the moral principles that underly that appeal. The liquor traffic is a moral not a political question and we sincerely hope that the people will view it in that light and use their influence to have the law respected so as to educate the opponents of this reform to accept the higher and more complete our, prohibition, at an early day.

RELIGION AND POLITICS

In to-day's issue will be found a correspondence between Archbishop Lynch and the Hon. Mr. McKenzie in reference to the interference of the Clergy in political matters. This may be an opportune time for his Grace to make known his policy in regard to his Clergy during election contests. In Lower Canada there is, just now, the most active interference on the part of French Clergymen, and perhaps the Archbishop is unwilling that their actions should be taken as a criterion by which the Catholic Clergy in Ontario are to be judged by citizens of other faith. The standard of action, however, and the practice of all concerned differ very much, and not unfrequently is it found that there is active interference in politics by those whom men expect to be neutral. The Archbishop says: "It would be very imprudent in a priest whose congregation is composed of Liberals and Conservatives to become a warm partisan of either political party." It may be "imprudent" but nevertheless they do become "warm partisans of a political party" sometimes, perhaps on one side and sometimes on the other side, and, to such an extent that neither party can justly claim that the other has particularly sinned in this respect, as both are ready to use any influence that will ensure success for the time. What the Archbishop says is "strictly forbidden" is openly practiced, at least, now and then.

Mr. McKenzie was no doubt pleased to receive this letter, and was not slow to acknowledge it, but in his haste, he makes a trifling mistake. He says: "It is fortunate that the form of the Canadian Constitution renders it difficult if not impossible to bring questions of religion into our political arena." Notwithstanding, the "difficulties and impossibilities" have been easily overcome and religious predelictions and topics have been freely discussed as often as our elections came round, and however the Archbishop and Mr. McKenzie may ignore the facts, they will again be overcome, and matters religious and political will commingle so long as the State acknowledges denominationalism in any way. In the scuffle for preferment, emoluments and grants, there will arise questions of creed and nationality, and no more certain way to ensure the continuance of religious political feuds can be, than that now in vogue in the Province of Quebec.

THE MINISTRY & OPPOSITION AGREED.

The House of Assembly at Toronto held a Session with closed doors on Friday last. For once in the history of Parties there was an OPPOSITION. The subject of Debate was increase to the sessional allowance of Members. On the question of increase there were no two opinions. Mr. Cameron had always advocated the necessity of increasing Ministerial and Members remuneration. Mr Hodgins was pleased to be able to agree with the manly utterances of the leader of the Opposition. Mr. McDougall was satisfied, no matter what newspaper writers said, that members of Parliament should be properly paid for their time and labor. Mr. Mowat knew it was a delicate subject to introduce, but he had been spoken to outside the House about this matter, and now that public opinion is prepared for it he would not fail to do his duty. And Mr. Scott, not the least afraid that the country was approaching direct taxation, was fully satisfied that the labors of an M.P.P. were onerous and the time precious, and was ready to agree with the whole house that this was a fitting time to look the money question fair in the face. What a happy family! The important motion for concurrence in this item was carried without a division. What a pity that Mr. Mowat had not similar motions for concurrence every day Then indeed the lion would lie down with the lamb, and all the heart burnings on account of political wrong doing would be forgotten, and nothing would exist to mar the harmony and amity of the combatants. Never but once hitherto has a public question met with such general favor. Our dear old friends, who in 1867 told us there were no parties are delighted over this great change in political feeling. No parties any more! No parties when increase of sessional allowance is discussed. But seriously, will the Country look on these things in the same happy way? It may be that the Ministers were not sufficiently paid for their time and labor, and we are not disposed to believe that they are to receive too much under the new arrangement, yet many Will say that they should have waited till the financial stringency had passed away and until the dawn of better times had ushered in. Mr. Scott is great on figures. will he be able to show how, he, with direct taxation staring him in the face could bring himself to vote away the people's money after this extravagant fashion? But the whole house concurred.

WAKE UP!

It has long been felt that the affairs of our town were ill managed. That the men who for the time being held the position of Councillors were not sufficiently careful in the management of the important trust committed to them; but the recent doings of these gentlemen disclosed a degree of reckless extravagance that surpassed all conceptions of their ability in that line. The times being a little dull a hue and cry has been raised that the town must look after the poor—that labor must be supplied for all who desire to work for the corporation, whether there was need of their services or not; and that for all who did not wish to work provisions and cordswood must be supplied.

Committees were formed to dispense charities and flour, beef, potatoes, tea, &c., have with lavish hand been given away—in very many instances to persons who were not subjects of charity so as to be entitled to be fed at the expense of the public. The list of names published last week in the Examiner is startling—some of the recipients being known as strong healthy men, who would find no difficulty in getting work if they looked for it.

The charity orders generally read:

"Give the bearer 25lbs. flour, 1 bushel "potatoes, 2lbs. beef, and half a pound "of tea."

In some cases this order has been twice filled for the same person in a week.

Councillor Rutherford, with a view to the future, no doubt, and without authority from the Council, started Public Works, He got 25lbs. of powder, picks, shovels, horses and carts, men at 75cts, per diem, and he commenced at the frozen top of the Smithtown Hill. Whether he intended to remove the hill is not known; but it is known that his army of industrious workers made a hole where a hole is not wanted, at a cost of $68.37, and that finding it cost exactly $5 a yard to remove frozen earth, and shamed by the remonstrances of the men whose money he was wasting he drew them off.—They then went to work to fill up Spalding's Bay. $52.62 were spent here, and $22.75 in excavating sand and big stones from Mr. Lech's cellar to put on Aylmer Street.

Where is this wild and reckless expenditure of people's money to stop?

Many of the men employed have refused work in the country. Some left the shanties to get corporation work, while some who were employed own houses and lands and have money in the banks.

The winter is mild, food is cheap, fuel is not needed as much as usual, and it is not dear. Everything is favourable for the poor. Work was plentiful all summer and wages were high. There is nothing to call for this system of robbery that is being practised on the honest, self-denying careful men of the town, on behalf in many cases of worthless, dissipated, ill principled people. Let the real poor of the town be looked after as they always have been, but let not any class of men be permitted to take the money intrusted to them to squander on men who if compelled to manage for themselves would be more self-reliant, and too proud to stoop, to take what they do not give value for.

If the Council think they are showing good management in taking the money of the hard working, self-denying, industrious and honest men of the town to throw it away in digging frozen earth at $5 a yard, or in other worthless and uncalled for expenditure, we can tell them that the men whose money they spend think otherwise; and that they consider such conduct an outrage, and a serious breach of their trust. We hope we will not again be called upon to reprove such disgraceful extravagance as has this week been the complaint of the whole town.

Remember, gentlemen, that you are expected to act as if you were expending your own money, and that pandering for votes of one class of people may next January cost you the votes of that other class whose good opinion is worth keeping, and who after all are the mainstay of the town.

THE HURON AND ONTARIO RAILWAY

It will have been observed that the Government of Ontario in their Railway Policy made no mention of this line.—This, however says nothing, as it is evident that the aid recently granted to railways is merely a partial and temporary measure. The fact that the Government have been so thoroughly supported in their grants to railways, many of which are small local lines, shows clearly that when the people along the line of the Huron and Ontario Road shall have voted that liberal aid which has been given by the municipalities to the lines aided by the Government, they may then fairly expect liberal support from the Government to this line.

The Government very naturally say that if the people interested most directly will not assume a direct tax for the road, they cannot expect the people of the province at large to assume that taxation In short the expression of public opinion which the Government feel bound to notice is testified by the assistance they vote to the railway for which they ask Government aid. The action of our Town and County is the proper and true way to secure effective measures to ensure the road, and the sooner the several municipalities along the line wake up to this fact the sooner they will place themselves in a position to obtain what they all so ardently desire. Let it be forever borne in mind that the time is gone by when private stock will build railways in Canada. Every railway benefits in the greatest degree the immediate locality along its line. The locality then should pay the most for it.

Every railway benefits the country at large—the country at large should then aid in their construction. Every dollar of Canadian money sunk in a railway brings into the country two dollars of foreign capital, and the entire capital is to a large extent spent along the line of the road. We see in the country between Toronto and Ottawa exactly the same need of developement, the same trade necessities and the same prospective advance —that we have. If then we have done wisely in giving our $300,000 to secure the construction of this much wanted railway, may we not confidently ask our neighbors along the line to take this scheme up and urge it so persistently that what with our financial aid, and urgency of public opinion we may at last secure it.

The Board of Trade of Toronto have spoken out as to the necessity of the Government aiding it. We have no doubt they will. No Government would ignore the unanimous opinion of the entire country as to this road, but we will never expect the Government to deal liberally with us touching it until we have first been liberal ourselves.

We look to Perth to do their share in this work so fraught with prosperity to them, and we wait until their vote on the 21st of this month to know if our friends in the East are awake to the importance of decided and bold efforts on behalf of the greatest railway undertaking this province has yet contemplated except the Grand Trunk

The Debate on Supplies.

Below will be found the debate in the House on concurrence for certain increase in the sessional allowance for members.

Our readers will be delighted with the amity and unity that prevailed throughout the debate. The Opposition and Government being in perfect accord on this great question. Neither Mail nor Globe gives figures. The good time is here.

CONCURRENCE OF SUPPLY.

Mr. Crooks moved that the report of the Committee of supply be concurred in.

On the items with reference to the increased salaries to Ministers, and of the indemnity to members.

Mr. Cameron said in consequence of certain statements in the press, he considered it his duty to state that he himself had suggested the increase of Ministers' salaries. He believed that the members of the Government were not sufficiently paid, as he had said when the matter was discussed with closed doors—and he considered it unfortunate that it was discussed with closed doors, as the views of hon gentlemen should be made known, and as the country should know they did not disapprove of the course of the hon. gentlemen opposite. (Hear hear.) With reference to the indemnity of members, $800 was in his judgment not more than adequate to compensate them for the labour and attendance, and in many cases it was too little. At the same time he was desirous of not granting any sum that would be an inducement for any class of the community to seek admission for what remuneration they might get. In every other respect he did not consider $800 too much. Therefore, he wished to assume any responsibility that attached to the Government with reference to the matter. He did not know whether hon. gentlemen opposite desired him to say anything further. He spoke only individually and not for the Opposition—the rest could speak for them elves. (Cheers.)

Mr. Meredith concurred in the above observation.

Mr. Hodgins was pleased to find that the increase was approved of by both sides. It was only right that gentlemen who were talented enough to act as Ministers of the crown should not be called upon to supplement their salaries by their private means. He approved of the increased indemnity to members.

Mr. Scott said he had not said anything when the matter came up for discussion as he did not approve of the doors being closed, and so he concurred in the proposition. He did not see why hon. gentlemen in this House should not receive the same indemnity as hon. members in the House of Commons of Canada. They were away from their homes as long and the duties they performed were as important to the Province of Ontario as least.

Mr. Carrie approved of the increase He hoped the Government would next session bring in a bill to fix the salaries, and not leave the matter as one of an annual grant.

Mr. Creighton was in favour of the advance.

Mr. Clark, (Norfolk) thought the amount proposed was not more than adequate for the position of Ministers, who should have salaries equal to judges, as their duties were just as important.

Mr. Scoller remarked that he did not know that the millenium would ever arise in the House, but they at last all seemed to have hit upon something that was popular. (Laughter.)

Mr. Macdougall, (Simcoe) expressed indifference as to the remarks of morning newspapers on the matter. He had no more respect for the opinion of a gentleman who sat in his room and wrote for a newspaper, than he had for gentlemen who sat in the House and expressed his opinion publicly. (Hear, hear.) For his part if his constituents did not consider that his services were worth $800, they might get somebody else. He favoured the increase

Mr. Lauder concurred in the observations of his colleagues.

Mr. Bethune was glad to hear the observations of the hon. member for South Simcoe. Public men should be well paid. The only thing he regretted was that the members of the Government had not even made their salaries more respectable. He did not think the public would complain if the sessional allowance for members was made equal to that of members of the Dominion Parliament.

After several other members had spoken in favor of the resolution,

Mr. Mowat said that the increase of salaries of members of the Executive Government was a matter of very great delicacy in this respect, that such increase had to be proposed by themselves. It had therefore always been considered a right and proper thing that no such increase should take place until the general sentiment of all classes, both inside and outside of the House was clearly and plainly in favour of it; and there had been indications for some time that there was that general sentiment prevailing. Of course hon. members who had been in public life for any length of time knew that the salaries of members of the Administration did not indemnify them against their expenses. The Government had no intention, however, of making any increase until it was proposed to them by others, and it was brought up in the House by some one else—it happened to be with closed doors, but the general opinion in favour of it then was as strong as it is now. With regard to the indemnity to members it was to be recollected that the expenses which they had to bear were not those merely which they were called upon to pay while attending the Legislature. They all knew that they had many expenses while here, which other persons had to incur who were here for a like time. They had also to bear expenses during the recess, in consequence of their occupying the position as members of the Legislature. It was further to be remembered that the amount the government had proposed as the indemnity of hon. members was less than the allowance to members at Ottawa where the expenses were not greater, he apprehended than in Toronto. It was the same amount which was paid at Quebec, a much poorer province than this, where members were subject to much less expense than members of this were He must not refrain from stating, notwithstanding his relation to the matter, that the salary he had received since he became Attorney-General had not been equal to one-half of the expenditure he had unavoidably to incur. Although he was moderate in his expenditure, it had exceeded his indemnity as a member of the Government, and his professional income altogether, and he had to draw some on capital every year. His colleagues had not saved anything out of their salaries either. If they considered the amount paid to judges, and to managers and heads of various institutions, they would see that the amounts received by members of the Government were very small in comparison.

Mr. Crooks said that in addition to what the Attorney-General had stated he would remark that each and every member of the Government had been prepared to serve the country in the future as they had done in the past, whatever was the amount of salary they received.

The resolution then passed, as did all the remainder, and on motion of Mr. Crooks they were referred to the committee on Ways and Means.

The House then went into committee of Ways and Means The resolutions were all adopted, and the committee rose and reported.

Mr. Crooks then introduced the Supply Bill, founded on the resolutions, which was read a first time.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE will be prorogued to-day.

THE Post Office, together with a bookstore, in Chatham, was consumed by fire last week.

NEW YORK has had a $4,500,000 fire. Three firemen lost their lives, and very valuable property has been destroyed.

DO YOU WANT TO HEAR OF RUFFIANISM, then read Hamilton items. It is the "cussedest" place in Canada, judging from the accounts that daily reach.

"FOR 'TIS THEIR NATURE TOO."—Goldwin Smith and Dr. Ryerson are again in the newspapers. Both claim to be actuated by the most kindly feelings towards each other. Yet each one fails to study the sensibilities of the other. They accuse each other of naughty dispositions. If Dr. Ryerson would consider his position he would withdraw from controversy, and live the remainder of his days at peace with all men. The example of such men is not such that could be wisely followed. The Dr., Goldwin Smith, and Dr. Wilson should remember the stanza Such angry passions rise."

Our California Letter.

ANAHEIM, LOS ANGELOS, Jan. 22nd, 1876

To the Editor of the Examiner,

SIR,—In my last letter promised to write you again soon and tell you about the crops of that year Well, as I told you before, the frost destroyed all kinds of grain that was in a forward state, and the result was crops of no kind were up to an average; as for myself, on the same ground I had 300 sacks of barley the year before, last year I had only 14 sacks thrashed for seed, the remainder was not worth thrashing, and it only makes poor hay. The little I did thrash I took the primitive plan, tramped it out with the horses; a threshing machine would be out of the question. The corn crop was good all over the country, more especially where the land was irrigated; ours done very well indeed. We obtained in Sanfrancisco $1 33 per 100lbs. The carriage this year is less than formerly—five and one-half dollars the ton. I believe it is less than that at present; this is no doubt caused by competition on the carrying trade. Before the railroad was built we were depending on shipment from Anaheim landing, and vessels not being able to come in ashore soows were used to carry freight out to the vessels, thereby causing heavy expense; the same had to be done at the railroad seaport, Wilmington. Yet competition has much reduced the charge from what it used to be. Another independent R. Road has been built from Los Angelos City to the ocean, and at the point selected the rail and ship come alongside each other. This has not much effect here at present, but it is anticipated to construct a branch of the road to this place. Quite a town has already sprung up at the sea port named Santa Monica. The directors of the road are prospecting the country between this and Salt Lake with the intention of tapping the Union Pacific at that point, and thereby sharing in the overland trade. The Southern Pacific has built beyond San Bernardino last year, and point for Arizona with a view of meeting the Texas Pacific; they have also extended south from this point, and pointing to San Deigo are at work on the line. There has been considerable shipbuilding on the Mexico line south of San Deigo by railroads. Some fifty troops passed here on their route for that point lately. From all I can learn this province of Mexico, (Lower California) is no far from the seat of Government, and laws are not easily enforced, and it appears to be only a question of time when annexation will take place The Gulf of California cuts this province off from Mexico proper, and it would be easier managing the indians who chiefly live there from this State than now, and do away with a great amount of thieving and rascality. But for the future time will decide.

Our Legislature is now in session and the adventurers amongst us are agam on the wing for a division of this county. The assessment roll last year of the county footed up $14,000,000; our rates were nearly two cents on the dollar. The salaries of all the officials are on the basis of 49, and it is claimed that extravagance prevails and that Los Angelos city rules the county, so that no fair play can be had for this east of the county without division.

Land during the last year has increased much in value, people are now paying according to the situation from forty to eighty dollars per acre for unimproved lands, and I have heard of sales even beyond that figure.

Our town has improved much during the past year, a good deal of building has been carried on notwithstanding the scarcity of money, the result of short crops, of chiefly all the staples, and from overtrading in a great measure.

I notice one of our banks in Los Angelos has closed its doors last week, so that we are not certain whether we are out of the vacuum caused by the suspension of the bank of California and the Virginia fire.

The weather here has been lovely. We had a slight frost on New years day which however, did no damage—this was the first of the season. Our rain fall is as yet short, only six inches, although in other parts, even in Los Angelos, there has fallen twelve inches All nature is smiling and the birds are singing.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN HUNTER.

A Horrible Murder.

THE VICTIM'S BODY CUT IN PIECES AND THE HEAD FOUND ON THE STREET.

Recently a resident of Green Point, L. I., New York, found the head of a man which had been severed from the body, lying between a pile of lumber and fence. He reported the matter to the police, and the head, which appeared as though life had not been extinct more than twenty-four hours, was subsequently indentified as that of a man named W. W. Simmons, of Derby, Ct., who has been missing since Thursday night. Simmons was a sober industrious man, and worked in a wagon manufactory in Williamsburg.

Detective were working busily in the case. Among those with whom the murdered man was most intimate, and to whom the officers looked for most authentic information, was Victor Kretz, who was known also by the name of Andrias Fuchs. He was a helper in the same shop as Simmons, and worked by his side, and was also believed to be an intimate friend of the deceased. Among others interviewed about the murder were the watchmen on the docks. One was found who said he saw a man answering the description of Kertz down near the dock on Saturday morning, and was quite positive about his indentity.—Detectives then visited Kretz's house and found a trunk locked and nailed together so tightly that it was opened with great difficulty. In this way they found the arms and legs of the murdered victim, and in the boiler they found the trunk of the body skinned and cut up. The entrails had been removed, and quicklime put inside so as to cause speedy decomposition. There had been a pool of blood on the floor, but efforts had been made to obliterate it by scraping until the boards were almost white. Upon the dress of Mrs. Kretz, which had just been washed were stains of blood She said she scraped the floor at the request of her husband; that Simmons called at the house on Thursday night and they all had drink. Together. Simmons' drinks being made stronger than those of the others and that when he was stupified with liquor Kretz took a hatchet and chopped his head off, the act being witnessed by his little step-daughter. Mrs Kretz said that she herself was then up stairs. When Kretz heard that the body was discovered he admitted his guilt, and said he had done it because he had found the victim in criminal intercourse with his wife, but this Mrs. Kretz denies. The murder was no doubt committed for robbery, as Simmons was always known to have money on his person. Prisoner was also found in possession of Simmons' watch, and the little girl says her father took three dollars and some cents from the pocket of the murdered man. Mr. Kretz was taken to the station house and confined in a separate cell The prisoner, who says his real name is Kretz, is an Alsatian by birth, and speaks both French and German.

Clerical Interference at Elections

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN ARCHBISHOP LYNCH AND PREMIER MACKENZIE.

Archbishopric of Toronto
Toronto, Jan. 20 1876.

Hon. A. Mackenzie, Premier of the Dominion of Canada.—

HON. AND DEAR SIR,—I think this an opportune time to inform you and your Government that priests in our archdiocese are strictly forbidden to make the altar or pulpit of their churches the tribune of political harangues for or against any party candidate for election, or to threaten any spiritual disability for voting with either party.

Priests may, of course instruct their people on the conscientious obligation of voting for the candidate whom they judge will best promote the interests of the country; of taking no bribes; and of conducting themselves at the elections in a loyal and peaceful manner; but they are not to say to the people from the altar that they are to vote for this candidate, and reject the other. It would be very improper in a priest whose congregation is composed of Liberals and Conservatives to become a warm partizan of either political party. It would neutralise his influence for good in too many instances; and a priest requires all he professes to forward the interests of his whole congregation.

It is true that a priest in his ordination does not renounce his rights of citizenship, nor does he receive authority to impose on his congregation his own particular views of politics. The Catholic Church asks no special favor from any party. Her existence is independent of both.—She asks only that her people be put under no unjust restraint or ban. It is true that the old legislation of England made the Catholic religion a bar to political and almost social existence, and though wiser councils now prevail in Courts and Parliament, yet some of the Protestant populace, and an occasional statesman in his individual capacity, so long educated in the traditions of the past, retain a deep rooted prejudice and animosity, not easily conquered, that the Catholic religion should not be a bar to preferment, and that the Catholic Church is inimical to free institutions and favorable to state rights. This is still the reproduction of the old Paganism "The Christians to the beasts" or the old Jewish accusation. "We have found men perverting our nation and forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar." The Catholic Church asks only liberty to do good and to be unmolested in unjust laws in the exercise of her divine rights. I might here remark that when, in a free country, religious and sacred rights are brought into the arena of political than the Catholics have to follow them to the polls and contend there for their right so in the case of education.—We believe that parents have a perfect right to educate their children as they please. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he becomes old he will not depart from it." Hence when the Catholic of Lower Canada conceded the rights of separate education to education to the Protestant minority of Lower Canada the Catholic minority of Upper Canada claimed the same right, but had to contend for this right at elections, and these religious questions are dragged out of their sanctum The Catholic does not permit his religion to hinder the progress of the country, or the peaceful exercise of a different religion to his neighbours When his religious principles are safe, the Catholic, under the impression that party Government is a less evil, gives his support to that which he thinks will perform its duties for the greater good of the country and the happiness of the people

I am, Hon Sir,
Your very obedient servant,
(Signed,) JOHN JOSEPH LYNCH,
Archbishop of Toronto.

OTTAWA, Jan, 26, 1876.

MY LORD.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of Your Grace letter of the 20th inst. I thank you for the information you convey to the Government that priests in your archdiocese are strictly forbidden to make the altar or pulpit of their churches the tribune of political harangues for or against any party, or candidate for election, or to threaten any spiritual disability for voting with either party; and for the statement in your general views as to the rights and duties of priests and people in such matters

I believe that the country at large will receive with great satisfaction this exposition of your views.

It is a fortunate circumstances that the form of the Canadian constitution renders it difficult, if not impossible to bring questions of religion into our political arena, where the subjects proper for debate are purely secular, and where, consequently, men of opposite religious views find no difficulty whatever in uniting in the conduct of public affairs.

The general principles of the party of which I am the leader are well known and throughly settled. They include the independence of Church and State the amplest recognition of civil as well as religious liberty and the accordance of impartial justice and equal rights to every individual, irrespective of his religious creed or his political faith.

These are the principles on which the present Government has conducted and intends to conduct public affairs; and I believe they are such as should enlist the sympathies and attract the support of all right thinking men.

With the renewed expression of my thanks for your communication,

I am, my Lord,
Your obed't servant,
A MACKENZIE.

His Grace, the Archbishop of Toronto.

THE SUCCESSFUL PHYSICIAN

There is probably no man to whom the community owes so much as to the honest, fair-spoken physician, who does his actual duty both to himself and to his patients. Really skillful physicians are not so numerous that their virtues need no mention, and hence the advertisement of Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, may well claim the reader's attention. Dr. Pierce is a type of a class of men who obtain success by careful and well-directed effort, not assuming too much, or creating false ideas as to ability. The only reliable physician in these days of complicated disorders and high-pressure living is the "Specialist," the man who understands his one branch of the business Such in his line is Dr. Pierce, For the benefit of his readers he has written a "Common Sence Medical Adviser," which is well worth reading by those who need such a work. With strict business honor, high professional skill reasonable fees, and a large crop of competent assistants, Dr. Pierce will doubtless make his name familiar as "household words."

JOSEPH HALL WORKS

The adjourned meetings of Creditors of the Hall Works Estate was held on the 26th inst., when Messrs Whitley & Barnes who had tendered for the purchase of the plant, Stock, and assets, announced the withdrawal of their tender owing to their having discovered that some $36 000 which had been represented as assets of the estate was held as security by certain creditors. After this two days were spent by the creditors in investigating the affairs of the Estate, and ultimately it was decided to ask for new tenders, when the following were put in by Messrs Whitely and Barnes, $100,000 payable in twelve months. Geo A. Masson, Esq., $88.000 payable $20,000 in three months, $20 000 in six months $10,000 in twelve months, and $16 000 in two years time. Messrs W. H and Frank Gibbs, $125,500, payable in three instalments of $10,000 in one, three and six months respectively, $47,750 in eighteen months, and 28,750 in two years time These tenders when reduced to a cash basis, and taking into consideration the conditions annexed to them, were respectively at $72,600, $104.000 and $115 000, and the latter being the tender of the Messrs Gibbs was accepted by a vote of 55 to 5. The meeting then adjourned till the 16th day of February, when the Creditors will meet again to finally ratify the purchase.—Oshawa Reformer.

The Whig has the following:—A valued correspondent writes us that "Compulsory voting under the ballot is all rubbish, the two being in utter contradistinction. One man may bring another to the polls but forty men cannot make him vote by ballot unless he like. All the recalcitrant has to do is to go into the inner room, spoil his ballot paper, drop it into the box, and no one is a whit the wiser, while the compelled "voter" can laugh in his sleeve at Mr Pethune and make faces at the author of the Aurora speech. It is true that there is one thing in the possible answer that where the voter is forced to the polls that he will not spoil his vote in the way indicated. But if he does not want to vote, he need not and will not, and the law is powerless for "Compulsory voting" is a shame, for the ballot box can cheat the law to its face" There is a matter for reflection in our correspondent's pithy argument. The point however is that the voter is forced to the polls and therefore may not be bribed to go to the polls.

W. W. Ross, and others, and we can safely say that those attending the meeting are not likely to be disappointed We hope that all who value the word of God will, if possible be present, and that an increased interest may be taken in this important Society.

A POWERFUL ARGUMENT.—In the course of conversation lately we learned that at present there are three executions issued in town against individuals for violation of the license law, but that the Chief Constable has been instructed not to execute them fearing that the Council would then have to provide for the families concerned. This interference with municipal officials, coming as in this case from unquestionable authority, affords an unanswerable argument in favor of taking the traffic out of the hands of municipal authorities and entrusting it to men who will not use it for for political or municipal purposes.

THE TEMPERANCE PEOPLE.—On Saturday the friends of Temperance in this County held a meeting in the Temperance Hall, Peterboro. The object of the meeting being to use their influence to secure a good and faithful License Inspector under the new law, and also Commissioners free from whiskey influence. The meeting discussed the matter and appeared to be unanimously in favor of Messrs Pentland and Stratton of Peterboro, and Jno. Hull of Lakefield as Commissioners, and a motion was passed nominating Rev Mr. Scott of Lakefield, Mr. Pentland and D. Kennedy, a committee to do what they could towards the appointment of those gentlemen. The meeting was informed that two temperance and one non-temperance man had been recommended for the office of Inspector; but while not desirous altogether of having a man appointed because of his being a teetotaler, yet all present agreed that the Inspector should not be one whom appetite might influence. They desire a man with enough moral courage to see the law properly respected.

"TWA HOUSE AT HAME."—Kennedy the Scottish Vocalist, and his talented family, will visit Peterborough Thursday and Friday, 24th and 25th inst. It is only necessary to let our readers know that they are coming to ensure a large audience of all classes of our citizens, but of Scotsmen in particular. They will only remain two nights, and parties who wish to hear the songs of Scotland beautifully rendered, should not fail to remember the 24th and 25th.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met in Special Session on Tuesday evening pursuant to an order from the Mayor.

Present,—His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Rutherford, Cook, Elliott, Thornton, Douglas, Hopkins, Paterson, Cahill, Helm and Taylor.

His Worship the Mayor stated that the Committee appointed at the last meeting to meet the Ashburnham Council had done so, and had received the required permission of making the approach to the proposed bridge across the Otonabee River at Smith street, and also a promise of a grant of $200 to aid in the said approach; and further, the municipality of Ashburnham had passed a by-law at a special meeting to-day and had forwarded a copy to the clerk.

At the request of the mayor the clerk read the by-law. After some discussion

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Thornton,—That the plans and profiles furnished to this council be and they are hereby approved, and that the Town Engineer be instructed to make the necessary specifications for said bridge—and that the special committee be authorized to advertise for tenders for the construction of said bridge and report to this council.

Mr. Rutherford introduced a by-law to provide for removing snow, ice and dirt from the sidewalks, but it was lost in second reading.

A contract of Benjamin Laurin to supply 100 cords of wood at $1.40 per cord was accepted.

The clerk was instructed to acquaint the assessors that they are not required to assess by wards.

Mr. Helm read the report of committee on printing recommending that Mr. Romaine get the printing for the year. The report was adopted.

The council adjourned.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL

The council met in Ashburnham on Monday evening. Present,—The Reeve John Burnham Esq. in the chair, and Messrs Rumbough, Bennett, Calcutt and R. Mowry.

Moved by Mr. Rumbough, seconded by Mr. Bennett,—That the return of the roll of the collection be received, and that he be authorized to proceed with the collector of the amount on the roll still unpaid.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Calcutt, seconded by Mr. Mowry,—That Jonathan Stephenson be appointed assessor for the year 1876, at a salary of $50.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Bennett, seconded by Mr. Calcutt,—That By-law No. 55 be read and passed.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Mowry, seconded by Mr. Calcutt,—That the following accts. be paid: R. Romaine, $6.39; R. D. Rogers, $32.45; G. Rickey, 75 cts.; Mrs. McGregor, $6.00; J. Craig, $1.37.—Carried

A Deputation from Peterboro, consisting of the Mayor and Mr. Rutherford addressed the council, asking for assistance to cut down the hill on Boundary street in Ashburnham.

An application from Mr. J. Ludgare for compensation for sheep killed by dogs, was laid over till the next meeting of the council.

Moved by Mr. Calcutt, seconded by Mr. Mowry,—That the sum of $200 be appropriated towards cutting down the hill situated on Boundary street, provided this money be expended in the employment of the laborers of Ashburnham. The necessary arrangements to that effect be left in the hands of the Reeve.—Carried.

Moved by Mr Bennett, seconded by Mr. Calcutt.—That W. Joy's taxes be omitted for the year 1875, amounting to $9.60.—Carried.

PASS HIM ROUND.—The Brant Union gives Prof. De Soto the following compliment:—"One of the most abominable swindles ever perpetrated on a community, is "Prof. De Soto's Centennial Festival," which took in the Brantford public on Monday night. The unprincipled swindler who gives the "entertainment," should be published right and left By loud talk in his programmes, he gulled a very large audience into going to see his "grand centennial carnival of Cocoons," and his audience would certainly have mobbed him, had they been able to lay hands on him after the "show" was over. The assurance of this "Professor De Soto" is something startling. We hope our exchanges will give him a "puff" should he favor any other town with his night in wonderland." Look out for him!"

DISTRICT NEWS.

CENTREVILLE.

COMPLIMENTARY DINNER.—A dinner in honor of H Waddell, Esq., of Centreville, South Monaghan, on Friday last, on the occasion of his retiring from business, was given in the Town Hall at Centreville by his friends, as a token of esteem for the honorable and kindly manner in which he had conducted his business for so many years in their midst The dinner was prepared by host Stewart of the "Royal Arms" and was got up in his usual successful style The food was excellent, and set on the table in a manner which showed that the host was well worthy of the good name he has enjoyed. The room was most tastefully decorated with evergreens and motoes, the letters composing the initials of the guest's name being most tastefully arranged in various parts of the room. At nine o'clock p.m., the Millbrook brass band struck up the famous old appetizer "Roast Beef of Old England" and the guest of the evening and his friends to the number of about one hundred took their seats at the festive board, with Holden Crossley, Esq., in the chair, and T. M. Willian, Esq., in the vice-chair, and after doing justice to the fine display set before them the cloth removed and the following toasts given. "The Queen"—"The Prince and Princess of Wales and the Royal Family,"—"The Gov. General and the Lieut. Gov."—by the chairman. "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers" by T. M Willan, Esq., vice-chairman, and responded to by Dr. Wight. "The Guest" by the chairman, and responded to by Mr. Waddell in a few most appropriate remarks. "The Clergy" by the vice-chairman, and responded to by the Rev. Mr. Mitchell, of Montreal, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church of Cavan, "The commercial Interests of Millbrook, Peterboro and Bethany," by the chairman, and responded to by Mr Brian, of Bethany, and Mr. Collins of Millbrook. "The Municipal and Agricultural Interests of the Townships of South Monaghan and Cavan," by the chairman, and responded to by the vice-chairman and several others. "The Medical Profession" by the vice chairman, and responded to by Dr. King, of Baillieboro. "The Host and Hostess" and several other local toasts

The company dispersed about midnight after enjoying a most pleasant evening.

PORT HOPE.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.—The meeting of delegates for the Central Exhibition was held in the Council Chamber here, on Tuesday afternoon last. There was in attendance a large number of delegates; Peterboro', Victoria, East and West Durham, and Northumberland being represented. A full report will appear in our next week's issue Mr. John Foott, Esq., was appointed President, and R. Dickson, Esq. Secretary.—Times.

FENELON FALLS.

BIG 4 VARIETY TROUPE.—This is the title of a troupe—hailing from Peterborough, we believe—which gave an entertainment last Saturday evening in Scully's hall to quite a large audience, and were fully up to the average of the class of performers to which they belong. The negro minstrelsy was good, and appeared to give satisfaction, though some of the "conundrums" were rather old; but the Statue Clog Dance, by Messrs. Cutler, Barchard, Callighan and Clark was really excellent, and was warmly applauded. The Irish songs, too, were very well rendered and were encored every time, and the concluding farce, entitled "Going to the Ball," was amusing from the utter absurdity and from the imperturbably grave face of the principal actor. Taking the performance all through, the entertainment was a very fair one, and we think that was the "verdict" of all who attended it.—Gazette

KEENE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Last Friday evening, a concert was given in the new Town Hall in this Village, in aid of the Organ Fund of the Methodist Church. The Choir generously purchased the new and valuable instrument, in use in the Church, for the payment of which they became responsible, and the concert was to promote this object. Not wishing to make invidious distinctions in regard to the regular performers it is only a just tribute to say that our old friend Thomas Eason, E-q, being present, was called on by the audience for a song, he responded to the call, and though unexpectedly summoned, he discovered a song, in a manner which reflected great credit for a person of his age. The music was all regular but selected with very fine taste, and rendered in the best style. The audience was not large but intelligent and appropriate, all who were present expressed themselves as well pleased with the evenings entertainment.

COBOURG.

LIBERAL.—The West Northumberland Agricultural Society has voted $200 to the Port Hope Central Exhibition fund.

Capt. Cuthbert of Cobourg, has commenced building a yacht, the largest ever constructed on the lakes, at a cost of over $5,000. The length of keel is to be 95 ft., length over all 114 ft. breadth of beam 24 feet, depth of hold 9ft. She will carry 2,650 yards of canvass, and be 200 tons burden, yacht measurement. She will compete at the Centennial Regatta at Philadelphia during the season.

An interesting discussion took place on Wednesday evening on the County Dunkin Bill, for which a number of petitions were presented. The motion for leave to introduce the By-law was strenously resisted and at first declared lost by the casting vote of the Warden, the numbers being a tie, 18 to 18; but on the yeas and nays being called for, it was carried by 2 of a majority one gentleman changing his vote.—Cobourg Sentinel.

LAKEFIELD.

The annual Sabbath School Convention will be held in Lakefield, on February 21st and 22nd. Parties interested will do well to bear this in mind.

OMEMEE

(From our own Correspondent.)

HIGH SCHOOL TRUSTEE.—Capt. Gettingham has been appointed High School Trustee for Omemee.

SOCIAL.—The social at the residence of the Rev. Mr. Walker exceeded anything of the kind heretofore attempted here. The proceeds amounted to $65. Miss Fee was the successful candidate for the election cake. The patronage was general—an evidence of Mr. Walker's popularity in the community in which he has labored so earnestly and successfully for the past four years.

ORANGE SOIREE.—The soiree held by L. O. L. No. 646, Emily, on Friday evening last, was a very successful affair. The gathering was one of the largest witnessed on any similar occasion in Emily for many years. The provisions were recherche in every sense of the word, reflecting unbounded credit upon the skill and resource of the good wives and fair daughters of Lebanon neighborhood. On the platform were the officers of the districts of Emily and Cavan. The chair was occupied by Dr. Norris, treasurer, county lodge. Addresses were given by the Rev. R Godfrey, Bro. J. Elliot, Master of L. O. L No. 294, Rev. H. Harris, and Bro. Gabriel Ballour, Master of L. O. L No 113. The speeches were interspersed with music supplied by the District Brass Band, under the direction of Mr. W H. English. Miss Jones was the successful candidate for the election cake—the vote standing, Miss Jones, 256, and Miss Rowan, 252. The proceeds amounted to about $125, which was to be devoted to the purchase of a banner for the lodge—The evening closed with the National Anthem and the Doxology—all dispersing gratified with the success which crowned the efforts of the large hearted brethren of No. 646, under Bro. Daniel Jones, the Worthy Master, to please and entertain the brethren of the section, lodges around and the citizens generally.

NORWOOD.

Mr. John Finlay, has agreed to blow the correct time, for the easterners,

FATALLY SCALDED.—We regret to learn that a little girl, daughter of Mr. Simon Sexsmith, of Belmont, about two years old was so badly scalded one day last week as to prove fatal in a short time. The little girl, with several other children of the family, was playing in the vicinity of a tub of boiling water, when by accident, she unfortunately fell into the tub. She was rescued as soon as possible, but the water was of such an intense heat that the poor little sufferer sustained injuries of such a nature as to cause her death about two hours after the accident.

ORANGE INTELLIGENCE.—At the annual meeting of the County L. O. L. of East Peterborough, the following officers were elected for the current year;

A. R. Anderson, County Master
Henry Moore, Deputy Master.
Rev. Henry Wilkinson, Chaplin.
James N. Paget, County Secretary.
W. H Stephenson, County Treasurer.
John H. Scott, Dir. of Ceremonies.
John A. Robb, County Lecturer.

The anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne will be celebrated at Warsaw.

New Potatoes in January.—The Norwood Register, says; "we can give publicity to a phenomenan, not as yet heard of in the history of this country, Mr. James Reddon, of this village while working in his garden on Monday last, came across, unexpectedly, in a protected place, some potato vines, and on removing them, found in the hill a fine mess of new potatoes, having a solid healthy appearance, and some as large as a medium sized egg, and such, for new potatoes, would gladden the heart of any Irishman. Well, it really bangs Banagher, and it is hard to say, when we can grow potatoes in the months of December and January in Canada, what the world is coming to. We challenge a greater peculiarity of this strange winter than the above, and give no the truth.

WANTED TO KNOW.—It is now asked, in view of the decision of Bishop Bourget that no qualification can redeem the sinfulness of the appellation "Liberal" as applied to a political party, not even "moderate," how His Lordship and his organ and clergy reconcile themselves to this same disgrace when it is prefixed to "Conservative?" What is the difference from His Lordship's point of view between a "Moderate-Liberal" whom he condemns, and a "Liberal Conservative" whom he supports? Seeing that he holds Liberalism to be the essence of evil, does its conjunction with Conservatism render it innocuous? The world is deeply interested in hearing what so great a master of casuistry has to say on this interesting subject. It was recently claimed on the highest authority that the appellation, "Liberal-Conservative," adopted last summer by the Lower Canadian party of that name, under the auspices of the proprietor of the Nouveau Monde, among others, meant that it embodied both the Liberal and Conservative principles Therefore the clergy, in ordering electors to vote for one political party more than another, seem to have been merly consigning them to destruction by a different door.

CONSUMPTION CURED.—An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple Vegetable Remedy, for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a Positive and Radical Cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a desire to relieve human suffering, he will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. SHERMAN, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N.Y.

THE BEST POLICY.

The Detroit Free Press says:—The other day a man with a guant look hauled before an eating stand at the Central Market, and after a long survey of the viands he said to the old woman:—

'I am a poor man, but I'll be honest, if I have to be buried in the Pauper's Fie'd.'

'What's the matter now?' asked the woman, regarding him with suspicion.

'No one saw me pick up a $20 bill here, by the stand, early this morning: but, as I said before, I'll be honest.'

'A $20 bill—picked up!' she whispered bringing a bland smile to her face.

'I suppose,' he continued, 'that some one passing along here could have dropped such a bill, but it seems more reasonable to suppose that it was lost by you.'

'Don't talk quite so loud,' she said as she leaned over the stand. 'You are an honest man, and I'll have your name put in the papers, so that all may know it. I'm a hard working widow, and if you had'nt brought back that money it would have gone hard with my poor dear little children.'

'If I pick up money by a stand I always give it up,' he said, as he sat down on one of the stools.

'That's right—that's honest,' she whispered. 'Draw right up here and have some breakfast?'

He needed no second invitation. The way he went for cold ham, fried sausage, biscuit and hot coffee was terrific to the woman.

'Yes—I—um—try—to—be—honest,' he remarked between bites.

'That's right. If I found any money belonging to you I'd give it up, you bet. Have another cup of coffee?'

'Don't—care—fidoo,' he said, as he jammed more ham into his mouth.

Even courtship have an ending. The old chap finally began to breathe like a foundered horse, and pretty soon after that he rose up from the table.

'You are a good man to bring my lost money back,' said the woman, as she brushed away the crumbs.

'Oh, I'm honest,' he replied. 'when I find any lost money I always give it up.'

'Well, I'll take it now please,' she said, as he began to button his coat.

'Take what?' he asked.

'That lost money you found.'

'I didn't find any! I'll be honest with you, however, if I ever do find any around here.'

'You old liar! Didn't you say you found a $20 bill here?'

'No I didn't! I said nobody saw me find one.'

'Pay me for them pervisions,' she yelled, clutching at his throat.

'I'll be honest with you—I haven't a cent,' he replied as he held her off.

She tried to trip him over into a barrel of charcoal, but he broke loose and before she recovered from her amazement he was a block away and galloping along like a stage horse.

SHUNSHINE.

Whoever has been privileged to hear Prof. Youghman's delightful lecture on the chemistry of the sunbeam, cannot have forgotten his computation of the sun's great mechanical and chemical power. And any housekeeper who has brought her pale, drooping plants from the cellar after their winter's retirement, and has watched them gradually straighten themselves up and deepen and brighten their color and send out new growths, must have been impressed anew with the sun's wonderful stimulating power. We cannot doubt that human beings are as susceptible as the plants are to the kindly influence of sunshine. How the little children thrive in it, and would gladly throw away hats and bonnets that rob them of a share of it; and we know of one mother who found her tiny daughter indulging in a sun-bath, not, of course, because she thought it would be good for her, but from sheer pity for her "poor little feet and legs and body that never had any sunshine." A day of hard work in the school room or the store or kitchen leaves us tired and perhaps discouraged about our work, and with the feeling that it is a hard, thankless world without any good place in it for us. When our spirits have reached this low water-mark, let us go out of doors, where the sun may shine full upon us, and in due time his magic power upon our worn nerves will have made a new world for us, and our own place in it the best of all. Happy the woman and happy her household whose carpets and complexion do not keep her in the shadow of a false economy of a false pride, but whose windows and face and soul are wide open to the sun. —Northampton Journal.

MEN AS LOVERS.

Miss Abbie J. Terry says:—In the first place, it is an imposition on any well-bred girl to keep her up later than 10.30 o'clock, when you have the opportunity of seeing her often. If you always leave her with the wish in her heart that you had stayed longer, you gain so much. Never run the risk of wearying her with your presence. Be just as earnest and straigh forward as in your honorable dealing with men. Impress your friends with the worthiness and seriousness of your love, so that vulgar and senseless bantering may appear to them as such. Love in religion—the supremest happiness, wear it manfully and proudly, but holily. Woo a woman bravely. If there is anything humiliating to a woman, it is to have a lover, whom she wishes to honor, weak and vapid, ever yielding and half afraid of her. She longs to tell him "to act like a man!" The man who conceals or denies his love for fear of being laughed at is a coward. A love that has no element of divinity in it is not love, but passion, which of itself has nothing ennobling. That was a beautiful inscription on an engagement ring, "Each for the other and both for God."

The Prince of Wales' Income.

It is now close on twelve years since the "establishment" of the present Prince took place, on his marriage in 1863. As it is well known, the Parliament added £40,000 a year to the inherited £60,000 from the Duchy of Cornwall, making together an annual sum of £100,000. The Princess received an annuity of £10,000; and there were besides the abundant savings from the Duchy during the minority, which reached the handsome sum of £540,000. Of this amount £220,000 was laid out in the purchase of an estate at Sandringham; £100,000 on a suit able outfit; £60,000 on a house &c., for the estate; while £100,000 more it is stated, would be absorbed by repairs of farm-houses and improvement of farms as they dropped out of lease, which would leave a balance of about £60,000 on hand. Lord Palmerston, indeed, declared at the time that the working balance would be scarcely appreciable. The figures, however seem loose enough, and allow the widest margin, especially in the case of the £100,000 for repairs to farm-buildings, &c., which would be held over till the occasion served. In a recent semi official expose, in which the Prince's affairs were set out, it was said that large additional sums had been sunk in the estate, but which had brought no return. This probably refers to the sum set apart for the keeping of farm houses in repair and the general improvement of the estate. Still it was thus used, however, it must have borne interest. So that the whole income from all sources, including the Princess' jointure, would thus have amounted to about £115,000 a year.—London Society.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

SULPHUR OINTMENT.—The North British Agriculturist says:—Sulphur ointment is generally prepared by melting one pint of flowers of sulphur with four or six of lard, palm oil, or other fatty matter. For mange, scap, and some of the simpler inflammatory conditions of the skin of animals, sulphur ointment proves a soothing dressing; but it is by no means the most effectual application for the destruction of those vegetable parasitic growths popularly known as ringworm. For such purposes if sulphur ointment is used, it is advantageously mixed with about one part of the dark brown, impure carbolic acid in six or eight of sulphur ointment. Solver Alum, zinc chloride solution, carbonate of soda, sulphates, and other such powerful astringents and antiseptics applied carefully in tolerable concentrated solution destroy the vegetable parasite, and thus prevent the complaint spreading. In most cases where the bare circular spots of ringworm first show themselves, they are easily arrested by the in-rubbing of any common oil or saline astringent solution, especially if the animal are not exposed to fresh spores of the disease usually developed amongst damp old straw, and particularly prone to occur where barley straw is chiefly used whether for food or litter.

CAUSES OF SEED FAILURES.—The following are some of the causes of failure of seeds: 1. Some cultivators, through ignorance or forgetfulness of the fact that the products of a garden, being natives of various soils and climates, require peculiar management, deposit their seeds in the ground at an improper season. The early and most hardy species and varieties should not be planted until the ground can be brought into good condition, as some species of plants that in an advanced stage of growth will stand a hard winter are often cut off by a very slight frost while young, especially if exposed to the sun after a frosty night. 2. Some species of seeds, such as beans, beet, cabbage, lettuce, raddish, salsify, turnip etc., being from their nature apt to vegetate quickly, are often destroyed while germinating, through variableness of the weather, and some are liable to be devoured by insects in forty-eight hours after they are sown, and before a plant is seen above ground, unless a suitable remedy is applied in time to annoy the insects. 3. Some species, as carrot, celery, leek, onion, parsley, parsnip, spinach, etc., being naturally of tardy growth, taking (in unfavorable seasons) from two to three or four weeks to vegetate, are apt to perish through incrustation of the soil, or other untoward and unaccountable circumstances which cannot always be controlled. 4. The failures often occur through seeds being deposited too deeply in the ground, or left too near the surface. Sometimes, for want of sufficiency of seed in a given spot, solitary plants will perish, they not having sufficient strength to open the pores of the earth, and very frequently injudicious management in manuring and preparing the soil will cause defect.

CONTROLLING BREACHY ANIMALS.—It is a fact well known to every contemplative mind that breachy propensities in animals are not the result of instinct but are inherited habits. However painfully difficult any movement may be at first, by persevering efforts it becomes so easy as to be performed without our attention. We all notice how difficult it is for children to walk at first, to write, to read, or to play on a musical instrument. The reason why the difficult movements become easy by repetition is this: Every act dictated by the mind is followed by a change in the brain, although very slight at first and liable to obliteration, becomes deeper by each repetition of the act, until finally it is an established habit, to be given to the next generation, if not in as prominent a character it is at least sufficient to be noticeable. It is a prominent habit among farmers to inclose their pastures with poor fences. The young stock are restrained for a time, but as they get older the habit inherited from ancestors, probably kept in the same enclosure, impels them to seek a wider range. They leap the fence and every time they clear the inclosure, the furror or rut in the brain is made deeper and more controlling and the habit more fixed. To obviate this propensity of the animal, the farmer instead of building a secure fence at first and thereby preventing the formation of breachy habits in his stock, resorts to the fetters and pokes, and thus often spends more money than would be required to keep his fences in a safe condition, and at the same time torments and injures his cattle.

THE VALUE OF WHEAT.—From a table giving the average price of wheat in Great Britain from 1000 to 1826, we learn that during the whole of the 17th century it ranged from 22 shillings and 4d. per quarter to 53 shillings. Of course the value of money was then much higher, and consequently wheat was really dearer than such figures would give us to understand. In the 18th century it for two years was as as 22s.1d. per quarter of eight bushels, while in the last of the century it was 110s.5d. In 1801 it was 115s. 11d., and in 1812 as high as 122s. 8d., or nearly 24 a bushel. Since 1820 it has never been higher than 75 shillings, and once—2835—the average price for the year was 30s. 4d., or about a dollar and a quarter per bushel. The importation of wheat and other breadstuffs into Britain since 1827 has increased enormously. In 1827 there were 283,236 quarters of wheat, and 94,348 cwts. of flour imported. In 2873 the quantity had risen to 10,096,430 quarters of wheat, or 80,771,240 bushels, and 6,-204,350 cwts. of flour. The increase in the importation of barley and oats had also been enormous.

SMYRNA WHEAT.—Miss Helm Wharton has presented the Michigan agricultural college with too bushels of Smyrna wheat raised at Tiflis, Southern Russia. The grain is nearly twice the size of the common berry, very white, and is said to make the best of flour.

HOW MANY BRICKS FOR A CISTERN?—A cistern 10 feet in diameter, and 10 feet deep, will hold nearly 6,000 gallons. Such a cistern will require 2,000 bricks if set on their faces; if set upon their edges, about 1,100 will make the wall. The floor is not included, as that may be cemented. Set upon their edges, 6 bricks will make a square foot of wall. Set upon edge it only takes 3 bricks.

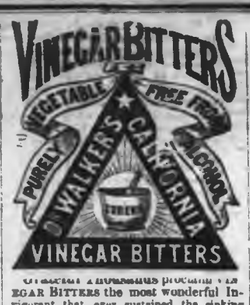
VINEGAR BITTERS



VINEGAR BITTERS

CHARACTERISTICS. A Purely Vegetable Preparation which is called VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberand, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and diseases, which have long been aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues in these Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, the unseen and unfelt tyrant of the system manifests its presence by foul ulcers, and invites the attacks of other diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its existence. Again, it seems to breed in the blood and corrupt the whole body, and then, or some later period, it may develop into one or other of its horrible forms, either on the surface or internally. In the latter case it may be confined or deposited in the lungs or heart, or it may be found in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of the Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Heart Disease, Tic, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any of reliance. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Tetterbore or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Weakness, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Inflammations and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the same poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of coating the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and ornamental. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It is wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

PETERBOROUGH, FEB. 17, 1876.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

The meeting of Parliament at Ottawa has caused no great sensation yet. The address from the throne was carried without a division. The only ruffle being a few words by Mr. Holton deprecating the speech of Mr. Huntington at Argenteuil, and asking the Leader of the Government to give an expression of his opinion on this speech. Mr. Huntington defended himself by showing that his party had been attacked at that meeting by an influence dangerous to the liberty of the people, and that he merely warned them of the folly of introducing a question that must terribly re-act on the promoters of ultramontane views in Canada. Mr. McKenzie explained that the Postmaster General had stated his views at Argenteuil on his own responsibility that he deprecated the introduction of religious bitterness in election contests, and expressed a wish that all Canadians of every creed would unite to conduct public affairs free from sectarian prejudices.

In moving and seconding the address from the throne, the Speaker spoke in very favorable terms of the progress and healthiness of the trade and wealth of the Country. The momentary depression in Canadian trade was, he held, and with this the Opposition agreed, caused by over trading of men with small capital, and thus a periodical return of commercial depression occurred from time to time. The Country was held to be as a whole, prosperous, and the people contented. There are abundant supplies of overplus farm produce to be marketed, and a few months it is believed will remove the stringency in trade and commerce. It was shown that this change in trade was pretty general, having originated in the United States it had extended to Canada and Europe, and even England the wealthiest and best governed nation on the earth was suffering from its effects on iron, woolen, cotton and other industries.

The Leader of the Opposition was very mild on the address as were all his supporters.

The subject of protection was mooted by them but merely en passent, and not set down as a policy or principle.

Ministers placed their reports of the different departments on the table the first day of the Session, showing great dispatch, industry and aptness on their part.

There appears a deficit, principally in Inland Revenue, this is easily accounted for, and as large quantities of goods are still in bonded warehouses, a few weeks will deliver a large portion thereof and thus make up for the deficiency at the end of the fiscal year.

The Speech does not foreshadow a large amount of business for the Session but important measures will be discussed and promoted.

The Government is strong and confident in their supporters on all wise measures.

THE LICENSE BILL

We received a copy of the New License Act just as we were going to press, we will give it entire next week. The only clauses agitating the public are those relating to saloons.

As follows :

2. The number of tavern licenses to be granted in the respective municipalities shall not in each year be in excess of the following limitations : in cities, towns and incorporated villages respectively, according to the following scale, that is to say, one for each full two hundred and fifty of the first one thousand of the population : and one for each full four hundred over one thousand of the population : but in no case shall this limit authorize any increase in any municipality in excess of the number of licenses therein issued for the year ending the first day of March next, unless from the future increase of the population the license commissioners shall think a larger number has become necessary, but not in any case exceeding the limit imposed by this Act ;

5. In addition to the accommodation required by the said recited Act, each tavern or house of entertainment, shall be shown, to the satisfaction of the license commissioners, to be a well-appointed and sufficient eating house, with the appliances requisite for daily serving meals to travellers ; and these requirements shall apply to all taverns or houses of entertainments, without any exception whatever, and continuously, for the whole period of the license.

NOT CREDITABLE TO OUR TOWN.

How frequently during the past few years have our readers and citizens heard of the extraordinary efforts that Oshawa, Port Hope, Lindsay and other Towns have been making to induce manufacturers to commence business in those places. Even Peterborough has voted its $40,000 to encourage manufacturers to come to Peterborough.

At present we have just two establishments in operation that manufacture to send away to other places, viz :—Peter Hamilton and William Hamilton. Each of these gentlemen has built a business in our town without ever asking one cent from the people in the way of bonuses. Each of them, notwithstanding the stringent times is still keeping his men employed, and thus saving the town from an incalculable outlay, which would almost necessarily have to be borne to support many of the families, if they were to close down.

In the case of Wm. Hamilton the town not only has not assisted him, but really has to a certain degree thrown obstacles in his way. - It is well known that the coal those employed by him, (and latterly so many say Mr. Hamilton) have built up the portion of the town around his foundry. Thousands of dollars are coming into the town treasury from that property, that would have been a waste or common had he not been there. His machinery has been, during the past three or four years, made for mills around the Georgian Bay, and Lake Huron and on the Ottawa waters. Those parties before this got their work done at Toronto and other places, but Mr. Hamilton's enterprize induced him to visit those places, and his superior workmanship at once secured him large orders. In this way large sums of money have come into Peterboro to be spent here paying for labour, grocery bills, and general household accounts, that would otherwise have gone to Toronto and Ottawa and similar places. Knowing this our town is surely ready to acknowledge the advantages in some tangible way.

Mr. Hamilton has found that his shops are too small for his business. Last summer the Canton Iron Bridge Company, the Company that built the last Iron Bridge, wanted a place in Canada for their business, and made an offer to Mr. Hamilton, but Mr. Hamilton could not encourage them unless he could also extend his work shops. His works are on a portion of an unoccupied street ; a portion too that has never been used, and property that never will be used for building purposes. His own "race" necessarily prevents this. He owns the land on each side of this short space, and therefore the street there is only valuable to himself, Mr. H. petitioned the town to grant him the use of the street, for which he offered to pay a fair equivalent, but the town would not grant this small favor—so narrow-minded are some people who live in that portion of the town, altho not on that street. Mr. Hamilton now has several offers to remove his work shops to other towns. Lindsay men, Orillia men, and others are offering him inducements to remove to one of those places, and gladly will the Councils of those places assist their enterprising citizens in encouraging Mr Hamilton to obtain all the privileges that he could desire, and our Peterboro people may yet regret the course they have taken in this matter.

Mr. Hamilton asks no special favors ; he seeks no bonus ; he asks nothing but a little room to extend his work shops, and although the portion of street referred to is useless for purposes of travel, never has been opened, and probably never will be, unless to carry out some little personal spleen, the petition is refused. It certainly does speak well for the public spirit of those who throw obstacles in the way. Should Mr. Hamilton, however, decide to remove and take his men with him, the people will regret their course when it is perhaps too late to remedy the mistakes of refusing such a trifling request.

THE LAST OPPOSITION FARCE.

The first Session of the third Parliament of Ontario has come to a close, and the results are now submitted to the people, for weal or for woe. Several important measures have been carried and become law, and now it remains for us to draw our conclusions as to the parts each political party acted in the grand drama

During the election campaign the country was told that the Mowat Government was incapable of managing the affairs of the province ; that the Reform party was weak, irresolute and extravagant : that Elect Mr. Scott and Mr. Mowat's days were numbered. The Opposition also took Mr McDougall to their bosom, placed him second in command, and elate with hope and expectations they awaited results. But how sadly are they disappointed. Mr M. C. Cameron has long since shown his unfitness for a party leader. Mr. McDougall does not command the confidence of any number of men in the House, and Mr. Scott has yet to make a name for himself. Mr. Lander and Mr. Rykert are never spoken of now, and even with all this unfitness, jealousy of each other prevents united action. No two of them can submit their plans to each other. This want of confidence, and real want of honesty and ability are almost insurmountable obstacles to their success, and until those leaders are removed, the Mowat government is safe.

The utter childishness of their movements, also is calculated to wean the honest ardour of young followers. Their mockery of debate on the Education Bill and their last on the Election Bill must combine to render them contemptible even in their own eyes.

Mr. Mowat's Bill to amend the election law and to remove certain disabilities from those members who had been disqualified on very doubtful evidence, was under discussion on Tuesday, 8th instant It had already received two readings.—It included 3 Conservatives and 1 Reformer within its provisions. The judgment in the Lincoln case being given before it became law, enabled Mr. Neelon also to avail himself of its provisions.—Mr. Cameron made desperate efforts to secure exceptional legislation against him but was foiled in every attempt. Mr. Mowat chided him for not attempting to change the bill, while it provided for removing the disqualifications from more Conservatives than that of Reformers, but attempting so now when they were equal.

The last grand farce, however, had to be enacted, and when the motion for the third reading was passed. Mr. Cameron rose and left the chamber, followed by his docile sheep, except Mr. Grange, of Lennox, who, like a man, entered his protest, and refused to make a simpleton of himself by following a mere "bell weather."

To what a position they have reduced themselves ! What utter childishness ! We have seen children hiding their faces in their hands and peeping through their fingers when teased ; and they have been known to leave the room in a passion but that men, Legislators, Lawyers, &c., could allow themselves to act the part of babies is unaccountable, unless on the principle of suffering from mental aberration. The folly of expecting anything manly, noble or generous from them is now demonstrated to a certainty.

MONTREAL.

This City was lately the scene of a little love escapade, on account of which the young wife of a wealthy merchant eloped with the son of Mr. Brydges. The feeble pair are about one age, viz : 23. No sooner had they left the city than her friends followed her to New York, and after some little delay succeeded in getting her to return home to her father's house, although at first she refused to leave her dear Fred. She being the daughter of Andrew Allan, who is rich, newspaper articles soon appeared, in her favor, stating that Mr. Brydges had compelled her to leave her husband, but that the elopement was carried out with great discreteness, and merely with a view to preparing the way for a divorce. Indeed Mr. Brydges had to satisfy his son that a divorce would be need for, in order to enable the loving pair to pour out their love more freely. She has returned home and this affairs remain.

How an elopement of a married woman and a young and gay Lothario could be conducted with the strictest propriety, we may leave those concerned to demonstrate. One thing is certain—the wronged husband will not think so. That she may have been ill-treated, some will be ready to believe, but they will also think that the husband may have considered he had just cause to treat her less kindly than he was wont. Perhaps her undue attentions to her "dear Fred" may have aroused her once fond husband, and led to the ill-treatment from which she pretends to have fled ; and of course nothing could be more natural than for her to take "dear Fred" with her as a protector

How the press could be induced to palliate the act, or to represent it as "conducted with the strictest propriety" many will be at a loss to imagine. But it is certain that such articles must tend to establish the fact of the venality of at least a portion of that profession, and perhaps of the moral deformity of the vision of some of those from whom better things should be expected.

ON THE RAMPAGE

At the council meeting on Monday evening, the Rev. V. Clementi was present and addressed that august body. The Rev. gentleman is a member of the Charity Committee composed of citizens and councillors. We need scarcely remark that, although he spoke, he did not take his text from any of the Gospels or Epistles ; nor yet from the Old Testament. As a member of the Charity Committee, it will be surmised that "Charity" formed the subject matter of his address, but this surmise is incorrect The Rev. gentleman pulled from his bosom, close to his heart, a portion of a newspaper, (an article clipped from the EXAMINER,) and in this was found his text. In the good book this passage will be found : 'A stone is heavy, and the sand weighty ; but a fool's wrath is heavier than them both." No doubt the Rev. gentleman will be able to apply this sentence from the words of the Wise Man. The Rev. gentleman does not read the EXAMINER ; does not care what appears in it ! Then why did what appeared in the EXAMINER of last week arouse his holy (!) indignation ? Why did he place it like an amulet near the fountain of his life's blood ? Why did he hug it in such close embrace ? Why did his knees tremble and his hands shake ? Was it because, that like Elihu, the son of Barachel, "His belly was as new wine which hath no vent ? "Ready to burst like new bottles." Perhaps the EXAMINER is, to him as was the little book in the Apostle's belly, bitter, and we regret to find that this bitterness interferes with the Rev. gentleman's temper and veracity.

He commenced by asserting that he could prove every word of the article false, and exhibited a handful (trembling) of paper for that purpose.

The article says that orders generally read 25 lbs. of flour, half a bushel of potatoes, 9 lbs. of beef, and ½ a lb. of tea. This, he said, was false, but Mr. Cook made him admit that 18 or 19 of the orders were for those articles ; and thus Mr. Clementi was forced to admit the truthfulness of the article, and the absence of truthfulness in his own words.

We have no desire at present to ruffle the Rev. gentleman's temper too much ; his natural pomposity and vanity are enough for any one man to bear. But he will permit us to quote from a Book that we fear is to him a sealed one, the following passages :—

Prov. xxix. 22.—"A furious man" aboundeth in transgression."

Prov. xxix. 23—"A man's pride shall bring him low." (22)—"An angry man stirreth up strife."

Prov. xxx. 12, 13.—"There is a generation that are pure in their own eyes, and yet not washed from their filthiness." "There is a generation, O how lofty are their eyes, and their eyelids are lifted up." (32) "If thou hast done foolishly in lifting up thyself, or if thou hast thought evil, lay thine hand upon thy mouth." (33) "Surely the churning of milk bringeth forth butter, and the wringing of the nose bringeth forth blood : so the forcing of wrath bringeth forth strife."

The Rev. gentleman boasted of his works in aid of the poor, will he let us quote from Paul,—we don't wish to ruffle his temper by quoting from the EXAMINER,—"Charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up : Doth not behave itself unseemly : is not easily provoked: thinketh no evil."

Might we recommend for his perusal a few thoughts from the Wise Man. If he will read Prov. x. last part of the 8th verse, last part of the 10th verse, last part of the 11th verse, and first part of the 12th verse, he will see his own character as in a mirror. Let him remember that Love is the fulfilling of the law—but where no love is what shall we say ? "Whose mouth is full of.....bitterness."

A piece of advice.

Let the Rev. gentleman betake himself to prayer, and a careful study of the holy Scriptures. Let him put away all malice and all guile, and let him humble himself that he may be exalted, and above all let him remember that "a fool uttereth all his mind," and lastly when he prays let him say—"Forgive me MY trespasses as I forgive those who trespass against ME."

A MODEL TOWNSHIP.—They know how to do things in the township of Elizabeth town, judging by the following extract from the council minutes published in the last "Recorder" :—Mr. Stafford moved, seconded by Mr. Barlow, that the minutes of this Council be published, in the "Monitor" and "Recorder" newspapers, provided they publish them for $12 each, and the clerk be authorized, to see that they are published in both papers if it is agreeable to their editors.—Carried Who will do likewise in this section ?

THE ROGUES' MARCH

The march of the Opposition during the last few hours of this last session of their Ontario Legislature has been aptly styled the "Rogues' March." They did it for effect, but the effect failed. Some of their own best men condemned the course pursued by Mr. Cameron and his puny following, and no stronger proof could be given of the unfitness of such men to command respect of even the few who do call themselves Conservatives ;

Mr. Grange, member for Lennox, refused to be a party to the solemn farce, he remained in the Chamber and recorded his vote against the proposed amendment.

Mr. Hodgins said the conduct of the Opposition in leaving the House after a vote had been taken was certainly an unprecedented proceeding, and one which was not in the interest of the country, which the members of the Opposition were called upon as members of the house to serve. He had always been taught the majority ruled, and that whether the decision of the majority might be right or wrong, they were bound to accept it for the peace. They were called upon, as far as possible, to arguments to convince the majority ; but for the Opposition after it had been overwhelmed by the decision of the House, to leave nothing but empty benches was an insult to the Legislature (cheers) was an insult to the people of the country (cheers), and was not carrying out their constitution rights and constitutional duty. There was much of a theatrical performance about it. (Cheers and laughter) It did not commend itself to the sober judgment or those who looked calmly on public affairs, and though he was one who associated himself for the peace—and only for the peace—with the Opposition in opposing the measure to bring that where they had the decision of a court of Appeal was not the function of any Legislature to override that decision, yet the conduct of the Opposition, he believed, merited the condemnation of the House and of the country. He repeated that there was too much of the character of a theatrical performance about their act, and he regretted to say that many of the distinguished gentlemen in the Opposition, who stood well in public estimation, had not elevated the position either of themselves or of the Opposition by the course they had pursued on that occasion. (Cheers.)

Mr. Hardy said their departure might fitly be called the Pacific Scandal March. It had been made by hon. gentlemen who throughout the country had approved and applauded the coup d'etat of Sir John Macdonald without the slightest hesitation. While the performance of the Opposition was theatrical, it likewise partook, to a large extent of the character of a circus (Laughter and cheers)

Mr Ross, Member, for Huron Opposition, said he almost regretted that o meet his convictions he had been led to support a party which was displayed such childish petulancy (Cheers) They had not exhibited themselves in a character which would have the effect of attracting any sensible people to their ranks. The exhibition was childish, and hardly worthy of school boys. In view of that exhibition which the Opposition had made, he was sorry he had been, to a certain extent connected with them in the measure before the House

Mr. Hunter thought the performance was a small edition of the "March of the Cameron men." (Laughter)

Mr. Gow said it was a repetition of the conduct of the Opposition in the Public Accounts Committee.

The limited following of Mr. Cameron has grown, is growing, (yearly beautifully less: and this "Rogues' March" will not add to his popularity, but on the contrary will aid in consigning him to private life, in which he is said to be an amiable man.

OUR SCHOOLS

The following item which we clip from the report of the High School Inspectors will show the standing of the Peterboro' Collegiate Institute. which we believe will be found second to no Institute or High School in the Province

"For the most part the discipline of the High Schools is satisfactory, or fairly so. Insubordination is very rare, and a good feeling manifestly exists, in general between masters and pupils. Occasionally in consequence of the school being the only place of gathering within doors, a good deal more noise and rough play are permitted than is desirable, while the pupils are, in some few instances, unseemly and disorderly in their style of entering and leaving the room. These, however, are exceptional cases, and for the most part ascribable to the character of the building, which seem to invite such tokens of disrespect.

Conspicuous for the neatness and completeness of all the appointments and for the admirable order which pervades the whole, may be mentioned the High Schools of Port Perry, Whitby, Belleville and Simcoe, and the Collegiate Institutes of Toronto, Peterborough, Hamilton and Galt. To spend twenty five hours a week in such elegant and well appointed temples of learning is of itself no mean advantage towards the formation of refined habit, taste and character.

THE MONTREAL GAZETTE is in a straight in defending the course Bishop Bourget has adopted.

KINGSTON.—There are over 600 convicts in the Provincial Penitentiary. The new shoe contractors are unable to employ the labor, and the men are idle.

EXPLOSION.—The boiler of Balley and Thynnes manufactory Bluevale, exploded on Thursday last, killing the fireman and Walter Richardson, and blowing the building to atoms.

BEECHER is still in trouble. Either he has been guilty of indiscretions or ther are very bad people in Plymouth Church Indeed it is feared that both may be assumed. The church however. hesitate to believe he is guilty of the charge preferred against him.

THE ORANGE BILL.—During Mr. Scott's canvass last summer, he made a solemn promise that he would support and vote for an Orange Bill if introduced in the Local Legislature. Now, it was introduced. Did he vote for or support it ? Let his votes in the House answer. If he did not vote for it, then let him answer why ! Every one expected that Dr O'Sullivan never intended to vote for an Orange Bill. But why did Mr. Scott vote against it ? Were his and the Dr's. motives the same ? That ill fated Orange Bill was rejected and voted down by the heroes of Protestantism in this County and by those gentlemen who were prepared to grant equal rights to all classes and creeds. But then they voted against this Bill, why did they do so ?

NOT ALWAYS AND EVERYWHERE THE SAME.—Bishop Bourget of Lower Canada and Archbishop Lynch of Toronto are not in perfect harmony on matters affecting their people. The former advises active interference in election matters, and in the most one-sided manner. The latter advises the very opposite course Which is right, and which should be particularly obeyed ? There can be no two opinions on this matter of clerical influence in election contests. It will lead to retaliation, and distrust, not to be desired in a mixed community. But the responsibilities will rest with the promoters. The Leader, that extreme Protestant (?) organ, will now be in a straight between two. Will the hero of orange ascendancy take Lower Canada utterances tamely in his bosom, or will he drop Sir John, the idol of his heart and the object of his adoration, and join with the Canada first or some other party to elevate the Conservative party ! The Patriot says that Grits were sure to be branded than Papists." The Orange Patriot should now take up its cross and go in with Bishop Bourget to pull down free thought and the right of private judgment in all matters.

UPRIGHTFUL.—Messrs. Cameron, Leader, McDougall Scott & Co'y were civil, quiet and kind until they got their $200, when they began to boil over with indignation on account of Mr. Mowat's unjust legislation. If the Attorney-General had kept his indemnity clause to the last vote there would have been no rogue's march.

DIRECT TAXATION.—Notwithstanding that Messrs. Scott and O'Sullivan told the electors last winter that we were approaching direct taxation, they took $400 of the peoples' money over and above the usual indemnity ; and as this much more has to be raised by the people, are they not hastening that much to the dreaded event ?

RAILWAY AID.

The roads proposed to be aided by Mr. Crooks bill are divided into four classes.

Class one covers new roads or extensions of roads under construction. Class two includes roads already subsidized to which it is proposed additional aid shall be given. Class three, like class two, includes additions to existing aid, but in this case the latter are payable out of appropriations already made for uncompleted works. Class four comprizes colonization railways. The total sum required for the first three classes will, in the aggregate, amount to $481,000 over and above former appropriations ; the arrangements for the fourth class are provisional in their character. The following are the figures :

The Government do not commit themselves to any particular scheme for making connection with the Pacific Junction road They simply propose at the present time to take power to negotiate with any persons desirous of constructing the Pacific Junction on the basis of a bonus of $8,000 per mile. The line would be 80 miles in length, and thus a total sum of $640,000 will be needed when satisfactory arrangements are made

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening in the New Council Chamber.

Present, the Mayor and Messrs. Dixon, Rutherford, Thornton, Elliott, Douglas, Cook, McClelland, Paterson, Hopkins, Helm, Taylor and Cahill.

The Clerk read the minutes of the previous meeting which were confirmed.

The Fireman's Band was introduced and played several pieces congratulatory of the council taking possession of their new quarters.

The Clerk then read a statement of charities paid in January, amounting to $176.29. He said he could not supply the names to whom paid, but Mr. McKee Secretary of the Charity Committee had agreed to supply a list in due time.

The Rev. V. Clementi who was present, addressed the Council, and congratulated them on the taking possession of their new chamber, and then attacked the Examiner for an article that appeared in it which he said he could prove was false. He pulled almost a column of the Examiner from his bosom and read from it. He said that the orders had not been given as appeared in the Examiner, but in answer to Mr Cook, admitted that several of them were nearly verbatim.—Meat had been given in 5, 6 and 7lbs parcels. and as he admitted in 9lbs. in a few instances, flour in 25lb. bags, but in future it would be given, he said, in 12½ lbs. The Rev. gentleman lost his chantableness in his strong desire to abuse the Examiner, and to this end he toiled as earnestly as any Italian Artist could do on a musical instrument. He admitted that the grant from the council was almost all spent, and asked for another grant.—After making a fair show of superabundance of ill temper and spleen towards the Examiner, he sat down.

Mr. Cook said that the Rev. gentleman must admit that persons had got aid who did not deserve it, and that some persons had got aid twice in a week. To which the Rev. gentleman granted assent, but said the instances were very few. Mr Cook said the Examiner was not to blame for he, Mr. Cook, had supplied the information, and he could now vouch for it. As a member of that committee, he, Mr. C., had signed the orders, and had asked the Editor of the Examiner to insert the names, and he gave him the information.

Mr. Clementi said that in future no groceries would be given.

Mr. Cook said that some days the orders had amounted to nearly $100.

Councillors Dixon and Paterson held that it was right to publish what was being done with the people's money.

Mr. Cook charged certain parties with getting picks axes, barrows, &c., at the expense of the Charity Committee, and of getting a gift of a costly rule for the order.

Communications were read from Mr. Bertram stating that certain parties were desirous of buying two islands in the river, and asking for instructions as to what the council would advise.

From Boyd Smith & Co., in reference to the water off George Street flooding their property, and asking that some means be adopted to prevent it.

From C. A. Weller asking the town to refund the county a moiety of the celebrated $425, as also the county, and in default a chancery suit to be instituted.

From R. Romaine refusing to act as School Trustee.

From I Beauvais asking that the council pay him rent due by a tenant in his house.

From Jerry McCarthy offering to draw the wood required by the council for 19 cents a load. during the year.

From Mr. Romaine asking the council a memorialize the Government at Ottawa to improve the navigation of the Otonabee

From the Capt in of the Fire Brigade as to the state of the hose, and stating that the india rubber hose is defective, and also submitting accounts from the company.

The Clerk submitted a list of men from Ashburnham, whom the town were to employ on cutting the hill east of the proposed bridge on Smith Street.

From Edr. Pearce, County Clerk, stating that the County Council had objected to Mr. Carnegie as arbitrator on accounts between the town and county.

Mr. Pearce's letter was received.

The communication of Boyd, Smith & Co'y was referred to the Street Inspector to report.

The communication of the Captain of the Fire Brigade was referred to the Fire Committee.

The letter from Mr. Weller was received.

Mr. Paterson thought that the council should pay over the one-half of the $425 and be done with it.

It was referred to the town Solicitor.

Mr. Bertram's letter was referred to the Finance Committee.

Jerry McCarthy's letter was received.

On motion of Mr. Helm seconded by Mr. Hopkins $200 were granted to the Charity Committee.

Moved by Mr. McClelland, seconded by Mr Cook, that Mr. D. W. Dumble be appointed School Trustee instead of Mr Romaine, resigned.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Helm, seconded by Mr. Paterson, that Mr. W. A Morrow be Trustee instead of Mr. Romaine.

The amendment was carried.

Mr. Cahill read a report of the Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee recommend payment of the following accounts :

J. I. Davidson. Stationery.....	$40 00
J. Bertram, Glass.....	4 05
Gas Co'y, Coal for fire dept.....	30 00

An item for $10 for cedar delivered in 1871 was laid over for enquiry

Scott & Edwards, law expenses...	171 97
Jas. O'Connell, trespass to lot....	4 00
Estate of T. Lannin.....	8 04

The committee could not recommend the payment of rent and taxes to Mr Beauvais for his tenant.

The application of James Webb for remission of taxes was laid over for further enquiry.

The statement of the Town Trust Commissioners was before the committee but the committee thought the statement should be dealt with by the Auditors rather than by the Finance Committee.

On motion of Mr. Cahill seconded by Mr. Helm, the report was adopted.

Mr Thornton, chairman of the License Committee reported : but refusing to recommend a license to Mr. Spence, as the issue of more licenses would seriously interfere with the market butchers, and might result in the market stalls being abandoned. The report was received after discussion, Mr. Paterson and Mr. McClelland contending that there was a By-law regulating the matter, and that the committee could not interfere with the By-law.

Here there was some general cross fire over Smith Town Hill, and what it cost per yard to remove it.

Mr. Rutherford submitted a report of the special committee on the Smith Street bridge, and approaches.

That they have examined the ground and find about one foot frost and that of a loose nature Your committee have received an offer from Messrs. Croly and Curtis to make the approach on east side of river according to profiles already furnished by Town Engineer, for the sum of twenty-five cents per yard. They also agree to take our men in the proportion of 3 to 2. Your committee recommend the acceptance of their offer. The report was amended by adding the following :—And that the Council shall only be pledged to carry out this tender on conditions that there is $300 furnished by Messrs. Curtis and Croly, and $200 by Ashburnham

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr Thornton,—That Messrs. Hopkins, Helm, Cook and the mover be a special committee with the Clerk to advertize and let the market tolls for the current year.—Carried.

By-laws were submitted and read and passed to be submitted to the people : one for $10,600 to meet expenses that have been incurred in building bridges, etc., and one for $12,000 to pay for the South Ward School and also for erecting two other ward schools, one in the north ward and one in the west part of the town

The council adjourned for two weeks.

THE IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

The Imperial Parliament opened on the 8th instant. The following is the Speech from the throne.

My Lords and Gentlemen :

It is with much satisfaction that I again resort to the advice and assistance of my Parliament.

My relations with all foreign powers continue of a cordial character The insurrectionary movement, which during the last six months has been maintained in the Turkish provinces of Bosnia and the Herzegovina, and which the troops of the Sultan have up to the present time been unable to repress, has excited the attention and interest of the great European Powers. I have considered it my duty not to stand aloof from the efforts now being made by the allied and friendly Governments to bring about a pacification of the disturbed districts, and I have accordingly, while respecting the independence of the Porte, joined in urging on the Sultan the expediency of adopting such measures of administrative reform as may remove all reasonable cause of discontent on the part of this Christian subject.

I have agreed to purchase, subject to your sanction, the shares which belonged to the Khedive of Egypt in the Suez Canal, and I rely with confidence upon your enabling me to complete the transaction, in which the public interests are deeply involved.

The representations which I addressed to the Chinese Government as to the attack made in the course of last year on an expedition sent from Bahmo to the Western Provinces of China, have been received in a friendly spirit. The circumstances of that lamentable outrage are now the subject of an enquiry, in which I have thought it right to request that the members of my diplomatic service should take part. I await the result of this enquiry to the fines convicted as to lead to the discovery and punishment of the offenders. The papers on all the above subjects will be laid before you

I am deeply thankful for the uninterrupted health which my dear son, the Prince of Wales, has enjoyed during his journey through India, and the loyal welcome with which he has been received by my Indian subjects of all classes and many races and creeds they are happy under my rule and regard to my Throne. It is my hope that the direct government of my Indian Empire now transferred to the Crown, no formal addition was made to the style and titles of the Sovereign. I have deemed the present a fitting opportunity for supplying this omission, and a bill on the subject will be presented to you.

The humane and enlightened policy constantly pursued by this country, in putting an end to slavery within her own dependences and in suppressing the slave trade throughout the world, makes it important that the action of British national ships in the territorial waters of foreign States should be in harmony with this great principle ; I have, therefor, given directions for the issue of a Royal Commission to enquire into all treaty engagements and other international obligations bearing upon this subject, and all instructions from time to time issued to my naval officers, with a view to ascertain whether any steps ought to be taken to secure for my ships and their commanders abroad greater power for the maintenance of the right of personal liberty. A Bill will be laid before you for punishing slave traders who are subjects of native Indian princes

The affairs of my Colonial Empire, the general prosperity of which has continued to advance their interests, have received a large share of my attention. Papers of importance and interest will soon be in your hands, showing the proceedings with respect to the Conference of the South African Colonies and States.

The murder of a high officer of the States Settlement, whilst acting in a neighbouring Malay State, and the disorders attending on that outrage, demanded the interference of my troops I trust that the operations, which were energetically conducted, though not without the loss of some valuable lives have restored order and re-established the just influence and authority of this country.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons :—

I have directed the estimates for the year to be prepared and presented to you without delay.

My Lords and Gentlemen :—

Bills for regulating the ultimate tribunal of appeal for the United Kingdom, and for the amendment of the Merchant Shipping laws will be immediately submitted to your Legislation will be proposed relating to Universities and primary education. Your attention will also be called to a measure for promoting economy and efficiency in the management of prisoners, and at the same time effecting reformation and hardiness. Other important measures, as the time of the Session permits, will be introduced to your notice, and I pray that your deliberations may, under the Divine blessing, result in the happiness and contentment of my people.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

In the debate on the Address in the House of Lords.

The EARL OF DERBY, replying to a speech by Earl Granville, said ; "We have every motion to insist on only what is strictly reasonable from China, but we cannot go back from what we have demanded I sincerely hope China will not be guilty of evasion to shield the guilty." In regard to the insurrection in Herzegovina, Lord Derby admitted that apprehension were, probably not without cause ; that if he comes were not promptly suppressed, Servia and Montenegro might join in it, and general contagion ensue, which would reopen the whole Eastern Question. A war of that kind infinitely becomes a religious war between Mussulman and Christians. Even if no actual conflict ensued, feelings of animosity would be communed to Europe, but would cause no trouble in another part of the world. There were grave reasons for England's agreeing to the Austrian note, and he repeated some of those put forward by Mr. Disraeli The note continued Lord Derby, was not in contravention of the treaty of Paris Even if it did not result in a pacification, the agair would be influenced to the diminution of a local disturbance, without European importance He defended the Government from criticisms made against it for not summoning Parliament immediately upon the purchase of the Suez Canal shares The matter would now have a more careful examination than during the first enthusiasm. The purchase was made to secure uninterrupted passage through Egypt and to prevent the establishment of foreign monopolys Government was engaged in negotiations with Ferdinand De Lesseps which they hoped would result in the introduction of an English element in the management of the Canal. The Khedive having applied for two English financiers, Mr. Cave was sent to ascertain in what capacity they were required, and what they would be expected to perform. Mr. Cave was instructed to abstain from mixing in any financial schemes. Government disclaimed any desire to meddle with the Khedive's financial affairs. The Government have succeeded without pressure in inducing the Khedive to withdraw from an unintentional attack on Zanzibar, and have also obtained an assurance that the Khedive will not entertain the project of the conquest of Abyssinia. We have reason to think an honorable peace will shortly be concluded, and Egyptian troops recalled Lord Derby stated that the first fugitive slave circular was drawn up by Sir Richard Baggally and Sir John Holker, and with—Lord Cairns doubted if its secondary—use because of the manifestation of public feeling against it. He defended the appointment of a Royal Commission to enquire into the whole subject.—The Address was adopted.

HARD TIMES and the POOR.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir,—In looking over your paper, I noticed the list of poor receiving aid. I do not suspect that this list contains the whole receiving aid from Municipal funds The public would have some satisfaction and ought to know how many and who the parties are receiving aid Should not the head of the family figure on the list ? Or is it an error of the printer that there are so many "Mrs." instead of "Mr." Are the latter ones ashamed to receive aid? Well, if they are not, they ought to be ashamed of themselves. I have seen papers commenting on the hard times say "what a blessing the mild winter is to the poor, or the suffering would be still greater." But what nonsense it is to talk of hard times with an over abundance of crops for many years past I ask a question, if we would not have poor, if showers of gold dust came down out of the clouds once in a while ? This would cause at first great excitement and commotion, but the result in the end would be, many would find it toilsome to separate the gold from the soil, and would rather wait with expectation for big lumps of gold to come In the meantime the more industrious would grow rich. I repeat it again, what bosh it is to talk of hard times, and the suffering of the cold winter, when any amount of wood is carried down the river in the spring, when lots of wood is allowed to USE CLARK & CO'S EXTRA QUALITY SIX CORD COTTON, with ANCHOR ON SPOOL. Leading Sewing Machine Agents say it is the best.

CROWDED OUT—For want of space we are compelled to leave over a large amount of district news, together with other interesting matter.

THE COUNCIL held its first meeting in the new council chamber on Monday evening. The Clerk and Treasurer will be found in his new quarters for the future.

REV. W. MITCHELL'S Lecture on Tuesday evening was very successful considering the severe weather. There was a fair and appreciative audience, and the lecture was instructive and entertaining.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS.—Messrs. Rush, Eskedge & Co., have bought out Mr. John Moloney's stock of groceries and liquors, and are now doing business at Moloney's old stand.

ACCIDENT.—A few days ago while Mr W McDonnell of Otonabee, was going home on horseback, his horse got frightened at a dog running out suddenly, and threw Mr. McDonnell. By this one of his ribs was broken, and other injuries sustained, but we are glad to learn that he is recovering, although slowly.

The Best Sewing Cotton for Hand or Machine Sewing is CLARK & CO'S EXTRA QUALITY SIX CORD. Notice the Anchor on each Spool.

BOBCAYGEON.—The Rev. A. F. Tully was ordained on the 10th inst., at Bobcaygeon. The ordination was conducted by the Rev. K. Macallan, assisted by the Revd's Messrs. Patterson, Lockhead and Fotheringham. At four in the afternoon tea was served to a large number, after which addresses were delivered by the

ANOTHER OLD SETTLER GONE.—Died at North Monaghan on the 2nd Feb'y., Mr. Wm. Campbell, at the advanced age of 85 years. Deceased was a native of the County of Monaghan, Ireland, and emigrated to Canada just half a century ago, settling on the West half of Lot no. 8, in the 10th concession of this township, where he remained to his death His remains were interred in the family burying ground at Cavan church.

MIDLAND RAILWAY DIRECTORS.—At the general annual meeting of the shareholders of the Midland Railway of Canada, held at Port Hope on 14th inst., the following gentlemen were re-elected directors:—A. Hugel; Lewis Ross, M. P. W. Fraser; T. C. Wallbridge and Geo. A. Cox; the two latter being the appointees of the bondholders in England. Mr A. Hugel was re elected President and General Manager.

REMARKABLE CHANGE.—On Thursday evening last about ten o'clock, several flashes of lightning, followed by peals of thunder, made the people wonder as to what was coming, as during the day previously, sleighing had been good, and signs of its continuance were considered reasonable. Shortly after the lightning it began to rain, and continued to do so for nearly 18 hours. The oldest inhabitant remembers nothing like this in the shape of weather.

SAWING WOOD.—We clip the following from the Bobcaygeon Independent:—"Young Mr. Joseph White may be considered the boss sawyer of this district. On a recent occasion he was sawing for Mr. David Hunter, and cut 50 cords in eleven hours. The machine was a new one, manufactured by Peter Hamilton of Peterborough, driven by a six horse power. The wood was all maple and beech. Can any one beat this? The wood is now on Pigeon Lake Shore"

ANOTHER OLD SETTLER GONE.—The funeral of the late James Brown, took place here on Monday, at 2 o'clock, p.m., from the residence of his Son in-law, Wm. Landy, Esq. Deceased was a native of Ireland, and brother to the late John Brown of Port Hope. He emigrated to Canada about the year 1829 or '30, and afterwards settled in Manvers, where he died, in the 94th year of his age. He leaves three sons and three daughters, his wife being dead some years. He is one of those who lived to a good old age, and has witnessed the growth and prosperity of Canada until it has become a Dominion

DORCAS SOCIETY.—The Dorcas Society acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the following donations during the week: Mrs. David Macdougall, a large parcel of Clothing; Mr. Hugh Bertram, 2 bars of Potatoes; and $5 from the Bible Christian Church, per Mrs. Gordon. The committee met as usual on Thursday, and distributed clothing, bed, flour, potatoes and groceries, to about ten families, all of whom were known to be really needy and deserving.

KEENE.—James Millar, Esq., is buying wheat at Keene, for which he offers the highest cash price, if of good quality.—This will make things busy in that enterprising village. There is an abundant supply in Otonabee Many of the farmers have two seasons' produce in their barns yet. Perhaps when the market is brought to their doors they will avail themselves of its advantages.

A BEAR SAVES A MAN'S LIFE.—A correspondent from the back country informs us of a laughable episode that occurred northward. A young man took to himself a wife last fall, but after the honey moon was over, matters took a change, not at all pleasing to the gentleman. He determined not to put up with matters as they were, and proceeded to the woods to gather poison berries enough to end life's troubles. While gathering and musing on the ills of this mundane sphere he heard a noise in the bramble not far distant, and imagining he saw a bear emerge therefrom, he suddenly started to run toward brush? Nay, nay, but homeward, and into the arms of his dear Aramenta, satisfied that her embrace would be preferable to one from the grizzly creature imagination fancied in the woods. Since this transpired he bears home lectures with more grace, and thanks his stars that brain made his appearance, and thus saved him from becoming a victim to a decoction of wild berries, not even flavored with old rye. He could now take the bear to his embrace in gratitude for saving his life.

LAKEFIELD.

THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL of the Village of Lakefield met in their new Council Chamber on Monday evening. The New Room is quite a convenience both to the councillors and ratepayers who desire to attend the meetings, as it is in a more central place than when it was held in the school house. All the members were present, the Reeve in the chair. The Clerk read over the minutes of the previous meetings which were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From J. C. Sherin, editor of the Lakefield News, regarding the clerk a refusal to copy the minutes of the previous meetings from the for minute Book publication in the News

The Clerk said that Mr. Sherin came to him in rather an ungiemanly way and demanded from him a copy of the minutes which he refused, as he was only paid by the Village to do the Clerk's work, and he considered that he had no right to edit the Lakefield News without he got extra pay for it.

Mr. Sherin then addressed the Council and said that he never demanded the minutes from the Clerk, but simply a look at the book to copy them from.

After considerable cross firing between them, the Reeve said that the editor ought to attend the meeting, and if he could not possibly get there, for the Clerk to allow him to copy the minutes from the book.

LICENSES.

From Michael Collins, asking the Council to grant him a shop license.

Mr. Hull said that about a year ago the ratepayers petitioned the Council not to grant shop licenses, and that a Bylaw was passed to that effect, and therefore the Council could do nothing until they were petitioned again.

Mr Carveth said that if they were going to grant shop licenses that they would not apply for hotel licenses at all.

Mr McDonald said he did not care if they granted every person a license.

The Clerk presented a By-law for the purpose of granting livery stable licenses.

Moved by Mr. Hull, seconded by Mr. Shields—That as the Village petitioned the Council in 1875 to grant no shop licenses, and as that petition is still in force, we cannot grant Mr. Collins his request for a shop license.—Carried.

DEBENTURES FOR SALE.

After some discussion as to raising money on Debentures to pay off the school debt, it was moved by Mr. Hull, seconded by Mr. Dinwoodie—That the Reeve and Clerk are hereby authorized to sign Debentures for the amount of $100 to pay Mr. Payton, and that they are hereby authorized to pay Mr Payton his note.

Messrs. German, McDonald and Carveth [illegible] that they had to take out the license for the next two months the same as if they were getting them for a whole year.

MUNICIPAL GRANT.

On motion of the Reeve, Mr Saulter was heard in reference to the school grant.

Mr Saulter then addressed the Council as to the Municipal grant of $130 which they made no application for, thinking that it came through the County Council, and said that they had to show it in the returns to the Legislative Assembly so as to get the Legislative Grant next year.

COLLECTOR'S ROLL.

Mr Hull enquired if the Collector had made his return of the roll yet, and on hearing that he had not, said that it was too bad the Collector had not delivered the roll after an extension of two months.

ACCOUNTS.

From J. C. Sherin, printing $4, which on motion was ordered to be paid.

Mr. Hull enquired from the Clerk if he had received from the County Treasurer any of the back taxes, and said that there was about $11 to their credit there which they should have.

The Reeve read a copy of a letter he had sent to the late Treasurer of the Village requesting him to send the Day Book and the balance of the money belonging to the Municipality to the Treasurer that was appointed this year.

Moved by Mr Hull, seconded by Mr Dinwoodie—That Mr Sherin is hereby requested to pay over the balance of money in his hands to Mr Sanders the newly appointed Treasurer for 1876, taking the Treasurer's receipt for the same, and this Council cannot entertain his request in giving up the Bond as it is the property of the Municipality.—Carried.

The Council adjourned till Thursday 24th inst., at 7.30 p.m.

PENNY READINGS.—On Friday evening last, the fourth entertainment of a series in aid of a fund on behalf of the poor of the Village, was held in Leonard's Hall. The audience numbered about 200. Major Boulton presiding. He also read "Lady Clare" which was well received. Mr Blomfield sang "Little Polly Perkins" which was encored. The Rev Mr Richards read "The death and burial of a Pauper" in very good style Messrs. Graham, Griffith, Beatty and others sang some pieces in a very pleasing manner. The Misses Cottons sang "Come, Birdie, Come," and were loudly encored, when the sang "Good old Friends" Miss Postlethwaite played the accompaniments. We believe that next Friday evening is to be the last of the series, when several from Peterboro will take part in the entertainment.

BAPTIST SOIREE.—The Baptists here had a very successful tea and social on Tuesday evening, although the weather was very unfavorable a goodly number of the people of all the denominations turned out, and by their presence showed their sympathies with their Pastor, Rev. Mr. Radcliffe, in raising some funds to enlarge and repair the parsonage. After tea in the Baptist Church, all adjourned to the neat little Bible Christian Church which had been kindly placed at their service for the evening. Rev. E. Roberts, so well known and respected in Smith and vicinity as long connected with the Baptist cause there, was called to the chair. Short and appropriate addresses were given by the chairman, Rev. W. L. Scott, Methodist, Rev. Mr. Clarke, Presbyterian, Rev. Mr. Richard, B. C., Revd's Gerrie and Radcliffe, and Messrs. Stratton and Crook. The choir of the Presbyterian Church, under the excellent leadership of E. Graham, Esq., provided the musical part of the entertainment, singing several pieces in a very chaste and attractive style, Miss Louisa Johnston playing the accompaniments on the organ. After votes of thanks to the B. C. friends for the use of their church, the choir for their excellent music, and the speakers for their addresses, the Rev. Mr Gerrie pronounced the benediction when almost all retired to the Baptist Church again. An over-abundance of good things had been provided, and hence this second attempt to lessen the quantity. The ladies who provided the dainties deserve great praise for the manner in which the tea was got up and served—but Lakefield teas are always a success in this respect. The odd recess of the different clergymen indicated the greatest harmony and good will amongst all professing christians in the place.

PORT HOPE.

In obedience to a popular petition, the Public School Board of Port Hope has resolved to shorten the hours of study by opening the schools at 9 30 a. m., closing at 12 a. m.; opening again at 1;30., and closing for the time from 3.30 until 4 o'clock to be devoted to enquiries by the tea chests into the causes of irregularity of attendance on the part of the pupils.

The Port Hope Harbour Commissioners have decided that all grain shipped on board schooners lying at that port, between 15th December and 15th March, be allowed to pass as a toll of half a cent for every pound.

Wm. Craig & Son, of Port Hope, the other day shipped two cases, containing 181 dozen kinds of leather, to the Japanese Government for use in the State bookbindery, which is under the charge of Mr. Wm. Paterson, formerly of Port Hope This is the second consignment of the firm to the Celestial Empire.

The Dunkin Bill was defeated in the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham by a vote of 22 to 17. There was a majority of three in its favour among the members from the junior county, and the defeat is said to be chiefly owing to the representatives from Haldimand and Hamilton townships, in Northumberland. Another attempt to carry the Bill will probably be made at the June session of the council.

SNOWDON.

SNOWDON IRON ORE.—On Saturday last the first shipment of ore that ever entered Toronto arrived by the Toronto and Nipissing railway (10 ton-). The ore is from the Snowdon iron mines, and is of the kind called magnetic oxide. This shipment will be succeeded by others during the season of sleighing and will amount to some hundreds of tons. It will remain on the docks of the T. & N. R. R. until spring, when it is intended to be shipped to Cleveland as a test. In extracting this ore the proprietors have sunk perpendiculary upon the bed a depth of fifteen feet, and now working in compact bed entirely free from the fractures which characterized the ore on the surface, thus proving the correctness of Professor Chapman's opinion, as giving in his report upon this mine. The ore appears also to be even better than that previously assayed. In connection with this matter it may be well to say here that according to recently published Trade and Navigation Returns, 32.129 tons of iron ore were sent from Ontario to the United States last year for manufacture.

BOBCAYGEON

INDUCTION SERVICES—BOBCAYGEON, Feb 10.—The ordination of Rev. A. F. Tully took place in the Presbyterian Church at eleven o'clock this morning. The ordination was conduced by Rev. K. McLennan of Peterboro', assisted by Rev. Messrs. Patterson, Lockhead, and Fotheringham, An eloquent sermon was preached by Rev Mr. Fotheringham to newly ordained minister At four in the afternoon tea was served to over four hundred people in Tailor's Hall, after which addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs Clarke, Fotheringham, Patterson, Lockhead, Ewing, Donald, and Cameron.

MILLBROOK.

LECTURE—Last Thursday evening the Rev. W. H. Mitchell, of Montreal delivered a Lecture on "Practical Maxims for Every Day Life" The Rev. E. Morrow, A.M., of Peterboro, was called to the chair. The audience was respectable and the lecture was eloquent and instructive. A vote of thanks moved by the Rev. Mr. Barker, seconded by Rev. Mr. Allen was tendered to the Rev. Lecturer for his able and interesting [illegible] The Rev. Mr. Haning, pronounced the benediction.

KEENE

There is a fair prospect that business is about to become more lively in this usually quiet village The firm under the style of Winans, Butler & Co., of Cobourg, have arranged to establish a branch of their business here for the purchase of wheat. The agency has been given to Jas. Millar, Esq., Reeve of Otonabee. Our business men seem quite sanguine of the revival of trade and that it will make money circulate more freely in this place.

MEETINGS.—The Anniversary Methodist Missionary Services were held at Keene last week. The Rev. Mr. Watson, of Peterboro, preached eloquent and appropriate sermons on the Sabbath. The Missionary Meeting were ably and successfully sustained by the Revds. Mr Watson, Mr. McCullough, of Millbrook and Mr. Andrews of Hiawatha. These gifted ministers gave very eloquent and stirring speeches on behalf of the cause they advocated. The results for Missionary purposes promise a gratifying advance on last year.

COBOURG.

DAMAGE TO BRIDGES.—Cobourg, Feb. 11—A heavy rain storm set in here last night about eleven, continuing until four o'clock to-day, doing much damage, many of the cellars and shops being filled with water, destroying goods. A great many bridges and dams have given out, and have been swept away, among them the factory dam and bridge; also a bridge east of Grafton, on the G. T. Railway, which will prevent traffic on that road for some time.

FENELON FALLS.

TROTTING ON THE ICE.—Fenelon Falls Feb. 9—The races here were largely attended by spectators. It snowed considerably on the first day, making the track rather bad

For the Green Purse on the first day, Irish Boy was first, Jolly Boy second, Silver Cloud third.

For the Inkeepers Purse, Tucaucsan was first, George Wilkes second, Little Ned third.

On the second day, in the Township Purse, George Wilkes was first, William Montgomery second, Fenelon Maid third

The open purse was won by Toronto Chief, Walker second, Snowflake third.

OYSTER SUPPER.—On Monday evening last Mr. W Campbell, chief constable of the village, entertained some of his friends to an oyster supper at the "McArthur House." The usual loyal toasts, speeches, songs, &c., were given when the company broke up about midnight.

ORA BAND.—We notice paragraphs in the Lindsay and Port Hope papers with reference to the merits of their own and neighboring brass bands. Without knowing much of the subject under discussion, we are prepared to bet any sum within the resources of a country publisher—any ten cents for instance—that the Fenelon Falls band is a leetle ahead of any other in this section of country. We are prompted to this offer by pure patriotism; and if it should be taken up, and we should lose, we trust that our fellow patriots will at once get up a subscription and collect ten or fifteen dollars for our benefit.—Gazette.

ACCIDENT.—A slight accident happened to Mr. John Maunder, of Lindsay, at the races here on Wednesday last. He was driving along the course on the wrong side and in endeavouring to get out of the way of one of the trotting horses, ran his cutter too far up on the bank of snow and was thrown out. His head was struck by the runner of the cutter's cutter, which inflicted a cut sufficiently formidable to render necessary the services of a doctor, who put in a couple of stitches, which, we suppose, will be all the professional treatment required.—Gazette.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

COUNCIL MEETING.—Council met pursuant to adjournment on 4th inst., All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The Clerk to bring the matter under the notice of the County Treasurer for settlement. An order was given on the Treasurer in favor of W. Howden for the sum of $3, for cleaning Town Hall, windows and furniture. The following appointments were made:—Mr. William Wood, Clerk; T. Bendburn, Treasurer W. Collins, Assessor; A. Soanes, Collector. By-laws to appoint overseers of highways, pound keepers, and fence viewers were read a first time. CONSUMPTION CURED.—An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple Vegetable Remedy, for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a Positive and Radical Cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. GIVE

O, life's pitiful pangs and its woe,
With no one to sooth or allay them!
O, the hearts that beat faintly and low
For kind greetings—and no one to say them!

Does a starving bird all their yore bind,
And it's rich throat not sing a blessing?
So with hearts that are mated on earth,
And spring diamonds bud and be growing!

O, open the windows of life
To the famished who struggle and perish!
O, beckon them in from the strife,
To walk in the gardens to cherish!

We none of us hold the secret
Of a blessing that here cut our neighbor;
We must gather and give, soon and late,—
We must compass the poor with our labor

O, life's pitiful pangs and its woe,
With no one to sooth or allay them!
O, the hearts that beat faintly and low
For kind greetings—and no one to say them!

LUTHER AT HOME.

As the patriarchs of old sat in the door of their tent to bid the wayfarer welcome to its shade and hospitality, so dwelt Luther in the Augustine convent. Its door stood open to all. Thither came the poor for alms, the sick for healing, the [illegible] diet, the [illegible] to see and converse with the illustrious occupant. The social meal was the supper. Luther would come to the table, weary with the labors of the day, not unfrequently holding a book in his hand, which he would continue to read for some time. All kept silent till he had lifted his eyes from the page. Then he would engage in the [illegible]; and was the signal for conversation, which soon became general. Around his board would be gathered, it might be, some of his fellow-professors; or old friends from a distance, as Link from Nuremberg, or Probst from Bremen; or eminent scholars from a distant land; or statesmen and courtiers, who chanced to be travelling on some embassy. Men of every rank and of all professions found their way to the supper table in the Augustine convent, and received an equal welcome from the illustrious host. In those days news travelled slowly for the newspaper was not then in being, and the casual traveller was often the first to bring the intelligence to Wittemberg, that some great battle had been fought, or that the Turk had again broken into Hungary, or that a new Pope had to be sought for the vacant chair of St. Peter. No likelier place was there to get early information of what was passing in the world, than at the supper-table in the Augustine; if the guests were delighted, the traveller too was rewarded by hearing Luther's comments on the news he had been the first to retail. How often were statesmen astonished at the deeper insight and truer forecast of the Reformer in matters belonging to a province which they deemed exclusively their own! With terrible sagacity he could carry it to the heart of a policy, and with characteristic courage would tear the mask from kings. Or it might happen that some distinguished scholar from a distant land was a guest in the Augustine. What an opportunity for ascertaining the true translation of some word, which had occured, it might be in a passage on which the Reformer had been occupied that very day. Or the company at table was more promiscuous so, to, was the conversation. Topics grave and gay would come up by turns. Now it was the scheme of the monarch, and now the affairs of the peasant, that were passed in review. Shrewd remarks, flashes of wit, bursts of humor, would enliven the supper-room. The eye of Luther would begin to burn, and with beaming face he would look around on the listeners as he scattered amongst them his sayings now serious, now playful, now droll, but always embodying profound wisdom. Supper ended Aurifaber, or some other of the company, would retire and commit to writing the more notable things that had just fallen from the Reformer, that so in due time what had been at first the privilege of only a few, might become the property of all in Luther's Table Talk. A Latin chat, or a German hymn, sung by a chorus of voices, in which Luther's tenor was easily distinguished would close the evening.—From "The History of Protestantism, by the Rev. Dr. Wylie.

The Lawyer's Trade.

When a young man entered a Detroit lawyer's office to study law, the petitioner sat down beside him and said:

"Now, see here, I have no time to fool away, and if you don't run out well I won't keep you here thirty days. Do you want to make a good lawyer?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, now listen. Be polite to old people, because they have cash. Be good to the boys, because they are growing up to a cash basis. Work in with reporters and get puffs. Go to church for the sake of example. Don't foul any time away on poetry, and don't even look at a girl until you can please a case. If you can follow these instructions you will succeed. If you cannot, go and learn to be a doctor and kill your best friends."

A Beautiful Idea.

It cannot be that this earth is man's only abiding place; it cannot be that our life is a bubble, cast up by the ocean of eternity to float for a moment on its waves, then sink into nothingness. Else why is it that the glorious aspirations which burn like angels from the temple of our hearts are forever wandering about unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and clouds come over us with a beauty that is not of earth, and then pass off and leave us to muse upon their faded loveliness? Why is it that the stars which hold their festivals around the midnight throne are set so far above the grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And finally, why is it that the bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view but for a moment and then taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of affection to flow back to Alpine torrents upon our hearts We are born for a higher destiny than that of death; there is a realm where the [illegible] never fade, where the stars will be spread out before us like the jewels that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautiful beings that here pass before us like shadows, will stay in our presence forever.—Anonymous.

A Sweet young girl went into a Cedar Rapids music-store, and asked the Clerk if he had "A Heart that loves Me Only." "No," he said "but here's A Heart to Heart Talk That wouldn't do, but before she turned to go, she asked, "Have you 'One Sweet Kiss before We Part?' That Cedar Rapids clerk looked up and down the store; the book-keeper was out; the boss was up stairs trying to sell a Granger a [illegible] melodeon, and so [illegible] over the counter and turned out about [illegible] of the most [illegible] finally finished articles that the astonished young lady had ever seen offered in a job-lot.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

Destroying Weeds.—A correspondent of the New England Farmer, tells how he eradicates weeds, as follows: Some fifteen years ago I turned up an acre of rich land and sowed it at the proper season with rye. It came up perfectly well, and promised a good crop. In the spring it looked very flourishing; but there soon appeared multitudes of weeds, which continued to flourish till at the time for harvest, they were much more conspicuous than the rye. After threshing, the straw, which I usually valued more than the grain, sold very ill, hardly at half the usual price in Boston. The rye itself, was full of seeds, many of which refused to be separated by the winnowing. I determined to avoid this evil if I could; so I ploughed up an acre, next to that which had served me so ill, for it lay until next spring, and waited till a rich crop of weeds sprang up, which, when they were five or six inches high, I ploughed in, and waited till another crop of somewhat later weeds were in the same condition; these were plowed in, and afterward a third crop of the latest weeds were served in the same manner. It was then sown with rye and produced the [illegible] most beautiful and luxuriant crop I had ever seen. I have no doubt that the three crops of weeds did the land more good than an ample covering of barn manure would have done. The same course successfully pursued since has been equally successful. My crop of rye this season was the best and largest I have ever had, and the straw was the best—perfectly

Good Seed Sulphur.—Whether hogs require sulphur as an essential to health, or whether it is sought by them as a condiment, may not be discovered. But one thing is true, they devour it with greed whenever it is to be found. If it is for this purpose probable that they can eat large quantities of soft coal, which contains a large amount of sulphur. Perhaps this is the most economical method of supplying hogs with sulphur during winter, when they require a good deal of carbon. But in summer it is best to feed in to them in substances which contain less carbon on account of their producing less heat. Mustard is one of the best things for this purpose, and some of it should be sown in every pasture into which hogs are turned. If hogs are kept in, or are in small yards, it is well to supply them with the wild mustard that grows in the fields or highways, or to cultivate some of the better varieties for them. They will eat its leaves, its flowers, seeds, and stalks.—Home Journal.

The Adornment of a Farm House.—A vermilion farmer's daughter writes the Tribune as follows. I have read so many articles on the adornment of homes, and directions for so doing, that it seems an easy matter tastefully to furnish a house. it would seem as though one's brothers could not [illegible] labor any desire to exchange such pretty handiwork for a drinking saloon. Now I am a sincere admirer of nature and beauty in all their forms; though only a "country girl," I trust I have a keen appreciation of the good, the true, and the beautiful; but who can imagine the hunger void caused by the absence of the beautiful trifles which possess the power of contributing a deal of happiness to many temperments. Perhaps these trifles cannot be obtained in consequence of the perversity and whims of an old fashioned man. I know of more than one home from which house plants, birds, ferneries, [illegible] and pretty useful articles that might be fashioned by the tasteful fingers of the daughter, are excluded as nuisances, and a waste of time and money. Many unframed pictures that lie in the house useless might be framed with little expense, and would adorn the parlor walls. If the well-to-do farmer could only be brought to think so, money would not be thrown away in purchasing some pretty chaintz, upholster's fringe, etc., which with a small amount of ingenuity, would transform the solitary "spare room," into a tasteful sitting room. This may seem a small matter to many who have never had like experience. I do not expect the sympathy of those who possess that wand of power, a full purse and have but to wave the wand and their homes are furnished. Perhaps you may ask why I do not teach school work out, or do something to turn a few honest pennies, and enable me to purchase the articles. A very easy question to answer. My father did not send me to school long enough for me to acquire a sufficient education to enable me to become a teacher, and as for working out I have all I can in assisting my mother with the household affairs.

The Dairymen's Fund.—At the late meeting of dairymen at Rome, N Y., the Centennial Committee of the Convention was authorized "to proceed at once to the collection of a fund of $10,000 to defray the expenses necessary to a complete display of dairy products at the Exhibition. Subscriptions have been received to this fund already, but the larger part of it remains uncollected. In order to speed the work of collection the Committee have just issued a circular, in which they say that they believe every dairyman will have sufficient national pride to be appropriately represented at this gathering of nations, and be willing to contribute his small share of the expenses. The great interest has more than 3,000 cheese factories and creameries on the associated plan for the manufacture of its products, with hundreds of thousands of private dairies; and a small contribution from each factory would raise the sum needed. For each $10 contributed by any individual, firm, or corporation, Centennial stock will be duly issued. Should the amount [illegible] be greater than needed it will be employed to offer premiums for the best products. The Committee appeal to the dairymen of the whole country, to all citizens, and to the commercial interests of every town and city in the Union.'

To Test Beef, Etc.—Good beef is soft, fine and of an agreeable red color, lightly streaked through with white veins. If the fat is of a yellowish [illegible] is a sign of [illegible] and tender. The best [illegible] at is called porter-house [illegible] of beef are generally con[illegible] for roasting. Chicken [illegible] good should be picked dry [illegible] filled; their tenderness may [illegible] by the flexibility of their [illegible] the whiteness of their sk[illegible] distinguish tough best by i[illegible] is very often a whitish look [illegible] deep dark red color. [illegible] to distinguish whether [illegible] nder, try to thrust [illegible] the muscle if it [illegible] tough; if you can [illegible] your thumb through easily, the steak is tender. As to "which is the best cut for steaks," we usually prefer "porter-house," next a "sirloin steak;" or a "round," is often very nice. Dry-cooked pastry is unpalatable, as pudding detracts from the flavor of the meat. I think the male is more apt to be fat and tender.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
PURELY WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood when ever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no [illegible] is more universally required by everybody as a [illegible] purgative; and any secret or [illegible] is adopted into use in every country and among all classes, as the mild but effectual [illegible] Pill. The reason is, that it is more reliable and far more effectual than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounding. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of the remarkable cures of the following complaints, but space will not allow us to publish them. They are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any [illegible] they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangement as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken, for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels perfectly well often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

LEMON, VANILLA, ROSE, JESSAMINE, NECTARINE, CELERY, ORANGE, PEACH, NEROLI, CINNAMON, CLOVES, GINGER.

The superiority of these Extracts consists in their perfect purity and great strength. They are warranted free from Fusel Oil, Impure Acids and Alcohol, which enter into the composition of many of the fictitious fruit flavors now in the market. They are entirely true to their names, but are prepared from fruits of the best quality, and it is only necessary to state that a comparatively small quantity will be used.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Croup, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Pain or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Bleeding of the Lungs, Liver Complaint, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

Probably more than one-half of the mortality of the human family is caused by diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough, Influenza, and the like. Against these formidable enemies of human life, no remedy has ever been found so effectual as Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Scarcely a man, woman or child can be found in the whole civilized world who has not been cured, relieved, or benefited by this unrivalled medicine. Many of the most eminent clergymen in the land have sent us certificates, in which they state that they have found the Cherry Pectoral the only remedy that would relieve their throat troubles, and enable them to preach. Many of the most distinguished lawyers, judges, statesmen, and orators have also written us, that they were indebted to the Cherry Pectoral for the ability to fulfil their duties to the public. Actors and singers have found it the only preparation that would relieve the hoarseness and clear the voice for the proper rendering of music. Nearly every druggist in America can tell you of remarkable cures of Throat and Lung Complaints, effected by the Cherry Pectoral, within the circle of his personal knowledge. Many of these cures seem almost miraculous, and the public are justly astonished when they see published the certificates of men well known to them, who have been cured by this remedy of diseases which they had supposed were incurable. Almost every community has been blessed with some wonderful manifestation of the healing power of the Cherry Pectoral, and the public have learned to look for the most astonishing results from its use. Nothing else could induce so many people to take nauseous drugs as they do the Cherry Pectoral if they did not find it necessary to their health. Many a mother has had reason to bless the Cherry Pectoral for saving the life of her child, when all other remedies and physicians had failed to relieve the little sufferer. Many a person who has been given up to die by his friends, has been restored to health and happiness by the use of this wonderful medicine. Many a public speaker and singer owes his success to the fact that he has used the Cherry Pectoral. Many a minister of the Gospel has been enabled to preach for years longer than he could otherwise have done, by the timely use of this remedy. Many a lawyer has been saved from the necessity of abandoning his profession, by the use of the Cherry Pectoral. Many a family has been kept from sickness by the occasional use of this antidote to colds and coughs. Many a community has been saved from the ravages of epidemics by the timely use of the Cherry Pectoral. Many a life has been saved by it. Many a physician has found it the only remedy that would control the most obstinate cases of Throat and Lung Disease

THE LICENSE BILL

AN ACT to amend the Law respecting the sale of Fermented or Spirituous Liquors.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Act passed in the Preamble, thirty-seventh year of Her Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to amend and consolidate the law for the sale of Fermented or Spirituous Liquors"

Therefore Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario enacts as follows:—

1. All powers and duties conferred and imposed upon the commissioners of police and municipal councils respectively, by virtue of the said recited Act, shall hereafter exclusively belong to and be exercised and performed by a board of license commissioners, except where express provision is otherwise made in this Act and such board shall be composed of three persons to be appointed from time to time by the Lieutenant Governor in Council for each city, county,, union of counties, or electoral riding or division as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may think fit, and each of the commissioners shall cease to hold office on the thirty-first day of December in each year; but he may be reappointed, and the said office shall be honorary and without any remuneration.

2. The number of tavern licenses to be granted in the respective municipalities shall not in each year be in excess of the following limitations: in cities, towns and incorporated villages respectively, according to the following scale, that is to say, one for each full two hundred and fifty of the first one thousand of the population: and one for each full four hundred over one thousand of the population: but in no case shall this limit authorize any increase in any municipality in excess of the number of licenses therein issued for the year ending the first day of March next, unless from the future increase of the population the license commissioners shall think a larger number has become necessary, but not in any case exceeding the limit imposed by this Act;

(2.) And for the license year ending on the thirtieth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, in cities the reduction need not be more than one-fourth of the number under license now for the year ending the first day of March next;

(3.) The council of every city, town, village or township municipality may by by-law to be passed before the first day of March in any year limit the number of tavern licenses to be issued therein for the then ensuing year: Provided such limit is under the limit imposed by this Act. The council shall cause a certified copy of such by-law to be sent immediately after the passing thereof to the license commissioners.

(4.) In incorporated villages, being county towns, the limit may be five in number, and in the Town of Clifton three hotels, near the falls of Niagara, which may be licensed, may be excluded from the number which would otherwise be the maximum limit under this Act.

3. The number of the population which is to determine the number of license under this Act shall be according to the then last preceding census taken under the authority of the Dominion of Canada, except where the Commissioners shall be of opinion that owing to a large increase of population since such census, an increased number of licensed taverns is needed for the convenience and accommodation of travellers; and in that case, if the Commissioners so certify, and the council of the municipality memorialise the Lieutenant-Governor for such increase, the Lieutenant-Governor in council may authorise a new census to be taken under the authority of a by-law of the municipality and at the expense of the municipality, and the limit for the number of licenses shall then be, one for each full two hundred and fifty of the population under one thousand, and one for each five hundred over one thousand of the population

(2.) In case of the alteration or formation of any municipality subsequent to such census of the Dominion of Canada, the population of such municipality for the purpose of this Act, may be ascertained by the said commissioners by reference to the enumeration on which such census took place, or by a new census taken under the provisions of this section.

(3.) Where, since the said Dominion census, a census has been taken in any Municipality under the authority of the council having jurisdiction, the limit may be the same as in the case of a census taken under this section for the purpose of this Act.

4. The license commissioners may by resolution regulate and determine the several matters provided for in the ninth section of the said recited Act, at any time before the first day of May in each year, but where special grounds are shown, may issue one or more license (within the authorized limit) afterwards day.

5. In addition to the accommodation required by the said recited Act, each tavern or house of entertainment, shall be shown, to the satisfaction of the license commissioners, to be a well-appointed and sufficient eating house, with the appliances requisite for daily serving meals to travellers; and these requirements shall apply to all taverns or houses of entertainments, without any exception whatever, and continuously, for the whole period of the license

6. The council of any city or town may, by by-law to be passed before the first day of March in any year, prescribe any requirements in addition to those under the said recited Act or of this Act, as to accommodation to be possessed by taverns or houses of entertainment, as the council shall see fit; and the license commissioners upon receiving a copy of such by-law shall be bound to observe the provisions thereof; and such by-law shall continue in full force for such year and any future year until repealed.

7. Before any tavern license shall be granted, the person applying for the same shall enter into a bond to Her Majesty in the sum of two hundred dollars, with two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved of by the inspector in the sum of one hundred dollars each, conditioned for the payment of all fines and penalties such person may be condemned to pay for any offence against any Act, by-law or provisions in the nature of law, relative to taverns or houses of public entertainment then and thereafter to be in force, and to do, perform and observe all the requirements thereof, and to conform to all by-laws and regulations that may be established by competent authority in such behalf, and such bond shall be in the form expressed in Schedule A to this Act; and when executed shall be filed in the office of the inspector of licenses, to be by him transmitted to the office of the Provincial Treasurer.

8. The inspector of licenses under the said recited Act shall be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council from time to time for each city, county, union of counties, electoral riding or division as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may think fit, and such inspector shall possess all the powers and perform all the duties of the inspector for each township, town, incorporated village or city, under the provisions of the said recited Act, and each inspector so to be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, shall also be and discharge the duties of issuer of licenses and each inspector shall, before entering upon his duties, give such security as the Treasurer of the Province may require for the due performance of his said duties and for the payment over of all sums of money received by him according to the provisions of this Act and the salary of such inspector shall be fixed by the Order in Council under which he is appointed.

9. The report of the inspector, under the thirteenth section of the said recited Act, shall further state that the applicant is known to the inspector to be of good character and repute.

10. A shop license shall only be granted to such persons as shall have filed his application with the inspector on or before the first day of April in each year, and who shall have been reported by the inspector to the license commissioners to be a person of good character, and that his shop and premises are suitable for carrying on a reputable business.

11. The report of the inspector shall only be for the information of the license commissioners, who shall exercise their own discretion on each application and should there be no report to the effect aforesaid, then as the commissioners may think fit to determine.

12. The council of every city, town, village or township municipality may, by by-law to be passed before the first day of March, in any year, limit the number of shop license to be granted therein for the then ensuing year, and in such by-law or by any other by-law passed before the said day, may require the shopkeeper to confine the business of his shop solely and exclusively to the keeping and selling of liquor, or may impose any restrictions upon the mode carrying on such traffic as the council may think fit, and such by-law shall be binding upon the license commissioners, and any shop license to be issued shall conform to the provisions thereof; and such by-law shall remain in force for any future year until repealed.

13 Where the applicant for a tavern or shop license resides in a remote part of the county, or where for any other reason the license commissioners see fit, they may dispense with the report of the inspector, and act upon such information as may satisfy them in the premises.

14. A wholesale license shall be strictly limited to persons who carry on the business of selling by wholesale or in unbroken packages.

15. Manufacturers of native wines from grapes grown and produced in Ontario, and who sell such wines in quantities of not less than three gallons or one dozen bottles of not less than three half-pints each at one time, are exempted from any duty under this Act, and are not required to obtain any license for so selling wines so manufactured.

16. The following duties shall hereafter be payable, and shall be in lieu of all others, provincial or municipal, that is to say:

(1.) For each wholesale license the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars: each shop license in cities one hundred dollars; in towns, eighty dollars; and in other municipalities, sixty dollars;

(2.) The council of any municipality may by by-law require a larger duty to be paid for tavern or shop licenses therein, but not in excess of two hundred dollars in the whole, unless the by-law has been approved by the electors under the twenty-third section of the said recited Act:

(3.) In any municipality where, under the provisions of sections two, three and twenty-three of the said recited Act, and of any by-law in that behalf, a larger sum or duty in the whole than the foregoing is now payable for any shop or tavern license, such sum or duty shall be the lowest duty payable under this Act for any such license until altered by by-law of the municipality to be passed for the purpose, but in no case shall the duty be under the amount in this section specially prescribed.

17. The duty in all cases shall be paid to the inspector, and upon payment he shall issue the respective licenses authorized by the license commissioners and it shall no longer be necessary that the treasurer of the municipality shall endorse or sign any receipt therefor, and the inspector shall daily, on receipt of any duty, pay the same into one of the chartered banks designated by the Treasurer of the Province to the credit of an account to be entitled "License Fund Account for the city (or County or Riding) of ," and all sums shall be drawn therefrom by cheque of the inspector, countersigned by two of the license commissioners.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

So far, the matters discussed, have been confined to Mr. Huntington's speech and the cause of the present stringency in commercial affairs.

From the position the Roman Catholic Clergy have taking in Lower Canada, one cannot but admire the boldness and independence of Mr. Huntington. His speech in Argenteuil had the right ring about it. Protestants cannot submit to be dictated to by a power drawing its inspiration from the Vatican, or from any other place outside of our own Dominion. And any party or church amongst us whose interests are in and obligations arise from a foreign power, is inimical to Canadian interests and must be taught that all men, except as to liberty of conscience, must be subject to the state. Happily now the State (that is Protestant States) do not interfere with the right of private judgment, in religious matters. Not so, however, with Roman Catholicism, where it has the power. We have been hearing that the spirit of persecution in that church has died out, and that now they are the friends of equal rights and religious liberties. Just let the Roman Catholic Church in Spain and Lower Canada speak and the delusion vanishes.

Bishop Bourget declares openly that Liberalism in any form cannot be tolerated by the Church, and the Spanish Bishops as openly assert that toleration cannot be permitted in that state.

If then we are drifting into subjection to the Vatican and the Church, we must protest against our rulers taking one step more towards them till the know where we are. Protestants are ready to accord to everyone the right to worship God in whatever way he may think most in accordance with divine precepts, but they are not willing that any power, Catholic or Protestant, shall prevent them maintaining the principles of civil liberty, and he right of private judgment: no clerical interference with secular matters, an open Bible, and subjection to no foreign power, civil or religious. Every true lover of his country must approve of and applaud Mr. Huntington's manly utterances at the present time when it is sought to subject the state to foreign dictation.

Let Canada be a free Country, free to serve itself, free to serve the people, free to worship God either as Catholics or Protestants. Let us have equal rights, but no dictation, Protestant or Catholic.

Mr. Bertram, made a very able speech on the question of trade, for which he was highly applauded :

MR. BERTRAM said he had hoped the original motion would have passed without discussion. It did not contain the elements of discussion, but the amendment opened up the whole question of trade. He believed the protectionists had misapprehended the question before the country. It was not a question of free trade versus protection. He believed in a national policy for Canada, though not in the sensed some hon gentlemen. We had the happy medium in the shape of a tariff which, while encouraging our infant industries, brought a revenue to the country. It was for the advocates of protection to show that ere the tariff was raised so as to exclude certain manufactures, the loss we would sustain at the present rate would be made up by the increase in the native manufactures. If the tariff were raised to 25 per cent, would it make the manufacturers of Canada continously prosperous? They had only to look at England and the United States to see that at this time an enormous number of mechanics were out of employment. Periods of inflation and depression occurred as regularly as any natural phenomen. The increase of the tariff to 25 per cent would not raise the general price of natural products, though it might raise the value of a few products of the farms in the neighbourhood of the manufacturing centres. Our farmers were compelled to conform to the prices of foreign markets. He did not believe the manufacturers of agricultural implements required protection, and many other industries were in a like position. The period of collapse in the iron trade occurred far sooner in the United States than it did in England. He had recently spoken with a number of manufacturers whose books did not show the great decrease which had been spoken of, but rather the contrary. The Ministry, then, had a serious question to face in changing the system by which these manufacturers had thriven. If the United States, with their high protective policy, were reduced to the dreadful task of selling their goods at less than their cost, they were confessedly in a worse position than we were without protection. Referring to the lumber trade, they were ascribing their goods in the United States, and according to the arguments which had been raised, should undoubtedly have their case considered. He would impress on the Government the fact that stood out plainly, that our industries had prospered during the last twenty five years under a fifteen per cent tariff, and it was a very grave question whether an increase on tariff to twenty or twenty-five per cent would do them good or harm.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Witness remarks :

"The speech of the evening and of the debate on protection, was made by Mr. Bertram. He dealt fairly and squarely with the question in such a way as to make a deep impression on the House, taking grounds in favor of a revenue tariff as that which had been the distinctive national policy of Canada in the past and should be in the future. He asked the Ministers to consider very gravely, as he had no doubt they would, before making any change. Earnest and hearty marks of approval greeted him at various points in his speech there was a chorus of "Go on" On the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Blake went round to his seat and congratulated him; for Mr. Bertram, like many other staunch Mininterialists, sits well back on the left of the Speaker Other, Ministers sent across congratulatory notes.

Mr. Bertram is likely to make his mark in the house, and if he continue in public life, and take a lesson from the history of other politicans, he will be a tower of strength to his party, and serve his country, and constituents with honor to himself.

THE LICENSE ACT.

This Act as finally amended and passed will be found on the first page of the EXAMINER this week. All who wish to have the Act would do well to procure a copy and preserve it. It will be seen that it does away with all saloons, and makes provisions for only 13 taverns according to population. The census of 1871 gives a population of 4,611; of these for the first 1,000 there may be four taverns, for the remaining 3,611 there can be but nine taverns, or 13 in all.

This will enable all who have proper accommodations now to secure licenses for next year, but will close up places where drinking only was or is done. It will lessen the present number about thirty. The council, it will be seen, have power by By-law to impose a yearly license up to $200 without submitting it to the people, and to $300 by submitting it to the electors. Councillors should, therefore, without delay pass a By law raising the license to the first sum, viz., $200; this would put $1 300 into the town treasury without injustice to any one, for the reduction in number and better inspection will but make the trade in a position to charge more for the drinks, and thus meet the increased expenses. Our town contemporary raised objection to the Bill because it lessened the revenue of the town $3,000, we hope he will now see his way to urge the council to raise the licenses to $200 as a matter of revenue, and thus put $1,300 into the treasury. It's all a matter of revenue ——— !

In talking with several dealers in both liquors and groceries they expressed a wish to see the two articles separated, and shops for the sale of liquor only licensed. The council has the power to do this also, and as they are professedly the workingmen's friends, they will at once have this provided for. It will save the town thousands of dollars in the year in the way of charities, and thus make up for the deficit the Editor of the Review complained of. We will now see who are the working men's friends.

DISPENSING CHARITIES.

The question of dispensing charities and providing labor for the unemployed, is one that has assumed more than common or usual interest in this town. It is not denied that there are those amongst us whom misfortune, losses in business, ill health, or unforseen causes, have left badly provided for at the present time, and it is right and commendable that men amongst us with generous hearts, and an abundance of this world's good things, should extend their sympathy and aid to those who require the latter. It not unfrequently happens that the needy are more than private liberality can supply, and in such cases it is proper that all the people should be called upon to join in providing for those who are not able to provide for themselves. The trouble is, that not unfrequently the generosity of good men and women is not always wisely bestowed, and their giving tends to encourage a class of lazy, good-for-nothing, idle, and not unfrequently, vicious people, who will not work so long as they can eke out an existence through the pious and charitably disposed. There is a class of old "professional" paupers, or "loafers," to use vulgar phrase, whose want of thrift, long dependence on others, or dissipated habits, have so degraded them that they neglect to provide for the future, hoping to be supplied in the accustomed way, without labor or toil.

Peterboro, at the present time, has not a few of these idle and dissipated, who care little for the things of the morrow. Many of them, yes, most of them live in some kind of an abode : they are taxed and have votes ; and there are those who are ready to pander to the worthless and dissipated in order to secure a little support when hardly pressed towards retention of office When liberality, too often undue, unwise liberality it may be, indulges itself in dispensing its own private means to such persons no one has a right to interfere or complain. But when in their excessive desire to attain popularity for almsgiving at the expense of the public generally, then it becomes the bounden duty of those who have to supply the means, to enquire into the motives and actions of even the most charitably disposed, lest in the generosity of their hearts they encourage the very causes that produce wretchedness and poverty. It was found during the last few weeks, in Peterboro, that the Charity Committee was being imposed on ; that provisions, wood, &c., were being given to persons who were not deserving aid; that some of those receiving aid could afford to buy whiskey, smoke, chew tobacco, and "loaf" round bar-rooms, and as the mania to give away lavishly to such persons (perhaps unwittingly) was on the increase, the more thoughtful determined to question the course of the committee, and attention was drawn to the whole matter in the EXAMINER. In doing so the object was not to expose the deserving poor, nor yet to limit their supplies, but to prevent the public funds of the town from being used to nurse idleness and dissipation. This, although meeting the approval of the best class of our citizens, has provoked the ire of the Rev. V. Clementi and Mr. A. Rutherford, both of which gentlemen, but especially the former, poured out their vials of wrath against us at a late meeting of the town council. It is not our intention to be led aside from the path of duty by the abuse of one or threats of the other. Before commencing we counted all the cost, measured the opposition and considered the abuse that would be heaped upon us, but none of those things trouble us. The anger of Mr. Clementi we have had to endure over five years; ever since the little correspondence and replies anent the volunteers, when we crossed swords (or pens) with the Rev. gentleman, and he still remembers coming 'worsted' out of the fray. We expect to be exposed to his frown so long as time permits us to be in a position to vex each other—but his frown is easily borne—and never will prevent us pursuing the course that we believe is in the interest of the community, or of any class in the community. The heathen may rage and the wicked imagine vain things, but we will hold them in derision. The path of duty may be rough and thorny, but it is after all the safest.

Our course has had the desired effect. There is more enquiry and carefulness in dispensing aid. The idler and the drunkard are getting more sparingly. The too generous members of the committee find their actions are being taken cognizance of, and while we are safe in saying not one deserving person has received the less; the undeserving has been forced to stand aside. The caper will have to give up his glass and buy bread with the money, the idler will be compelled to go to work, and the schemer fearing detection fears to petition for assistance any more.

We say by all means assist the needy, the widows who are widows indeed, the sick and the infirm, but the man who is able and will not work, neither should he eat.

GRAND MASTER BOWELL

Grip of the 19th instant places Grand Master Bowell of the Loyal Orange Association, in a strange place. He is clad in his orange regalia, riding on Mr Langevin, the leader of Ultramontanism, instead of the accustomed grey charger. He carries in his right hand a sword on which is engraved "Anything to beat Mackenzie," in his left hand he has an Orange Banner on which is inscribed the following : "To serve party ends I ride rough shod over the fundamental principles of the Protestant Faith."

Langevin has the Grand Master fast by the legs. He wears a Monk's Cowl or Bishop's Mitre surmounted by a cross, from his pocket protrudes a paper, the syllabus, or something of that nature, on which is written "The Church should rule the State," while he tramples on the Orange Constitution, viz., charity, our open Bible, free speech, free thought, civil and religious liberty, and loyalty ; all of which are represented by that Constitution. The Grand Master is in the attitude also of about to kick to pieces a scroll on which is inscribed, "Civil and Religious liberty."

Mr. McKenzie Bowell has for once been placed in his true position. He is ready to use Orangeism or any other ism for his own personal ends, and to trample on the great bulworks of Protestantism, free speech, free thought and loyalty, to raise himself to the height of his ambition; and about as ready to inscribe on his banner Ho Nose and the syllabus of infallibility, as that of William III. Prince of Orange. And as Grip represents, would quietly permit Langevin or the Pope to place his heel on the head of William of glorious, pious and immortal memory, "to beat Mackenzie." How long will Orangemen permit themselves to be dragged through mire and filth to serve a party or an individual who would sell himself to their enemies.

OFF THE TRACK

The Rev. Mr. Clementi and Mr. A. Rutherford have got off the track Instead of attending to the dispensation charities they have turned their attention to abusing the EXAMINER They may preserve their souls in patience. We are not to be turned aside from our course by any claptrap or personalities either of them may indulge in. In the Council Chamber on Monday evening, the Rev gentleman had Pat Glen sitting beside him to clap his hands and do the stamping, several other worthies of the same class, not forgetting Mr. Rutherford, assisted. Well, we don't envy him his associates, and we leave him to enjoy their company.

"Folly may be set in great dignity." The Charity Committee is amenable to public opinion and so is the Council, and to public opinion and their sense of right, we appeal, not to Mr. Clementi, or his man Friday, Mr. Rutherford, or Pat Glen.

That charities have been neither wisely nor well dispensed is well known. The fact that Mr. Clementi promised to be more careful in future, before he could get another grant, speaks for the truth of what has appeared in the EXAMINER; and assuredly there has been more carefulness since. That is what we sought to secure

There are other evils to be remedied yet. The Council is paying Owen Dowling $2 50 per week for board, and fifty cents additional for tobacco and whiskey; the latter being written on the order to pay him. Are the people of Peterboro willing that their money should be spent in this way? Twenty-six dollars a year for whiskey and tobacco for Owen Dowling! How many Owen Dowlings are there served in this way? Surely all reasonable people will say : Drop the whiskey and tobacco.

We understand also that the committee has in other cases given tobacco, even within a few days Is tobacco a necessary of life? Other parties who are obtaining charities, can spend money to buy feed for pet rabbits. Now is it too much to ask that those parties dispose of their rabbits and procure food for their children.

We wish it distinctly understood that we are in favor of assisting the deserving poor. But every sane man will agree in condemning a liberality that is calculated to make paupers and encourage whiskey bloats.

Mr. Rutherford intimates that this Charity Question has changed his political affinities. It is a pity indeed that he held principles so lightly. The EXAMINER is not bound to be silent and permit grievous wrong to be perpetrated for fear of losing Mr. Rutherford's vote. If Reform party's success or failure depends on winking at folly or abuses—then away with it. But neither Mr. Clementi's temper nor Mr. Rutherford's abuse or censure will prevent us doing what we feel to be our duty.

Mr. Rutherford, it appears, measured Smithtown hill, with his new rule. We sincerely hope that it is not short at one end. If his measurement is as correct as his report that the frost in the hill east of the proposed bridge on Smith street, was of a very loose nature, so as to cut like cheese. We would like to know how many would believe in the length of this new rule.

British and Foreign Bible Society.

The Annual Meeting of the Peterboro Branch of the above Society was held in St. Paul's Church on Wednesday the 16th of February.

The opening religious exercises were conducted by the Rev. J. M. Roger.

After a few remarks from the President, John Murray Smith, Esq., read the Treasurer's report. He stated that during the preceding year $150 had been transmitted to the Upper Canada Bible Society, and $150 to the British and Foreign Bible Society, and that there now remained in hand $90.95. The subscriptions for the present year had not been collected, as it was thought advisable to delay doing so until after the annual meeting.

In the absence of the Secretary, Mr. Sheriff Hall read a brief report, the principal feature of which was the regret expressed at not having been able to procure the services of a colporteur for the counties and less settled portions of the district, a work evidently falling upon this community to undertake.

1st Resolution—Mr. Sheriff Hall formally moved the adoption of the Report, and proposed the following as the officers of the Society for the ensuing year.

PATRONESS:—Lt.-Col. F. W. Haultain.
VICE PRESIDENTS:—Ministers of the Gospel resident in the Town.
TREASURER:—Mr. John Murray Smith
SECRETARY:—Mr. W. A. MURTON.
DEPOSITORY:—Mr. Peter Conical.

COMMITTEE:—Messrs. W Brownscomb John Carnegie, Thomas Elliott, James Edwards, Joseph Ford, Robert Fairbairn Sheriff Hall. D. Lowry, junr. James McDonald, General Haultain, Wm. C. Nicholls, D. Pentland, Isaac Robinson, A. P. Poussette, J. W Robinson, Arthur Ruther ord, G. E. Shaw, C. H. Sheffield, James Stratton, Frank Goodfellow. With power to add to their names.

REV. MR. WATSON, in seconding the motion for the adoption of the Report remarked :—That the platform of the Bible Society was distinctively Protestant recognizing the right of all to read God's revealed truth for themselves. This fact must not be over looked in these days when attempts are being made to put restrictions upon the Bible in order to exclude it from public Schools, and this upon grounds which, if conceded by Protestants, must be at the sacrafice of essential principles, and by yielding a cardinal issue to Roman Catholicism. This is becoming notably an age of Bible study, a fact, the significance of which cannot be over estimated. The contact of the mind with the truth, being the Divine appointment in order to the salvation of the soul The Bible supplies also the conditions of development and progress. It stimulates thought by bringing it face to face with its highest objects and by its doctrine of responsibility quickens the moral sense: intellect aroused into exercise brings the result of scientific discovery to bear upon industrial production, while a sound and authorative morality supplies commercial integrity. The Bible as a public educator, speaks upon every question of political and Social economy, it teaches with an emphasis the worth of the individual man, a doctrine which Protestantism believes, and hence the tendency to representative Government in opposition to the essential Despotism of Romanism, where the individual is sacrificed to the system. The grounds and relations of right and duties find here also their exposition, and hence Social problems have their solution. The work of the Society has therefore the highest commendations.

REV. W. W. ROSS, the General Agent of the U. C. Bible Society, being called upon, in the course of an eloquent address of nearly an hour in duration, said: The British and Foreign Bible Society, of which we form a part, sprang into being in the year 1804. The idea of forming a society for the promulgation of Biblical knowledge throughout the world originated with the Rev. Thomas Charles, of Bala, in Wales, who, being afflicted nigh unto death, was immediately healed of his disease, and, like Hezekiah, had fifteen years added to his life, by the prayer of faith. Then he and a few friends who were impressed with the importance of doing something in this direction agitated the matter, and soon at a public meeting called for the purpose this institution, which has done such a noble work for humanity, was organized The collection taken up at this first meeting evidenced the heartiness with which the idea was endorsed by the people present, for it amounted to the sum of £700, or nearly $3,500. The first grant the infant society made was to defray the expenses of publishing the Gospel either according to St. Mark or St. John into the Mohawk language for the benefit of the aborigines of Canada. The work of translating this Gospel was performed by Captain Norton, the learned Chief of the Six Nation Indians, who was in England at that time. Two thousand copies were issued, and Dr. Richardson, late Bishop of the M E. Church, when he attended a meeting of the Bible Society at the village of Aldersville, on the other side of Rice Lake, some years after, found that every family in the reserve was in possession of one, And so grateful were the Indians for the interest the society had taken in their welfare, that at that meeting they contributed to the funds of the society £5 The Bible Society has had many difficulties to contend against There are preserved today in the Society's rooms in London, England, twelve large volumes of pamphlets published in opposition to its interests. But it has surmounted every difficulty, and is to-day, despite the determined efforts of the enemies of the truth, an institution whose operations are an incalculable blessings to the world. Nothing great or worthy was ever achieved without difficulties being encountered The idea of locomotion by the utilization of steam power was sneered at and ridiculed by high and low when first it was conceived, but to-day it is an established fact, and one to which civilization is deeply indebted. But the Bible Society's work is not fully accomplished yet. The Word of Life has been placed in the hands of only 100,000 000 of the race out of its 1,200,000,000 to 1,500,000,000. So there is much still to be done, and urgent need of sympathy on the part of the Christian Church The spirit of liberality in the Church is growing. The collections taken up at the meetings I have attended this year, have, in many instances, been two or three hundred per cent. ahead of those of any previous meeting. We hope that the audience present to-night will be equally appreciative of the Society's work and claims.

2nd Resolution—Moved by Rev. K. McLennan, seconded by Rev. J. P. Rice —In view of the bolder advocacy of opinions at variance with the essential principles of the Christian Religion as contained in the Bible, now being maintained both in the pulpit and the press, this meeting would express its unwavering confidence in the sufficiency and supremacy of the Protestant Canon of Holy Scripture, and the necessity that exists for a deeper and more prayerful study of the same.

THE REV MR. MACLENNAN, in moving the above resolution, referred to opposition offered to the claims of the sacred Scriptures, from two distinct quarters, the one, that of scientific objection to the validity of the Bible's claims to be regarded as a revelation of the divine will; on this he did not purpose, at present to dwell The other, that of the "ultramontane" policy of the papal church, of the danger to be apprehended from this latter form of opposition, we may not be sufficiently aware This is not mere theory applicable to the affairs of older countries, as in Europe, but it has been transferred to Canadian soil. It has caused serious complications in political matters. In the capital of our own Province, and in the chief city of the adjoining Province of Quebec, the bold pretensions of the church of Rome, have disturbed the public peace, have deprived citizens of their ordinary rights, and sought to set aside contributed authority. That church is now, as it was always, the foe of civil and religious liberty. It behoves us to be vigilant over its advances, and to resist its encroachments, else we may lose that fair heritage for which our forefathers contended so nobly. He expressed his great pleasure in moving the resolution entrusted to him.

THE REV. J. P. RICE, in seconding the resolution, said :—"The history of the past fully justifies us in regarding the Bible as the world's greatest source of light But at times men have wandered from its rule of life, and distorted its teachings, and then its rays have been obscured. When the Word of God has been untrammelled in its operations, heart-religion has ever flourished, the church has exerted a corrective and restraining influence over the minds of men, and the intellectual life of nations has throbbed with healthful vigor; but when its light has been hidden by the soulless rites and ceremonies of religious formalism, the Christian world has correspondingly suffered, spiritually, morally, and intellectually. The materialistic theories and other speculations of certain advanced scientists of to-day may cause a quaking among Christians of the weak-kneed sort, but he believed that the Bible has in Roman Catholicism a far more formidable foe than in any of these, not only because of its dissection of years of its most important doctrines, but also because of the unprincipled grasping of its priests and ecclesiastical orders after wealth, power, and the aggrandizement of the Holy See, thereby bringing religion generally into contempt. No one this will illustrated in the case of France. Rome professes to allow the people to read the Bible, but she allows the Bible to be read only when and where it is impossible to prevent it. Where this privilege is enjoyed Roman Catholics are largely indebted to Protestants for it. Virtually they are not allowed to read the Bible anywhere, because the Vulgate, which the Council of Trent adopted, is most obscure, barbarous and incorrect, and because at the same Council was promulgated this hard law, that in matters of faith and morals the Pope alone has the right to interpret its teachings. And the Infallibility Dogma of 1870 renders it still more emphatically a sealed book to every devoted Catholic Romanism has the faculty of accommodating itself to circumstances to a marvellous extent. Wherever it possesses the power it compels men to bend to its dictum in matters political, social and religious, but where it has not this power it allows men to exercise their own judgment, but only in so far as it is compelled thereto. This is seen in the present attitude of Archbishop Lynch towards Liberalism—or man's right to think for himself—in contradistinction from that of Monseigneur Bourget, Bishop of Montreal. Rome's unchangeable policy is to get power—to get it fairly, if it can; but if not, to get it in any other way that may present itself." The speaker then quoted from a Roman Catholic authority, to show that Rome in the same in spirit to day as in the days of the Inquisition, and when the Papacy sought to extinguish the light of truth by the aid of the temporal powers, and, hence, that it fears and hates the Bible—which unveils its falsity and corruptions—to day just as it ever has. He then concluded by exhorting the audience to prayerfully study Bible teachings, and to consecrate a just proportion of their means to the work of communicating its light to those still in darkness.

The meeting was closed with prayer by the Rev. K. McLennan.

A larger number attended than has been usual for some time past, whilst the the collection at the meeting was 80 per cent beyond that of last year.

The choir was under the direction of Mr Galletly.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

MR. EDITOR, I wonder you were not afraid to speak as you did in last week's paper of the Reverened Mr. Clementi. Don't you know that he is one of the successors of the Apostles, in a direct line from St, Paul? for I don't think that he would admit he was successor to those who were humble and poor. And Mr. Editor, don't you know that his riverance and the great B A. are one and the same, and you know what a terrible writer B. A. is. So far his riverance has addressed you over his own signature, and he says he didn't care anything for what you may say of him. You must remember Mr. Editor that he is the "Reverend Vincent Clement," and don't forget too that once upon a time he ministered to the sinners of Lakefield; but he got tired of trying to make good Catholics of them, or else they got tired of him, and this is how he came to Peterborough. But before he left Lakefield he showed them in his parting sermon, that he was a rael successor to the Apostles, and that he and the likes of of him were alone authorized to preach the gospel. I don't doubt Mr. Editor, that he almost fancies himself Peter and that he is the rock on which the church stands. Well Mr. Editor, whether he is the Peter or not, there is no doubt he belongs to the church militant. for you saw on Monday evening, how he tried to be triumphant. Why, Mr. Editor, I do believe no Irishman at Donneybrook fair, trailing his coat upon the ground and spilling for a fight, could ever come up to his riverance. He could knock his sermon into a poor fellow whether he could preach it into him or not. So Mr. Editor, I would just warn you as a friend to be careful how you speak or write about his reverence. And to be careful too how you quote scripture to him, a rael, live specimen of a successor to the Apostles, and you surely must know, Mr Editor, that the apostles wrote the scriptures, and of course his riverance knows the Bible all by heart, from Genesis to Revelations. So you need not quote scripture to the likes of him. And moreover, Mr. Editor, you know he could afford to be charitable, for didn't you know he was giving away the money of other people But Mr. Editor, I want you to be careful what you may say and not provoke B. A. to write for he is a terror when he begins. He is great on 'potatoe bugs and butterflies" and the weavil and all such animals and I am afraid he will write something about the. EXAMINER. I often wondered Mr. Editor what B. A. stands for. It must mean something wonderful. He ought to have given the Lakefield sinners a touch of B. A. and perhaps they would have appreciated him better. You will catch it yet Mr. Editor, if you are not careful, for if B. A. begins at you there won't be as much as a grease spot left of you... Try a little flattery upon him Mr. Editor; tell him he is a gentleman make him think that you do believe him to be a successor of the Apostles. Just go to him and confess ask him to forgive you your sins. If you can get him to do that you will be all right and the EXAMINER will flourish, and you will no longer be a heathen, for won't you have the blessing of a successor of the Apostles.

A READER OF THE EXAMINER.
Peterboro, Feb. 21st, 1876.

WAKE UP.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

SIR,—I perused with pleasure your editorial under this head, because in my judgment the Council were inaugurating a system of expenditure which was not justifiable, and from the expressions of the people I concluded, and I still believe, that your editorial was but a fair expression of the opinion of nine tenths of the people of the Town.

If public works which are called for, can be profitably carried on in winter there are cases when it would be the duty of the Council to undertake them, but we cannot think that it will ever be found profitable to excavate frozen earth in winter, and Councillor Rutherford candidly admits that the work of cutting down a little slope of five feet high on Smithtown hill, which no one called for, cost $1.08 per cubic yard, when in summer it would have been done for 20 cents per yard, thus the work cost about five times what it should have cost,—in other words—the Town was paying $3.75 per diem to laboring men.

If, Mr. Editor, you permitted such waste of the peoples money without calling attention to the mismanagment you would not be doing your duty. The fact that your editorial compelled the stoppage of the work and elicited the exposure of extravagance form Mr. Rutherford's own lips, proves that you were right, and also proves that they who mismanage our affairs get very angry when exposed.

It was quite natural for the Rev. V. Clementi to lose his temper and good judgment. When it was found that in many instances the charitable efforts of the Town to relieve the poor were taken advantage of by lazy and unworthy people, by strong men too lazy to work, who sent their poor wives for the provisions that should have been provided by themselves. The written orders of the Charitable Committee could not be talked away by Mr. Clementi or any one else, they spoke for themselves, and while we are aware that gentlemen like Mr. Clementi who undertake to perform a public service have often a thankless task, yet as their duty is a public one, they must remember that they are not above criticism, and if as journalist you point out where they have been imposed on, instead of getting angry with you they should be thankful. This wants no secret service; let every expenditure of the peoples money be above board and subject to examination and if needs be severe criticism. If it is all right, no one will be hurt; and if wrong, then let the blame fall on the right shoulders.

VOX POPULI.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Great dissatisfaction having existed among the settlers in the back townships for the past year, on account of the game law being put in force by the Fish and Game protective Society of Peterborough, the members decided upon holding a meeting in the Village of Apsley, and explain the object of the society. In accordance with this decision a meeting was held in the Town Hall here, on Thursday the 17th inst. The chair being occupied by Mr. Gilboone, Reeve of the Municipality, J. Ludgate, President of the Society, and Major Boulton 1st Vice-President ; Wm. Eastland 2nd Vice President ; E. H. D. Hall, Solicitor, and R. Walton member of central committee, addressed the meeting explaining the object of the Society and fully satisfied those present that it was to their interest to co-operate with the members of the Society, and endeavour to put a stop to the slaughter of game out of season.

I see under the new license law the Government has taken the appointment of Inspector from the municipalities. This is a move in the right direction, as in nearly every municipality there are cases of open violation of the law and I regret to say we in this section are not pure in that respect as there is an unlicensed tavern in full blast on the Burleigh Road. I trust the newly appointed Inspector for the County will soon visit this section and let us see that he intends doing his duty, as the inspector appointed by the municipality must have forgotten to perform the duties of his office, as the law for several months has been violated.

Yours &c.,
APSLEY.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—I see in your paper of the 17th inst an article headed, "Not Creditable To our Town," It appears to me that you wish to convey the idea that I am still asking that part of Murray Street adjoining my premises, I can't see who could give you that information, as I assure you I have not the least intention of again asking the Street. I was induced by parties who were interested around that part of the Town, and by others who wished to see our Manufacturies increased to ask for the Street, which I was willing to pay for. The Council passed a resolution granting it to me for a certain sum and on that account I have expended both time and Money, but after a meeting at the people being called, and finding they considered it more to their advantage to have the Street opened than to have the work Shops extended I have no desire to ask it, not even to take it as a gift.

W. HAMILTON.
Peterborough, Feb, 22nd, 1876

THE Rock informs its readers that in upwards of a thousand parishes in the Province of Canterbury, England, there is neither a bee shop nor a public house. The effect of this absence of temptation is declared by those best fitted to judge to be exceedingly satisfactory. In 243 cases the clergymen of the parishes concerned testify that drunkenness, and consequently poverty and crime, are all but unknown. One says :—"I am happy to say that there is no habitual drunkard. The absence of the temptation of a beer-shop must largely contribute to this happy state of things." Another testifies:—There being no public house or beershop in this parish, is a cause of unmitigated good in so far as it removes temptation to some distance." A third says:—"There is no public house or beershop, I am glad to be able to say, in this parish. Of this the good is great ; the inconvenience, if any, in comparison, exceedingly small. It promotes, almost ensures, sobriety and temperance. The constable's office is sinecure, and a drunken man a very rare sight." While a fourth adds.—"The public house was done away with about eleven years ago, shortly before I became incumbent, I am assured that when there was a public-house it was the occasion of much intemperance, of much riot and disorder, and of much poverty and distress."

IT is currently stated that Sir A. T Galt will shortly visit the West Indies clothed with some authority from Government to investigate the important subject of closer trade connection between those islands and Canada.

Postmaster General's Report.

The report of the Postmaster General for the year ending June 30th, 1875, has been brought down. The following is a brief summary of the report so far as it relates to the business done in the year. The number of post offices in the Dominion on January 1st, 1876, was 4,892 ; the number of miles of post route in 1875, was 38,430 ; the number of miles annually traveled by mail was 144,884,678. The number of letters and post cards carried was 32,000, 000; the number of newspapers was 31 300,000; the number of registered letters was 1,750,000; the number of free letters was 1,290,000; the number of parcels was 132,352 The revenue for the postal year ending June 30th 1875, was $1,536,509, and the expenditure $1,873,241. The number of money order offices on June 30th, 1875, was 687 ; the amount of money orders issued was $6,821,430. The number of post office saving banks, which are confined to Ontario and Quebec, was 268 ; the number of depositors was $24,394 ; total amount deposited was 1,642,326 ; and the amount of deposits and interest to credit of depositors was $2,026,,490.

STRANGE PASSENGERS IN A SHIP'S HOLD.—A startling story reaches us from France. A merchant vessel arrived ar Marseilles two or three days back laden with sugar, from Batavia, while in the act of unloading the workmen suddenly left their task, and, rushing up to the deck, gasped out inarticulated words. Amongst the hamper they had found three immense boa constrictors. These reptils formed to wake from a state of lethargy, and advanced toward the terrified men, who had only just time to hoist themselves on deck and close the hatches. The captain was, of course obliged to suspend the unloading, and to look for a means of getting rid of there strange passengers. Two pigeons were poisoned with strychnine, and drooped into the hold. They were devoured at once, but only two of the serpents died. The third reptile has not been seen again, and it is with the greatest trouble that the captain can get men to assist him in unloading his ship.

NO LESS than $8,000 of the taxes of Stratford remained uncollected at the meeting of the council last week. This sum was mostly due by leading men The collector was ordered to return the roll at once. One councillor at the board stated that there was $25,000 including bank debts, to be immediately provided for, and there was only $340 in the treasury.

Unlimited Remedial Resources

People sometimes suppose that Dr Pierce's Family Medicines represent the entire extent of his resources for curing disease. This is an error. Experience proves that while the Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription, Pleasant Pellets, Compound Extract of Smart-Weed, and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, would if faithfully used, cure a large variety of chronic complaints, there would be here and there a case which, from its severity or from its complication with other disorders would resist their actions. These exceptional cases required a thorough examination into their symptoms, to ascertain the exact nature and extent of the disease or diseases under which the patient was laboring; and the use of specific remedies to meet and overcome the same. This led to the establishment of the World's Dispensary, at Buffalo, N. Y., with its Faculty of Physician and Surgeons each of whom is skilled in the treatment of chronic disorders in general and those belonging to his own special department in particular. To one is assigned diseases of the throat and lungs : to another, diseases of the kidneys and urogenital organs : to another, diseases of the eye and ear. Thus the highest degree of perfection in medicines and surgery is attained The establishment of this institution enables the Doctor to meet a long felt want in the treatment of the more severe chronic affections. By a careful consideration of the symptoms as given in writing, he successfully treats thousand of cases at their homes Others visit the Dispensary in person. The amplest resources for the treatment of lingering affections are thus placed at the disposal of every patient, and those on whom the proprietary medicines do not have the desired effect can procure a more thorough and efficient course by a personal application to the proprietor of the World's Dispensary.

SCHOOL BILL.—The New Brunswick School Bill has been declared constitutional by Lord Carnarvon the Colonial secretary. The Dominion Parliament has no power to interfere in New Brunswick School questions.

MAPANEE.—The attempt to carry a by-law in Napanee fixing Licenses at $300, was lost by ten votes. The friends of liquor selling turned and out and drew in voters: the friends of Temperance did not and hence their defeat.

ACCIDENT.—On Monday last, Mr. M. Every Scotchman especially should go and have his old memories revived, and Englishmen, Irishmen, and Canadians can spend "twa nichts" pleasantly in listening to him.

CORRECTION.—Messrs. Delaney & Sons have drawn our attention to a mistake in our last issue in reference to sending away manufactured articles. They have now ready, they assure us, a large stock of Fanning Mills ready for shipment to other places. We are glad to learn that they are doing such a large business and hope they will prosper.

THE NEW MINISTER OF EDUCATION.—Mr. Crooks was sworn into office on Saturday last, and will devote five mornings of the week to work at the Department of Education. This is a large addition to his other labours, but Mr. Crooks is a zealous and most laborious public servant, and will win golden opinions in his new sphere.

BOYS! BEWARE!—A number of boys have been in the habit of meeting on Sundays in the close sheds in the old barging ground, and there spending their time at card playing. Chief Constable Johnston has got all their names, and warns them that if found there or any where else at the same practice, he will bring them before the Police Magistrate and send them up to jail to improve their minds.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA have, each, a Religious Scandal, the latter in the Beecher trouble and the former in that of a Mr. Pearsall Smith, who is accused of "using his familiar intercourse in families for disseminating among females, the foulest doctrines", worse than socialism or Mormonism, Mr. Smith, is an America, and on account of his peculiar teachings has had to leave England for his western home.

THE DORCAS SOCIETY acknowledges with thanks the receipt of the following donations during the past week:—A barrel of flour from Mrs. S. Dickson, and $38.61 from St. Andrew's Church being amount of collection taken up on Sunday February 13th, in aid of the poor. On Tuesday last 154 families were relieved, the usual proportions being one-half pound Tea, one pound Sugar, 6 pounds beef, with flour, potatoes, and clothing.

GRIP.—The last cartoon of this excellent little paper, is one of his best. It represents the whisky traffic as a whiskey bottle, with head and legs imperiously demanding of Premier McKenzie to provide in his emigration policy to supply 7000 souls annually lost to the Dominion, as this number perishes through strong drink. Mr. Cartwright at the same time holds up a bag full of the revenue from the Liquor traffic. Mr. McKenzie looks sober and said; but says not a word. Grips arguments and cartoons are all on the side of sobriety. It deserves the patronage of all true canadians.

THE ASSESSORS.—The Assessors are now again at their annual duty, and in order that no one may hereafter complain of his name being left off the voters list, we remind young men and old men earning salaries of $400 a year that they may secure votes by handing in their names to Messrs. Rowe and Johnston. Of course all who thus secure votes understand that they must pay taxes on their incomes; any person who earns an income exceeding $400 is assessable in any event, but to secure a vote the entire income carries its share of taxes. Any young man who will not bear the trifling tax on $400 for the privilege of voting is not over burdened with ambition.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC.—At a late missionary meeting held in Montreal, the Rev. Mr. Roy gave the following figures as indicating the comparative state of education in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec:—

"Of the population of Ontario less than 8 per cent. could not read: in Quebec 36 per cent. could not read! In Ontario over 12 per cent. could not write in Quebec a little over 45 per cent. could not write! those in Quebe who could not read made up 64 per. of all in the Dominion who could not read! so that 64 out of every 100 ignoramuses where to be found in Quebec. In Montreal, the non readers were over 20 per cent. of the entire population, and more than 27 per cent. could not write. In Quebec city over 20 per cent. could not read, and 29 per cent could not write. Only 33 per cent. of the children of this Province went to school Between the ages of six and sixteen there were over 96,000 children who never went to school. At this rate the Province must go more and more to wreck and ruin. He characterized last year's official school report as a sham and a pretence from beginning to end."

THE GRAND ORANGE LODGE of Ontario East in Session concluded its business at Kingston, on Thursday. It is generally agreed that in many respects it was the most important meeting the Grand Lodge ever had. The Lodge was never so prosperous or numerous as at present. The principal debate of the session was the one on Orange incorporation, which lasted over five hours. There was but one expression of opinion, and that was to drop all political differences and, irrespective of men or party, to individually and collectively support only those who by their speeches and their votes in the Ontario Legislature would support a special act of incorporation. The Grand Lodge appointed delegates to attend a meeting of Imperial Grand Council of Orangemen to be held in Londonderry, Ireland, in July next; they are the Right Worshipful Master J. White, M. P. P., the Deputy Grand Treasurer of British America, W. Johnston, of Belleville, the Deputy Grand Master of Ontario, Mr. C Fletcher, of Brockville. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Robinson, M. P. P., of Kingston, for his having introduced the bill for the incorporation of the Grand Lodge, and for the efforts put forth by him to have it passed The next meeting of the Grand Lodge will be held at Petarboro on the third Tuesday in February 1877.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE.—The council is about to build a bridge where it will be of the least possible advantage. Instead of building a bridge across Dixon's dam, where it would be alike convenient to the people of Ashburnham and Peterboro, they are placing it where the entire voice of the people of Ashburnham and of all the most intelligent people of Peterboro declare i should not be. I will cost nearly as much to cut the great hill adjoining Mr. Croly's land as to build a bridge at Dixon's dam, then when built instead of being convenient to the Ashburnham people to come to Peterboro, to the schools, churches, markets and places of business, it will be a mile from the heart of the village and a mile from the heart of Peterboro. The new bridge will be no convenience to the people on the Norwood road, and for all others it will not be more convenient than a bridge farther south as all people coming to the town make for the centre. There is an axe to grind somewhere! A few months ago private subscribers offered $300 towards a bridge at Dixon's dam, but now the council will spend as much in cutting down what will always be a great hill, they throw away the $300 offered and they build the bridge where it will do the least possible good. Surely there is something wrong! It is not too late to do right in this matter if the council want to do right, but if they prefer doing wrong I suppose we must grin and bear it.

MINDEN.

DWELLING BURNED.—The house of Mr. T. L. Moore, second concession of Anson, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night last. Loss $600; insured for $400.

LAKEHURST.

NEW ORANGE LODGE.—On Monday last, 7th instant, a new Orange Lodge, No. 453 was organized in this place by Mr. J. B. McWilliams County Master of West Peterborough, assisted by several member of both County and District Lodges. The following officers were installed into their respective offices viz: John Tedford, Master; W. R. Johnston, Deputy Master; W. P Chase Secretary; R. Northey, Treasurer: R Tedford, 1st Committee man.

SWANS CORNERS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

SPECIAL religious services are at present in progress in the Methodist church in this place, under the direction of the pastor of the church, the Rev. Mr. Wicher. The indications for success in connection with the services are very favorable.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Mr. McGivin, formerly of this neighborhood, had a very narrow escape from drowning on Thursday last, as he was crossing Rice Lake from Harwood to Haiwatha in a cutter with his wife and two children. When within about one hundred yards of the Otonabee shore, the horse accidentally stepped on air hole and went through the ice, the animal was almost submerged in the water but fortunately his front feet rested on the solid ice. Had it not been for the prompt and dexterious management of the horse while in this perilous situation by Mr. McGivin, all must have been drowned, as it was they escaped without further injury.

DAPANEE.

CHECKED TO DEATH.—The Standard says: On Sunday Mr. D. Clements of Mill Point, lost his only child, about 18 months old, by strangulation. The family were at dinner, and the little one got hold of a piece of meat rind which stuck in its throat, and the efforts of the parents to remove it were fruitless, and the little one died in a few minutes without a struggle. The sad and Mrs. Clements have the sympathy of their friends in their shockingly sudden bereavement.

A MISTAKE.—A Rumor is prevalent that the Addington election protest has been dismissed and dropped. Such is not the case. On behalf of Mr. Shibley an application has been made to dismiss the case because the appeal was not made within six months after the election. That application is now before the Judges at Toronto, but in consequence of the large amount of business before them it will, probably, not be argued until next term. It will be, therefore, months before anything definite is decided upon.

ASPHODEL.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Municipal Council of this Township met on Monday last. All the members were present. The Auditor's report was received and ordered to be printed. A by-law authorising the School Trustees of S.S. No. 3 to borrow $400 for the building of a new school house received its several readings. On motion of Mr. Finlay, seconded by Mr. Brown, Mr. W. Glynn was appointed Inspector of Houses of Public Entertainment. Mr. Brown moved, seconded by Mr. Finlay, that Mr. R. Healy be allowed $2 for work on boundary line between Asphodel and Dummer, and $2 for work on the line between the 11th and 12th concessions.—Carried. A deputation from the Dummer council was heard respecting the opening up of the 9th line. Moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Finlay,—That this Council as a body, with as many of the ratepayers of the Township as can conveniently do so, on the 18th inst., examine the projected road on the 9th line, with a view of proving the advisability of granting aid towards opening said line.—Carried A by-law limiting the number of taverns to six and shop licenses to one, for the township, received its several readings. Mr. I. Powell was appointed special Inspector. On motion the council adjourned till the last Monday in February.

RAILWAY AID.

We were not able in our last issue, through want of space, to refer to the amount of aid granted by the Legislature to the Railways from the Consolidated Revenue Fund. The grants and the portions assisted are as follow:—Lake Simcoe junction, from Scottsville to Jackson's Point on Lake Simcoe, twenty-nine miles, $2,000 per mile; Belleville and North Hasting, from the point of junction with the Grand Junction Railway northward, twenty-two miles, $3 000 per mile; Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora, between Harwood and Ashburnham, a distance of thirteen miles, $2,000 per mile; Credit Valley for fifty-two and one-half miles, between Brock Road and Ingersoll, $2,000 per mile, and for twenty-seven and a half miles between Cataract and Elora, $2,000; Straiford and Lake Huron, between Stratford and Listowel, about twenty-five miles at the rate of $2,000. The increased aid mentioned by the act is the following: Victoria Railway, from Lindsay to Kinmount, thirty-three miles, $1,000 per mile; Montreal and City of Ottawa Junction, from the boundary between Ontario and Quebec to Ottawa, sixty-six miles, $1,000 per mile; Midland Railway from Wanl ashene to Midland Bay, thirteen miles, $1,750 per mile; Grand Junction from Sterling to Peterborough, forty-five miles, $1,000 per mile; and the Kingston and Pembroke for sixteen miles, between Sharbot Lake and the Mississippi river, $3,750 per mile. We can only say, upon the matter at present, that we are glad to see so unjust a system as that of grouping practically repealed, by referring disputed cases to arbitrators.

—By the suspension of the Seamless Clothing Manufacturing Company, at Mattewan, N. Y., Monday, 400 persons are thrown out af employment and many are destitute. It is said that the liabilities of the company will reach $500,000.

SIR JOHN AND EQUAL RIGHTS.—The conservative press have lately made great ado about the "inalienable right" of the British subject to resort to appeal from the courts of law "to the Foot of the Throne." Of course it is well understood that this patriotic devotion to the maintenance of the inalienable rights of the subject, is only afforded, by those who have never been known in any other character than that of the opponents of popular rights, for the sake of making a little cheap political capital. The Canadian Court of Error and Appeal Act, which was consolidated by Sir John Macdonald and in force during his whole term of office, had in it the following clause: "The judgement "of the Court of Error and Appeal shall "be final where the matter in controversy does not exceed the sum or "value of four thousand dollars." Thus it appears that in Sir John's eyes the British subject whose cause was not worth over $4000, had no inalienable right of appeal to the foot of the throne whatever—a nice distinction, which the "people" for whose privileges he is just now so great a stickler, will be able to understand and appreciate.—Ottawa Free Press.

EXTRAVAGANT SUPPERS.—One of the most gorgeous banquets ever given in this country took place at Delmonico's a few evenings since. It was given by a well-known Wall street broker, Chas. J. Osborn, as the result of a bet with another Wall street party named Travers, on the price of Lake Shore stock. These bets are of daily occurrence, but as this one involved something more than an ordinary amount its winning was celebrated by a banquet for forty-two persons—the winner and loser each inviting twenty friends. This affair cost over $2,000, or an a verage of more than $50 for each guest. This recalls an extravagant entertainment given at Delmonico's a few years ago by two daughters of a well-known financier, formerly a Federal officeholder, and now a bank president. The occasion was the twenty-first birthday of their only brother. Having obtained permission from the father to make the entertainment as grand and as magnificent as they pleased, these giddy girls (no chickens either mind you) gave Delmonico an order to prepare a feast and ball for 100 persons "regardless of expense." It was carried out in strict accordance with the order. The guests invitation cards were engraved on pearl, highly ornamented. The copies of the menu were also engraved on small ivory tablets set in Russia leather, with a small handle to each. The flowers used on the occasion were so profuse that it is said that that evening not a flower could be had for love or money in New York—the markets had been literally stripped resoundingly magnificent. The bill for this reckerels birthday party was nearly $25,000, and the astonished father paid it like a man, though he fervently ejaculated that he was glad that there were no more sons to celebrate their majority.—New York Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.

COMMERCIAL.

OUR MARKETS.—The Peterborough wheat market this season is one of the best in the Province. Prices have generally been as high as in Toronto, Cobourg, Port Hope and other front Towns, and never more than a cent or two below them. The consequence has been, that our streets have been almost blocked up with teams daily, ever since the sleighing. Wood too, has been coming in in large quantities to the great benefit of both sellers and buyers. Times are beginning to show signs of improvement, and the hopes are that a month or so will cause a material change for the better. In the older portions of this country, there is an unheard of quantity of farm produce to dispose of; which at even present prices will set afloat thousands of dollars. All except those who have over traded, or speculators, are in a prosperous condition, as the deposits in our Banks testify, and hence the cry about hard times is confined to those who have not realized from accounts etc., on which they depended. But it is believed that the good prices, for this season, will soon remove all the troubles. It only requires the farmers to pay their little accounts to Mechanics, Merchants, &c. They in turn will move the money round, and everything will become as cheery as Marriage Bells.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

Meeting of Delegates.

(From the Port Hope Times.)

The meeting of delegates from the several Agricultural and Horticultural Societies, intending to take part in the Central Exhibition to be held here next fall, met in the Council Chamber on the afternoon and evening of Tuesday last.

There was quite a large number of delegates present, East and West Durham, East and West Northumberland, East and West Peterborough, and North and South Victoria, being represented.

On motion Mr Walton, was appointed Chairman, and Messrs. Foot and Dickson, secretaries.

Mr. Walton, the newly appointed chairman, said that the meeting, as all were doubtless aware, was called for the purpose of arranging for the Central Exhibition, which it was intended to hold in Port Hope next fall. He hoped rules and regulations would be adopted, which would be permanent, and that would be handed over to Lindsay from Port Hope, to Cobourg from Lindsay, to Peterboro' from Cobourg, and back again to Port Hope, or wherever these exhibitions would be held. He did not think that any one should try to take an advantage over the other, but that all should work in harmony. The Exhibition in Peterboro' and be trusted that the coming one in Port Hope would be far better.

Mr. John Foot then read a communication from several societies stating the amount of money, if any, that had been subscribed by each, and the names of the delegates that would represent them.

Some conversation occurred as to who were privileged to vote or not, a great many of those present representing surplus from the exhibition in Peterboro.

Mr. Beal, from Lind-ay, thought it would be well to appoint a committee to digest as of this question as case.

On motion Messrs. A. E. Bayer, John Foust, Thos. Harrison, Henry Wade and George Carruthers, were appointed a committee on credentials; and after about an hour's deliberation, reported the following as entitled to take part in the proceedings :—

West Northumberland.—Messrs. A. A. Burnham, M. Winters, H. Wade, and Geo. Carruthers.

West Durham, (on motion) Mr. Saml. Wilmot.

Cavan.—Mr W. H. Sowden.

South Victoria.—Messrs. T Thompson, J. K. Knight, and Thos. Beal.

East Durham.—Messrs. N. Choate, J. Foott, A E Bayter, Wm. Mackie, Robert Sanderson, and J. S. Ceaser.

Hope.—Messrs. Thos. Harrison, Wm. Simpson, E. Dickson, E. A. Powers, J. Curtis and Geo. Mackie.

Port Hope Horticultural Society.—Messrs. H. M. Lee, and Wm. Mitchell.

Manvers.—Mr. Robert Grandy.

East Peterborough.—Messrs James Drummond, Thos. Hizard, Jas. Redmond and Francis Birdsall.

Peterborough Horticultural Society.—Rev. Mr Clementi, and Messrs. R A Brown, John Burnham, and John McClelland.

Smith, Ennismore and Lakefield.—Messrs. S. Dean, Thomas E. Bell, and L. Davis.

West Peterborough.—Messrs. Joseph Walton, John Carnegie, James Campbell, Henry Collins, and Alex. Scott.

Hamilton.—Messrs. John Bowman and Geo. Cockburn.

East Northumberland.—Mr. D. Douglass.

In the report as first presented, the Hope and County of Durham Societies had more delegates than appear. These two societies agreed to give $900, Hope $600, and the Centre $300, on conditions that, as in Peterboro' last year, the Central Committee assume the responsibility of the buildings.

Mr. Carnegie objected to the Central Committee assuming any of the responsibility. Although matters had got a little mixed up in Peterboro', the buildings were erected, and grounds prepared from funds collected in and around Peterboro', from local source. He thought the expense of pulling up the buildings should be assumed by the localities where they would be a permanent arrangement.

Mr. Harrison said that in discussing this matter the Hope Society, they took the Auditor's Report of the Peterboro' Exhibition as a basis; and taking a view of the matter which they had taken, they had voted the whole of their society's funds, some $600. If they had thought that the general committee would not be responsible for the buildings, they nor the County society would not have voted so much.

Mr Carnegie thought it better that the society should not vote so much of their funds, and let the buildings be a local affair entirely.

After some further discussion, a majority of the members of Hope and County of Durham Societies being present, they agreed to reduce their grants, Hope society giving $300, and the County society $200, and the report was amended accordingly.

On motion of Mr Carnegie seconded by Rev. Mr. Clementi, the report as amended was received and adopted.

Moved by Mr E. A. Powers, seconded Mr Wm. Mackie,—That the following gentlemen be a committee on permanent organization, namely, Messrs Wilmot, Carnegie, Harrison, Simpson, Thompson, Burnham, and Drummond.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Carnegie, seconded by Dr. Craser,—That Messrs. Wilmot, Drummond, Knight, Carruthers, Foot, and Carnegie, be a committee to draft a constitution for the Central Exhibition.—Carried.

The committe on permanent organization reported recommending the following.

APPOINTMENT OF OFFICERS.

President—John Foott, Esq.

Vice-President—Asa A. Burnham, Esq.

Secretary—R. Dickson, Esq.

Treasurer.—Thos. Harrison, Esq.

Asst. Supt.—E. A. Powers, Esq.

Auditors—Messrs. S. Dean, and W. Riddell.

On motion of Mr Wilmot, seconded by Mr Powers, the report was received and adopted.

A vote of thanks was then tendered to Mr Walton for the able manner in which he had occupied the chair.

Mr. Walton replied in appropriate terms. He hoped these exhibitions would still increase, and extend their bounds.

Mr. J Foott returned thanks for the honor which had been conferred on him by placing him in the position of President. The idea of a Central Exhibition was an old one of his. In 1857, he, in company with the late Mr. John Wade, had gone to Cobourg with the object of uniting the societies of the two counties to sustain a union exhibition. He trusted now that the matter had been brought about, it would not be allowed to drop, but would go on increasing.

The delegates then adjourned until the evening, to allow the committee on constitution an opportunity to draft one, and submit a report.

EVENING SESSION.

The delegates met again at 8 o'clock, Mr. John Foott, President, in the chair.

The committee, appointed to draft a constitution, reported. The report was read clause by clause and adopted. The first clause is as follows:

"The special committee, to whom was referred the duty of drafting a constitution for this association, having considered the matter, would, in view of its great importance, and the propriety of so framing it, as to bring the association under the provisions of the Agricultural Act, either as a new society, or with some slight amendments, as that the [illegible] ed to report thereon at the next meeting of the delegates."

Mr Wilmot said he had previously remarked that the committee would not have time to draft a constitution. When they met together, and talked the matter over, they were all of the same mind. It was contemplated by the Minister of Agriculture to revise the Agricultural Act, and make some changes, and it would be necessary to know what those would be so that the constitution might be made to agree with them.

Mr. Pratt said if he understood Mr. Wilmot aright, this society would be in the same position next year as it was at present, namely, without a constitution.

Mr. Wilmot said they could get the Legislature in December to pass the law before the association met in January, and in the meantime frame a constitution to be adopted when the delegates next met, to remain in force until it was known what changes would be made in the Agricultural Act.

The remainder of the report was then read, as follows :—

"That would also recommend that for the future the association be known as the 'Number Five District Central Exhibition Association' as defined in the Agricultural Act."

"Your committee would recommend that for the future the Treasurer of the Association be required to give security to the amount of, himself in $4,000, and two sureties in $2,000 each, to the satisfaction of the Executive Committee."

"They would also recommend that an Executive Committee of twelve be appointed the said committee for the current year, to consist of the following gentlemen, viz: Messrs. Geo. Carruthers, Grafton; Thos. Beal, Lindsay; James Drummond, Keene; John Carnegie, Peterboro; S. Wilmot, Newcastle; M. Sisson, Bethany; W. H. Sowden, Millbrook; Geo. Cockburn, Baltimore; Jos. Walton, Peterboro; Wm. Mitchell, Port Hope; John Foott, President; A. A. Burnham, Vice-President; either five to be the meetings of the general committee; such committee to be called together by the President, by written notice from the Secretary, posted at least eight days before the time of meeting.

Mr. Harrison asked if it would be the duty of this committee to draft the Prize List.

Mr. Wilmot said that was for this meeting to decide; if they wished to leave the preparation of the prize list in the hands of the Executive Committee they could do so.

Mr. Dickson thought it would be better to appoint a special committee to do that work.

Mr. Collins suggested that a committee be now appointed specially for that work. There would be a large amount of work for them to do.

Mr. Pratt thought if another committee was appointed for that purpose the Executive Committee would have nothing to do.

Mr. Wilmot said he disagreed with the others as to the amount of work to be done on the prize list. He considered the revision of the prize list a very small job. They had a guide to go by in the old prize list, and had only to scratch out here and put in another there and the entire work could be accomplished in a few hours. He knew this from experience.

On motion the report was received and adopted.

It was moved by Mr. Harrison, seconded by Mr. Collins,—That a committee to revise the prize list and appoint the Judges, be appointed, to consist of one representative from each contributing society, such committee to report at next meeting.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Pratt, seconded by Mr. Burnham,—That the Executive Committee be also appointed to revise the prize list, and appoint the Judges, and that their decisions shall be final.

The amendment was carried, and the original motion declared lost.

Dr. Ceaser said that it was the intention in the arrangements of the buildings to have enclosed stalls for valuable horses and cattle, for which they contemplated charging the sum of one dollar.

Mr. Pratt did not believe in charging for stalls. He considered the principle a wrong one. It was not right to charge the people who make up the show for the use of stalls.

Mr Harrison said they could not build the enclosed stalls unless there was some charge made. They could make them the same as at Peterboro' last year, but then exhibitors would be subjected to the same inconveniences.

Mr. Foott said it simply came to this; Will you have the stalls the same as last year, and put up with the inconveniences, or will you have enclosed stalls for your valuable animals, and pay a little more for them?

Mr Blizard said he would sooner give $2 than run the risk and inconvenience in exhibiting a cock, as had to be done last year in Peterboro'.

It was moved by Mr. Burnham seconded by Mr Bell,—That the committee be authorized to make a charge of one dollar for close stables.—Carried.

Mr. Carnegie would like to know what the financial position of the society was.

The Secretary read the list of contributing societies with the amounts contributed by each, as follows :—

West Northumberland	$ 200 00
Township of Hamilton	100 00
West Durham	50 00
Township of Cavan	50 00
South Victoria	67 00
East Durham	200 00
Township of Hope	300 00
Port Hope Horticultural Society	100 00
Manvers	50 00
West Peterboro'	100 00
Peterboro' Horticultural Society	33 00
Smith, Ennismore, and Lakefield	33 00
Township of Dummer	9 00
Surplus	1068 00
Total	$2360 00

Mr. Carnegie thought that a very good start. It was considerable more than they had to begin with last year.

Moved by Mr Pratt, seconded by Mr. Wade.—That the Exhibition be held on the week after the Provincial Exhibition, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Wilmot, seconded by Mr. Carruthers,—That so soon as the Treasurer shall, with his sureties, have entered into the requisite bonds for the due performance of his office, Mr. Carnegie be authorized to pay into the hands of the Treasurer such amount of funds as he may have, belonging to this Association.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Carnegie, seconded by Mr Scott,—That all sums realized from local subscription towards the exhibition from advertisements published with the prize list, from the sale of refreshments and from letting horse stalls be paid over to the local committee, to aid them in providing the necessary buildings for the Exhibition.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Knight, seconded by Mr. Harrison,—That Durham and Devon herd-book pedigrees, and Ayrshire properly authenticated pedigrees, to be produced to the Secretary at the time of making the entry; and no entry be made until the certificate be deposited with the Secretary. Carried.

A. Hurel, Esq., President of the Midland Railway was elected an honorary Director in consideration of services rendered by him to the delegates of the Central Exhibition.

The meeting then adjourned until the meeting of the Board on the first day of the Exhibition.

Measuring Hay in Bulk.—A. B. Allen, in the N. Y. Tribune says: "So many things have to be taken into consideration in calculating the weight of hay in bulk it makes it difficult to get at it correctly.—For example: fine, [illegible] like red-top or herd's grass, [illegible] require 500 cubic feet for [illegible] 550; clover, 650; coarse [illegible] hay, 700 or more. After being [illegible] 30 days the bulk would be decreased [illegible] ore to ten per cent., possibly [illegible] according to the size of the stack and [illegible] upon it. Again, hay will [illegible] in measurement according [illegible] it is cut. If this be done [illegible] coming into blossom, [illegible] it will pack closer [illegible] cubic foot than if [illegible] ore to ripen, [illegible] and [illegible] have grown, [illegible] become drier. Good judgment and some experience in measuring and weighing are required to get at this correctly. A neighbor of mine informs me that he once had the curiosity to weigh his carefully hay as fed out of mow the barn in July. He fed it about nine months after, and on reweighing it, as it came out of the barn, he found, greatly to his surprise, that it had shrunk to within a fraction of 25 per cent.

VINEGAR BITTERS

We call attention to a remarkable preparation of VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It tones and restores the scalp to a healthy color and vigor, and prevents the formation of scurf. Even hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often (though not always) cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands obliterated and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of feeding the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Even those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a graceful pliancy.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been entirely and radically cured by it, and the popular confidence in its virtues established upon a basis which defies competition. Even those who have long resisted the solicitations of friends, have been induced to try it, when they were painfully afflicted with running sores, and were cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that no one should neglect to be informed of the virtues of Sarsaparilla.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this enemy, sustained in its treason by the organism, undermines the constitution, and invites the attacks of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of the danger. Again, it seems to breed itself from throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, intercales may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Boils, Blotches, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Weaknesses, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it. It also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, which arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

NORTHERN SNOW.

BY WILL WALLACE HARNEY.

An exile to the pine and palm,
I see the fur-winged summer brood,
Through azure depths of endless calm,
Above a nursing solitude;

And ample breaths of bloom unfurled,
As sweet as e'er voluptuous South
Where Anthony gave the Roman world
For Egypt's Cleopatra mouth.

All things of sight and sound appear
To breathe of nothing but content,
As if unheeded through the year,
The vagrant seasons came and went.

Yet often, when I hear the rain,
In fleece of labor, whisper low,
Like ghosts about the window pane,
My heart would leap to see the snow;

To see beyond the frozen mores
In chalk and crayon's, black and white,
The river hills, through atmospheres,
Wind-blown, in dazzle points of light;

The smothered roofs that lie below
The little wreaths of thin blue smoke,
Where dodder holds handfuls of snow
Above them on its mother oak.

In smooth, white levels lie the croft;
A mound of snow the box-wood shines;
Still sweep the trowels, white and soft,
In sloping curves and sweeping lines.

Soft flurries I as a shadow blurs
The page in passing, light and fleet;
Like soft warm faces wrapped in furs;
Like faces passing on the street.

I see them in the falling rain,
Through all the years that lie between,
Like ghosts about the window pane,
Among the musk and evergreen.

The boyhood's friends, the fair young wife,
Who watched with me so long ago,
As if across another life,
Among the softly falling snow.

While grieving through the pine and palm
The winds do chide unceasing hours,
Whose unspent summers fill the calm,
With soft sweet utterances of flowers.

FROM THE GALLERY.

MR. WM. MACDOUGALL.

The subject of the following sketch is in some respects the most noted man in Canadian public life. His career is perfectly unique alike without precedent and without parallel. Few men in any country are possessed of more commanding talents. Endowed by nature with a keen incisive intellect, splendid debating powers, quick perception, strong common sense, and a good physical constitution, he seems to have been intended as a very ruler of men. No obstacle stood in the way of his elevation to the highest pinnacle of fame and power except such as were of his own creation. He received a fair education if not a liberal training, and the few writings which are known to the public as his productions, argue the possession of literary powers of no ordinary kind. His lot in early life was cast amid the seethings and upheavals of a stormy political period—the very traditions of which are sufficient even yet to make the blood coorse quicker through the veins of every young Canadian who is not blessed with a temperament of ice. Never did fairer opportunities cross the path of any young, talented and ambitious politician. How have all these gifts, circumstances and opportunities been utilised, and to what result have they contributed? How does he who was thus favored stand among his fellow countrymen and before the world? The answer will at once be supplied to everyone who reads the question. Instead of being a leader of men he never was a time in his political career when he had a shadow of a following, and during the quarter of a century which has elapsed since he first, as a journalist, took part in political life, he has been the hack of successive political parties, and the henchman of successive political leaders. He served Baldwin, he served Hincks, he served Rolph, he served Brown, he served John A. His name is associated with no great movement, with no great speech, with no great executive act. He has passed through a time when great movements were rife, when many noble, eloquent and enduring addresses were delivered, and when many old abuses were swept away by the cunning hand of the practical statesman. Prominent as is Mr. Macdougall's individuality through it all, it is a kind of prominence distinct from that of any of his great contemporaries, and of a far lower and less honorable grade—a kind of prominence which no one envies him the possession of and of which no invidious historian will ever seek to deprive him. And his position to day is the fitting and natural conclusion to such a career. He has been kicked and cuffed—metaphorically of course—from pillar to post, because by his conduct he appeared to invite such treatment, and his shrewd employers soon learned to discern that it did not very much disgree with him. Time and again after his political credit and his political character were alike bankrupt he has been afforded opportunities of rehabilitating himself but in every instance he has let them pass unimproved. The last opportunity he had, and the last probably he ever will have, was when elected to the present Ontario Assembly. He had touched bottom and could go no lower. With his great talents and qualifications for public life it was not unreasonable to expect that he would begin to rise. He was buoyed up for a little while by the general expectation and by the persistent puffing of certain cronies who fondly hoped that his reappearance on the scene was going to prove the death knell of party government. But the dead weight was too much for such pigmy forces to sustain. The only force competent to raise a man must come from within, and that force Mr. Macdougall never had or he would not have descended so low in the scale of political influence. No man was ever kept down any more than put down and by himself, and those who knew our hero best predicted that he would never rise again. It must be confessed that so far the result has verified the prediction. To-day he stands in the Legislature a unit, despised by all, feared by none. Long ago he forfeited the love of his countrymen if so ever had it; now he cannot retain even the respect of his fellow-members, and of all who a few short months ago were willing to accept his lead there is none now so poor as do him reverence.

A few biographical facts will serve to justify the above criticisms, throw into bolder relief the individuality of the subject of this sketch, and help to fill up with some little detail the outline I have drawn. The Leader many years ago, in giving some account of the Fathers of Confederation, informed the world that Mr. Macdougall was born on a farm near Toronto, then—that is when the notice was written—owned by Mr. James Beaty. He was born in 1822, and is of the U. E. Loyalist descent. He received his early education at Toronto, and his subsequent training at Victoria College Cobourg. Choosing the law for his profession he became an attorney in 1847, and was called to the bar in 1862. For a lawyer who never had a practice worth mentioning it was a piece of refreshing coolness to sneer at Messrs. Fraser and Hardy as having graduated in some village attorneyes office, seeing that they were both able barristers with large practices. But modesty was never an obstacle in the way of Mr. Macdougall's advancement, and since he condescended—as in his own estimation he evidently did—to enter this little Legislature at Toronto, he has again and again made a fool of himself and insulted the House by the reprovedition, condescending, patronizing, and withal the offensive demeanor he has assumed towards it. He entered on his journalistic career by starting in 1848, the "Locomotive Examiner," which was subsequently merged in the "Canadian Agriculturist." It is worthy of mention that this latter journal was finally superseded by the publication "Quinze Paroisse" owned and owned by the Hon. Geo Brown.

In 1850 Mr. Macdougall next set in a new line by starting the "North American," an avowedly political journal to defend its conductor's opinions and was regarded as the organ of the Radical Reformers, who desired a republican element of the Observer Reserve that it had as yet received.—The Baldwin Government was inaugurated in 1851, Mr Hincks taking the Premiership, and the Toronto organ of the Ministry being the "Leader," then as now owned by Mr. Beaty. During the stormy years which followed this event, there were thus three Reform journals in Toronto, not two of which could agree with the other on any matter of public policy. A lively triangular fight was kept up, the real nature of which I have never heard so well described to me as by an old backwoodsman who had a heart and soul for politics and was a keen observer. In the very midst of the windy warfare he emigrated from Nova Scotia to Ontario, and having been a Liberal when he came he naturally sought to attach himself to the liberal party here. Knowing nothing of either the political questions or the political journals he asked one of his new Reform acquaintances what paper he should take. This man happened to be an admirer of Mr. Macdougall and recommended the "North American." Our Simcoe friend acted on the advice and took the paper but soon gave it up in disgust because he found in it scarcely anything but abuse of the "Globe" and "Leader," journals of the same political stripe with itself. He was next urged to try the "Leader" and did try it with the same result. Growing tired of seeing its columns filled with abuse of the "Globe" and "North American" our friend went round the "Globe" as a last resource. To my astonishment, said he, I found the names of the other two papers seldom or ever mentioned in its articles although they were as zealously engaged in abusing it as if their very existence depended on the result. From that day to this I have stuck to the "Globe" as the only paper I could read with any degree of satisfaction. Such tactics could only have one result. The "Globe" circulation went up and the "North American" went down, while the "Leader" stuck close to its secure berth under the ministerial aegis, transferring its allegiance from Mr. Hincks to the man who described him as steeped to the lips in corruption.'

Nor are the causes of this unfortunate termination of an unfortunate career far to seek He entered political life with convictions but no principles, with predilections but no sympathies, with resolution but no enthusiasm. It has never, therefore, given him much trouble to change sides or betray either a colleague or a cause. His temperament is cold, his temper bad, and his disposition unlovable. He is not passionate but he has shown himself to be a cordial hater. His enmity is far more implacable than his friendship is warm and sincere. It his motives were not habitually and almost purely mercenary, he had a most unfortunate faculty of making others believe that they were so.—He was wanting in that noblest of all traits which can grace a public man—intellectual sincerity; and this infirmity it has, together with his ingrained crossness, which caused the once well known member of Huron and Bruce to tell him once to his face on the floor of the House that nature had intended him for a Jesuit but he had missed his vocation. He has always been notoriously indolent, and it is to this, perhaps, more than to any other fact that his recent suicidal blunders and almost incredible failures are to be attributed It was this as much as his selfishness and repulsiveness that prevented him from becoming a leader instead of a henchman. Whatever faults may be predicted of John A. Macdonald no one denies him the possession of a warm heart, untiring energy, enthusiasm and some degree of that faith to which enthusiasm always gives birth. Energy, enthusiasm and a warm heart were characteristic of George Brown, Edward Blake and Alexander Mackenzie. A large measure of these qualities will not suffice to make men great and permanently influ

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 2, 1876.

BOARD OF TRADE.

The Merchants of the Town held a meeting in the Council Chamber on Monday, to discuss the subject of licenses to auctioneers. The grievances of the Merchants are that Bankrupt stock is being brought into town and sold by auctioneers to the detriment of legitimate trade. The auctioneers contend that they are general benefactors, as well as assisting merchants to dispose of surplus stock by turning it into money instead of remaining upon their shelves. The By-law to put on a discriminating license was before the Council on Tuesday evening, and will be finally disposed of on Monday evening next.

At the first meeting Mr. Erskine who acted as chairman, brought forward the idea of starting a Board of Trade for Peterborough, and after discussion a Committee was named to obtain information as to the working of Boards of Trade generally, and to call a public meeting as soon as they thought best.

Mr. Wm Harty, of Kingston, being in Town this week, and as it is well known that he has had large experience in connection with the Dominion Board of Trade and also with the Kingston Board, it was thought advisable to obtain information from him, and on Wednesday he kindly met the proposed Committee and other merchants, and gave some valuable information as to the matters to be taken cognizance of by such Boards, which, suffices it to say include every subject of trade, commerce, assessment, postal arrangements, etc., which can effect the interests of the people of Peterboro.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr Harty for this courteously affording so much valuable information, and it is now contemplated, at an early day, calling a meeting for the purpose of organizing a Board of Trade for Peterboro.

Merchants and others who take an interest in the well-being of the Town, or in the prosperity of its different industries, will do well to prepare to enter heartily into this movement.

Membership will cost merely $1 a dollar a year, or two dollars at most.

LAKEFIELD

SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.

A very successful Sabbath School Convention was held at Lakefield, on Monday and Tuesday, 21st and 22nd Feb'y. The sittings of the Convention were in the Presbyterian Church, the pastor of which, the Rev N. Clarke, was indefatigable in promoting the interests of the Convention, and in endeavoring to make the delegates and others comfortable during their attendance. Although the Convention was under the auspices of the sabbath school workers in Smith and Douro, all friends of sabbath schools, and ministers of the gospel, in the County were invited. One very pleasant feature of this Lakefield Convention was, that all the Protestant Ministers of the gospel in Lakefield heartily engaged in the discussions and in the efforts to awaken a deeper interest in Sabbath Schools.

The first session was spent in religious exercises, and election of officers.

The meeting was called to order by J. Hall, Esq., the retiring President, and who stated in appropriate terms the object of the Convention.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Rev. Mr Everest, Episcopalian, President. All the resident Ministers were named Vice-Presidents. Mr. W. H. Casement was appointed Secretary, and Mr. George Crook Assistant Secretary.

During the second session the President, Rev. Mr. Everest, presided. Mr Hull reported the state of the Bible Christian Church School. Mr John Sherin, that of the Methodist Sabbath School in Lakefield. Rev Mr. Clark gave a report of the Sabbath School work in connection with the Presbyterian Church. Rev W. L Scott reported the state of the Sabbath Schools in connection with his labours outside of Lakefield, and Rev. Mr. Richards the state of the Sabbath Schools of the Bible Christian Church. Mr. Everest gave a very full report of the Sabbath School in connection with his church, and of the mission work in connection therewith. Mr. Crook reported favorably of the Selwyn Sabbath School, and the increased interest taken in it by those connected with it.

After the reception of the report Mr. Crook introduced the subject, "Fitness to Teach," in a very intelligent and christian spirit. He was followed by the Rev'ds N Clark, W. L Scott, Ricards, and Everest, and by some laymen. The discussion was interesting and several excellent hints were given to teachers, superintendents and others, on this most important subject.

THE EVENING SESSION

Commenced at 7 30 o'clock, p. m.

In the absence of the Rev Mr. Radcliffe, Mr. Stratton, Peterboro, introduced the subject—"The relation of the Sabbath School to the Church," followed by the Rev'ds Clash, Scott, Richards and Everest, and Messrs. Crook, Sentter and Elliott. This was also an interesting discussion showing diversity of opinion, but christian forbearance.

Of the Tuesday forenoon and afternoon sessions we were unable to obtain a minute report, but learn that they were well attended, and great interest manifested.

The Mass Meeting of children was addressed by the Rev Mr. Millard, of Toronto, who also taught a bible class to exhibit his way of managing that part of Sabbath School work.

The last session, Tuesday evening, was very largely attended. The church being crowded by all classes. Major Boulton very ably introduced the subject—"The best way of awaking an interest in mission work," followed by Revd's Mr. Millard, Scott, Clark and others.

The Rev. Mr. Carroll, of Peterboro, introduced the subject—"The best means of awakening an interest in Sabbath Schools." Both these subjects were freely discussed, and very kindly.

The choir in connection with the Presbyterian Church provided the musical part of the entertainment. Miss Johnston presiding at the organ.

Several of the speakers insinuated that Peterboro was somewhat lacking in their interest in Conventions, and the idea was moved of sending a missionary to the Town to stir them up.

The Lakefield Convention was a decided success. The greatest harmony and good feeling prevailed in the discussions. The Rev. Mr. Everest presided during every session, and all the Ministers were active in promoting its successful issue.

OBITUARY.

It is with sincere sorrow that we record the decease of WM. MCDOUGALL, Esq., of the firm of McDougall & Ludgate, at his residence in Cobourg, on Tuesday last. No man in the County of Northumberland, or in this County, was more favorably known and respected for his sterling upright character and fair dealing. His decease leaves a void in his neighborhood that will be long felt. He had built for himself a splendid residence in Cobourg and had moved to it with a view to giving up active business life, in which he had been engaged at Baltimore for about 35 years. But a wise Providence ordained that had finished his work and hence called him home to his reward in the 67th year of his age, comparatively a young man. The Cobourg Sentinel says:—

We record this week, with unfeigned regret, the sudden and unexpected demise of a gentleman who has long been identified with the commercial interests of this part of the country, and who has for a quarter of a century occupied a position second to none in the esteemed and confidence of the public. WM. MCDOUGALL, Esq., late of Baltimore, depart this life on Tuesday last, the 22nd of February, at 8:30 p. m., at his residence in Cobourg.

The deceased was born in Berwickshire, Scotland, in the year 1809 and came to the Province of Quebec in the year 1832. He removed to this Province and settled in the village of Baltimore in the year 1841. He then purchased the mills now owned by Mr Man, and 12 year's thereafter built the extensive flouring mills which have since been known as McDougall Mills. He was largely instrumental in the erection of lumber mills at Peterboro, and conduct the business there for about 20 years, during which time his residence was at Baltimore. He built the mammoth Mill at Harwood in 1868, the importance of which may be estimated from the fact that when in running order, which was nearly all the time, they could turn out 200,000 feet of sawn lumber each day. He spent a good deal of his time during the last few years in superintending these mills, and it is believed that it was there he contracted a sort of ague which was the cause of so weakening his previously strong frame and good constitution as to render him more easily the victim of the attack of congestion of the lungs which was the immediate occasion of his death.

During the past year he had erected a splendid white brick edifice on Bagot street and only removed thither from Baltimore with his family on Wednesday the 16th instant. He was one night in his new home before he was taken to his bed, and, died peacefully on Tuesday evening last.

He leaves a family of six sons, all of whom are business men, and two daughters. Mr. John McDougall, the eldest son, has lived for some time in the town of Bowmanville;

The last hour of Mr. McDougall were what might have been expected from his consistent and blameless life, full of calm, peace and resignation to the Divine will. While the family were plunged in hopeless grief, he was calm and even cheerful, and no one could witness the impressive scene, without praying "Let me die the death of the Christian, and let my last end be like his."

The funeral took place to the Union Cemetery, on Thursday the 24th instant, at 2 p. m. and was very largely attended.

The World says:—Mr. Macdougall came to Cobourg thirty-five years ago; and shortly afterwards established himself in business in the village of Baltimore,—which village he has seen grow to its present dimensions. He has for years carried on one of the most extensive flouring mills in the County; besides which he has latterly been heavily engaged in conjunction, with Mr. Ludgate, in the manufacture of lumber at their large mills at Harwood. These two in events caused Mr. Macdougall to be one of the most extensive exporters from Cobourg for our He had thus business relationships with a large number of people; and was universally esteemed as a prompt and honorable business man. He did not take an active part in municipal affairs; though we believe he once held a seat in the Township Council for a short time Though feeling a deep interest in what was going on, he seemed to shrink from accepting office, or any position of great prominence. He has for many years been one of the chief supporters of the Reform Party in the Township of Hamilton; and at the time of his death was Vice-President for his township, of the Reform Association. In so high esteem and confidence was he held by the Reform Party in this Riding that he was nominated their standard beared in the Convention of 1859,—an offer which his naturally retiring disposition led him to decline. Mr. Macdougall was one of the leading members of the Presbyterian Church in the township, having for years occupied the post of Manager and Treasurer of the Church of Baltimore. He took a deep interest in every scheme for the promotion of the cause of religion in connection with his church; and his vacant seat will long remind those with whom he was associated, of the useful and honorable life of him who has been taken to his reward.

His funeral took place on Thursday, and was attended by a very large concourse of sorrowing citizens of Cobourg and friends from the Township of Hamilton.

We are glad to learn that his decease will not interfere with the popular and wealthy firm of McDougall & Ludgate, as we understand that his son, Mr. David McDougall, of Ashburnham, will take the place of his father in the firm, and hence all who have had dealings with the late firm will learn this with pleasure. Mr. Ludgate is well known, and Mr. D. McDougall who has been connected with the business, will be a fit successor to his lamented father.

PARLIAMENTARY.—The accounts of matters at Ottawa show that the Government is strong enough to control the Legislature without fear. The budget has been discussed. We understand the Government are not going to change the tariff at present, and instead they intend curtailing expenditure until trade assumes a more normal condition. It is true that there are divided opinions in the House, but on the whole there is a preponderance of opinion in favor of a steady tariff.

THE REV. VINCENT CLEMENTI

This gentleman has again reached into print, and exhibited his kind and forbearing spirit towards the editor of the EXAMINER. He designated our remarks anent Owen Dowling's whiskey and tobacco as utterly false. In reply we say, Mr. Wm Eastland, one of the Auditors, was our informant, and the ratepayers will judge of Mr. Eastland's opportunity of knowing whereof he affirms.

The Rev. Gentleman says we sought to leave the impression that the Charity Committee paid Owen Dowling. Nothing of the kind. We will place his words and ours side by side and convict him of falsehood out of his own month.

REV. V. CLEMENTI.	OUR REMARKS.
CORPORATION RELIEF COMMITTEE. To the Editor of the Peterboro Review Sir,—I have just read, in this morning's issue of the EXAMINER, another characteristically untruthful article from the editor's pen respecting the above Committee I will trouble you, on the present occasion, with a notice of only one of the false statements contained therein. The editor says that Owen Dowling is receiving "$2 50 for board and fifty cents additional for tobacco and whiskey, the latter being written on the order to pay him." He then goes on to say that "the commissioner has in other cases (note the plural number) given tobacco, even within a few days"	There are other evils to be remedied yet. The Council is paying Owen Dowling $2.50 per week for board, and fifty cents additional for tobacco and whiskey; the latter being written on the order to pay him. Are the people of Peterboro willing that their money should be spent in this way? Twenty-six dollars a year for whiskey and tobacco for Owen Dowling! How many Owen Dowlings are there now on in this way? Surely all reasonable people will say; Drop the whiskey and tobacco.

Our readers will see that the committee is not mentioned in the remarks, not even remotely referred to. The Rev Gentleman is thus convicted of one slip.

He next insinuates that we wished it understood that Dowling received relief from the Committee. We say that no one with one grain of common sense or common honesty would say so after reading the above paragraph from our columns.

The Rev Mr. Clementi must be wittingly obtuse if in the following paragraph in reference to the Charity Committee he can find anything about Owen Dowling—not as much as by insinuation. Our remarks beside his will convict him of falsifying the record again. Here they are:

REV. V. CLEMENTI.	OUR REMARKS.
Now, sir, the words "other cases" prove that the editor wishes it to be understood that Dowling receives the relief above specified from the Committee, which is utterly false. All the orders pass through my hands and are all registered by me, and Dowling's name does not appear upon our list at all	We understand also that the Committee has in other cases given tobacco, even within a few days. Is tobacco a necessary of life? Other parties who are obtaining charities, can spend money to buy food for pet rabbits Now is it too much to ask that those parties dispose of their rabbits and procure food for their children

In other cases not in Owen Dowling's case.

Does not the Rev. Gentleman admit that the Committee paid for tobacco in one instance at least. He says:

> With regard to the "other cases" in which it is asserted that tobacco has been given, I have to state that an order for "three cigars" was given, not "within a few days," as was incorrectly asserted, but two or three weeks ago to one old woman, who, very imprudently, I confess, obtained a little tobacco on this order.

"Thus out of thine own mouth art thou judged, thou wicked servant." Every charge made we have thus proved. What a spectacle the Rev. Gentleman makes of himself in rushing into print. His temper and lack of judgement should prevent him doing so, if he would but consider his position, but alas, alas, his heart is not right, or his Christian meekness would be more manifest. Just think of the passage, "no brawler," "proud," "knowing nothing," "doting about questions and strifes of words," "destitute of truth," "follow after righteousness," "for some are already turned aside after satan."

Combativeness Extraordinary.

On Tuesday evening, when Mr. Clementi would not be allowed to air his grievances against the EXAMINER, and was choked off by the Council, Mr Rutherford, spoiling for a "barin" moved that all rules of the Council be suspended for the night, so that there might be a "free fight." The Mayor rebuked the new phase of a Council meeting, and reminded the two experts that the Council Chamber could not be used for that purpose just now. Mr. Rutherford was fully prepared for mortal combat. It is needless to say that the new Inspector has not yet a set of standard weights and measures, and could not comply with any request to test light weight or short measures.

Mr. Joseph Lundy last season removed earth off Smith Town Hill for 20cts. per yard. Mr. Rutherford was paying $1.08 for the same, according to his own showing; that is just 5 and two fifths times what Mr. Lundy did it for. Suppose this kind of work should be continued on streets and bridges this year will cost little short of $20,000. The timely warning of the EXAMINER has spoiled Mr Rutherford's plans, and lo! he is burning with holy ire. Yes, and he has become a Conservative, too. They will receive him no doubt into their arms and smile upon him, and fall on his neck and kiss him, perhaps. The bridges already built are not yet paid for, and yet Mr. Rutherford has got tenders for a bridge across the river on Smith Street.

MORE WASTE.

The head of the lake is to be filled in. Spalding's Bay to be made a highway—and one hundred and one other schemes that may tend to Mr. Rutherford's popularity undertaken Why not? He is ready to change sides again if he get's encouragement, in making crooked ways straight. He is fully preparred for that.

SCORN TO DO A MEAN ACTION

It would be well if man could remember this aphorism.

It is difficult, we will admit, for men to live up to even a moderately upright standard, and it is difficult to find men who try to do so. We would suppose that, of all men, Preachers of righteousness, would be righteous—but, alas, they are not always.

On Monday evening in the Town Council Chamber we saw an example of what a man may become, under feelings of malevolence. The Rev V. Clementi was permitted to address the Council, on conditions that he would not bring in his leading, and spite against the Editor of the Examiner, but even his word of honor could not be maintained when an opportunity presented itself to have a fling of temper, and abuse at that naughty man. In his undue attempt to draw in the Examiner, he asserted that it accused the Charity Committee of paying Owen Dowling money for tobacco and whiskey.—When Mr Stratton denied this, the Rev quibbler pulled an Examiner again from his bosom, and read—"The Council is paying Owen Dowling." If his judgment had not been perverted, he must have seen that it is the Council that is said to be paying Owen Dowling. Yet with a flourish he read, "is paying," and put it again close to his heart and left the impression that the Committee was charged with paying him.

His moral obliquity must be becoming more oblique, when he thus changes sides, and shifts from the Committee to the Council and from the Council to the Committee, and then thinks he has made a point. He thinks our remarks scurrilous, See his letter in the Review—To please him we will now quote but not from the Bible—and he would do well to remember, it vis:—Animum rege, qui nisi paret imperat. He who seeks to misrepresent an opponent is guilty of bearing false witness against his neighbor. Angels may weep to see men, who preach peace, so ready to rush into the fray. In the contest with this Clericus, he is the aggressor In our remarks about the Council and Charity Committee we did not even use his name or initials, or remotely refer to him. We knew the man, and the animus that controls him. As he is a Minister, we are not permitted to say by what authority, Paul's advice must be valuable and cannot be taken amiss. Will he read 1st Timothy, 3 chap. 2, 3, 4 and again, Give attention to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine And once more "I charge thee before God and the Lord Jesus Christ and the elect angels that thou observe these things, without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality." Lay hands suddenly on no man—but shun profane babblings, for they will increase to more ungodliness—Be instant in season and out of season. But why cast pearls before swine? Yet we cannot refrain from quoting one more beautiful passage from Peter.—"Wherefore laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocricies and envies and evil speaking, &c." We ask one, just one more favor from the Rev V. Clementi, and as he is a successor of the Apostles he cannot deny it. It is this: To read the whole of the 4th chapter of James' letter to the Twelve Tribes scattered abroad. It commences thus.—From whence come wars and fightings among you—come they not hence even of your own lusts, that war in your members. Ye lust and have not, ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: Ye fight and war. * * * wherefore he saith, God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble. * * * Cleanse your hands ye sinners, and purify your heart ye double minded

Therefore to him who knoweth to do good and doeth it not to him IT IS SIN. If the reading of these passages convert the sinner, they will hide a multitude of sins.

I. O. G. TEMPLARS.—We have been requested to state that the County Lodge of the above order will hold the next quarterly meeting on Thursday, 9th of March, in the Temperance Hall Peterborough. Important matter will be discussed, and a full representation is expected.

BURNED TO DEATH.—A little girl about eight years old, belonging to Mr. Firman of Douro, near the Nassau Mills, was burned to death on Thursday last. The little girl had been unwell and her mother left her to go to the next house for her grandmother. The child's clothes coming in contact with the stove, perhaps by standing too close to it, took fire. She ran out and rolled herself in the snow but so severely was she injured that she died in a few hours after.

NOT PRESENT.—The Rev. V. Clementi was not present at the Council meeting on Tuesday evening, but his friend, Mr. Rutherford was, and made several unsuccessful attempts to have his new Ivory Rule tested by the Council, and referred to the new Inspector of Weights and Measures, to see if it is not short at one end. Although Chamelion like, he changes faces, bases and hues often enough, the elephants tusk was not shown.

SABBATH SCHOOL JUBILEE.—Mr S. N. Lasher is about to have a Union Sabbath School Jubilee in Peterboro, in the course of 3 weeks, the children are practising for the entertainment now. Mr Lasher has a well selected number of hymns for Sabbath school purposes which will be used at this Jubilee, and are for sale with Mr Lowry, of Lasher & Lowry, for a small sum. As there is only a limited number of the books, parties requiring them would do well to secure one at once.

ACCIDENT AT ALLANDALE—We regret to learn that on Thursday last Mr. Robt Spier, who was engaged in Mr. Hope's Saw Mill, Allendale, was making an entry or account of some lumber and was standing in the way of the carriage which was being moved back, the lever caught his leg and carried him along until his foot caught on a projecting piece of timber used for hauling the logs in, by this he was thrown over violently, and received severe injuries about the knee, but we are glad to learn that his leg is not broken.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. Walter Beal, so well known in Peterboro, died after a very short illness on Saturday morning last. Up till January he appeared to be in his usual health. He attended to Council matters till the new council for 1876 was organized. About that time he took unwell, but was able to come down town within eight or ten days before his death He was a young man of about 35, of considerable promise, of an agreeable disposition, obliging, and very much respected by all who knew him.

SERVICE OF SONG.—We are glad to notice that the weekly public meetings of the Y. M. C. A. are to be resumed, and hope that much good may result from them. The first meeting will be held to night, 2nd March. It is to be a Service of Song Several beautiful anthems and Sankey's hymns will be rendered by a well trained choir under the leadership of Mr. Joseph McClelland. There will also be readings and recitations by gentlemen of ability We hope to see a large attendance to-night in the rooms of the Association.

The Best Sewing Cotton for Hand or Machine Sewing is CLARK & CO'S EXTRA QUALITY SIX CORD. Notice the Anchor on each Spool.

KENNEDY.—This celebrated Scottish Vocalist visited Peterborough last week, and gave his promised "two nichts at hame." He had full houses each night He is growing older, but no so fast as would be expected. He sings the auld Scottish Songs as weel as ever. Six of the family accompanied him. Five of them took part in the entertainment.—They are all excellent singers. His great power over his audience, and the humorous manner in which he introduced each piece, and the quaint way he has of telling Scotch stories, as well as his style of singing, and the free use of his mither tongue acts like a charm on Scottish hearts, and is pleasing to all the nationalities; and right weel he kens how to turn this to guid account.

"AS I DO LIVE BY FOOD I MET A F—L" —The Town Auditors have reported and the report has been submitted to the Council. Mr. Eastland signed the report proper, but Mr. Pendry attached a piece thereto which Mr. Eastland considered nonsensical, and he (Mr. E.) would not sign it. The general impression is that Mr. Pendry is not on the square by nature, and hence he is permitted to pass unmolested as few are willing to call him to an account for what he never possessed, viz., common sense, and this piece of buncombe is not an argument in his favor. We will try and give the whole report next week. It would not appear to advantage divided. Mr. Pendry was an applicant for Clerk and Treasurer, and will explain his reference to the Town Treasurer, and what he says about the printing account will keep.

A NEW THRESHING MACHINE.—Mr. W Lyall, of Hope, has invented a new threshing machine without cog wheels. It runs by belts, of which there are only three. It is said to be simple, durable and cheap.

MARVERS.

JANEVILLE CHURCH DEDICATION.—The new Methodist Church, Janeville was dedicated to the worship of God, on Thursday, the 17th inst. The Rev. N. R Willoughby, M A., Chairman of the Peterborough district, preached an eloquent and impressive sermon at 11, a. m. Gracious influence rested on the very large congregation present. After the public service, about 700 persons partook of an excellent tea, provided by the ladies of the vicinity. At 3. o'clock p. m., a public meeting was held in the church, which was crowded to the utmost capacity Rev. R. McCulloch opened the meeting with prayer. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. J. C. Seymour, W. R Barker, and N. R. Willoughby. The last gentleman undertook the raising of the entire debt of the church, which was $800 After a few pleasant remarks, he called for subscriptions and in a few minutes upwards of $600 were subscribed. The collectors and proceeds of the tea-meeting were about $200 making a total of $1,100 that was realised by the services of the day. Great sympathy is felt by other denominations for the Methodist people of Janeville, they having been locked out of the late New Connexion Church by the Methodists, and as the deed of the old church had never been recorded, they resolved to quietly supersede the church to the Bible Christians, who have been making desperate efforts to obtain possession of Methodist churches in this section of country, and erect a new one. As the result of their efforts, the Methodists of this community have now a very neat and commodious structure, worth at least $2,000, free of debt, and money to purchase an organ:

This is one of the best churches in the township. In size is 37 x 47 feet, with a basement. The society numbers about 30, and, with the congregation, are living in peace and harmony.

SUNDAY SERVICES.—The opening services of the above church were continued on Sabbath, the 20th. Rev. A. Browning of Canton, preached in the morning, from Isaiah 66-12, and in the evening from Nehamiah 5-3. Rev. W. R. Barker preached in the afternoon from the Rending of Lazarous. The day was a red letter one in the history of Manvers Methodism. The church was perneatly crammed with persons of all denominations from a radius of over a dozen miles. The influence and eestha-sism felt and manifested was something marvellous. The congregation lingered in the edifice at the close of the evening services as it loath to leave so hallowed a spot. We hope and believe that the opening services of this beautiful church will work a transformation in Manvers and go far towards healing a very unlovely and unbrotherly sore.

PORT HOPE.

The Council of our Sister Town has passed a By-law providing for License Tavern: the number of Hotels to be 14 and the rate $150 dollars a year. Shop Licenses were fixed at $150 a year, also but no limit is mentioned.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Monday afternoon an explosion of dynamite—result of a three-fold accident of a serious nature William White, John street, had a contract for excavating a drain across the street just north of the Gas Works. A man named Hudson was employed by him to superintend the use of dynamite, which was found to greatly facilitate the work. the grave and stones were tightly wedged together, in addition to the ground being frozed. On Monday a charge of this explosive was placed in the proper position and Hudson went home to dinner, leaving instructions that no one should touch it. Mr. White, however, on coming back from dinner, which he did before Hudson, proceeded to drill with the usual instruments upon and around the charge. Capt Colwell expressed a strong conviction that the charge had not exploded, and warded the bystanders to get out of the way, at the same time setting the example, which a number of others followed. Mr. White said he thought it must have "fused" off, and continued drilling. One of the strokes came in contact with the "cap" on the charge of dynamite and it exploded with considerable force, resulting in serious injuries to Mr. White and two boys named Fallen and Maxwell, who should have been at school instead of waiting for the explosion. Mr. White's wrist was broken, his hand badly mutilated, and his face considerably cut up by the flying gravel, besides lesser injuries. The boy Fallen sustained a compound fracture of his skull, besides other serious injuries. Maxwell's face was badly riddled by the gravel, and he sustained a severe cut on the forehead Dr. Herriman was called in and performed the necessary operations with skill. He performed a very critical and difficult operation on Mr. White's hand, cutting away the second and third fingers and the palm of the hand in such a way as to leave the thumb, first and fourth fingers A stone was also extracted from the cavity above his left eye. Although the result of the explosion are quite serious enough, we are glad that no fatal injuries were inflicted on any one.—Guide.

Deputy Grand Secretary.

There was a large amount of important business transacted, and the Lodge sat in session all night. The next annual meeting will be held in Orillia.

The following resolution was adopted:

That in the opinion of the Right Worshipful Grand Lodge, the time has arrived when the Orangemen of Canada, without reference to politics or political parties, must unite in one grand phalanx in order to stop the encroachments of the Romish Hierarchy upon the body politic of the country, and that the following platform be adopted:—

1. Unswerving and untiring allegiance to the Mother Country and the British connection.

2. No grants of money from the public purse for sectarian purposes.

3. No separate schools, but free secular education for all.

4. Taxation for all, taxation of all property held by religious bodies upon its fair assessed value.

5. The opening of all public institutions in the land, religious or otherwise to public inspection by Government officials.

6. That it shall be the duty of the County Master in every Orange County in the event of a general election or other election taking place, either for the Local or Dominion Parliaments, to submit the platform to the candidate or candidates to ascertain if they will support them or not, and then to call a county meeting before the day of polling, and if neither of the candidates will support the said platform, then it shall be the duty of the county lodge to bring out a candidate.

A TOAST.

Two Important Discoveries! The discovery of America by Columbus, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery: the one opening up the mankind a new continent, the other a fountain of health, which is indispensable to the full enjoyment of life and its blessings. In response to the above sentiment come the unsolicited attestations of tens of thousands of grateful patients, who have been relieved of chronic ailments through its instrumentality. Those voices are limited to no one locality, but from every city, village, or hamlet, in our broad domain, as well as from other climes, and in the strange utterances of foreign tongues, like the confused murmur of many waters come unbought and hearty commendations. It is in comparison with the 1 lenged Peruvian Bolizo, the great depurator of the age. Under its benign action eruptions disappear, impurities waste is checked, the liver is made healthy, and health long banished from the system, resumes her reign and re-establishes her regal throne upon the cheek. All who have thoroughly tested its virtues in the diseases for which it is recommended unite in pronouncing it the great Medical Discovery of the age.

WELCOME.

To Mr. Kennedy the Scotish Vocalist:—

I wonder if the news be true
That's comin' through the press,
They tell me he is comin' hame
To Peterboro' town
O comin, an' welcome back ma man,
We hae wished for you lang,
An shouts an' daith we like to hear
You sing the Auld Scotish sang,
For auld songs are best for
Then com sang o' mines,
To gar our hearts loup to our mouth
Wi' the songs o' auld lang syne.

An'd Scotia mourns baig her head
Her blush to ours yonne,
The wee bit cabinet raised to Forth
Now hears surrivalid fame,
The forks o' Forth they dinna ken
The talleuts in your poet,
How they would lunch an' chap their hands
Were they to hear you now.
It shrouds in tears pleasure at hame,
At times to hearts like mine,
To draw our auld hearts back to youth
An' days o' auld lang syne.

Fu't say it was in Kelso town,
Upon the banks o' Tweed,
Ye used to learn the potatier trade,
Gude faith ye dinna speed.
Nature glad you a better trade,
That lassen forth wi' a bang,
The people, the folk, ye came to sing
The auld auld Scotish song.
Its on, frae the auld cronie Shorwell',
Had immmerous crik o' thine,
That drawn the forks to hear you sing
The songs o' auld lang syne.

It was in Lowe's city fair,
Where first you did appear,
Wi' humble mane an' simply pooch
An' accents rare had clear.
The critiques thought you were a chiel,
The Scots were come over true,
Before you left they did confess
You sang auld songs like you.
The star o' fame began to peep
The' it did dimly shine,
But o' its splendour bright has shed
Since the days o' auld lang syne.

Since then ye hae gaen far an' near,
Made round the globe you've been,
In every land they flocked in droves,
Wha, o'er your name was seen.
Gold luck has followed you ma man,
Your purse nocks ne ane lang.
Baith fame an' wealth has been your lot
Wi' sangs o' the auld mang.
Your Nelie an'ma a'e grown up now
Teach them that nash or thine,
That they may sing when you are gone
The songs o' auld lang syne.

Then here ma hand ye hae ma heart
Your' fatherland, wa mine,
Ah ma, I hear, lang may you sing,
The songs o' auld lang syne.

A TRUE STORY.

—OF—

One cold day in winter a lad stood at the outer door of a cottage in Scotland. The snow had been falling very fast, the poor boy looked very cold, and hungry. "Mary! Mary! Mary!" the maid to the woman who had opened the door. "I' llwork, cut wood, go for water and do all you errands."

"You may come in, at any rate, until my husband comes home," the woman said. "There, sit down by the fire; you look perishing with the cold;" and she drew a chair up to the warmest corner; then suspiciously glancing at the boy from the corners of her eyes, she continued setting the table for supper.

Presently came the tramp of heavy boots and the door was swung open with a quick jerk, and the husband entered wearied with his day's work.

A look of intelligence passed between his wife and himself. He had looked at the boy, but did not seemed very well pleased; he nevertheless made him come to the table, and was glad to see how heartily he ate his supper.

Day after day passed, and yet the boy begged to be kept "until to-morrow;" so the good couple, after due consideration, concluded that as long as he was such a good boy and worked so willingly they would keep him

One day in the winter, a peddler, who often traded at the cottage, called, and, after disposing of some of his goods was preparing to go, when he said to the woman:

"You have a boy outthere, splitting wood. I see," pointing to the yard.

"Yes; do you know him?"

"I have seen him," replied the peddler.

"Where? Who is he? What is he?"

"A jail-bird;" and then the peddler swung his pack over his swoulder.

That boy, young as he looks, I saw in court myself, and heard him sentenced 'Ten months,' You'd do well to look carefully after him."

Oh! there was something so dreadful in the word "jail." The poor woman trembled as she laid away the things she had bought of the peddler; nor could she be easy till she called the boy in and assured him that she knew that dark part of his history.

Ashamed and distressed, the boy hung down his head. His cheeks seemed bursting with the hot blood, and his lips quivered.

"Well," he muttered, his frame shaking, "there's no use in me trying to do better; everybody hates and despises me; nobody cares about me."

"Tell me," said the woman, "how came you to go, so young, to that dreadful place? Where is your mother?"

"Oh!" exclaimed the boy, with a burst of grief that was terrible to behold—"oh I hadn't no mother! I hadn't no mother ever since' I was a child," he continued, while tears gushed from his eyes. "I wouldn't have been found out, and kicked, and cuffed, and worse whipped. I wouldn't have been saucy and got knocked down, and run away, and then stole because I was hungry. Oh! if I'd only had a mother!"

The strength was all gone from the poor boy, and he sunk on his knees, sobbing great choaking sobs, and rubbing the hot tears away with the sleeve of his jacket.

The woman was a mother, and though all her children slept under the cold sod in the churchyard, she was a mother still. She put her hand kindly on the head of the boy, and told him to look up, and said from that time he should find in her a mother. Yes, even put her arms around the neck of that forsaken, deserted child. She poured from her mother's heart, sweet, kind words, words of counsel and of tenderness. Oh! how sweet was her sleep that night—how soft her pillow! She had plucked some thorns from the pain of a little sinning but striving mortal.

That poor boy is now a promising man. His foster-father is dead, his foster-mother is aged nd sickly, but she shows no want.

The "poor outcast" is her support. Nobly does he repay the trust reposed in him.

"When my father and mother forsake me the lord will take me up"—The Standard Bearer.

LEAP YEAR PRIVELEGES.—An exchange tells the following good story concerning the leap privileges of the gentle sex "Young ladies have the privilege of saying anything they please during leap year," she said eyeing him out of the corner of her eyes with a sweet look. His heart gave a great bound, and, while he wondered if she was going to ask the question which he had so long desired and feared to do, he answered, "Yes." "And and the young men must not refuse," said she "No, no! How could they I" sighed he. "Well, then," said she, "will you ——" He fell on his knees and said: "Anything you ask darling." "Wait till I get through. Will you take a walk, and not hang around our house so much?" And he walked.

SEASONABLE ADVICE.—Now Young men, see that you conduct yourselves becomingly when asps is laid to your hearts by your fair ladies. When the supreme moment arrives and she pops the question, don't slop over and get excited, but let things sort of take their natural course. Don't holler or sing war whoops and don't throw up calmly but firmly. Promise every one that asks you. That's the way the girls do. And then sit down solidly and ask them how much salary they get and if she can't content herself living with you until you get settled down as you ain't able to keep a wife from home. Do this young men, and you won't have to buy a military silk dress this year.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

THE EFFECT OF LIGHT ON BREEDING STOCK.—The Poultry Bulletin has the following account of some experiments made by the writer, M. Eyre, Jr., which we have no doubt will prove interesting to our readers;

When Mr. Wright went so far as to assert, in his last great work, that the mere presence of a black hen among white ones might cause spotted chicks, I believe him; but when some fanciers write articles claiming that all breeds might be allowed to run together indiscriminately, and a seperate of a few weeks be depended on to insure purity of offspring, I remember the first mixtin of logic, Contrafacta non licet argumentare, and resolved to test the matter by facts. I took a White Leghorn hen, mated with a White Leghorn cock and preserved her eggs. After she had stopped laying four days, I mated her with a Light Brahma cock. Another white Leghorn hen I treated similarly, using a hawk-coloured or Dominique rooster instead of a large Asiatic. I allowed the hens to remain one week with these cocks, when they were returned to their former mate. Every chick hatched from eggs laid before mating was a pure White Leghorn. Chick's hatched from eggs laid by the hen which had been mated with the Brahma, were feathered on the legs. Unfortunately, this hen died soon after but the other one I kept for a year, and then sold, explaining to the purchaser the facts. She remained all this time, except the one week, with cock of her own breed; and still, from eggs laid by her eleven months after this week of mating, I watched speckled chicks in the proportion of five out of every twelve.

The theories of those who combat the natural educations from these facts, at least as far as White Leghorns are concerned, are, to mind, on a par with the ratiocinations of the academy, explaining the reason why water will not overflow from a completely full bowl is a if a fish be gently placed in it, which were indulged in until a member, to illustrate his logic, trying the experiment, found the assertion false. I received, on the 17th of this month, a letter stating that the legs of young from White Leghorns known to be pure were feathered, and asking if it could possible be occasioned by their having run with Light Brahmas last fall. I unhesitatingly answered, Yes.

One other test I have made. Complaints of colored chicks from eggs, White Leghorns, sold by me, reached me several times before the issue of that number of Wr Wright's work to which I have referred. After its perusal, I attributed the colored chicks to the presence of Houdans in the next corral, my hens being at that time separated by lattice work to within a foot of the ground. The experiment I now mentioned has led me to board them up to the height of three feet. I doubted it the mere slight of a colored fowl would be sufficient to produce such effect under peculiar circumstances: hence, I placed a pair of White Leghorn in one pen and a vigorous Houdan cock in the next pen, to full sight of each other. Everytime the White Leghorns cock performed his marital functions, the Houdan rushed with much noise against the partition and immediately thereafter the two would fight. The chicks produced from eggs laid while this situation remained were colored and one actually had the crest of the Houdan, The same hen, placed in another corral, produced chicks showing no trace of anything but pure Leghorn; so the effects did dot remain as in the case where one was mated with a colored cock. Call it, with Mr. Wright acting on the imagination of the hen explain it in any other way the fact remains, at least as far as this individual hen is concerned; and I am led to believe that many so called "sports" may be produced by like causes.

MILK OR BRANDY.—The Western Morning News remarks that while the medical journals are discussing earnestly the point whether a doctor should continue to treat a patient who, being a teetotaler, objects to take acoholic liquors, the controversy is put in quite a new form by Mr. Rothbone, M. P. for Liverpool. Presiding at a meeting held in his own constituency the other day, he stated a number of facts to which the attention of the Lancet should be directed. He had, he said, been called upon to find a lady superintendent to take charge of the sick nursing of a district in Liverpool. He found the lady who was wanted, a lady who was fitted to give to the poor patients all that was necessary in the way of medicine and food. But she made a condition She would not agree to accept the position offered to her unless the liberty were granted to her of refusing to administer the ordinary stimulants. The nursing society looked upon this as an experiment which it was glad to see tried. The condition was accepted. The lady set to work. She did entirely without beer or spirits. Mark the result. Mr. Rathbone is our authority for the statement that her patients recovered more satisfactorily, more rapidly, and more completely than those in the surrounding districts, where malt liquor and spirits were thought necessary to strength. Of course, the patience did not live on the air. What was the lady's secret treatment Simply that she gave milk instead of beauty. Mrs. Rathbone was so struck with the success of the scheme that she desired to extend it. She was timid however, fearing failure. She asked one of the nurses in her own neighborhood to try it continously. The nurse did so. The result was again the same. The only objection to the new diet is that it is more expensive than the old. Milk does not destroy appetite like brandy; and the bill for the one is £40, against less than £30 previously. But that is an addition which the society rejoices to see. This money is spent in food. Doctors and nurses please copy.—Alliance News.

HOUSE OF FENCE WHITEWASH.—The W. S. Treasury Department has sent out a recipe for white washing which it said to answer on wood or brick almost as well as oil paint, and to be much cheaper:—Slake a half bushel of unslacked lime with boiling water, keeping it covered during the process. Strain it, and add a pound of salt dissolved in warm water; one pound powered Spanish whiting, and a pound of glue dissolved in warm water; mix these well together, and let the mixture stand for several days. Keep the mixt this prepared in a kettle or portable furnace, and when used put it on as hot as possible with either painters or white-wash brushes.

VINEGAR BITTERS

OVER ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND TESTIMONIALS proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

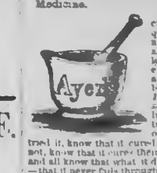
Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Family Medicine.



Perhaps no [illegible] is universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so [illegible] reliable adopted into use, in every country among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault inherent in its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of the remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such as are known in every neighborhood, and we need publish them. Adapted to all ages and [illegible] all climates, containing neither [illegible] drug, they may be taken with [illegible] Their sugar coating preserves them [illegible] and makes them pleasant to take, [illegible] purely vegetable so harmless [illegible] can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels literally well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

AGENTS WANTED.

Agents Wanted in every Township in Ontario to sell the famous Prize Medal Organ Manufactured by the South American Organ Co. and George Steck & Co's Pianos.

Special inducements will be given to first class agents and clubs of three or four wishing to purchase

Any number of testimonials in favor of these first class organs can be furnished, but as they are so widely known—great numbers having been sold throughout the Dominion, and having given satisfaction in every instance—No testimonial, however flattering can add to their reputation

The Steck Piano Company received the only gold medal awarded to any exhibitor of musical instruments at the Vienna Exposition of 1873

Combining reputation, organs, will be liberally dealt with. Style 22, Small American, we would call attention to as being especially adapted for churches and halls. Its proportions are graceful and its musical qualities are unsurpassed. The grand organ-stop gives a player facilities for various and appropriate effects, that stop can be used so as to always increase the volume of tone from a whisper or entirely being forth all the power of the instrument in a burst of harmony

Pianos and organs furnished Wholesale and Retail from any of the first class American manufacturers

Choice Poetry.

Hold your Head up like a Man.

If the stormy winds should ramble,
While you tread the world's highway,
Still against them bravely tussle,
Hope and labor day by day:
Falter not, no matter whether
There is sunshine storm or calm,
And in every kind of weather,
Hold your head up like a man.

If a brother should deceive you,
And should cut a traitor's part,
Never let his treason grieve you,
Jog along with lightsome heart;
Fortune seldom follows fawning,
Boldness is in the plan,
Hoping for a better morning,
Hold your head up like a man.

Earth, though she so rich and mellow,
Yields not for the worthless drone,
But the bold she boasts, fellow,
He can shift and stand alone;
Spurn the knave of every nation,
Always do the best you can,
And no matter what your station,
Hold your head up like a man.

The Protestant Home.

The Annual Meeting of the "Home" was held on Wednesday, March 1st.

The Reports presented by the Secretary and Treasurer were audited and adopted, after which the following officers were elected for the current year:—

PRESIDENT.—Mrs. Romaine.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.—Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Elder.

TREASURER.—Miss Gilmour.

SECRETARY.—Miss Rogers.

COMMITTEE. — Mrs. Wallis, Mrs. Haultain, Mrs. J. A. Hall, Mrs. C. Ormond, Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. Mack, Mrs. Jas. Campbell, Mrs. Hallen, Mrs. Maclennan, Mrs. Clementi.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

President—Mrs. Romaine.
Vice-Presidents—Mrs. F. W. Haultain and Mrs. J. A. Hall.
Treasurer—Mrs. W. G. Thomson.
Secretary—Miss Roger.
Committee—Mrs. Wallis, Mrs. G. E. Shaw, Mrs. Elder, Mrs. C. Ormond, Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. Mack, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Hallen, Miss Patton.

In once more presenting the annual report of the Peterborough Protestant Home, the committee would wish to render grateful thanks to God, the Giver of all good, for His many mercies to them during the past year, in the continued good health of those under their charge, there having been no deaths in the Home, nor any serious illness since last report was returned.

There are now in the Home eight persons, including the Matron, of these four are old, being over 70 years of age, one is blind and one almost helpless, another inmate is middle aged. There are only two children in at present.

Eight persons were received during the year into the Home, one an infant three weeks old, was laid down at the door and deserted by its unnatural mother, the authorities of the town took up the case and in a short time McGregor Dunsmuir have secured and shall effectively contribute to the comfort of the above named child. The motherless children who were in for the winter months and for whom a small sum was paid, were removed by their father in May. Besides these, five others have left. Two of the present inmates pay a small sum for board.

Several women without homes and looking for something to do have found a lodging here for a time. Twenty are families have been relieved, orders for groceries are given varying in value from 50c. to $1 according to the size of the family.

Visitors are due to those friends who have kindly contributed clothing, vegetables, straw meat, &c., among them several Lumbers. The kindness of the several ladies of the town, who cheerfully and regularly visit the Home, is gratefully acknowledged; also that of the clergymen and some lay friends who take an interest in the spiritual well-being of the inmates.

Thanks also to the editors of the local papers, who kindly insert donations, acknowledgments, and advertisements, free of charge and specially to Mr. Romaine, for a copy of the Review each week. Mentioned from the churches, St. Andrew Society, Curling Club these, however, are always acknowledged at the time of receipt.

The lady collectors desire to thank the friends who kindly give their annual subscriptions, but regret to say that from the "hard times" little more than half the amount was collected in the town that has been in former years; happily number of monthly contributors was unusually large. All hope that with better times coming on, our friends may be able another year to give more than ever to this good work

"There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth, and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat, and he that watereth shall be watered also himself."

"But this I say, he which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly, and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give, not grudgingly, or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver.

ISABEL ROGER.

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 9, 1876.

A GRAND FAILURE.

The discussion of the tariff in the House of Commons at Ottawa proved conclusively that the Opposition in the House is a farce, and that Sir John as a leader of the Opposition is a grand failure.

The Minister of Finance desired in his speech that the Ministry had determined not to touch the tariff at present This of course, did not please the protectionist part of the House, and induced Mr. Irvine of Hamilton, and Workman and Devlin of Montreal, to declare their opinions strongly and to state their adherence to a protection policy. Mr. Devlin even offered his aid to Sir John if he would declare himself a protectionist, and proposed a protection policy. But Sir John on the contrary refused to be drawn into a discussion on the subject, and on a division on a motion of Mr. Irvine's he voted with the Ministry. The vote stood 3 for a protection policy, and 179 against.

This was a splendid opportunity for the gallant knight to strike, but he refused, thus admitting that the country did not desire more protection than they now have, and that he feared to risk anything on it. This is the truth of the matter :— A few persons interested in manufactures, are anxious to secure protection to enrich themselves at the expense of the consumers or purchasers, but the people as a whole do not desire it;—do not want it at all, except as is necessary to raise the required revenue. Some of the protectionists were divided in their views, just as their own interests clashed. New Brunswick wanted coal protected and nothing else. Some merely the articles that Americans rushed into Canadian markets; and thus too evident selfishness prevented adhesiveness enough to secure even a moderate vote in favor of changing the tariff.

The action of the Opposition is conclusive that the protection cry is a mere humbug to cajole anthinking and unwary electors, who are too ready to follow a party as long as they can be deceived by wily knaves and cunning tricksters.

THE MINORITY REPORT

Owing to the want of confidence of the people in Mr. Pendry, one of the Auditors, a large number of the most influential ratepayers have petitioned the Council for a re-audit. Although we do not think that any grave mistakes will be found, it is right to grant it and thus prevent any feeling that the Town accounts are not honestly and fairly managed. We have no hesitation in joining with the petitioners in their sense of non-confidence in Mr. Pendry, and as he has taken upon him to make a report distinct from that made in conjunction with Mr. Eastland let us have the worst of it, no matter who suffers.

A re-audit, if granted, will prove conclusively that Mr. Pendry was actuated by a spirit not friendly to the Town Treasurer, but he found that he must assail others also to hide his chief motives.

The Town Treasurer, (in his humble opinion), has not kept his books to suit Mr. Pendry, who knows about as much about books as a baby. The Treasurer of the Town Trust has been making a wrong statement of $1,358 : now who believes it ? not one. The Treasurer of the School Board has overdrawn his account with the Town Treasurer. O dear, what next ? The Town Treasurer and the Treasurer of the School Board don't keep all the books, Mr. Pendry thinks they should.

And now we ask our readers to peruse his report and see if they can understand it. Then find out from it what is wrong, if they can. The printing account was paid the day after it was presented. Just so, was it not right ? Mr. Stratton got $25 on a contract, by order of the Chairman of Finance, and when the settlement came it was deducted, dreadful ! Dr. Kincaid got $200 without sufficient authority ! what has that to do with the Town Treasurer ?

Then Mr. Pendry has to audit the accounts of part of 1876. He understands ! just so. This is about all Mr. Pendry knows about it, some one told him something, and lo, the Town Treasurer and School Board Treasurer and Treasurer of the Town Trust and the Printing account are all wrong. But really what is wrong ? Is it not that nature never endowed the poor fellow with too much common sense ?

He says there have been notes to the amount of $8072 45, on which the sum of $828.85 has been paid. Who did this ? The Town Treasurer or the School Board ? If the School Board, then the Board is in debt to the amount of $7,943 60. Is this so, and for what ? The report on this is as clear as mud, to use a common phrase.

Dr. Kincaid may have received too much, but the Council passed it: and if Mr. Toole was directed to go to Toronto on Railway matters he had a perfect right to have his expenses paid.

By all means let Messrs. McDonald and Pearse audit the books and then all the irregularities will be known

In Mr. Pendry's humble opinion he ought to be Town Treasurer.

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 9, 1876.

THE DUNKIN ACT has been carried in Earnestown, by 236.

MR. BALDER, formerly Editor of the "Review" died a few days ago in Toronto.

KEEWATIN is the name for all the Territory north of Manitoba and eastward. The word means "North Land."

LUMBER.—It is said that a great deal more lumber is being manufactured in Ottawa valley this year than is generally supposed.

THE Village Council of Millpoint have unanimously adopted a Dunkin Law, so to speak, by granting no licenses for the year 1876.

METHODIST.—The Rev. Messrs. Willoughby and Watson are still continuing the revival services, and large numbers are professing increased interest in religion.

A NEW COINAGE has been completed for the whole German Empire. This is to do away with the coinage of petty states and to secure a uniform currency for the whole Empire.

THE DAWSON ROUTE.—The Government, it is said, have decided to annul the Carpenter & Co's contract for transporting immigrants by the Dawson route, as grave complaints existed.

MR. DORAN has just received new Tweeds of latest styles, which he will sell as cheap as practical, and he is prepared to take orders for Spring Suits, and will fit the order on short notice. Call and see him and get first choice.

Y.M.C.A.—Instead of Rev. Mr. Morrow's lecture there will be a public Bible reading in the Rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, this evening Subject—The Parable of ten Virgins, to commence at 8 p.m. Come one, come all.

CONCERT AT SELWYN.—Mr Jas Millar, assisted by those who attended his singing school, intends giving a concert at Selwyn on Friday evening, 10th inst. at The people of the north who are acquainted with Mr. Millar's singing will no doubt give him a full house.

CONCERT IN KEENE.—Mr D D Gallely intends giving an entertainment in the Town Hall, Keene, on Friday evening, March 10th, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Bowman, Messrs. Smith, Ormond and others. The programme consists of Scotch Songs, both humerous and amusing.

THE TARIFF.—The debate on this subject was not completed when we went to press Nothing else of importance from Ottawa Mr. Worsman's motion was lost by 64 to 119, but what course may still be pursued no one can tell. Sir John tried to cajole Mr. Workman but to no purpose.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—We understand that the friends of St. Andrew's Church will have a Soiree in connection therewith, on Friday, 17th inst. There will be Addresses by several Rev. gentlemen and choice music under the direction of Mr. Joseph McClelland. Proceeds in aid of the S. S Building fund.

LINDSAY.—The By law granting aid to the Whitby and Port Perry Railway Extension was carried by a majority of 237. The people of Lindsay would have been foolish if they had done otherwise The road when built will be of immense benefit to them, and to the whole section of country, although in grouping some may suffer.

FURNITURE.—The whole furniture, pianoforte, books, &c., of the late Walter Peet, Esq., will be sold by auction on Tuesday 14th instant, at his late residence, Clapham Terrace, Hunter street. The furniture is the latest styles and very good. This will be a splendid opportunity to procure good furniture See catalogue and bills

THE HAMILTON SPECTATOR gives an account of a case in the Police Court of Constable at a suspected fortune telling school, which on magistrate termed out to be a "faro" den. Seven persons were found and fined $100 each costs. It would be that in some of our numerous Odd Fellow something similar is going on, unsuspected. Perhaps it is only a surmise.

LINCOLN.—The Conservatives of Lincoln have manifested their sympathies for Colonel Bolton in removing Charley Bykert, who barely escaped being expelled from the House for taking bribes for his votes in that House. Their connections with the pine, ministerial and political forgiveness for twenty years has created an appetite for their continuance, and also fellow feeling for those of kindred habits.

CHURCH.—On Sunday evening last a party drove to the Methodist Church and while in, put their team in the old church sheds. Before going in they covered up sleigh, mufflers, etc., with the Robes and supposed all to be right when they returned; but on return, one sheet was gone, the other things being undisturbed. This should be a warning to others; as all the people in the world are not honest, and the best way is to remove the temptation

BROTHER BOYLE is so thoroughly patriotic to the Green Isle that he won't even stay in the same room with a glass of Scotch whiskey, and he will not sleep in a bed unless it consists of Irish feathers. He is agitating to have the name of Toronto changed to its original name with a big Irish Sea in it, which of course would make it Little Cork. The fact is, his Irish blood is Boyling in him at the disrespect shown ould Ireland in the naming of Canadian places.

BIBLE SOCIETY.—A meeting of the Peterboro Branch Bible Society was held in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday. The President, Secretary-Treas., and the Revd's Mr. Willoughby, and Maclennan were appointed an Executive Committee. This committee was instructed to appoint Mr. Greenhow as Collector and in failing to employ him, to secure the services of some fit person The subject of employing some persons to work in the back townships was referred to the Executive Committee to report.

IN ERROR.—The Oshawa Reformer gives us credit for some remarks anent the Orange Incorporation vote, which is due to our neighbor, the Review. We have no sympathies with the views expressed by the Review on this question, and every honest Conservative Orangeman in the county will agree with us in saying that Messrs. Scott and O'Sullivan betrayed their best friends, and broke their promises. Some of the fire-eaters, however, of the Van Ingen stripe, and such ilk, will still swear by O'Sullivan or "anything to beat Mackenzie."

JURY SO.—It appears that the contract for cutting the hill east of the proposed new bridge has been let, and the papers signed. But on enquiry in the Clerk & Treasurer's office no contract can be found or seen. Indeed no duplicate was kept or ever filed. On motion of Mr. Rutherford the Clerk and Mayor were instructed to sign it and they have done so, but no one can tell what the nature of the contract is, how much work is to be done, when it is to be done, or how it is to be done. The town is bound, but where is the counterpart binding the gentlemen—Who have the job?

RECIPROCITY.—In the last number of the Review, the Rev. V. Clementi says, he wonders that the Reform party has not established a respectable news paper as the interpreter of their views. Let us have a little reciprocity of sympathies. Using his own words, slightly modified, we say, we wonder that the church of England has not recalled that respectable minister from the South ward, for it cannot be denied that the Rev. V. Clementi 'does that church more harm than good'. He will no doubt appreciate our good wishes for the advancement of the church of which he claims to be a shining light, and the high estimate put on his work in the cause of truth.

TOWN CLERK AND TREASURER.—Mr. James Edwards, was reappointed Clerk and Treasurer on Monday night. An effort was made to put off making the appointment, but no satisfactory reason being given by the Committee on Appointments, the Council took the matter into their own hands and made the appointment. It is currently reported that some of the Council intended appointing W. H. Ponday. If they did, they have met a disappointment just now. The Mayor intimated an intention of separating the two offices, and one Councillor said they intended getting one of the banks to act as Treasurer, But the whole thing however is at an end for this year.

BEADLE'S BELL RINGERS.—This popular Company will give one of their entertainments in the Old Methodist Church on Tuesday evening, 14th inst. This performance when last here was really good and gave entire satisfaction to those who were present. Mr. J. Pringle the comedian was a source of great amusement. His Dutch, Irish, Yankee and Negro characters were very amusing and were loudly applauded. Do not miss the opportunity of hearing the strange sweet music of the "Water Flute" or Musical Glasses. It is sweet and fascinating, a rare treat to lovers of fine music, and is worth going miles to hear. The performance throughout was excellent especially the playing of the Swiss Bells. The press wherever they have been speak well of them. Admission 25 cents, reserved seats 50 cents.

SCHOOL BOARD.—The School Board met on Tuesday evening, March 7. All the members present but Mr. White. The minutes were read and confirmed. Mr. W. A. Morrow filed his decoration of office and took his seat. Communications from Mr. Ming and Mrs. Lemour, asking for increase of salary; also, from Education Department,—Referred to committee on appointments. Several accounts were received and referred to the Finance committee. The Finance committee reported, recommending the payment of several accounts. Mr. Edmison read the report of the committee on appointments. The report accepts the County grant of $150 on the terms set forth. The committee recommended no advance of salaries, but did recommend that the salary of the teacher in the third form of girls be reduced to $300 per annum. The report was adopted.

THE WHOLE TORY PHALANX voted for the increase Mr. Macdougall could see that the Local House was becoming respectable, and Mr. Scott, economical, Mr Scott, the friend of good government and opposed to extravagance, Yes, Mr Scott thought it ought to be $1,000, or exactly $24,000 more than Mr. Morat fixed it at Now this was the result of a strong opposition, a healthy opposition, an economical opposition. But then if Messrs. Scott and O'Sullivan had voted otherwise they would have missed the $200. They have fixed their own price; they have declared the amounts that will take them every time—just $200. But how the Conservative press can pass over the notion of their friends in thus selling themselves for this paltry sum, is a mystery. Dr O'Sullivan did not value his services even as high as in the small pox case. He put it then at $1,000 In Parliament it was worth $200 less. But even that was too much for what he did.

THE ADVANTAGES OF A STRONG OPPOSITION.—This was the argument continually brought forward in the late elections.—The Conservatives had no hopes of seizing the treasury benches, but they wanted an opposition strong enough, to control a restless and extravagant Administration. Just such Mr. Scott and Dr. O'Sullivan, and they could keep matters right. Mr. Morat would be compelled to resign his position for the heads of Mr. Scott, Dr O'Sullivan would become Speaker, John Carnegie Treasurer, and Robert Crown Lands Commissioner and then the happy family matters would be economically managed, as Mr. Rutherford puts it in Council. Where were Scott and O'Sullivan when the extravagant indemnity grab came up? Yes, where? A Tory organ says:—"Under John Sandfield Macdonald the salaries of ministers and indemnities of members of the Legislative Assembly amounted to $63,000. Under the rule of Reform and Economy they have increased to $93,000, which shows the advantage of Reform and Economy."

THE REASON WHY.—The Rev. V. Clementi accuses us of omitting a resolution of the Town Council, and thus of suppressing the truth. When copying the resolution Mr. Edwards snapped it from us and refused us a true copy, and hence we did not publish it then. Here it is now.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford seconded "by Mr Thornton,—That the Council "having heard the explanations from Rev "V. Clementi and Mr Shaw in regard to "the distribution of charity are of the "opinion that they have disposed faithfully and economicly the duties they the "committee have taking upon themselves expecting no remuneration therefor this "council are of the opinion that it will be a great Loss to the needy por of this "Town should the present committee re-"sign. Be it therefor resolved that this "council would still request them to con-"tinue to retine the por.—Carried.

And if Mr. Clementi can decipher he has now an opportunity. It would have been published long since, had not Mr. Edwards prevented it by withholding the motion.

Mr. James Fleming, of Belmore and Hon. A. Mackenzie, who are first cousins, have been bequeathed some $7,000 each by the late Dr. Hope Fleming, of London England.

A con of nitro-glycerine lost in the water at the entrance to Port Colborne harbour is causing quite a sensation in that neighborhood. Unless it is found it will be a risky business for vessels to pass in and out $100 is offered for its recovery.

To the lasting disgrace of the County of Lincoln Charley Rykert has been elected to the Ontario Legislature by a majority of 20. We are sorry for Mr. Neelon's defeat but even more sorry for Mr. Rykert's election. The former did nothing which deserved extinction from Parliament, while the latter has been proved guilty of one of the gravest offence of which a public man can be guilty—the acceptance of a bribe to influence his vote and influence on behalf of a Bill passing through Parliament. The election of Lincoln have lowered the reputation of the country by the choice they have made. They have given encouragement to the worst of all forms of corruption—the bribery of the people's representives.—Ex.

At the meeting of the Napanee Town Council held on the 28th ult a by-law was adopted by a good majority, raising the price of tavern and shop licenses to $100. Those holding shop licenses will not be permitted to engage in other branches of trade. There was a good deal of excitement over the vote. The council decided to grant licenses to eight hotels in the town but the commissioners may reduce the number.

It is not generally known that to sell intoxicating drinks to young men under 21 years of age is a contravention of law: in fact, the law in this respect seems to be more ignored in the breach than the observance, and bar-room "swells" of from 16 to 21 are never wanting. It is well that liquor dealers should know, however, that the law regards it as wrong to do so; and, as an instance of the penalty incurred, we may state that the police magistrates of Stratford has fined a liquor dealer in that town $55 for an offence of this nature.

For all pains in the stomach and bowels colic, diarrhoea, dysentary, cholera, or cholera morbus, as well as all pains and suppression to which ladies are subject from taking cold at a critical period, take Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed, or Water Pepper. It is a most positive specific in all such ailments. Used externally as an embrocation, it is a most valuable application for all sprains and bruises, frost bites, chilblains, felons, rheumatic affections, scalds, burns, cuts, neuralgia, pain in back, soreness or stiffness of joints, stings and bites of poisonous insects and reptile, caked breast, or "gathered breast," and enlarged glands,—in short, is an unequalled liniment for man and beast. It is sold by all respectable dealers in medicine.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Peterborough, 3rd March, 1876.

Dear Sir,—My attention has been drawn to an article in the EXAMINER of last week under the heading of "Off the Track," in which you say that "The Council is paying Owen Dowling $2 50 for board and 50 cents additional for tobacco and whiskey the latter being written on the order to pay him."

I think your information is not correct, as I am not aware of any order where tobacco and whiskey are mentioned.

There is, however, a voucher written by myself, where $4 is received by George Johnston, and said to be "for tobacco and whiskey" for Dowling.

I promised to correct your statement in your last issue, but entirely forgot it till too late.

Very truly yours,
J. EDWARDS,
Town Clerk.

Deal gently wi' the auld man.
He's bowed down by time:
He had a heart as stout as yours.
When he was in his prime.
But toil has rusted his once strong frame,
And care has lined his brow:
He shielded you for many years;
You owe him comfort now.

BREAD.

(From the Family Dictionary.)

The process of baking bread consists in mixing wheat-flour with water, and forming it into dough. The average proportion is 2 parts of water to three parts of flour by weight. But this proportion varies considerably, according to the age and quality of the flour. In general, the older and the better the flour is, the greater is the quantity of water required. If the latter being thus formed, be duly set to remain for some time, the sugar undergoes a fermentation, being decomposed into carbonic acid gas from escaping. It therefore heaves up the dough, in every part, and more than doubles its bulk.—The fermentation, however, does not stop when the sugar is decomposed; it continues to act upon the alcohol, and gradually converts it into acetic and lactic acids. The consequence of this last action, which cannot be prevented on account of the slowness of the vinous fermentation of the dough, is, that it acquires a sour taste and smell; and if it be baked in the oven, though the loaf is full of eyes, and possesses the characters of leaf bread, yet its acid taste and smell render it disagreeable to the palate, and unfit for the purposes of food. Dough that has been allowed to ferment in this way is called leaven. But if a small quantity of this leaven be mixed with new-made dough, and the mixture laid aside for a few hours, fermentation commences and goes on much more rapidly, so that the dough swells to at least twice its original bulk. If it be now put into the oven and baked, the fermentation is checked before any acid begins to be formed, and the bread is full of eyes, light, spongy and sweet.

The ancient Gauls and Spaniards, as we are informed by Pliny, contrived another method of bringing on a fermentation in dough. Instead of leaven they added to the dough a quantity of the yeast or barm which collects on the surface of fermenting beer. This addition occasions fully as speedy a fermentation as leaven, and it is not nearly so apt to give the bread a sour flavor. About the end of the seventeenth century the bakers of Paris began to substitute yeast for leaven. The practice was discovered and exclaimed against. The faculty of medicine, in 1688, declared it prejudicial to the health; and many years elapsed before the bakers were able to convince the public that bread raised by means of yeast is better than that fermented by leaven. Barm is now employed in preference to leaven in every civilized country. In this country they rest used by the bakers is made artificially, chiefly from potatoes.

The process followed by our bakers is nearly as follows:—A certain quantity of salt is dissolved in water, the temperature of which varies, according to circumstances, from 70° to 100°.—Yeast is mixed with this water, and then a portion of flour is added, but always less than is ultimately employed in forming the finished dough. The mixture is covered up and set apart in a warm place. Fermentation begins to be evident in about an hour. The sponge (so the imperfect dough is called) begins to swell up in consequence of the evolution of carbonic acid gas. This gas, being confined by the adhesive nature of the gluten, heaves up the sponge to twice its original bulk. Being no longer capable of containing this pent-up gas, it bursts and subsides. This alternate rising and falling of the sponge might be repeated a great many times; but unless the baker stops it after the second, or, at the utmost, the third dropping of the sponge, the bread invariably proves sour. He, therefore, at this period, adds to the sponge the remaining quantity of flour, water and salt, and incorporates these new materials with the sponge by a long and laborious course of kneading. After this the dough is left to itself for a few hours during which time it continues in a state of active fermentation, diffused through every part of it. It is then subjected to a second, but much less laborious kneading, in order to distribute the imprisoned gas as equally as possible through the whole dough. It is now weighed out into the portions requisite to form the kinds of bread desired. These portions are shaped into loaves, and set aside for an hour or two in a warm situation. The fermentation still goes on and gradually expands the mass to double its former bulk. They are now put into the oven and baked into loaves.

The mean heat of a baker's oven as ascertained by M. Tillet, in 448°. The bakers do not use a thermometer, but judge that it has arrived at the proper heat when flour thrown on the floor of it becomes black very soon without taking fire. This heat immediately stops the fermentation, but the gas already generated is swelled out by the heat, and gives the loaf its characteristic vesicular structure.

When bread is taken out of the oven it is lighter than when put in, from the evaporation of a portion of moisture during the baking. It would appear, also, from the analysis of bread, by M. Vogel, that a portion of the starch is converted into sugar. A few years before the beginning of the French Revolution the French bakers petitioned their government to investigate the loss of weight which bread sustains in the oven, alleging that the loss was very various, and that, on that account, they had been frequently taxed with dishonesty without reason. M. Tillet and the other commissioners appointed to investigate the subject, in consequence of this petition, found that a loaf which weighed, before it was put into the oven, 4·625 lbs., was reduced, at an average, to 3·813 lbs.; so that it lost 17·54 per cent of its original weight.—This subject should be carefully [illegible] original weight of the dough. They found, however, that this loss of weight was by no means uniform, even when the nature of the dough, the heat of the oven, the situation of the loaves, [illegible] precisely the same. The difference amounted in some cases to 7½ per cent. Other things being the same, the loss of weight sustained is proportion to the extent of surface of the loaf, and to the length of time that it remains in the oven. A loaf was found, after being taken, and was found to weigh exactly this. Being replaced in the oven for two minutes and then weighed again, it weighed one-eighth of a pound less than before. Being put again into the oven for ten minutes it sustained an additional loss of weight amounting to one-sixteenth of a pound.

Loaves are kneaded when just taken out of the oven. Unless they be kept in a damp place or wrapped around with a damp cloth they gradually lose weight. Thos Tillet found that a loaf, weighing at first 4lbs., had lost, after being kept a week, about one thirteenth of its original weight. Newly-baked bread possesses a peculiar taste and smell, which it looses by keeping, unless it be wrapped around with a wet towel. In that case much of the taste and smell are preserved.

The crust and part of the bread next to it are much more easily digested than the inner part of the loaf, because from the former the products of fermentation have been the most completely expelled. But nothing which should go hard to be digested. The browner the crust the more have the nutritive elements of the bread been altered or driven off by the heat, and the greater the proportion of charcoal in what remains. The main elementary ingredients in flour are carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, and nitrogen. By heat, if intense, the last are driven off as steam or as gases, the former only remaining.—[illegible] neither more [illegible] and is deprived [illegible] affording nourishment to the system. The more nearly the bread is brought to this state the more the other elements are lost, the greater is the proportion of carbon in what remains; and the less of nutritive properties does it possess.

We have, then, several good reasons for eating [illegible]. Let your bread be baked in small loaves, but not less than 4lb. loaves, for if smaller the bread is insipid. One of these reasons is, that such bread is more entirely freed from the products of fermentation; they must escape much more completely from a small loaf than from a larger one. There is, in the second place, less necessity for putting the bread into a very hot oven, or for continuing it in the oven so long as to deprive the outer part of its nutritious particles. Such bread is sweeter to the taste than bread made in large loaves, because it is more entirely freed from the products of fermentation; and for the same reason it is more digestible. Looking upon this matter in a pecuniary point of view, from any given number of pounds of flour baked in small loaves, a larger quantity of nourishing bread will be obtained than if it be baked in large loaves, while the bread will be both more palatable and more wholesome.

It will now be no difficult matter for reader to understand why it is found so useful by many sufferers from indigestion to have their bread toasted. By this, in fact, the products of fermentation are still further expelled; and, provided the process be not carried too far, the loss of nourishment is comparatively trifling. To burnt toast is not only a waste of carbonaceous and [illegible] only renders the burned parts almost uneatable, but it is an absolute waste, seeing that they afford little more nourishment than could be derived from [illegible] an equal quantity of charcoal. We may mention another fact which is worth the attention of some people.—Toast allowed to stand till it is cold before it is eaten is much more wholesome, or at least much less likely to interfere with the functions of the stomach, than if it be eaten hot; and some of our readers, who may be particular in such matters, will be glad to hear that, in our opinion, toast is more digestible, as well as more palatable, if placed on end while cooling, than if allowed to lie flat on the table or the plate.

We have hitherto spoken of bread as made of the flour of the finest wheat, without any additions to it. The viscidity of the dough is necessarily much diminished if any of the covering or husk of the grain is left in combination with the flour. At the same time the lightness or porosity of the bread made from it is lessened; and, owing to this, the products of fermentation, &c. do not so completely escape during the baking. To some people its tendency to disagree with the stomach is, in this way, very materially increased. Yet in the case of people whose stomachs seldom complain unless they are dreadfully overworked, and with whom the chief grievance is a confined state of the bowels, this kind of bread is for the most part found to agree much better [illegible] into a composition of which [illegible] only enters. The husks, in fact, mechanically irritate the stomach and bowels, and promote the propulsion of the ingesta through them. To the classes we have spoken of we would strongly recommend this kind of bread, or at all events an occasional use of it; but with a man who has a morbidly sensible stomach, or feeble powers of digestion, it will seldom [illegible] and to serve and to such we should certainly not recommend its use.

It will have been observed that we advise some to use inferior flour, or, what is commonly called, brown bread—which is seldom anything but a mixture of very coarse wheat and rye flour—when they find, for the reasons we have mentioned, that fine bread does not suit them. Such bread is often far from wholesome, as well as being anything but nutritious. It may be depended on that the best flour—that which contains the largest quantity of gluten—is always the cheapest; affords weight for weight, more nourishment than suffices to counterbalance the trifling difference of price.

Let us add another word to this.—Those who want good, sound, well-fermented and well-baked bread, made of the best flour, with or without some or the whole of the husks of the grain, and without any other addition to this than water, yeast, and salt must make it and bake it at home. Our remarks will probably never go so far as to induce the bakers [illegible] as they were to do so, the cause of the complaint would be done away with. For so great is the prejudice of people in favour of white looking bread—bread that is really whiter than it could be made from the finest flour that was ever seen, that, in self-defence, bakers have been compelled to resort to means that enable them to please the eyes of their customers, although at the expense of the wholesomeness of the article [illegible] bread is adulterated, [illegible] of a sufficiently white [illegible] an almost irresistible [illegible] ulterate the mass still [illegible] next to impossibility [illegible] adulteration in such [illegible] for this purpose [illegible] nutritious than wheat [illegible] does negative if not po[illegible]

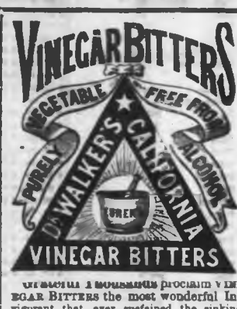
R. W. ERRATT.

Peterborough, 23rd February, 1876.



Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

[illegible] this extensively employed and valuable remedy enjoys a reputation unequalled by that of any other medicine in use. Its cures, [illegible] are truly wonderful. Invincible to [illegible] it has conquered, and continues to conquer, many formidable complaints which have been pronounced incurable by the most skilful physicians. Even when the system seemed saturated with [illegible] and death appeared inevitable, this powerful alterative has been found to [illegible] and cured by its use. Many of the worst [illegible] and most malignant [illegible] have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and [illegible] which, breaking out on the surface, make the victim a [illegible] object, have been entirely cured by the same powerful remedy. Even when [illegible] have been [illegible] upon with [illegible] they were pronounced incurable, they have been radically cured in such great numbers as to attract the attention of almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues.

No medicine can be found to equal it as a spring and summer purifier. Those who feel the need of such a medicine will do well to give it a trial. Many people are troubled, at this season, with [illegible] and impurities of the blood, which, if not corrected, are liable to develop into scrofula, erysipelas, or some other of the many forms of blood disease. Again, it seems to be necessary, at this season, to purify the blood, and then, on some occasions, to stimulate it, to throw off the impurities which have accumulated in the body, and which, if allowed to remain, are liable to cause sickness, and, perhaps, fatal disease. Many people, apparently in the enjoyment of health, are really full of humors, which, undetected in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the unexcelled use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no positive symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions & cutaneous forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Mercurial and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and regenerating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield speedily to it, so also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Drowsy, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Choice Poetry.

The Old Year's Remonstrance.

The Old Year lay on his death-bed lone,
And ere he died he spoke to me,
Low and solemn in under tone,
Mournfully, reproachfully.
The fading eyes in his snow-white head,
Shone bright, the while beneath;
These were the words the Old Year said—
I shall never forget them while I breathe:

"Did you not promise when I was born"
(Sadly he spoke, and not in ire,)
"To treat me kindly—not to scorn—
And to pay the debts you owed my sire?
Did you not vow with an earnest heart,
Your uncounted hours to give;
And to throw no day in waste away
Of my three hundred and sixty-five.

"Did you not swear to your secret self,
Before my beard was a second old,
That, whatever you'd done to my father gone.
You'd prize my minutes more than gold?
Did you not own with a keen regret,
That the past was a time of waste and sin;
But that with me, untainted yet,
Wisdom and duty should begin?

"Did you not oft the vow renew
That never with me should folly dwell;
That, however Fate might deal with you,
You'd prize me much, and use me well?
That never a deed of scorn or wrath,
Or thought unjust of your fellow-men,
Should, while I lived, obscure your path,
Or enter in your heart again?

"Did you not fail—but my tongue is weak.
Your sad short-comings to recall;"
And the Old Year sobbed—he could not speak—
He turned his thin face to the wall.
"Old Year! Old Year! I've done you wrong—
Hear my repentance ere you die!
Linger awhile!" Ding-dong, ding-dong—
The joy-bells drowned his parting sigh.

"Old Year! Old Year!" He could not hear,
He yielded placidly his breath.
I loved him little while he was here,
I prized him dearly after death.
New Year! now smiling at my side,
Most bitterly the past I rue,
I've learn'd a lesson since he died,
I'll lead a better life with you.

Auntie Kirsty on the Wrong Coach.

In the Leisure Hour appears a humorous narrative, by the author of "Matthew Morrison," entitled "Auntie Kirsty's visit to Glasgow." The old lady was victimized in Glasgow by a confidence man, who offered to conduct her to the home of her sister, Mrs. Peggy McCorkindale, but who seized an opportunity to decamp with her bundle. So chagrined was Kirsty with her loss that, although kindly treated by her relations, she determined to return the next day. Unfortunately, however, instead of taking the coach to Dumfries she took the one to Edinburgh.

Come awa, mistress, cried the coachman, coming round to where she sat; what for are ye sitting there?

Whatna town's this, sir, if ye please? says my auntie in a trembling voice, but trying to speak very ceevil.

Town! what town should it be but Edinburgh?

Is's no possible! says my auntie.—Are you sure that it's Edinburgh?

Sure enough, says the man.

Then pity on me! says my poor auntie Kirsty, thinking there must be glamour in the matter, and giving herself up for lost.

Well, come down, then, says the man roughly, ye're no to sit here for a sight.

But my auntie wouldna stir.

What's the matter with the wife, said the coachman.

I insist that you'll drive me without delay to the right place, says my auntie plucking up spirit; she wasna going to submit to such usage.

The woman's daft! says the man, looking round to the folk that were gathered about the inn door, who began to grin.

I'll no stir a foot, says my auntie.

We'll soon see that, says the man, putting his foot on the lowest round of the ladder, for they had one here for the use of the passengers.

I tell you I willna, says my auntie.

Then we'll have to pull you down, that's a' said the man.

I daur you to lay a hand on me, you cheating vagabond, says my auntie, shaking her nieve [fist] in his face, for she was now in a state of desperation, and her blood was up. I shanna be imposed upon twice. I can tell you.—I paid you nine shillings and sixpence—at least, my gude brother did—to take me to Yorker; and leave me here at your peril.

My auntie Kirsty's arm, as I have said, was no light one; and the coachman, who was an under-sized, wizened-looking creature, no doubt saw that it wouldna do to meddle with her, especially as she had the advantage in point of position. So he just stood on the pavement and abused her, and she scolded at him, till the noise brought a whole crowd round about the coach, laughing and hurrahing. The landlord and waiters of the inn, who had been attending to the passengers that wanted quarters there, came back to the door at sound of the din, and then came to the landlady herself. And there was the coachman stamping and raging on the pavement, and my auntie Kirsty scolding and lamenting on the top of the coach; and every window and doorway in the Grassmarket crowded with folk looking on and laughing.

What's the matter with you, honest woman? says the landlady, who was a comfortable, red-cheeked, motherly-like woman.

I'm a puir stranger, mem, from the parish of Boulder, says my auntie, very thankful to see so respectable a person of her own sex to appeal to. I was gaun hame from Glasgow; and that blackguard's driven me to Edinburgh instead of to Yorker, as he promised.

It's a lee, says the mah: she's either drunk or daft.

My drunk, you ill-tongued vagabond! says my auntie Kirsty, who couldna bear such a reproach on her good name; I'm a' but blackfasting this day! from either want or drink! you 'daft' beastie as touchin wi' my character.

There 'pears to some mistake, says the landlord. Where did you take her up, Andrew?

I reckon He came up from Glasgow, says the coachman, huffily; I ken nocht about her, nor how she got on the coach.

What's your name, mistress? says the landlord, looking up to her.

My name's Christian Pender, says my auntie, looking down at him; and naebody can say a word against it.

Your name's no the warbill, though, says the landlord; my woman, I'se warrant you've ta'en the Edinburgh coach instead of the Carlisle ane.

It's no possible! cries my auntie Kirsty. Oh, if I had but Rabby McCorkindale, for it's a' his wyte! (fault.)

Come down, says the landleddy, who saw oy my auntie's look that she was a decent woman, but simple and landward bred, and who was sorry for her distress; Come your way down, my leddy, you'll get a comfortable bed here the night, and the coach will take you back to your friends the morn.

Will it no be gunging back the night, think ye mem? says my auntie, anxiously.

Of course no, says the landleddy.

My auntie gave a heavy groan when she heard this.

And are you perfectly sure that this very same coach will gang back to Glasgow the morn? says my auntie.

Quite sure, says the landleddy; it'll leave at nine precisely; so come away, my woman, and never fear, for I'll look after you myself.

I'm muckle obleeged to you, mem, says my auntie Kirstie, after thinking a minute, but I canna do't.

But you canna get back to Glasgow the night, it's no possible. You maun come down, says the landleddy.

You maun just excuse me, mem, says my auntie, very ceevily.

But the coach is gaun into the yard: says the landleddy.

It's a' ane (all the same), says my auntie, who was determined that nothing should separate her from the old coach.

But ye canna mean to sit there a' night? says the landleddy, in wonder.

Weel-a-wat? I mean it, says my auntie; I ken weel enough, she says, that if I leave the coach, I'll be put into some other ane the morn, and whomled (rolled) farther awa from the hame that I was such a fule as to leave; sae where the coach gangs I'll gang.

At that there was a great roar from the crowd that were standing round the coach and listening; and even the landleddy herself couldna help laughing at my auntie's simplicity.

I'll take care of you, and put you into the right coach myself, says she, very kindly, after composing herself.

I'm obleeged to you mony times over mem, and mony times to that, for your civeility, says my auntie; but there's something no chancy about this travelling, and I've just been out o' one trouble into another since ever I began it; so, though my backbone's like to break with sitting here, and my legs feel mair as if they were made o' cast iron than o' flesh and blood, here I sit till the morn. I'm willing enough, says my auntie, with some decent pride, to pay for the liberty, for I'm no without siller to meet my charges; and I have 'sponsible friends both in Glasgow and Baulder that will let nobody lose by me.

It was lost time either reasoning with or laughing at her. Her ignorance of town ways was too great, and her fears were far stronger than her sense of shame. Lose sight of the coach she would not—it was her only hope of getting back to her friends; so there she sat determinedly on the top of it, while

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 16, 1876.

THE COMMITTEE ON DEPRESSION OF TRADE.

This committee has held several sittings, but the result of the investigation cannot be known till its labours are concluded. Two or three sessions have been devoted to the sugar trade, or largely so. Their complaint is that the American traders have a drawback of duty, or bonus on sugar exported by them, and that this bonus militates against the Canadian refining trade and prevents their business paying. They appear to desire either an increased duty on refined sugar or a decrease of duty on the raw material.

The sugar trade for Canada amounts to 105,000,000 lbs. or about 26 lbs. per capita of the population. The men employed in refineries, &c, about 900. The capital engaged may be fairly set down at about $1,800,000, or a little less The proposal of refiners would entail a very heavy additional cost to the consumers, and this for the advantage of men who have made themselves millionaires by the trade already, and that too in the face of the fact that not over one-five hundredth part of the population is engaged in the labour. We gather from Mr. Drummond who is a large refiner, the following facts.

Q. What do you calculate as the value of the raw material you use every year? A. That would require a separate statement for each year, which I have not got.

Q. What do you suppose would be the average? A: I never really put them together I could not say at this moment, I could not even hazard a guess.

Q. Could you state this morning, the number of hands you have employed in the refinery apart from carters? A. I have not paid any attention to that since yesterday, I have not looked at the subject at all.

Q. You said yesterday that you employed about 300 persons in the building? A. I think that their are about that when in full work.

Q. Making $600,000 as the value of the plant, there would be the employment of one person for every $2,000 of capital invested? A. No doubt it must be so—nearly.

Q. What would be the value of the produce of the labour of each individual during the year? A. I think you had better allow me to make a statement of that; I would be very glad to do it. I do not carry these things in my mind, and if you would like to have a statement I would be happy to make it.

CHAIRMAN—It would be very satisfactory.

MR DRUMMOND—I think that yesterday you asked me about the consumption of raw sugar last year.

CHAIRMAN—I think you said that it was 41,000,000 lbs.

MR DRUMMOND—That was for the year before. I was not very sure, and it occured to me that I had mixed up the two years, I think that last year it was less. If I said that it was about 41,000,000 lbs last year, I made a mistake.

CHAIRMAN—If I remember aright according to the census Returns, from which you gave a statement of the value of the raw material it was something like $3,100,000.

MR. DRUMMOND—I think that it was in that neighbourhood.

CHAIRMAN—The value of the refined product was somethinglike four million, if I remember aright?

MR DRUMMOND—That I cannot tell; last year we consumed about 35,000,000 pounds of raw material.

MR WORKMAN—And the year before, 41,000,000?

MR. DRUMMOND—41,000,000, and some odd

CHAIRMAN—Have you noticed the quantity of sugar consuming in Canada? A. Last year I believe it rose to 105,000,000 of pounds.

Q. Then you supply about one-third of the Canadian market? A. Yes; and we could do a good deal more, if we were fully employed.

Q. Then the total supply of the Canadian market would give employment to about 1,000 men? A Well, if you calculate upon data, I presume, that you are right; but I never did so. With your permission I would like to draw attention to the question of the consumption in this country. I think that it is a very important matter for the consideration of the Legislature, and everybody interested in the question The consumption at present is 105,000,000 lbs, with an assumed population of 4,000,000, the rate being about 26 lbs per head apparently.

From the examination of Millers, Reciprocity is what they desire—not protection. This is the way the trades clash in their interests. Mr. Lukes, a miller in Newmarket, was examined before the Committee, and said:

"With the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty his sales in the United States had virtually ceased. When fully employed he could turn out 80,000 barrels per annum, but last year he only manufactur d 24,000. The average price of raw material was about $3.78 per barrel while the flour might average $3.95 per barrel. In former years he had imported from Chicago, but of late years he had drawn his supplies from the home market American flour was preferred by bakers. Liverpool occasionally regulated the market in this country, but not always Our limited market and the relative high price of wheat, were the principal reasons for the depression of the trade. During the past year there were imported into Ontario 37,000 barrels of flour. He would not care for the home market if he could get an export trade. If a judicious import duty were imposed upon wheat, the millers along the canals and frontier would find imported wheat in bond, export the product and other manufacturers would have the opportunity of manufacturing home material for home consumption. The shipments to the maritime Provinces, are small because the prices there did not pay to send it, owing partly to American importations. The United States western millers can mill flour cheaper than Canadian millers. Being a member of the Manufacrorers' Association he favored reciprocity duties

Mr GOLDIE of Guelph gave evidence of a similar character. He thought reciprocity would be the best remedy for Canadian millers' grievances.

From the testimony in this case it does not appear that millers are suffering to any extent as prices are regulated by all the circumstances connected with the wheat.

THE PROTESTANT HOME

In our last we published the annual report of this Institution. The ladies of the committee deserve praise for their unceasing efforts to relieve a class of indigent and infirm persons, who would in all probability be permitted to suffer severely but for the kindness and protection provided at the Home. One of the best features of this institution is that only the really deserving receive aid, as ladies are more likely to canvass the parties whom they assist. Two hundred dollars spent in this way, the committee will be made to relieve more real distress than three hundred in the hands of the Relief Committee, as the latter committee is more easily imposed on, and less willing to put themselves to the trouble of enquiry after the circumstances of parties seeking assistance. The out door relief afforded by the ladies in connection with the Home, amounted to $132.61. A comparison of the number aided in this way for this comparatively small sum, with the number aided by the Relief Committee, would be interesting. If possible we will obtain particulars, and publish them.

Another feature in the character of the Home is—they are not given to secure favor or votes. We wish this could be said of all the aid given by the Relief Committee. The very police addresses and letters of Mr. Rutherford testify to the fact that even charities are sought to be used to court the workingman's favor, when needed. Ladies are above these kinds of motives, and hence, the money spent by them is more likely to be spent to relieve real distress or urgent wants.

The Sectarian feature of the Home is perhaps one that militates somewhat against it. It is difficult in a community of different creeds to allay the impression that the money of some of the taxpayers is being used as they would not use it if in their own control; and as the Roman Catholics will not come under the discipline of the Home for fear of interference with faith or practice, some persons think it wrong to take a Roman Catholic's taxes to support a Protestant Home. But this will work the other way also. About one seventh say of all sums paid out of general funds is paid by Roman Catholic ratepayers, hence of the $200 asked, $28.56 would represent that portion.—The grant, therefore, might be made in some such proportion, or whatever would be found fair. The Relief Committee will be found to have given their relief in the inverse proportion to this rate, and perhaps that might balance the matter sufficiently to satisfy the fastidious on this Sectarian point. It is to be regretted that fears of religious proselyting should interfere with the relief of the indigent, yet we have to take things as we find them, and make the best of them But under present circumstances it would be better to give the Home their usual grant, and if it is thought best to discontinue the grant, give a year's warning.

TAKE CARE.

From the report of the meeting of the County Lodge, Good Templars, held last week, it will be seen that our temperance friends are determined to make a bold stand in politics. They are not to support any candidate for parliamentary honors unless he pledge himself to vote for, and promote temperance legislation. We fear all those attending the county meeting were Reformers. No Conservatives would so pledge themselves. They will vote for anything in the shape of a Conservative, as witness their action in the last contests in this county, when Mr. Cox and Mr. Stratton were defeated. Although not at the same time, they must have been defeated by professed temperance voters, at least this must have been so in Mr. Cox's case. The principles of some temperance men are put on and off in this matter with their party exigencies, and we fear this will be so again.

Our firm conviction is that this temperance or prohibition movement, is the great moral question of the day, and should be made so at the polls. but the difficulty will be in finding men willing to forego party for these principles. How few will do so?

A temporary triumph of long cherished absurdities must be considered by too many of more value than a great moral reform such as would follow the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

We are really, anxious to know how many Liberal Conservatives voted for the last motion passed at the temperance meetings? Not that we offer any opposition to it. It is in full accord with our views, as often expressed, and which will be acted upon when made the test question at the polls. In all great moral reforms Party should be nowhere.

THE VOTE ON THE BY-LAWS.

The By-laws for $22,000 were defeated on Saturday. The vote stood for the $10,000 By law 37; against it 184. For the $12,000 By-law 33 against it 164.—There appears to have been almost unanimity in the town in reference to going into no more debt for Schools or Bridges or anything else this year.

The defeat of the By-laws will only create a temporary embarrassment as there is perfect agreement in reference to paying the debts already contracted, but against going on with any new undertakings at present. Already other By-laws for $8,000 for the Iron and Locks Bridges, and $6,000 to pay the money borrowed to build the South Ward School, are being submitted again, and these will be carried without opposition.

The defeat of the last By-laws was caused by having crowded in to them the sum of about $2,000 towards building a bridge on Smith Street, and $6,000 to build two new school houses in the North and West of the town.

A bridge over the Otonabee river on Smith Street might be an ornament to that portion of the town, and a benefit to the people of Douro, and to two or three of the ratepayers of Ashburnham, but would be of no earthly use to Peterboro' at present, The town has within about two years aided in building two costly bridges, viz: The Iron Bridge and the Locks Bridge, at a cost of $8,000 to $9,000. These two bridges afford all the accommodation required, for a few years, at least till times brighten up a little.—The Nassau bridge accommodates a large portion of Douro, and a foot pathway across the river at or near Blythe Mills would accommodate all that portion of the town east of the river. The cost of this would be very trifling indeed, and after a little when people have a breathing time two more bridges could be built to accommodate the northern part of the town.

If the people of Douro wish to enter by the north end of the town, all that requires to be done is for that township to spend $200 or $300 in improving the road eastward from the Nassau bridge. If that road was made as it ought to be, it would accommodate all who wish to come to town by way of the north end, or Blythe Mills, and would cost the town nothing. If Douro does not want that road improved, it is foolish for Peterboro to spend $6,000 to bring them in on Smith Street; and if the Locks bridge cost over $6,000, for how much less can the proposed bridge be built?

It is said that this bridge and cutting was undertaken to provide work for the unemployed labouring men. How many labouring men can be employed on building the bridge—and how many at the cutting? At the cutting, we hear, ten men from town are employed; what about all the other working men? Are there just ten or twelve favored persons in town? All this expense for the sake of ten or twelve persons, can scarcely be imagined, while perhaps twice as many deserving persons are left unprovided for.

THE QUESTION OF QUESTIONS.

A very important question arising out of the Relief question, is: In enquiring after the men employed or needing employment, what is the cause of their state? Is it the hard times, or rather their part in good times, and an over-fondness for grog. How many of them have wasted and do waste their money on strong drink? It is true this is no reason why suffering families should not be relieved, but would not this be a good time to teach those who do loaf round that they must now suffer for their prodigality, for we take it for granted that nine tenths of the present distress is brought about through strong drink. And the Relief Committee knowing this should enforce total abstinence principles on the recipients, if their own consistency will but enable them to do so.

MORE ECONOMY WANTED.

The cost of sidewalks and street gradings yearly is becoming something enormous. Not less than $6,000 to $7,000 are annually spent in these costly luxuries. The Street and Bridge Committee requires to be more economical in the future than they have been in the past, and to this end the strictest watch should be kept on the outlays under their control. There are strong temptations in their way. Petitions are generally rushed in from all directions for street improvements and sidewalks. The applicants have votes, these votes are needed when January comes, and to secure them something has to be done. When the whole is summed up at the end of a year, it is found that about one-third of the whole taxes are spent in this way. In view of the influence that urges...the Chairman of that committee should be a man of firmness and decided action. Not a trimmer or courter of popular favour; not a reckless squanderer of the peoples' money, but one who can say NAY, when the public interests require him to do so.

From the start Mr. Rutherford has made this year, it is plain that he is not the right man to be Chairman of that important committee. He imagines that crooked ways must be straight, and rough places even, at any cost, provided he can make the working men believe him his friend, and thus secure a lengthened period of office. Any man who would rush at Smith Town Hill as if a common hillock, or attempt to fill up Wolf Street as if a furrow, proves himself ill-fitted for his position, and should be watched with the utmost care. The Council should also see that in future no work be undertaken until a satisfactory report of costs and usefulness is before the Council, and ordered by resolution to be done. Mr. Rutherford should not be allowed as in the Smith Town Hill case, to put men to work with horses and carts before he had reported, and before the councillors were aware what he was doing.

As Chairman of a committee his report cannot and should not be relied on unless signed by a majority of the whole committee. It is well known that in reference to cutting the hill in Ashburnham he reported to the Council that, "the frost was of a very loose nature, and would cut like cheese." Can any one after this accept his reports unless vouched for by other members of the committee, as all who are possessed of the least glimmerings of reason, know that frost is never loose; and never will cut like cheese. It was simply a false report, and when he could report in that way for so trivial a purpose what may he not do, unless watched carefully?

If we are to have economy, the council must begin their work as they wish to end it. The extravagance of 1876 commenced very early, and that largely thro' the Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee. The cry about providing work for the unemployed was the commencement of all the troubles of the council, together with an attempt to use this cry for an object. People were made believe that the council must provide for all the tosers, loafers and loungers in the town.

The next extravagant movement was the appointment of a union Relief Committee, by which some members of the council hoped to shift the blame on to irresponsible persons. The design was apparent from the first, and was only checkmated by the course taken by us, and which brought down on us the ire of a few persons, but this is of no consequence, provided the end is secured, viz: economy in the management of our town affairs for the future. Next year may bring better times, and with them the ability to be extravagant,—the desire to be is too evident already.

THE BEECHER CASE.

The Brooklyn Plymouth Church scandal will be one of the remarkable church scandals of the 19th century. It is almost daily assuming new features, and if, as Mr. Beecher asserts, he is innocent, then it is the most daring attempt to ruin the character of a public man and to destroy the usefulness of a minister of the gospel that history has recorded.

This scandal proves conclusively that the principles of membership in the Brooklyn Church are, and have been calculated to destroy any church. The mass of bitterness, and envy, and hatred, and jealousy, and distrust, that was congregated there, was enough to induce a curse on any congregation or association.—Bowen, for years, believing Beecher guilty of adultery: Tilton accusing him of the same crime; Moulton conspiring to ruin the minister, and yet all meeting there as brethren, professing to love one another! Could it be?

It is difficult to form an opinion as to Beecher's innocence or guilt. The character of the witnesses against him, forbids too much credulity in them. And then his calling high heaven to witness to his innocence, and daring men or angels to prove his guilt, stagger those who are not possessed of sufficient knowledge to form an unhesitating opinion. The church as a whole, clears him. A committee of the ministers of the Congregational Churches of the United States declares him innocent, and still Bowen asserts his ability to prove him guilty. Opponents of the celebrated preacher laugh at the whole affair and glory in it. Scoffers take advantage of it to denounce all religion as hypocricy, and a sham, and the press, by their imprudent comments, assist the enemies of religion. It is to be hoped that out of all these sickening details of human frailty great good will be brought about, The church may be taught a lesson of more carefulness in its associations. Ministers taught more watchfulness, and men of the Tilton—Moulton,—Bowen stamp driven from associations that they have been using, at dreadful consequences, for pecuniary gain: for their connection with any church must be, so far as such men are concerned, a mere matter of dollars and cents. What other conclusions can be arrived at, after considering Bowen's own testimony, and his assertion that for many years he has been in the secret of Beecher's guilt of adultery, and yet remained a member of the church of which Beecher was pastor. Add to this also, that Bowen's testimony leads to the belief that this adultery was with his, (Bowen's) own wife, and the idea is too monstrous to be believed by thoughtful people, unless on the grounds that Bowen is a bad, bad man.

The probability of Beecher's guilt will, however, ruin his usefulness, and must prove a death blow to his popularity as a preacher, and will be a dark cloud over his declining years; all of which should be cause for great sorrow to the members of all christian churches.

THE CHIEF CAUSE OF BEECHER'S TROUBLE.

The Rev. Dr. Storrs, who attended the meetings of the Advisory Council in connection with the Beecher-Bowen scandal, has given his views of the matter and says:—

"He characterised the recent Advisory Council, although composed of a very intelligent body of men, as one of no great moral weight. It was large in membership, however, and represented a constituency of 34,611 people. He thought the previous Congregational Council had more weight, because it was not composed of delegates known to be favourable to Plymouth church. He knew there were in the Council very many delegates favorable to Plymouth Church This fact would throw some light on the strange result arrived at. He referred to the fact that while here the delegates were specially cared for by Plymouth church. He condemned the rules laid down by this Council for the admission of members and the guidance of congregational churches.

He condemned the construction of the manner of communion which opened the doors to all who sought admittance, and excluded examination by the Church of the forger, the adulterer, and the malignor, merely dropping their names from the roll on account of absence from the church.

He thought the recent Advisory Council improper, as it tended to cause innumerable Councils to be called He thought the Council had without intention heaped dirt on the great doctrines of the Lord, and had spread its protecting wings over the pastor of Plymouth church—According to the doctrine of the Catholic Church the anchristian character of the priest made no difference to the members in so far as the efficacy of the Sacraments was concerned; but it would be hard to make Protestants accept such a view Such a Council as had been called would have about as much effect as a brush of feathers in cleaning out a mine.

The whole matter was looseness in accepting members.

DANCING AT OTTAWA.

The late Fancy Dress Ball at the Capital under the auspices of his Excellency Lord Dufferin, was a grand affair, and in its splendour were lost the religious professions and puritan notions of not a few of the people's representatives especially of those, who could afford (?) the costly dresses and paraphernalia necessary.

The only Minister of religion in the capital that had boldness enough to condemn the Vice Regal Ball is Rev. A. A. Cameron, and it is to be hoped that it was not the leaven in his own church that provoked his sermon against the Ball, but still rumour has it that the contagion entered even into his congregation, and among his people. He said:

"We are told that the world is getting wiser as it is growing older It may be so, but we are apt to explain the folly of the past ages must have been extreme indeed when so much yet remains." Witness our late.

FANCY BALL.

The representatives of this Dominion met on Parliament Hill under the most serious circumstances and merchants we were told, were suffering under the present commercial distress Thousands if not tens of thousands of our laboring citizens were in need of the actual necessaries of life, and yet.

WHAT A SUBLIME MOCKERY.

all this appears in the light of the late extravagant State entertainments! It was said of Nero that he was fiddling when Rome was burning, but it is very doubtful whether any danced with him. It is all very well for the rich to be extravagant, to be lavish in their expenditures, in these times, but all are not rich, and sometimes those who spend the most in these times can.

AFFORD IT THE LEAST.

The people of the country expect consistency, this expect of he leaders of public opinion and the guardians of their honor not to talk distress and and extravagance. I am of opinion that it is not to the

of public morality to create such a lavish taste among the citizens of a growing country like ours. We are not old enough, rich, egough, or aristocratic enough to indulge in such tastes, or run away with such fancies. We need a sober, economical, prudent community who will not be above their station, nor seek to assume in characters which they were never designed to live.

But is the remonstance of a single preacher enough? It appears that other ministers think so, and are silent. And this not to be wondered at. Public opinion is at fault. In their selection of candidates, if the question between a moderate and a time serving candidate comes up they generally vote for the latter assigning as their reason that the former is to conscientious. This spirit extends itself to Ottawa and Toronto, and the wonder is that it does not manifest itself in still more demonstative folly.

COUNTY LODGE, I. O. G. T.

The Peterborough County Lodge, I. O. G. T. held its regular quarterly session in the Temperance Hall, Peterboro, March 9th, commencing at 10.30, a. m

Bro. D. Kennedy, W. C. T. in the chair.

All the lodges in the County were fully represented, over 70 being present. A brother was appointed to report for the press as much of the proceedings as could constitutionally be made public.

After the reading of minutes, the reception of communications, appointing of committees and reports from lodges occupied the forenoon session.

AFTERNOON SESSION

County Lodge resumed business at 1.30 p. m.

The several committees presented their reports.

It was then resolved to hold a Temperance Demonstration under the auspices of this lodge, on Dominion Day, and invite G. W. Ross, M. P., and Mrs. Yeomans, together with the best temperance talent that can be procured to address us on the question of prohibition.

A committee was also appointed to address circulars to the christian ministers of the county requesting them to bring prohibition more forcibly before the people.

The committee on juvenile temples presented the following report:

"It is our opinion that one of the first duties of our society is to endeavour to save the young from acquiring the habit of drinking intoxicating liquors for this is the true way of securing a temperance community. We would therefore urge upon all lodges wherever practicable to organise a juvenile lodge."

The following officers were in their places:—M. Reid, W. C. V.; Rev. W. L. Scott, P. W. C. C.; H. M Duff, W. C. S.; D. Pentland, W C. T.

It was moved and seconded that a committee be appointed to carefully examine the reports of the proceedings of the Dominion and Local Parliaments as regards the actions of those Honorable bodies upon the Prohibitory Liquor Law Question, and more especially the votes and actions of our county representatives, and report at each session of this lodge.—Carried.

A lengthy discussion then took place on the propriety of this lodge and its adherents binding themselves to support at all elections, either parliamentary or municipal, none but pledged temperance men. A very strong feeling was manifested in favor of such a course, but the question was postponed to be taken up at the next session of the county lodge.

The following resolution was carried unanimously:

"That this county lodge very much deprecates the actions of some of the so-called leading politicians of the country in trying to so influence the government as to have men appointed to the office of License Commissioners who will subserve their political ends."

The County Lodge then adjourned to meet again in the Village of Lakefield on the 15th of June next.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A letter was read from Mr. T. E. Belcher remonstrating with council for throwing stumps in the Little Lake, and warning them that if the stumps in the Spring should do damage to the locks they would be held responsible, and also submitting a letter from Mr. John A Donald on the same subject.—Received

From Geo E. Shaw and others, members of the Mechanics Institute, asking to rent, also the old Council Chamber property, for the Institute.—Received.

From Thos Parrington asking the council to bear the expense of carting gravel from a cellar on Aylmer Street, he to fill the material.—Received and referred to Street and Bridge Committee.

From Daniel Hilleer asking for two or three planks and cedar posts to make an entrance to his place. He to find nails and do the work. Received and referred to the Street and Bridge Committee with power to act.

From the Relief Committee reporting the amount of and number relieved during the week.

ACCOUNTS.

Returning Officers	$14 00

Breeze and Hutchinson	14 26
F. Bradburn	22 75
Gas	338 60
Mr. English moving safe	3 75

Received and referred to the Finance Committee.

A Mr. Howland from Montreal, addressed the council offering to supply his proved Hose at $1 25 per foot, and coupl ings at $6 50, and to warrant the Hose for 2 years.

BY-LAWS TO PROVIDE MONEY.

Mr. Cahill introduced By-laws to provide for $8000 the cost of the iron and locks bridges, and for $6000, cost of Southward School. The money had been spent and had to be paid, and he saw no fairer way than to issue debentures for the amount.

Mr. Cahil moved seconded by Mr McClelland the second reading of the by laws which was done. Mr. Helm, in the chair.

The by-law for $6000 for school purposes, was read without remarks.

On the by-law for $8000 being read. Mr. Patterson moved that the amount be $10,400 so as to include the cost of the Bridge on Smith Street. if the bridge was going to be built, he believed the amount should be raised by debentures. Why should tenants pay the whole sum in one year to please a few rich persons.

Mr. McClelland remarked that the people had voted the By-laws down because of this sum being included, and he thought it best to put in the exact amount. If the iron should sell for $1,500, and then the $1,282 from municipal loan fund be added, there would be very little more needed.

Mr. Elliott advocated the building of the bridge but thought there were means enough or nearly so, when the iron shall be sold, and the $1,282 refered, to be applied to aid.

Mr. Paterson would withdraw his motion if the work be not gone on with.

The Mayor thought the ratepayers had acted like children, and in the face of the vote he would not sign the contract.

The blank was filled in with $8,000. and the By-law read a second time and ordered to be published.

AUCTIONEERS BY LAW.

Mr Rutherford moved the reading of the Auctioneers By-law, as it is now termed.

The sums for resident auctioneers was fixed at $50 a year.

For pedlars and hawkers, $25 per annum.

For transient traders, $25 per day.

For resident pedlars and hawkers $1 per annum.

For Exhibitions, $5 per day.

For Circuses, &c., $50 per day.

For Menageries, &c., $25 per day.

For Dramatic or Theatricals, $5 to $6 per day, at the discretion of the Mayor or Clerk.

TAXES ABATED.

The taxes of 19 widows were abated.

The council adjourned for two weeks.

TORY JOURNALISM.

In order that our readers may have some idea of the quality of the reading matter which some Tory journals furnish their friends, we publish the following as an average specimen:

"The identity of the dynamite Beard Thomassen seems at last to have been traced. It appears that his real name is Keith, that he was born in Dunkeld. Perthshire, Scotland, and that he emigrated to America in the year 1865. He stopped at Halifax, while his townsman, the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie came on to Sarnia. Both have made their names in the world."

This may be considered a good average specimen of Tory literature; it also furnishes a good sample of the kind of arguments that are used just now against the Dominion Government. The Premier's name is coupled with that of the scoundrel Thomassen, The writer evidently thought that coupling these two names in the same paragraph was an extraordinary triumph of journalistic cleverness. Perhaps his readers think so too. The Kingston News (Conservative) stigmatizes such conduct as "unmitigated newspaper blackguardism," but the minor organs can't afford to be as decent as the News. We were almost forgetting to mention that the villanous extract is from the London Herald. Puss the scoundrelly organ round.

It is of no consequence perhaps that the statement as to Thomassen's nationality is all fiction. Our present purpose is simply to illustrate the disreputable tactics resorted to by Tory organs to inflict a stab on Mr. Mackenzie or the Administration of which he is the head. But it may not be amiss to explain, which we do on the authority of a leading Halifax paper, that the dynamite feed was not a Scotsman; nor did he reside in Halifax. The most reliable accounts agree that he was of foreign birth.—Ex.

SYKERT REDIVIVUS.

We have been, from necessity, tardy in chronicling an event of great importance to the country. But a fact of such moment as the return of Mr. Rykert to the Ontario House is not an incident of ephemeral interest. With many men the announcement of their election to such honour should be made at once, as it is the only notice they are ever likely to claim at one's hands. But with Mr. Rykert it is otherwise. The position he occupies is so prominent, the influence he wields so entirely his own, that a momentary neglect cannot injure him at all; his strong individuality will assert itself; his light is too lurid for the timbrel of neglect to conceal or dim its glare.

Mr. Rykert is in the Assembly. The fact is one on which we may meditate in silence, ere we indulge in eulogies of his known worth. When we recall his services to his constituents during his former term of service; to his colleagues, to his country we might even add, to himself, we hardly know what to say. There are public men whom to pany gerize, falls little short of insult. We are careful to refrain from insulting Mr. Rykert by dilating much on his work as a legislator. He stands outside the circle of public men whom we deem it becoming to praise. Among all the Ontario M P P's there is not one, to our knowledge, who during the parliamentary career, has been so vigilant in unearthing corrup ions—the smallest and most doubtful always preferred; who has been so ready to speak whenever worldly wisdom would have dictated "the policy of silence;" who has been so eager to sacrifice himself and his party, and so happy in the immolation of both.

Mr. Rykert is in the Assembly. The Opposition is strengthened. In the fight with the Amalekites on Mr. Speaker's right, and the Hon. William has at least one to hold up his sinking hands.—Beacon

SUNBEAMS FROM CUCUMBERS

From Ottawa Free Press

The Mail is elate. The vote in the House on Thursday evening has convinced it that at last there is some tangible evidence of the great Conservative reaction, and, as born is exalted accordingly. Alluding to the vote it says:

"They were sustained by a majority of THIRTY-TWO! Two years ago they were boasting of their purity."

We should be sorry to rob our contemporary of any of the glory which attaches to the party of which it is the organ, from being defeated by "only thirty-two" no a question of such momentous importance as the manner in which the translation of the debates of the House into french shall be made. However, it is only fair to note the fact that majority of thirty-two, which the Mail things so insignificant, in favor of the Government was obtained in a House of only 160 members; and it is further more to be noted that the sixty-four votes which the Opposition managed to muster on the occasion, comprised those of Messrs. Lanthier, Macdonald, (Toronto), Mackay (Colchester), Montplaisir and Wood, all of whom, on a strictly political vote, would be found voting as supporters of the Government. This makes the real strength of the parties, as represented in this vote, as follows: Opposition, 59; Ministerial, 101. This it must also be remembered that, ex cepting the Speaker, there were forty-four members of the House who did not vote on this occasion, and in order to arrive at a proper "counting of noses it is just as well to see who were absent. On looking over the list of the absent, we find that o Independents, there were the following;—

Bunster, DeCosmos and Greenway. Of the Opposition there were absent.—Benoit, Crooks, Brown, Costigan, Dougas, McGreevey, and Orton.

Of the regular Ministerial following, the following members did not vote:

Appleby, Bechard, Buell, Burpee (Sunbury), Coffin, Cameron (Ontario), Cunningham, Donahue, De Veber, Gillis, Geoffrion, Irvine, Kerr, Laurier, Macdonald, (Cornwall), Macdonnell (Inverness), McIntyre, McIsaac, Power, Pouliot, Ray, Rymal, Rose (East Durham), Rose (Middlesex), Ryan, Schultz, St. Jean, Shibley, Sinclair, Thompson (Weiland), Thompson (Haldimand), Tremaine, Wallace (Albert), and Young

Now, if in computing the relative strength of parties as they represented, we add to the 57 Oppositionists in the House, the 7 Oppositions where not present, and give them the benefit of the doubt, in the case of Messrs. Bunster, DeCosmos and Greenway, whom we class as Independents, the result is a total effective strength of the Opposition in a full house, of sixty-nine votes. And if we add to the 101 regular Ministerialists who were in the House at the time of that vote, the thirty four Ministerialists who were absent, we have a total strength in a full House of 135 votes, or a majority of 66 votes The fairness of this computation cannot be denied, and if it were a case of direct want of confidence in the Government, we fancy that majority would very nearly represent the result of such a vote Allowing for a certain latitude of individual opinion, it is quite evident that the majority of the Government in the House, even on the most cleverly contrived "catch motion," that can be put forward by the Opposition, as a vote of want of confidence, will be about equivalent to come forth of the House in number—quite a respectable majority, and quite a large as consistent with the interests of the party or the welfare of the country. However, even the "thirty-four" is not to be sneezed at. We remember when a less majority in favor of Sir JOHN MACDONALD induced to the now scornful Mail, that the Government of that right honorable gentleman was "triumphantly sustained."

Mr Huntington's Argenteuil Speech

To the Editor of the Globe.

SIR,—Among the Orangemen of Montreal, and, indeed, I might say of all Lower Canada there is but one feeling and that is profound disgust at the course those would be "Orange Chiefs" (sic) White and Bowell during that memorable debate on the above speech.

Never was the saying that a modern politician would do anything for "party" better illustrated. Let us examine the facts:—Mr. Huntington makes a speech wherein he denounces priestly interference at elections. (I will here state for the information of our Ontario brethren that no where is the liberty of the people in so much danger through this pernicious influence than in Lower Canada) because Mr. Huntington happens to be a Cabinet Minister, the propriety of his using language which might be construed by the clerical or ultramontane party as offensive, is charply criticized by Mr Mason and others, who are also aided and abetted by the above named Orange "Worthies."

Now I will not condemn either Mr. Mason or his colleagues, but I do blame men like White and Bowell—men who are elected to Parliament with the distinct understanding of upholding the principles of our Order. And what are these principles? Civil and religious liberty! And what did Mr Huntington's speech each? Nothing but our principles. How could they have better served the best interests of our Order and of Protestantism generally than by throwing "party" aside and sustaining Mr Huntington? But no! That would be giving a political opponent too much advantage. So they bust him, and worry him and shake him like a pack of bounds, and for what? Party gain

Of course the Ultramontanes are in high glee at this. They say:—"Those Orangistes are after all good fellows, so very innocent and tractable; in fact they would make such fine obedient Catholics. Who would have thought it? The astute Bowell and the blatant White playing so admirably into the hands of those dear children of the Church.' Langevin and Masson Poor White! How bad we must feel after getting such a castigating from "Barney."

The above is not overdrawn, it is the sentiment of every "son of the church" throughout Canada. In conclusion, let me urge upon every Orangeman in this Dominion to be careful about the pars they send to Parliament Never mind "party." Too much partyism is and has been the bane of our Order I am sorry many of Orangemen who have politically speaking filled themselves up through their connection with our Order, and when they got all they wanted "kicked the ladder away." Yours truly,

AN ORANGEMAN.

CHANDOS.

FIRE.—Mr. Wm. Baggs house was burned down on the 22nd of February. All his seed wheat, pease, flour, potatoes, and everything he had was consumed. It is said that Mr. Baggs was threshing at Mr. Kilborne's, and that Mrs. Baggs had gone to a neighbours, leaving two children in the house. Mr. George Wilson saw the house on fire and ran to the place, getting there in time to save the children, but the day being stormy he had to carry the children to his own house to save them from freezing. When he returned all was consumed, The leaving of small children alone in the house cannot be too severely censured.

There are men now wanting aid in your good town who would not work last summer unless for very high wages, and who spent almost all they earned in taverns. It is said here that men have left work and gone home because they can get their wants supplied without working for it. This is not right, as it is supporting laziness and drunkenness.—COM.

HALLS GLEN.

CHURCH ROBBERY.—The Wesleyan Methodist Church, situated about one mile south of Stoney Lake, was entered last week between Tuesday evening and Sunday morning, and robbed. The principle things taken were the books of the Sunday School Library, comprising fifty-five volumes, some bibles and other books. The exact number cannot be ascertained as the register containing the number of each, etc., is gone with the rest. As there are no houses very near the person or persons were not afraid of being seen or heard. The bible on the pulpit was not stirred. The key of the door having been lost some time ago they had no trouble in getting inside. The books were in a box, under lock and key, which seems to have been cut open, the lock taken off and the books then were easily taken out of it. It is a wonder that a person who would do such a thing would have honesty enough to leave the box.—COM

CAMERON'S HILL.

On the 10th of March Bro. David D. Anderson, District Master of Otonabee, organized a new Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 282, to be known by the name of "Northern Star," under the most favorable circumstances, when the following officers were duly installed:

Bro Hugh S. Neilson, W Master
" Wm J Christie, D.M
" Wm Eavens, Treasurer
" James Bonar, Secretary
" R J. Christie, Senior Com.

FENELON FALLS.

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday, 1st instant a man named Kelly, employed in Smith and Co's., mill-, was rather severly injured by the bursting of a saw. The saw revolved within a box, when not in use. When it burst it is supposed that a box struck Kelly on the breast and knocked him backwards, and as he was falling a piece of the saw glanced across the left side of his chest, inflicting several wounds, and tearing his clothes and also penetrating him. The blow on the chest by knocking him backwards it is believed saved his life.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE.—Mr. Belcher, of Peterborough, visited this village a few days ago, for the purpose of obtaining some necessary information relative to the enlargement of the school house. As he estimates that the work will take nearly or quite three months, it is, we hear, the intention of the trustees to rent Scully's Hall, and perhaps McArthur's Hall also during that period for the use of the school as they rightly consider that a quarter of a year would be too long to deprive the pupils of tuition.

KEENE.

MISSIONARY MEETING.—The Annual Missionary meeting of the Presbyterian church of Canada was held here on Monday evening the 6th instant, and was in every way a success. The snow had failed and the roads were very bad, yet the attendance was large. The claims of the Missionary interests of this important branch of the Christian Church was presented and sustained in able and eloquent speeches by the Rev. Mr Clarke of Lakefield and the Rev. F. Andrews pastor of the congregation. The financial results showed a gratifying increase over last year.

INDIAN CONCERT.—A very interesting Concert was held in Hiawatha Indian Church on Rice Lake, Thursday evening last to assist the Indian friends to pay for a beautiful Organ they have put in their church. The sleighing having failed the audience was not as large as otherwise it would have been, but was appreciative. Miss Andrews, daughter of the highly respected pastor, presided at the instrument, and the Indians sang a number of well selected pieces in their unique and fascinating style. Any person who has never heard them sing before cannot fail to be interested and charmed. The Rev. Mr. Wicher, of Keene, added to the interest of the occasion by an original and characteristic address on "dull axes" Mr. Mr. France, teacher of Keene, also supplied an excellent reading Though the elements were some what against it, yet the concert on the whole was a rich literary and musical treat.

METHODIST CHURCH PORT HOPE.

The Port Hope Guide gives an interesting account of the opening of the new Methodist Church in that town. At the opening services, which commenced on Thursday evening of last week, the very handsome sum of $27,000 was subscribed, being $5,000 more than sufficient to meet the balance remaining due on the church. This costly and beautiful edifice, theref

MECHANIC'S INSTITUTE.—The annual sale of papers and periodicals belonging to the Institute will take place to-day, at 7 30, p. m., of which parties interested would do well to take notice.

Q. C's.—In a list of gentlemen who have been honored with the title of Queen's Counsels, we find the names of J. F. Dennistoun, Esq., and W. H. Scott Esq., of Peterborough. Out of 25 who have been newly appointed, Peterborough has the honor of two.

VEAL THAT WAS VEAL.—Mr Robert Jackson of Otonabee sold a calf to Messrs. Coe, last week which weighed 90 lbs. of dressed meat. It was not quite three weeks old when killed. This shows both good breed and good feed, and will be difficult to beat in the veal line.

CHANGED.—The Editor and Proprietor of the Newmarket ERA has shunted on to the Conservative track, and avows himself an admirer of Mr. A. Boultbee and Charles Rykert. Let him go. There need be no quaking on account of an accident, so trifling in its nature.

NEW JEWELLERY ESTABLISHMENT.—Messrs Muncaster & Sanderson have opened out a large stock of Watches, Clocks, Jewellery, Silver Plated Ware, etc., in Mr Kane's old stand George St. and are prepared to do business on liberal terms. An inspection solicited.

PORT HOPE. The new Methodist Church Port Hope, was opened on Thursday, 2nd Inst., by the Rev. Dr Ives of Auburn, New York. Twenty-seven thousand dollars were subscribed in one night towards liquidating the debt on the building, which is said to be more than is required.

ART CÆSAR, AUT NULLUS.—A contemporary is authorized to state that Mr. Langevin did not appear at the fancy ball in Ottawa the other week, as the "man of the $32,000," and that Sir John and his crowd did not stay away on account of the sulks, but because he could not be the Governor of the feast. Aut Cæsar, aut nullus, which being translated, means that his nose is out of joint.

Y. M. C. A.—There will be a "Service of Song" in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association to-night. Conducted by the talented choir of the George Street Wesleyan Church under the leadership of Mr. Tennyson Brown. Several choice readings will also be rendered. We hope to see a large attendance as we can promise a delightful and instructive nights entertainment.

THE KHEDIVE of Egypt finds as much difficulty in carrying on his financial affairs that he appears to have given them up in disgust, and has called upon England, France and Italy to send a commissioner each to show him how to conduct an Egyptian national bank. England, however, hesitates as the Government wishes to keep clear of having any commercial relations with the Egyptian bank.

NOT BIGOTRY.—The Toronto Tribune, R. C. says of Moody and Sankey:—"Those revivalists are coming to Canada they say. The "religion" that they give does not last, but the insanity which it causes does very often". But on the part of the Tribune this is no bigotry. It is an expression of the extremely liberal views which actuate the Editor of that journal and his friends in Canada, especially in Ontario.

MR. CARTWRIGHT hit the nail squarely on the head the other day when he said he really pitied the sufferings of the Montreal manufacturers. Their "squalid hovels spread along the mountain always moved his sympathy." Those of our readers who have seen these "squalid hovels," in which the oppressed manufacturers live, surrounded by every luxury that money can command, will no doubt feel the force of the sarcasm.

QUEEN VICTORIA is to have an addition to her title, that of Empress of India. This is to be added to her other titles in future. An amusing joke was made by Chancellor Lowe when the matter first came before the Imperial Parliament.—He said that by Her Majesty still being called "Defender of the Faith," she should, in accordance with the majority of her subjects, turn Pagan. Which faith, ought she, as Queen, to defend, may yet become the question of the empire.

SOIREE.—The congregation of St Andrew's church will hold a soiree on Friday evening, next, at 6 o'clock, after refreshments have been served, pieces of music and addresses will be delivered suitable to the occasion. The music will be under the charge of Mr. Joseph McClelland. Addresses are expected from Messrs. Rice (B.C.) Watson (Methodist) Cameron, of Millbrook (Presbyterian). The proceeds will be in aid of the Building Fund of the new Sunday School. The public generally are cordially invited.

FAST SAWING.—Mr. Eugene McCarthy of Douro cut on March 10th, for Mr. John Young, of the same township, forty double cords, or eighty cords of stove wood, all hardwood, in eleven hours. He had only one saw for the machine at the time. The machine is styled "The little Giant," and was manufactured by Messrs Mowry & Forsyth, of Ashburnham. As Mr. Kidd got 50 cords cut in a day, will he please state whether they were fifty cords of stove wood, or merely 25 cords, standard measure.—COM.

OTTAWAIAN.—The Board of School Trustees of the Capital have had the annoyance of a newspaper war among the teachers and other school dignities. This war has become vexatious, and the Board in consequence threatens dismissal of any teacher who may attempt to carry his grievances into newspapers in future. It is a little arbitrary, and should be carried out only in extreme cases. But if the Cacathes Scribendi is carried on to the injury of the schools under the management of the Board, in the interest of the people it might be reasonable to send the combatants outside of the city limits to settle their grievances.

HYMENEAL.—Last Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, Mr. Frank Goodfellow, was united in wedlock to Miss Matilda Brownscombe, daughter of Mr Wm. Brownscombe, of North Monaghan. The ceremony was performed in the Bible Christian Church, Rev. A. Gordon, the pastor, officiating. At the conclusion of the service, Rev. J. P. Rice, in behalf of the trustees of the church, with a short address appropriate to the occasion, presented the happy couple with a handsome Family Bible, this being the first marriage performed in the building since its erection. Quite a number were present to see the ceremony performed, and to congratulate the newly wedded ones.

LIBERAL GIFT.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Peterborough Mechanic's Institute held in their rooms on Thursday, March 9th 1876, the Treasurer, Geo. E. Shaw, Esq., reported that he had received from Robt. Nicholls, Esq., on behalf of the heirs of the late Wm. Hall, Esq., the munificent gift of Five Hundred Dollars for the Mechanic's Institute. It was moved by E. H. D. Hall, Esq., seconded by Geo. E. Shaw, Esq., "That the thanks of this Board be tendered to the Heirs and Executors of the late Wm. Hall, Esq., for their very munificent and acceptable gift of $500 to the Mechanic's Institute, and that the Secretary convey such thanks to them."

HALL WORKS OSHAWA.—The Joseph Hall works, Oshawa have been sold to a Mr. Bishop of Rochester. He is to pay all secured claims, mortgages and liens in full and 51½ cents on the dollar, on all unsecured claims. The whole is believed to be equivalent to $167,000 in cash. Mr. Glen is to remain in connexion with the works, which, it is thought, will go into operation immediately, when it was known in Oshawa that Mr. Glen was to continue in connection with the Hall Works, an enthusiastic demonstration was got up, and an immense procession proceeded to his residence, and also to that of Dr. McGill, who addressed the crowd. Mr. Glen appears to be very popular with the workingmen, and also with the citizens of Oshawa.

PRESBYTERY OF PETERBOROUGH.—The Presbytery met February 29th, at Centreville, for the ordination of Mr. James Cameron, M. A., Mr. Maclellan of Peterboro' presided. Mr. Hodnett preached an excellent sermon from Eph. iii 8. Mr Cleland delivered the charge to the minister, and Mr. Ewing to the people. Both addresses were admirably appropriate, that of Mr. Cleland being especially well digested and comprehensive. In the evening a soiree was held, at which addresses were delivered by several members of the Presbytery and by the Revd Messrs. Barker and Buchanan, of the Methodist Church, and by the Rev. Mr. Allan, Rector of Cavan. Mr. Cameron begins his work at Millbrook and Centreville with every prospects of usefulness and success. A call from the congregation of Warsaw and Dummer in favor of the Rev Mr. Steele, having been declined by that gentleman, Mr. Clark, of Lakefield, was empowered to moderate in a call at those places, when requested by the people to do so.—W. DONALD, Clerk.

HAMILTON.—The unfortunate man McConnell, who murdered Mr. Mills suffered the extreme penalty of the law on Tuesday morning. On the scaffold he said:

Gentlemen,—It was not my intention to say a word on this occasion, but seeing so many present I feel that I am justified in saying something. I am placed to-day in a very solemn position, and I am now going to my death, but I solemnly assert that I am not guilty of the murder of Nelson Mills. I never planned the death of Mr Mills and my killing him was not premeditated. I was the victim of circumstances, and I lost my temper and the deed was done, but I hold that I am innocent of his murder. Mr. Mills was too hard on me. I had been his tenant for four years, and when I was only two months behind with rent he sent the bailiffs on me to drag me to pieces. Had he acted with less harshness the fatal occurrence would never have happened. I hope it will be a warning to all the people of Hamilton in the future to act differently from the way Nelson Mills did and to exercise a little moderation in all their transactions. I have no hard feelings against any one. I leave the world without a grudge against any living being.

The result of counting the persons visiting public houses in Cork on a single Sunday, gives the following rough estimate—there are about 600 public houses in the city, and the number of persons visiting them between half-past two and half-past eight p. m. is computed at 30,000. As many as 400 were seen going into public houses.

A SUICIDE Last week a Mr. Wm. Alley, a bachelor of about 50 years of age, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor at the bay shore, near Ardenville almost opposite Belleville. He is represented to have been in an unsound state of mind at the time, because of ill health. The deed seems to have been premeditated as he made a will, disposing of about $5,000 worth of property to his friends a day or two before.

REV. MR. CHINIQUY.—A disturbance on Sunday evening at Fort Massey Church Halifax, N.S., has caused much comment to-day, and the respectable portion of the community are shocked at the attempt made to interfere with the freedom of speech. The Mayor has offered a reward of $100 for the apprehension of those who conducted themselves in a disorderly manner. Rev. Mr. Chiniquy left yesterday morning for St John.

During the night of Saturday last the Post office at waterloo, kept by Mr. Skinner, who also does a jewellery and drug business was entered by some parties, who broke the window-shutters and some panes of glass. They took five or six dollars in money belonging to the post-office, together with the jewellery valued at about $50, and a quantity of drugs. Eight persons were arrested on Sunday and two more are being sought for. Some of the jewellery was found in Mr Barley's barn, whose son is missing and suspected.

A marriage ceremony was performed in Sydney on Sunday evening last under very painful circumstances. A young girl, daughter Mr. Wm. Macdonald, shoemaker, had been engaged to be married, but a protracted illness prevented the performance of the rite. She grew gradually worse from day to day until at last all hope of her recovered was despaired of. At five o'clock last Sunday evening the young man to whom she was engaged procured the services of a clergyman and the pair were united. At nine o'clock the bride was a corpse.—Nepewe Express.

A most extraordinary well accident is reported from Dublin. There is in Marlbone Lane a well which communicates with a stream that is now covered over. A woman named Duffy had raised the trap of the well and was about to draw water, when she overbalanced herself and fell in. All efforts to recover the body proved futile, and it is supposed that it has been carried down the stream to the Kiffey, passing under Dublin Castle on its way, and it is expected that it will be necessary to make an opening near the castle at a spot where a grating has been placed across the underground stream to prevent access to the castle from the Liffey by way of the sewer.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—The conduct of political parties in Canada, and I apply the same remark to Ontario, is very different when each party gets control of the Government. When the Tories are in power they always support their friends, and honour them for it. When Reformers come into office they support the Tories too, and I dispise them for their meanness. When Sir John A. Macdonald went out of office he conferred all the patronage he could upon his followers. When Reformers came in, both at Ottawa and at Toronto, they give the cold shoulder to their friends and even refuse them proper redress. The fact is as the Tories assert it is, Reformers are afraid to do their party justice, they cringe and humble themselves before their opponents, as if Reformers were not worthy of favors and were only fit to be tools and slaves. Witness the recent appointments of Queen's Counsel in this town. If it was desirable to have such a representative in this county, surely the Reform Government might have found at least one member of the profession among their political supporters worthy of the honor, and if no such person could be found here, then, I say, they should have left matters as they found them and they should not have insulted their professional friends here by passing them by with contempt and nominating, not one, but two of their political opponents to honors. The Tories laugh at the Government for their cowardice and their ingratitude, and well may they taunt Reformers and say "if you look for gratitude and a proper appreciation of your services, come over to our party and you will receive it, but this you will never get from a Reform Government. If they have favors to bestow they do not give them to their friends." And this is literally true. I have seen enough of this kind of work in my time. And it is so well understood that many men have told me that when they began life they chose the Tory party simply because they knew that in doing so was their only chance of preferment, and those persons were not disappointed. And such persons have the double advantage of knowing that they will receive the patronge from Reformers as well as Tories. When the Reform leaders are striving to get into office they are very glad to get the support of their party, but when they are in office they spit with contempt upon their supporters and in effect tell them that they are no longer worthy of notice, until the next time, when they will be drawn up into line and ordered forward and again kicked and told to go about their business. But this sort of thing is not always going on so, and I will venture to predict, on so far as the two ridings of this county of Peterborough are concerned, when another election takes place and when another battle has to be fought, the leaders of the Reform party will have to fight it without soldiers.

A REFORMER
Peterborough March, 14. 1876.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

SIR,—May I ask you to answer a few questions which I find the townspeople enquiring about:

1. What has been the ordinary expenditure of the town for the last ten years?

2. What became of the $1282 Municipal Loan Fund. Money received from the Government?

3. Is it true that before the people were allowed by their vote to say whether they were prepared to spend their money for the Ward Schools and Smith Street Bridge the council ordered the Town Clerk to sign the contracts for the bridge and embankment on the Ashburnham sides?

4. Is it true that no tenders were asked for the excavation on the Ashburnham side?

5. Is it true that a bridge built over Dixon's pond would cost $500 less—would save the expense of the cutting—would receive $800 of private subscription—would be on a level road—and would accommodate more people than the Smith Street Bridge?

6 Is it true that the towns share of expenditure for the old bridges is less than $7,000, while the By-law just voted down asked for $10,000. What was the extra $3,000 for?

7. Who got the money for the large part of the old iron of the fallen bridge, which report says has been carted away?

8. Is it honest to tell the electors that during our administration the expenditures have been less and the taxes less than in former years, while all the time great deficiencies were concealed and left to be paid by special By-laws?

Answers to these questions will oblige the

RATEPAYERS.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—As my name has been mentioned twice in your paper in connection with moneys expended by our Town Council, from which it would appear to the Ratepayers that I had received favors, to the amount of $37.53, at the expense of the Ratepayers, I beg to correct the same by stating that I never sought, received, nor will accept of any favors at the expense of the Ratepayers and further, my cellars are being excavated by the contractor at my own expense, for which I pay, and not at any expense to the Town.

—ELECTRICITY—
THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

READ THIS THEN.—Five to thirty drops of Thomas' Eclectric Oil, will cure common Sore Throat. It never fails in Croup. It will cure a cold or cough in twenty-four to forty-eight hours. One bottle has cured Bronchitis of eight years standing; recent cases are cured in three to six days. It has restored the voice where the person had not spoken above a whisper in five years. As an outward application in all cases of pain or lameness, nothing like it has ever been known. One bottle will cure any case of Lame Back or Crick in the Back. For diseases of the Spine and Contraction of the Muscles it is unequaled. In Rheumatic or any other pain the best application does you good. It stops Ear Ache and the pain of a Burn in three minutes, and is altogether the best and cheapest medicine ever offered to the people—the cheapest, because it takes so little to do you good. It is composed of six of the best oils known, and nothing but oils. It is worth its weight in gold. Why not buy it to-day?—A. B. Des Rochers, assistant postmaster, Arthabaskaville, P. Q., writes:—"Thirteen years ago I was seized by a severe attack of rheumatism in the head, from which I have nearly constantly suffered. After having used 'Thomas' Eclectric Oil for nine days, bathing the forehead, I have been completely cured, and have only used half a bottle. This I can certify under oath if you wish."—Rev. J. Mallory, of Wyoming, N. Y., writes "Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil cured me of Bronchitis in one week. Dealers all over the country say, "We have never sold a medicine that has given such complete satisfaction as this."

HURRYING ON.

Hurrying on in the midst of excitement,
Fuming extravagant projects through,
Few of us know or pause ever to question
Even to ask where we're hurrying to,
Hurrying on over blossoms unheeded,
Casting some joy, like the butterfly, loose,
What is the good of our wonderful freedom,
What is the use of hurrying?

We have been hurrying on from [illegible]
What but its shadow - have we for past?
We are still hurrying [illegible]
What shall we get for our hurry at last?
Graves are so thick that one cannot but mind them
Going with only the shadow we shall wear
Where shall be, then, all these hurrying after?
What shall we have with our hurry then?

Hurrying on in the way of the pleasures,
Comfort alone in the fever of haste,
Hurrying on with extravagant projects,
Little we reck of the treasure we waste,
Little we think of the diamond moments,
Wealth of Eternity planted in time
The soil for its seed grown - human or other,
While we are yet hurrying out of its prime.

God works but slowly - but slowly my brothers
Not hurrying onward in power and strife
Works with Love only and only for others
Not for himself in the green fields of Life.
Let us sit down, and be calm and be thoughtful
Lifting our hearts to Eternity's brink
Let us cease living alone for the present.
Let us cease hurrying - what do you think?

BREAD.

Flour aught not to be used immediately after being ground, because in its fresh state it is too glutinous to make good bread. It should be kept dry for several weeks, stirred every day in summer, at least every second day in colder weather, until it becomes quite dry, loose, and yielding between the fingers.

A bushel of good flour made from dry, Well harvested wheat, and freed from bran and pollard, weighs 56 lbs; (Eng) such flour will make the whitest bread but it is dear in the first instance, and will not yield so great an increase as that coarser sort. However, it is desirable to make fine bread occasionally; and, indeed, medically considered, it is the most suitable to persons who are subject to a relaxed state of the stomach.

Brown Bread of exceedingly fine flavour can be economically made by mixing 5 parts of grist flour (a term we shall shortly explain) with 1 part of the finest pollard (middlings or toppings, as they are locally styled.) We prefer this mixed meal, believing it to be cleaner and more pure than the coarse cheap flour of the mills.

Grist flour is always preferred for every purpose, excepting that of making pastry. It is made from the best wheat, divested of the coarse bran only. None can have this fine and sweet flour but those who purchase wheat and send it to the mill; 1s, 6d, or 2s, per sack is paid for the grinding, and the bran and flour are both delivered back to the purchaser. A sack of wheat weighs 240lbs: if 190 lbs of flour be sent home from the mill, and from 40 lbs to 45 lbs of bran, the wheat may be considered of very good quality; we have seen only 187 lbs of flour returned from a sack of wheat. (Eng).

After those remarks we shall presume that 24 lbs of the mixed flour be used to make a small batch of family bread: as it will absorb water to a great extent 28 lbs will be the final result; 24 lbs, of white flour will not ordinarily yield more than 30 lbs, or 31 lbs.

A large family may be supposed to bake a bushel of flour weekly; but as one composed of only three or four persons cannot consume so much, we prefer to confine our calculations to 24 lbs, of flour which will afford us the grounds of a very ready estimate of quantities and results. But in order to convert flour to bread it must undergo fermentation. Neither dough nor beer will ferment will unless it be to 60, and as the former must be completed in a few hours, not less than 70 or 75 ought to be applied. However not to multiply difficulties, we will state that 1 pint of really good, thick yeast should be employed if the batch to be baked contains 1 bushel of flour, and that the 24 lbs, named will take ½ pint of brewers, yeast, or a large tea-cupful of the thick sediment from that of home-brewed beer. In either case the yeast is to be diluted with a pint of milkwarm water (68) or sweetwort.

The management of this ferment is of the greatest importance, and the yeast of home-brewed beer is much to be prefered; but it is very bitter in the first instance, and would flavour a large batch of bread; therefore, it should be washed in a considerable quantity of water, and be set by for some hours till the thick mass subsides; this, if it still continued bitter, should undergo the same process again; the firm sediment will then be good still farther from which all floating water should be poured. Whether this substance or the yeast from the brewery be employed it should always be mixed with 3 or 4 tablespoonsful of fresh bran and 1 pint of warm water, and then be strained through a hair sieve. Bran abstracts much of the bitter principle, and also adds life to the yeast: if the brewers' yeast be flat and lifeless it may be much improved by adding a pint of warm sweetwort to it instead of the milkwarm water. To prepare this wort take 3 or 4 tablespoonsful of ground malt, simmer it for a quarter of an hour in 1 pint of water, with 1 tablespoonful of moist sugar or honey, and 1 tea-spoonful of salt. Let these ingredients digest, on a cool part of the gate or elsewhere, till they become milkwarm, then strain off the liquor, and add it to the yeast, stir the whole well together, and the mixture will be fit to use.

Process of setting the sponge. Put the 24lbs, of flour into an oblong wooden baking-trough or a glazed earthen pan, large enough to contain twice the quantity of the flour employed. Make a deep, round hole in the centre of the flour, and pour into it the diluted yeast; stir into it with a large spoon so much of the surrounding meal as will make it up into a sort of batter of the consistance of thin past. This process is called setting the spodge. Cover the mixture with dry flour to the depth of at least the eighth of an inch, and then throw over the trough or pan a linen or woollen cloth. Many persons omit this useful preparatory process, but the bakers always adopt it. The object is to give strength and character to the ferment by communicating the quality of leaven to a small portion of the flour a quality which then is soon extended to the whole mass. Chemists term the action so excited the panary fermentation, in contradistinction to that which yeast gives to the wort of malt, &c. Setting sponge is also a measure of wise precaution, for many a batch of flour, which would have been totally ruined for bread had the barm been foul or insert, and mixed up at first with the entire bulk of flour, has been saved by this test of the goodness of the yeast,

To make bread that will never be bitter. Suppose you want to bake a [illegible] of flour, put it into your kneading-[illegible]rough, then take about 1 pint of [illegible]m water and 1 tea-spoonful of [illegible]t. Stir [illegible] is thoroughly mixed with the water; then make a hole in the middle of the flour large enough to contain 2 gallons of water. Pour in your small quantity; then take a stick, and stir in some of the flour until it is as thick as you would make for a batter pudding; then threw some of the dry flour over it, and go about your usual business for an hour. Then take a quart more of warm water, and pour in; for in one hour you will find that small quantities raised, so that it will break through the dry flour you shook over it; and when you have poured in your quart of warm water, take your stick as before, and stir in in some more flour until it is thick as before; then shake some dry flour over and leave it for two hours more, and then you will find to rise and break the dry flour again; then you may add 3 quarts or 1 gallon of water, and stir in the flour, and make it as thick as at at first, taking care to cover it with dry flour again, and in about three or four hours more you mix up your dough, and then cover it up warm made you may make it up into loaves, and put it in the oven, and you will have as light a bread as though you had used a pint of yeast. It does not take about a quarter of an hour more than the usual way of baking, for there is no time lost but that of adding the water three or four times. The author of this method assures us that he constantly bakes in this way. In the morning about six or seven o'clock, he puts the flour in the trough, and mixes up the spoonful of yeast with the warm water; in an hour's time some more, in two hours more, and about noon makes up the dough, and about six in the evening it is put into the oven, and he has always good bread, never heavy or bitter.

Forming the daugo. After the sponage has stood some time it will be found to have swelled considerably, and formed cracks in the covering of flour; when these cause to increase and widen it will be time to make up the dough. Flour, we have said, drinks up a considerable quantity of water; if fact, it becomes chemically combined with it; but few persons can form an opinion haqe much absorbed. On this point housewives are far too remise; for though perfectly dry and good meal will take up much more water than that prepared from ill-harvested, sprouted corn, and though also, the same flour will, in diffrent states of weather, very in its absordent power, yet there exists too much of a careless ignorance on this important joint. We request that the conscientious economist will note carefully every result, and thus make an approach towards accuracy; and in the meantime we state that, as 25 lbs of good flour will yield about 32 lbs of bread, the weight thus increased must chiefly be acquired from the volume of water absorbed, which will be 1 gallon. Again, since much gas and vapour are expelled during the raising and baking of the dough, 2 quarts more of water should be allowed: the proportions then would be 24 lbs. of flour to 12 lbs (pints) of water, and, therefore, that quantity, or more, should be at hand, heated to the degree of new milk. In winter the heat ought to be considerably higher; but in all seasons, as flour is a cold heavy substance. It will require to be assisted by a genial temperature. Everything being in readiness, scatter about 4 ozs. of salt over the dry flour, put some warm water to the sponge, work some of the flour into it, and thus add portions of water and flour till the whole becomes sufficiently moist to be formed, by kneading with the fists, into a firm, compact dough. The texture must be such that it can be brought together into a solid mass in the middle of the trough or pan, and then it is to be dusted over with flour to prevent it from adhering to the surface of the vessel. This dough is to scand covered over to swell, and in cold weather the vessel should be placed near the fire. If the ferment be well formed in the sponge it will act upon and distend the whole mass in the course of an hour. We have seen it rise and swell so much as to fill the vessel and raise up the covering cloth, and, like the sponge, it aught to be taken at the height of the action, and formed into loaves before it begins to fall back.

Heating the oven. By the term oven we mean to express one built of and arched at the top with sound brick the bottom being laid with good tiles close jainied. Bricks are slow conductors of heat: they receive it gradually, and retain it per tinaciously. Hence a baker's oven which is heated daily, or nearly so always produces the best and most equally baked loaves. Iron, on the contrary, is a rapid conductor. Hence, though the oven will not enough, it cannot retain its temperature without perpetual accessions of actual fire. The bread therefore, is either burt, or it is unequally baked, frequently, also, the loaves are flat and their texture too solid. If the batch required be large, and the family possess a good bread oven the bread, of course will be baked at home: but if their be no proper oven, and three or four small or middling-sized loaves be made it will be wise to send them to a baker with whom an agreement may readily be made to bake them upon very moderate terms. Many persons adopt this method, and we know a family which has the finest bread we ever saw, where the loaves are prepared and sent to a baker twice a week. The disadvantage of an oven at home is this: it becomes cold, and therefore can never by any weekly heating, be uniformly soaked, as it is termed. The baker's oven never loses its heat: the bread, therefore, rises higher, and is ligther. We recommend it then, as a point of economy, that a small family should not generally attempt to bake at home. Furze, small brushwook, and sound faggots are the best materials for the fire. With the first (where it is at hand) it can be lighted, and a blaze of intense heat maintained till the bulk of hot fuel be sufficient to kindle the faggots. We cannot particularise further now chesefore suffice it to observe that the dough being completely up, and the oven hot nearly together, the former must be cut, and slightly pressed, not forcibly kneaded, and rolled into the form loaves, which are to be dusted over with flour one by one, while another person draws out the hot embers with a hood of iron fixed at the end of a long pole, and cleans the bottom of the oven with a wet mop made of long shreds of woolen cloths or coarse sacking. The loaves are then placed side by side in the oven by means of an instrument called a baking-peel, which consists of a flat beech board fixed, to a long handle. This board, as well as the loaves, should be dredged with flour, so as absolutely to prevent adhesion of the daugh to the board of the peel. When the loaves are in the oven the door must be securely closed, and if the fire have been well managed, the bread will be regularly baked in an hour and a half or two hours, according to the size of the loaves. VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL. PURE! CALIFORNIA. R. WALKER'S. VINEGAR BITTERS

Hundreds Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no [illegible] effects so universally required by everybody as a [illegible] we ever any hope to [illegible] in general [illegible] be adapted [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason [illegible] that it possesses [illegible] and far more effectual [illegible] than any [illegible]. Those who have tried it know that it [illegible] those who have not, know that it [illegible] and friends, and all know that what it does [illegible] always — that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its [illegible]. We have adapted [illegible] upon thousands of [illegible] their remarkable [illegible] of the following [illegible] which we are known in every [illegible] and [illegible] not publish them. Adapted to all [illegible] and conditions in all climates, containing [illegible] and deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by [illegible]. Their [illegible] purifies the [illegible] and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action — remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

ENCHANTMENT.

The sails we see on the ocean
Are as white as white can be;
But never one in the harbor
As white as the sails at sea.

And the clouds that crown the mountain
With purple and gold delight,
Turn to cold, grey mist and vapor.
Ere we reach the height.

The mountains wear crowns of glory
Only when seen from afar;
And the walls look all their whiteness
Inside the harbor bar.

Stately and fair is the vessel
That comes not near our beach;
Stately and grand the mountain
Whose height we may never reach.

Oh! Distance, thou dear enchanter,
Still hold in thy magic veil
The glory of far-off mountains,
The glamor of the far-off sail.

Hide in thy robes of splendor,
Oh! mountain cold and gray!
Oh! sail, in thy snowy whiteness,
Come not into port, I pray!

FROM THE GALLERY.

HON. L. S. HUNTINGTON.

On the treasury benches, and almost in the rear of the Premier, sits a middle aged man, with smooth, clean-shaven face, and high forehead—a man whose very look shows him to be possessed of an undaunted will, and whose bump of determination is well developed. He is evidently one man in a thousand, and when he takes the floor, he fastens the attention of the House, not so much with his eloquence, as with the forcibleness and evident sincerity of his utterances. Such a man is the subject of my sketch. Mr. Huntington is an able debater, and generally acknowledged to be the most fluent speaker on the floor of the House. He may lack much of the logic and sarcasm of the member for South Bruce, but he still possesses all the qualifications necessary to make a successful public speaker. Those of your readers whose fortune it was to be present at the time of the dissolution of the late Government, will not soon forget the thorough and scathing manner in which the iniquities of the Pacific Scandal were unearthed; and I might remark that the Tories do not forget it either. They do not forget the men that deprived them of their mess of pottage, nor the man who unmasked the Tory God and showed the civilived world a man of clay. Calumny, misrepresentation and slander have been heaped upon Mr. Huntington without stint; but he survives it all, and today possesses the respect and admiration of all men whose intellects are not clouded by prejudice, or whose judgment is not made subservient to bigotry or partisanship. A short sketch of his life may not be out of place. He was born at Compton P. Q., in May 1827, and is, therefore, about 49 years of age. He is a widower, his wife having died four or five years ago. He was called to the bar in his 20th year, and ten years later was created a Queen's Counsel. He is a member of the firm of Laflamme, Huntington & Laflamme, and has achieved a high reputation among the legal fraternity and the public generally. In 1859, he first made his appearance in the political field, when he contested his present constituency, Shefford, unsuccessfully. In 1861, he was more successful, however, and has represented that constituency ever since. In 1864, he was member of the Executive Council, but he did not hold the position long, as, nine months later, the Government of which he was a member resigned their positions. He was mainly instrumental in unearthing the Pacific Scandal, which finally resulted in the overthrow of the Macdonald Government. On the accession of the Mackenzie Ministry, he was appointed President of the Council, and filled that position with great credit.—During the absence of the Premier, in England, last year, he discharged the trying duties of Minister of Public Works in such a manner as to win Mr. Mackenzie's special approbation. On the appointment of Hon. D. A. Macdonald to the Lt-Governorship, Mr. Huntington was appointed Postmaster-General, which position he still holds, and, despite the machinations of his enemies, will doubtless hold it for some time to come. He is a Liberal of the most advanced stripe, and while honoring our British connection, believes that Canada will prosper best if independent. So much for the general history of our sketch, and before passing on to touch up a less pleasing subject, let me say a word about that Argenteuil speech When that speech was first delivered, the Tories received it as they would manna from Heaven, and hoped by its means to ride back to power.—The explanations in the letter addressed to Mr. Power relieved the speech of most of its offensiveness, until at last, on second thought, right-thinking men—no matter of what political stripe—must feel that every word spoken was but the truth—in fact, that the truth was but half told. The Liberals of Quebec know but too well the disadvantage under which they have labored in the past, and hail with satisfaction the first blow for their release from the disabilities put upon them by certain ecclesiastical notables, heaped by Bishop Bourget, the prosecutor of the Witness and the enemy to everything cursed with the prefix of "Liberal"—Liberal Conservative alone excepted. Despite the trickery of the politic Holton, the effects of that speech has tended rather to strengthen than to destroy the Liberal party. But I find myself digressing somewhat. When Mr. Holton called the attention of the Premier to the speeches delivered by the Hon. the Post-master General at Argenteuil and received nothing but a non-committal reply, fancy the effect upon the House when Mr. Huntington rose in his seat and announced that the sentiments then expressed were his opinions still, and that he would continue to hold them.—The effect was thrilling.

"He closed; the solemn silence now was broken,
Which reigned triumphant when the speech was done,
And then was heard, amidst the plaudits given,
One voice that knew it stood opposed."

A prominent Conservative remarked to the writer, when discussing the bold position taken by Mr. Huntington: "I always liked Huntington, but now I admire him." A greater tribute could not be paid, and we will say more of the picture by any further comments of our own.

HON. MR. CAUCHON.

Who is that Shylock-looking individual, with the long grey beard, and close-fitting skull cap, who, with his dull, brusky voice, is persisting in calling the attention of the Speaker to some question of order. That is the new President of the Council, the Hon. Joseph Edouard Cauchon, member for Quebec Centre. Mr. Cauchon comes of a good old French family, who came to Canada as far back as 1636, and settled at Quebec. He was born in 1816, and is 60 years of age. He was called to the bar in 1843, but afterwards chose journalism as a more congenial occupation. He has been editor of several papers, and is also the author of a number of valuable historical works, printed in the French language. He was Mayor of Quebec for a number of years and was first elected to the Commons and Quebec Legislature in 1844. After the Union he was called to the Senate, and was chosen Speaker of that body in 1867. In 1872, he left the Senate and re-entered the House of Commons, where he had since remained. Originally a Liberal, he succumbed to the seductive influences of the Church party in Quebec, and became a Conservative, holding office under Sir John A. Macdonald. The Pacific Scandal showed him the error of his ways, however, and he greatly aided in turning his quondam associates out of their field of clover.—He has since given a liberal support to the Mackenzie Administration, and was lately appointed to the position of President of the Council—a perfectly harmless situation by the way. The charges of corruption made against him have never been proven, and very likely had no foundation. He is a strong man in his section, and as I have already remarked, possessed of great ability. Further than that I do not like to go, and must leave your readers to study the picture for themselves.—Ottawa Correspondence, Perth Courier.

The Candidate For Office.

When I walked down the street next day the preception of my new relations with the public suprised me like the shock of a gelid bath. Instead of the cold and somewhat shy deference habitually accorded to independent position and reserved manners, I was every where accosted with an easy and aggressive familiarity. My rigat hand was crushed with the cordiality of fellows whose names were unknown to me, and my ribs ached with the friendly pokes of the people whose former acquaintance had never transcended a distant nod. Tom introduced me to his neighbor Dick, and Dick presented his friend Harry and Harry called up my fellow-citizens Reg tag and Bobtail, and every body wanted to know my opinions on all imaginable—grangers, railroads, local option, free school, Cuby the next Presidency, and what not.

I was seriously embarassed at finding myself for the first time face to face with a constituency, but was humanely relieved by Billy M'Cue, who stepped up and whispered in my ear, confidentially "You can answer all them questions most satisfactory in one word—treat!"

"A friend in need is a friend indeed," and by authority my committee man led the constituency into the next grocery. Then I was followed by a bevey of little girls collecting for the Mite Society, who pertly demanded a dollar from the candidate. Reflecting that little girls have fathers who have votes, I called up a sweet blushing maiden whom I saw modestly hanging backand gave her the dollar, with a pat on the head and a compliment added. This was observed, and at the next corner I was bond by a maiden

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 23, 1876.

PARLIAMENTARY.

This session of the Dominion parliament is fast drawing to a close. It is supposed that it will be prorogued by Easter Nothing of very great importance, except the debate on protection, has transpired. The Opposition, on general questions, is weak and ill managed. Tupper is a great talker, but has no influence in the House a Sir John can never rise again to his former position He is too old and too well known. The Pacific Scandal will overshadow his very grave. The attempt of Mr. Holton, to make transient popularity out of Mr. Huntington's Argenteuil speech was a signal failure. The The Lower Canadian liberals feel the disadvantages they labour under, and are not unwilling to meet the opposition that may be brought against them. Mr. Huntington has the confidence of Ontario and of the Eastern provinces almost to a man, while his opponents who are subservient to influences at variance with the liberty of the subject cannot have the confidence of the people of any creed or nationality.

The attempts of McKenzie Bowell, White, (Hastings) and T. White, of the Gazette, to make political capital out of Mr. Huntington's speech and Sir A. T. Galt's letter, are also signal failures, and those gentlemen will find this out when they again appeal to their constituents. There are no two opinions in regard to the effort made to subject the Dominion to the will of Bishop Bourget of Montreal. The ill feelings thus aroused instead of drawing together the different religious communities, will tend to make them more suspicious of and less confident in each other, and in consequence can not merit the approbation of liberal minded men. The hope that confederation would heal the differences of creeds, is by this act of the clergy rendered more doubtful, while it has not added one assurance for the better government of the Dominion. But the men who have stood up for justice to all, and favour to none, are still firm and will be supported by all right minded men.

The debate on protection has been a signal failure to the opposition, as all attempts to tax the whole people for the benefit of a few should be. It is well known that if woolen goods are protected to the amount of ten or twenty per cent, the farmer and labourer who buys must pay the addition al twenty per cent. If Agricultural Implements are protected, who will pay the increased price? Not the maker. If Sugar is protected 40 per cent; who pays the 40 per cent increase in price? Not the refiners. The Redpaths, Drummonds and Moulsons have been protected until they have become millionaires, but how many of the workmen have made money and become wealthy? The question is not Free Trade versus Protection, for we cannot have and need not expect free trade in Canada. The interest of our debt and the construction of public works such as Canals, the Pacific Railway, etc., will require revenue and that revenue must be raised by tariff duties, but no sane man would wish to tax the people more than is required to meet current expenses from year to year.

The Mackenzie government, therefore, has acted wisely in refusing to raise the rate of taxation, but instead has reduced expenditures. This is the wise course, and just what any prudent farmer or merchant would have done under the circumstances. If our income does meet our cost of living then reduce the cost of living. If the revenue does not meet expenses, then reduce expenses, not increase outlays and taxes The wisdom of Mr. Cartwright's position, viz: curtailing expenditures, will be self-evident.

The depression of trade committee has held several sittings, but has not yet reported. There is a wide divergence of opinion as to the causes leading to the depression in trade, but the prevailing opinion is, over trading Too many men go into trade with small capital—they buy beyond their ability to pay. The wholesale man is in the same position. Both crowd their debtors, and one brings down the other. In the lumber trade, the depression consequent on the civil war, and the failures through railway and other enterprises has caused a general depression The lumber manufacturers produced over supplies, and the result is easily understood. When the committee reports the evidence will be laid before the people, and they will find that these periodical depressions in trade are as easily accounted for as the periodical change of the winds or tides. They are governed by well known causes.—Beyond those two questions the Session has been tame indeed. The government majority is about 60 to 70, except on protection, and then a few Reformers step over on this vote, but on no other. The Conservatives are about to make this the plank of their platform for next election, but let them try it.

SOMETHING WRONG.

About two weeks ago we invited attention to the fact that, although a contract had been let to Messrs. Croly & Curtis, no papers in connection therewith had been deposited in the Clerk's office. On Saturday last these papers were left with the Clerk, and, as anticipated, there appears to be something wrong. It is well known that the Chairman of that Committee for letting the cutting East of the proposed new bridge, and for awarding tenders for the bridge, represented, all along, that the town would have nothing to pay towards the cutting, as Messrs. Croly and Curtis had bound themselves to pay $600 towards that work; Ashburnham $300; and Douro $60. Now when the agreement is produced, matters are somewhat different. The town is bound to pay for the whole labor, awaiting the completion of the bridge, and if it be not completed, neither Ashburnham, Douro, or Messrs. Croly & Curtis are bound to pay one cent. The Mayor, on Monday evening, expressed some grave doubts whether the Council could spend any money outside of its limits This he knew before, and yet this contract was signed binding the town to pay the money before it was provided, and before they knew where the money would come from. In fact if the $10,000 By-law had been carried, there would still have been grave doubts whether the Council could spend a cent of it outside of the Town limits.

Is there not something wrong in letting a contract to do work, or to get it done, until the funds are provided? And is there not something still more astray in deceiving the Council by putting different terms in the contract than was represented in open council? This is not the way to establish confidence in our City Fathers. It is also well known that Mr. Rutherford held meeting after meeting of this committee, without notifying some of the members of it. Mr. Cook charged him with this in open council and he did not deny it. He misrepresented the contract with Messrs. Croly & Curtis, and on Monday night he said the terms put in the contract were to save them the contractors, from spending money until the bridge should be built. Thus he arranged his terms to suit the contractors, let the town take care of itself. Yet this is one of our Councillors whose declaration of office requires things to be done without favor, or the hope of favor.

The first iron bridge cost trouble enough, but let Mr. Rutherford manage bridges and contracts, and he will eclipse anything of the kind hitherto heard of. If any irregularity was found to exist in the old iron bridge contract it was all in favor of the town, but in this case there appears to be some axe to grind outside of the town, and not in the interest of the ratepayers.

There is time enough, however, to make redress for the reckless conduct of the past two months, if councillors should set about it. Last year over $6,000 were spent on streets and bridges inside the corporation. If the council should cut this sum down to $4,000, in 1876, they would have money to pay for existing contracts, and thus save their credit for the present. But one thing is very evident the present chairman of the street and bridge committee requires to be restrained, and the lesson on contracts should teach the council to have them read openly in council before orders are given to sign them; and the specifications also should be understood by every member, as a designing chairman of committee may agree in committee to certain conditions, cunningly word his report to deceive, and, as in this case, put very different conditions in the contract and bonds. The engineer should be required to give estimates of quantity in every case, and thus enable the council to act intelligently. In this case there are no estimates.

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL SESSION.

The council met in Special Session, on Monday evening.

Present the Mayor and Messrs. Rutherford, Douglass, Dixon, Elliott, Cook, McClelland, Paterson, Helm, Taylor, and Cahill.

PAYING CONTRACTORS.

The Mayor stated that he had called the meeting to consider the best means of providing for paying the contractors for cutting on the East side of the proposed Smith Street Bridge East of the River, and also for paying Mr. Boyd, who has the contract for erecting the Bridge.

The reading of the minutes of the last meeting were deferred for the night.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was read from sec. Town Trust recommending to the favorable consideration of the council the complaints of Butchers renting the Market Stalls in reference to the selling of meat on the Market Square, the parties being professional butchers and only paying the market toll.—Referred to the License Committee.

The following resolution of the Douro Council was read by the clerk and referred to the Finance Committee:

Moved by Mr. Leahy seconded by Mr. McCliggott,—"That whereas a deputation from the Town of Peterboro h waited upon this council praying for a grant from this Municipality to aid in the construction of the Eastern approach of the proposed Smith Street Bridge, across the Otonabee River, and whereas we are of the opinion that said bridge would be a benefit to the Township; be it therefore resolved that this council pledges itself to aid said undertaking to the amount of $50, provided the Municipality of Dummer grant a like sum. But in the event of the County Council granting any amount for said purpose, then this council is hereby relieved from payment of said $50 such $50 if it becomes a claim on this corporation, not to be paid until a good substantial bridge be constructed over the River from said approach.

The clerk certifies this to be a true copy.

From W H. Robertson asking to have the use of the Assessment and Collectors Rolls in his office.

From Wm. Helm tendering his resignation as councillor for ward No. 1.—Received.

ACCOUNTS.

Hall Innes & Co.,.....	$13 98
A. W Kempt & Son	4 00
J. W. Robinson & Coy	3 80

All of which were referred to the Finance committee.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE.

In reference to the communication of Messrs Dennistoun Bro. & Hall. Mr. McClelland asked for information, as to whether Messrs Croly & Curtis were not to raise $360 towards the cutting, East of the proposed bridge, and Ashburnham $300, and as to the terms of the contract.

Mr. Edwards said that since Saturday he had the contract and agreement which was read, and it was found that Messrs Croly & Curtis are not bound to pay any money till the bridge shall be completed.

The Mayor said that this was found necessary to protect Mr. Croly that he might not spend his money and yet the Bridge not to be built at all.

Mr. McClelland thought it strange that the Chairman of the committee had not prepared a by-law to provide the money to pay the Contractors since he knew that they had to be paid.

Mr. Rutherford remarked the thought never struck him, as he thought the Treasurer should have paid the contractor on Mr. Belcher's order.

The Mayor presumed that if the by-law had been passed, there would still have arisen the difficulty of spending money outside of the Town Limits, which he thought could not be done.

A by law was introduced to provide for paying the contractors for the New Bridge & Cutting.

Mr. Cahill thought that as only 4 votes had been recorded for the by-laws in the 4th ward he would oppose giving them a bridge at present.

Messrs Elliott and Dixon said the people wanted a bridge but they were opposed to increasing the debt of the Town for that purpose. They wish to pay for it this year.

Mr. Rutherford almost agreed with Mr Cahill, and thought that the people did not deserve a bridge at present.

The Mayor in answer to a question said the contract with Mr. Boyd was in Messrs Scott & Edwards office, but not signed yet.

The by-law was read a first time,

BY LAW TO REGULATE LICENSING PEDDLERS

A by-law was introduced to regulate the licensing of Pedlers, Hawkers, Circuses, Menageries, Auctioneers, Theatres &c. The terms are about the same as in the by-law passed a week ago, but a new one was necessary as the other one had repealed the previous by-law without providing for all in it.

The By-law was read a second and third time and passed.

RENTING OLD COUNCIL CHAMBER.

The Mayor informed the council that the Town Trust had recommended rent in the old Council Chamber flat to the Mechanics Institute at $40 a year, awaiting the erection of a fire engine house, when the building would be offered to them for sale.

FIRE ENGINE.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr Paterson,—That the clerk be instructed to write to the Reeve of the Municipality of Ashburnham, to request him to pay to this corporation the amount due on account of the Steam Fire Engine.—Carried.

OLD IRON BRIDGE.

Moved Mr. Elliott, seconded by Mr. Dixon,—That Messrs Helm and Douglas be and are hereby added to the special committee on the Smith Street Bridge, for the purpose of having the Iron of the old Iron Bridge weighed and offered for sale and the amount accruing from the sale of said bridge be appropriated to liquidate the debt incurred by the building of the New Bridge.—Lost.

RESIGNATION.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Taylor,—That the resignation of Mr. Helm be accepted, and his worship the Mayor be instructed to order a new election.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

THE TWO PREMIERS.

The Mail and small fry of the Tory press are making a howl over the expenses of Mr. McKenzie's visit to England and Scotland last summer. It appears that these expenses footed up the full sum of $2,343.-23.

The Ottawa Times anent this subject says:—"against Mr. McKenzie they can discover but two iniquities, both taking this form of Travelling expenses, and amounting respectively to $152,50 and $81.33, the total sum not being paid on Mr. McKenzie's account at all, but as the expenses of his secretary waiting on the Governor General in the Lower province. The Times further says.—

We cannot attempt for a moment to palliate such an enormity. A First Minister of Canada who would spend $150 per annum in travel ought to be called sharply to account, as well because of the amount of money thereby expended, as because, as one of the papers so well puts it, of the length of time he and his Secretary must necessarily have been away when they should have been at their desks in Ottawa. We remember to have read of nothing like it in "the good old times," and we turn to the Public Account of by gone years for the parallel of such expenditure in vain Instead, we find such modest items as the following, extending over a series of years—showing that Sir John's economy was not for twelve months only, but as "rare Ben Johnson" said of the fame of Shakespeare, "for all times."—

For Mr. Mackenzie's expenses to England a sum is set down of $24,353,33—against $11,000 and $24,330 of Sir John Macdonald and his associates, when they went to London. Mr. Mackenzie's cab hire for a year, (which, "Oh no, they never mentioned") was $19 50—against $80 13, $464,98, $647,77, $326, $58,,01, and $150,50 of Sir John Macdonald. The travelling expenses of Mr. Mackenzie and his secretary were $162,50, against $226,-50, $697,50, $877,85: $696,47, $725,65, and $1,218,12 of Sir John Macdonald and his companions in travel. And Sir John's example, both as regards travelling expenses and cab hire was well followed by the other members of his government, particularly by his second in command, the Hon. Dr. Tupper, C. B., who, in addition to $600 received by Hon: S. L. Tilley C. B., from the Customs Department, as travelling expenses in 1871 2, got from that Department $400, as well as $400 for travelling expenses in the same year from the department of Inland Revenue, two officers of the Inland Revenue Department being set down in the same year for the same kind of thing, for $745,65, and officers in the Customs Department for $286.-75. Then, while all the cab hire paid for the thirteen Departments by the Mackenzie Government appears by the late blue book to have been in the aggregate less than $150 for the year 1874 5, we find for this service such amount as there expended by Sir John's Government in the year 1871 2—president of Privy Council, $107; Minister of Justice, (as already stated.) $468, 57; Minister of Militia, $180,07. Minister of Finance, $335,62: Minister of Customs, (Dr. Tupper) $337: Minister of Inland Revenue, (Dr Tupper, again,) $113,75; Minister of Marine, (leader of the Left Centre,) $515,35. In those days there was a powerful demand for whip-cash, and Ministers travelled while their Departments stood still.

It was Mrs. Malapropos or Mrs. Partington—we are not certain which—who said of comparisons that they "oderiferous." We are sure that Sir John Macdonald will quite concur with the sage old lady in this opinion.

HEAVY SUIT.—Mr. Justice Rainville to day delivered judgement in the case of Lady Marie A. C. Symes, Marquise de Bassano, ès, Maurice Cuvillier, for $403,-192.87. The Plaintiff in the case is daughter of the late G. B Symes, lumber merchant, of Quebec, and a few years ago married the Marquis of Passano, a French nobleman. The action is brought to recover the amount sued for, which was collected by the defendant, her uncle, in his position as duly authorized agent and attorney in Canada, during the period exteudig from the 23d August, 1870, to the 31st of December last past, and in which said amount the defendant acknowledged himself to be indebted to the said Marquise Bassano. The money collected by the defendant is alleged to have been lost in speculation and otherwise, and but little hopes are entertained if its recovery unless the defendant's brother, Mr. Leon Cuvillier who is wealthy, steps in and assists the defendant.—Montreal Star.

Japan has a Bible in-the-schools controversy, the Buddhists endeavouring to have the reading of the Bible in the Christian school in Kiyoto prohibited by order of the Emperor. The Buddhists are ver influential, and are favoured by the Emperor, but his chief counsellor and the Minister of Education are friendly to Christianity.

HOW PROTECTION PROTECTS.

A recent article in the Toronto Globe stated that the American Sewer Company of Rhode Island, which has enjoyed a protective monopoly in the United States for at least fifteen years, had, in order to escape protection, established a factory at Dundas, Canada, from which it can export its goods to all parts of the world. It is said that persons from Buffalo and Philadelphia have begun an establishment at Guelph, in Canada, for the manufacture of organ reeds. Such an industry is protected out of existence in the United States. In this connection the following illustration from the World will be read with interest, as it shows just how protection protects The present rates are:—

On a pair of blankets for which $5 is paid the law exacts, for monopoly, $2

On a suit of common tweed clothes, costing in New York $18, that we can buy in Canada for $12, there is an exaction of one third

On a common alpaca dress, for which we have to pay 40 cents a yard, but which costs in England 9 pence, the exaction is 15 cents, or more than one third

On a spool of cotton the exaction is one-half, and on a muslin dress it is one third.

On a pair of socks or stockings, if of cotton, it is over one-third; if of woollen three-fourths.

On an iron pot it is one half.

On a dose of castor oil, it is more than double.

It is often observed that no act of legislation could at this time prove so beneficial to American manufacturers, not to say insure to increase the bulk of American manufacturers, as the repeal of every item of protection in the American tariff.—N. Y. Express.

PROTECTION VAGARIES.

In a protectionist article, the Mail inquires:

"Why should a yard of cotton cloth manufactured at Sherbrooke cost more than a yard of the same fabric produced in Lowell, or a pair of boots made in Quebec or Montreal be dearer than a pair of the same quality made in some town in New England? Labor is worth more in New England to-day than it is in any part of Canada; and the price of living is much higher with them there than it is with us. Why then may we not manufacture as cheaply as they do?"

If we can, and the Mail thinks we can, why under Heaven does it cry for more protection? It confesses that we can and then demands more protection, as if we couldn't. It pleads however, that until a manufactory is established it cannot thus compete with our neighbours, and that it must be fostered into a sturdy growth. That is, the consumers should pay toll to the manufacturers in the shape of an increased tariff while it thus being "fostered" with the sure hope that when it is thus "fostered" sufficiently then the manufactures will take mighty good care to resist any attempt to remove that toll, and will rather seek to increase it, as they are doing year by year in the States. If we were manufacturers and thought more of our pockets than of the country, protection would find favor in our eyes; as we believe is the good of the greatest number, we fail to see the economical beauty of allowing a small minority to levy taxes on the vast majority to aggrandize themselves, although they would conceal the process with high-sounding words about a "great" country and all the rest of their lingo.—Whig.

BELMONT.

COUNCIL MEETING.—Council met on the 26th February. Present, the Reeve and Messrs. Brown, Anderson, Caskey, and Preston. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. A notice was received from the Dummer Council in reference to an appropriation of ten dollars on the boundary between Dummer and Belmont, subject to the Council of Belmont granting an equal sum, was laid over till the next meeting. An application was received from P Wright for $200 for land taken for a road crossing the west half lot number 15 in the 7th concession of Belmont. On motion was laid over, with instructions for the Clerk to furnish the surveyor's report of the original survey of said road. It was moved by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Caskey, that the Reeve be instructed to get legal advice as to whether this council pay Mr. Clark for his horse, and report at next meeting of Council—carried. Township officers were appointed:—Wm. Anderson, Township Clerk; Jos Doane, Assessor; J. B. Peoples, Treasurer; Robt. Burgess, Collector. Pathmasters, &c., were also appointed. On motion of Mr. Preston, seconded by Mr Anderson, ten dollars was appropriated on the boundary between Belmont and Belmont, opposite the 9th concession, providing the Council of Seymour grant an equal sum. On motion of Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Preston, James Gerrow got an order for twelve dollars, payment in full to the 1st March including two weeks in November, for keeping Sarah Seaney. A by law to authorize the County Treasurer to refund to Mr Ledyard $78 65, and one appointing Township Officers, were passed. Moved by Mr. Preston seconded by Mr Brown, that the Auditor's report be received and adopted, and that fifty copies of the detailed statement be printed for circulation, and the abstract published one insertion, and also 75 copies of township officers' by law be printed—carried On motion, Robert Anderson was authorized to secure the causeway over Mud creek, so as to prevent its going away in the spring. On motion, the Council adjourned till the 27th of May.

VERULAM.

SOUTH VERULAM.—A meeting has been held by the ratepayers of South Verulam, to consider the wisdom of setting a part of that portion of the Township into a separate Municipality. They wish to include a portion of Fenelon. A committee was appointed to endeavour to carry out the scheme.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARDS.

Mr. James Macdonald of Tuckersmith, has contributed to the Huron Expositor a lucid account of the working of the township boards system in that township Owing to the irregular shape of the municipality it was found impossible to arrange it in section in such a way as to make the burden of school taxation fall with any thing like equal severity upon all. A majority of the ratepayers in two-thirds of the sections agreed to try the township boards system, and the plan so far appears to have given unalloyed satisfaction: In accordance with the provisions of the School Act the school property in various sections was valued and equalised; five trustees were chosen, and the school property was handed over to them Each trustee is expected to exercise a special supervision over one or two schools in his own vicinity, while the engagement of teachers and all other business connected with the schools is taken up at the stated meetings of the Board. The new system is declared to be no more expensive than the old one, while it has at least one decided advantage in its favour—it equalises taxation. Formerly the school rate in some sections was less than four mills in the dollar, while in others it was as high as eight Now a uniform rate of a little over four mills is levied over the whole township. Mr Macdonald says nothing about the greater or less efficiency of the schools, but wherever township boards have been fairly tried they have been found an improvement in this respect also. The wonder is, that there are not more of them in existence.

BOSCAYGEON

On Friday morning an Indian named Pickiow, together with his team of horses, was found dead at Gannon's narrows, five miles from here. Pickiow left here the evening before for the Indian village with flour and groceries, and it is supposed that while on Pigeon lake he lost his way and broke through the ice, as the horses were found in the water with their heads above the ice, and the man lying on the ice beside them, all frozen stiff. It is supposed that he perished while attempting to rescue the horses.

SOUTH MONAGHAN.

COUNCIL.—The Municipal Council of the Township of South Monaghan, met at Fraserville on Monday March 13th, 1876 at 3 o'clock p.m. pursuant to adjournment of last meeting,—Members present, Wood, Pow, Rutherford and the Reeve, the Reeve in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and received. The petition of Wm. Adams and others laid over at the last meeting were then taken up. Moved by Wm Rutherford, seconded by J. Wood,—That the whole Council be a Committee to examine said road and report at next meeting—carried Several accounts were handed in and laid over for further consideration. R. Pow, presented By laws No 199 being a by-law to better provide for obtaining gravel for the roads of the Township. Said by-law was read a first, second and third time without amendment, passed and signed. Wm. Rutherford, presented by-law No. 200 being a by law to suppress vice &c., in the Municipality. Said by-law was also read a first, second and third time, passed and signed. On motion the Reeve issued his order on the Treasurer for the following amounts viz: A E Hayter, printing Auditors statement for the years 1874-75, $5 00. A Finnie, for gravel $3 70. G Wood, plank 20c. On motion the Council adjourned to meet at Centreville, as Court of Revision.—Com.

KEENE.

This village was again favored last Wednesday evening, with a visit from the far famed Swiss Bell Ringers. They gave an entertainment here last year, which was well attended and gave the best satisfaction. This had the effect of increasing their popularity, and their visit on this occasion was greeted with a crowded house, even the vestibule of our spacious new Town Hall was thronged with persons anxious to hear and to get an occasional peep if nothing more. All who were present felt delighted with the entertainment afforded by these world renowned performers.

CONCENTRATED CAPITAL.

A correspondent of the Graphic believes the world's greatest peril to flow from the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the Rothschilds. Their property has increased during a hundred years at the rate of 11 per cent, yearly, while the wealth of the world grows at the rate of 3½ per cent only. The writer believes they cannot make 11 per cent, but thinks they can ensure themselves 5 per cent. Then he shows the danger as it occurs to him:

The entire wealth of the United States, by the last census was $30,000,000,000. If that should continue to grow at the rate of 3½ per cent, per annum, it would amount in 1976 to $950,000,000,000. But in the same period, if the wealth of the Rothschilds should continue to increase at the present rate of 11 per cent., they will have accumulated property to the value of $90,000,000,000,000, and will then be 100 times as wealthy as the whole United States—will possess, in fact, $10,000 for every man, woman and child then living on the face of the globe, and 3,000 for every dollar of public debt now over by all the world.

Rothschilds, then, make on and a half per cent, per annum more than the world makes. In 100 years the Rothschilds will be worth certainly not less than $100,000,000,000, a sum 200 times as great as the United States The ratio of increase of their wealth to the increase of the worlds wealth is 131 31 Assuming the capital of the whole world to-day to be $1.000,000 000,000, or 333 times as great as that of the Rothschilds, in 100 years it would be 831,000,000,000 000, or only 77 times as great; in 200 years only 18 times as great; in 300 years only five times as great; while in 400 years the world's wealth and that of the Rothschilds will be about equal.

But if the Rothschilds have $500,000,000,000 in 1976 they will be the masters of the world. Population eats up wealth and itself too, but capital lives on nothing and consumes nothing It is the greatest of economizers. Now, suppose that Russia troubles her population in 100 years, the United States quadruples here, and Germany doubles here. The masters of the world would then be in the hands of three powers, numbering an aggregate population of less than 500,000 000, with a total military force of 16,000,000, soldiers, for the hire of whom the Rothschilds will be able to spare $1,250 a year from their annual income, or if they need to buy them outright, could pay $25,000 a head for them. In other words in 100 year from now the wealth of the Rothschild will be so great that it will be able to defend itself against attack, just as even now it is so great as to be able to insure itself against loss.

MURDERER ARRESTED.—We copy the following from the Watertown Despatch of a recent date: "An officer from Louisville Ky., passed through this city on Friday night in charge of D S. Davis, the murderer from that city, who was arrested a few days since at Canton, by Deputy Sheriff Tanner, it seems that Davis was formerly sheriff of Baron County, Kentucky. He became dissolute and reckless in his habits, and was remonstrated with by his best friends. Last spring one of his townsmen was in conversation with him upon the subject of his course and habits when sharp words ensued and Davis shot him dead Davis then fled He went to Canada, and remained for a short time in a law office at Belleville; he then came to the States, and entered the services of Chase & Co., nurserymen at Geneva, N. Y. under the name of J. M. Basham. In December last he went to Potsdam, St. Lawrence County, where he remained until a few weeks since, and then went to Canton where he was arrested." Davis was, as stated, a resident of this town for a short time, being employed as a copyist in the law office of Messrs. Diamond & Diamond. He was also employed on the steamer Kincardine for a brief period. It is satisfactory to know that a criminal of his stamp has been arrested and will be compelled to satisfy the demands of justice.—Belleville Intelligencer.

MR EDITOR,—In your last issue I observed said article headed "Fast sawing," which puts me to state whether it was 50 cords of stove wood or 25 standard cords I got sawed. In reply I would say it was only 25 standard cords, and the time taken to saw it was six hours and fifty minutes, which beats the "Little Giants" time, the former cutting such cord cut, in eight minutes and twelve seconds, the latter in eight minutes and fifteen seconds So try again "Little Giant" B F. Austin, Esq., directs me to say he will venture to cut 50 cords of stovewood in 6 hours, and do it with one saw, or loose some money.

A. B. KIDD.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR.—In an editorial column of your last issue a statement occurred reflecting on the moral perceptions and fidelity of the Clergy of the Capital of our Dominion, and of our country generally. We are charitable enough to believe that it was not an intentional reflection but only an inadvertancy, and we accept it as such from the honesty and fair-dealing always manifest in your journal. The article in question stated that the Rev. A. A. Cameron was the only Minister in the capital who had boldness enough to condemn the late "Fancy Ball" given by "His Excellency Lord Dufferin,"—and also that other Ministers thought that the remonstrance of one of their number was enough. Now, Mr. Editor, we are as glad as any one that the Rev. Mr. Cameron had the Christian courage and fidelity to condemn such immorality and extravagance in "high places"—and even in the presence of the Premier of Canada. But it is not the fact that he was the only Minister in the Capital who condemned the Vice-Regal Ball. The Rev. Mr. Hunter of the Dominion Methodist Church also preached a sermon in condemnation of it, and may we not hope that other ministers also entered their faithful protest against it. More than this we believe many of them would have readily done so if they had enjoyed the opportunity even in the presence of His Excellency or the Premier. We do not claim for the Protestant Clergy of our noble Dominion either Infallibility or impeccability, yet we believe for purity of character, high-toned moral feelings, and fidelity in exposing and condemning what is questionable and wrong, whether in high or low places, they bear a favorable comparison to the ministry of any age or country. We know that in justice to the clergy, for whom you entertain a very high respect, you will give this article a place in your next issue.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN W. WICHER.

Our attention has been drawn to this matter by a Methodist friend zealous for the honor of his church, for which we give him credit, and we are glad that Mr. Hunter, of the Methodist Church in Ottawa, was courageous enough to enter his protest against even the folly of "Fancy Balls" in "high places." We quoted from the Ottawa Free Press and believed we were correct, but learning our mistake gladly correct it, and only trust that all over the Dominion, Christian men and women will not cease to condemn all such folly, whether in the Government or Governor-General. Ministers are expected to do so. And we believe they will, we have selected a paragraph of Mr. Hunters remarks which we give below.—Ed. Ex.

In speaking of fancy balls yesterday Rev Mr Hunter, pastor of the Dominion Methodist Church, said:—I do not believe in mas-querades or caricatures, whether on the skating rink or in the house of people. Life is too earnest and too solemn a thing to caricature. I protest against such proceedings; I protest in the name of that sober judgement and common sense that ought to characterize our Christian civilization; I protest in name of the Christian sentiment and Christian conscience outraged; I protest in the name of society at large, every grade and strata of which must be effected by the example, which goes out from the national capital stamped with the prestige of a high association and influence. I protest in the name of man's grand immortality, in the name of the holy angels who look upon us, and in the name of the great God who we, as a nation, profess to adore and obey.

The New School and Bridge By-laws.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

The Town Council are submitting another By-law to the vote of the people for the purpose of paying off the debt for the iron and locks bridges and for paying for the South Ward school house. It is, of course, assumed that those debts must be paid and therefore, that the people must vote for this By-law. I take a somewhat different view of the matter. I assume that those debts must be paid, but I differ as to the mode of payment. I advocate voting down the By-law and compelling the Council to raise the money by placing it upon this year's Roll. The Council will manage to spend a larger amount of money, professedly, upon streets and bridges, but if they are compelled to put upon the Roll the amount of these bridge and school house debts they will not dare to go on as they have done, and waste and spend some twelve or fifteen thousand dollars, knowing full well that to do so will be to largely increase the taxes for the year and so arouse public indignation. During the year 1874 the Council managed to waste upon streets and bridges alone very nearly $11,000, and for 1875 nearly $9,000. And I ask what possible necessity there was for spending in this way, in two years, nearly twenty thousand dollars. And I ask if there is any other town in Canada with a population no larger than that of Peterboro, where even one-half of this amount has been spent in the same time. I have known sidewalks taken up and replaced by new ones when the old ones would have answered for three or four years longer, and in some instances the old planks have gone for fire wood; and this business has been going on for years. The streets and sidewalks can well be let alone for this year at all events, and a good many other items of expenditure can be greatly reduced, and thus an amount equal to those bridge and school house debts raised upon the Roll without increasing the rate of taxation, and thus the town will be that much richer at the end of the year. But if the people vote for the By-law the hands of the Council will then be free to go ahead and spend the people's money just as lavishly as they have hitherto done and still not increase the rate, because they will not be troubled about providing for those debts. I would therefore submit whether it will not be to the best interests of the town to vote down the By-law, and compel these debts to be placed upon the Roll.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

I am glad to see in your last issue of the EXAMINER that there is one Reformer at least who has spirit and independence enough to resist an insult. And I do think, that if ever an insult was offered to the Reformers of this county it has been done in the recent appointment of Queen's Counsel in the Town of Peterboro. Mr. Mowat appears to have purposely gone out of his way to show his contempt for the Reform party of this county by selecting, as he has done, two of the most uncompromising Tories as the recipients of his favors, and he has done this too at a time when there was no need of making such appointments and which have taken every one by surprise, and this surprise has been increased by the manner in which the appointments have been made. Had the late John Sandfield McDonald, or had Sir John A. Macdonald made those appointments people would have looked upon them as made in the order of events, and would have thought nothing more about them. But for a professing Reformer, like Mr. Mowat, whose Government owes its existence to the votes of Reformers, to thus go out of his way, and to make his selection of men to offices of honor and trust, as he has just done here, out of the ranks of the Tory party, every one of whom gave him and his Government their most uncompromising opposition, is a matter of astonishment and regret, and has produced disgust and dissatisfaction among the Reformers of this county, which will not fail to produce its effects when another election comes round. Mr. Mowat has taken the only course in this matter he would take had he desired to discourage and demoralize the Reform party here, and it certainly does look as if that was his object. And he will find that Reformers have some respect for themselves, whether he respects them or not, and that they are not going to lie quietly down in the dirt and be trampled upon by any Government, whether Tory or professedly Reform. They feel that they have borne this treatment just as long as they intend to do. They have been kicked from pillar to post, and back again, by their own political friends, or by those who claim to be such, as long as they intend to bear it, and I can tell this much to the Reform Government at Toronto—that those recent appointments are the last straw which broke the camel's back. It may be, and it looks as if it were so, that Mr. Mowat thinks that Reformers are not respectable enough for honorable office, and that his opinions, in this respect, are what some of the Tories say of them. At all events this is the only reasonable construction to place upon his conduct, for he certainly never would have been so weak as to suppose that he was going to make friends to himself and his Government of men who have, and are still, giving his government their most uncompromising opposition, who do not thank him for his favors, and who only laugh at his weakness and his folly. They know full well the effect those appointments will have upon the Reformers of the county, and they count upon receiving less opposition for the time to come. And in this they are right, for Reformers will tell the Mowat Government that henceforth they must look for support to those upon they bestow their favors.

ANOTHER REFORMER.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR.—Reformers in my part of the county have been greatly surprised and displeased at the recent appointments of Queen's Counsel in the Town of Peterborough, and we cannot help asking ourselves what kind of a Government we have got who make such appointments. It appears to me that we have no reformers in the legal profession among us deserving of such office, or else Mr. Mowat is following the usual course pursued by Reformers when in power, viz., to bestow all the patronage upon the Tories. One would have thought that in a constituency so evenly balanced between Tory and Reform as this county is, the Government would have done all it could to strengthen the hands of its political supporters here and done all it could to encourage and satisfy them; and I very much fear that Mr. Mowat has made a mistake which will bring fatal consequences, for if Reformers feel as I and others feel about this matter he need scarcely look for the same amount of action and sacrifice from his friends which he would have received had he acted fairly, and had he done his duty as he ought. So long as government is carried on by and through party, so long must the leaders of that party in the ascendment for the time being, defend and encourage its supporters, and when it fails to do this it must look for the consequences which eventually follow from a want of that appreciation and friendship to which its friends are justly entitled. A good many people throughout the country are wondering why it is that no Reformers are appointed magistrates, especially as, in many places, men of this kind are really needed; but I suppose this arises from the same cause that bid the Government to place over their legal friends in the late appointment of Queen's Counsel, viz., that Reformers are not worthy of office, and well may the Review taunt them with the insinuation that they do not possess enough intelligence and respectability to entitle them to such favors The farmers and business men throughout the country are good enough when an election is pending, to be called forward to vote certain men into office, but once in those men suddenly discover that their friends are not worthy of further notice and they are laid aside, like old shoes, and no further notice is taken of them until their votes are again wanted, when they are driven into line and then again kicked aside and told to wait until their betters are served But I begin to feel, that this sort of thing has about run out, and that when another election comes Mr. Mowat will be told to look for support to those upon whom he has conferred his favors. If Reformers are farmers and laborers and do have to earn their bread by the sweat of their brow, they are nevertheless men, and men too who know how to vindicate their honor and to resist insult and wrong. If we have got to be ill-treated and dispossed of, we intend that this shall not come to us from those whom we are trusting and raising to office of trust and power.

The Cobourg Sentinel says, "Several sleighs crossed before and after the accident, showing that 'if it had not been for the liquor,' very probably poor Hewitt would be still living He was the only grown up son to assist a poor mother."

U. S. S JUBILEE.—We call attention to the advertisement of the Union S. S. Jubilee in another column. Mr. Lasher has given this matter his undivided attention for some weeks. Few persons have the tact to control so many youngsters, and keep them in time and place Mr. L. seems completely at home with his hundreds of young vocalists, and as he is being assisted by some forty or fifty choir singers to sustain the parts. the community may expect an uncommon treat in music by attending the coming Jubilee. Over three hundred children are registered for the choruses, and each evening addresses will be given by the several resident ministers of the town.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—Friday being the anniversary of the Patron Saint of the Green Isle, not a few from town and country honored the day by visiting the town and the numerous taverns and other places of entertainment. Towards evening from George Street to Cavanagh's hotel and as far as Messrs. McKeiver & Hogan's Store, was a pretty lively spot, The saloons, taverns and shops had to be closed, and now and then appearances indicated roughish times. Nothing very serious occurred, however, except the breaking of a pane of glass, and a few hair breadth escapes from cut heads and faces. Whiskey did it. It could not be truly said that any one party was wholly to blame, nor could it be said to be party work—just whiskey.

OKA.—They have fresh troubles at Oka. Two Indians who had no wood went out to cut some, but on their way home were seized by three of the Cure's right hand men, and although it was raining at the time, and one of the Indians had no coat on, he was dragged 20 miles and lodged in jail without being permitted to get his coat or see his wife. The excitement there has been intense for a week, the Protestant Indians being harrassed to an alarming extent, and they in turn resenting, and it is said have burned a Conventual establishment. Several persons left Montreal to see that the Indians were not unduly ill-treated It is time the powers that be would put a stop to the Oka outrages by compelling both parties to desist until the legal ownership of the property be established

HURON & QUEBEC RALWAY.—A meeting of the Directors of this road was held in the Hoffman House on Tuesday evening A deputation from Lennox and Addington was also present, consisting of Messrs W. J Webster, Newboro; W H Fredenburgh, Westport; R. Sherrick, M P. P., Merrickville; R W. Beecher, Toledo; J. R. Dargavil, Elgin; and C. H. Marsh, Reeve of Merrickville. The object of the deputations to was induce the directors to take the road a little further South through Lennox and Addington than was talked of, and offering to give a bonus of $200,000 to the road on this condition. The directors promised the proposition careful consideration. The bonus is a good one. The section of the country is rich and level and likely to afford advantages to the road when built SCHUETER.—The Lindsay Board of School Trustees intend erecting a School House next summer, and they are determined that it shall be unique in its way A correspondent of the Post selects the following terms from the specifications —"Comarecs a cartello ;" "cimarecto caretto;" "scroters;" "celestial and terrestial parts of a school house ;" and a part is to consist of "carbel brackets;" "carrying cave projections, with a "cavilicall, cima-resta and cima-reversa in combination scrotors." And adds.—Now, sir, I would like to know what all this means. To which the editor replies:—We must refer our correspondent to the School Board, who, no doubt, know all about it.

As the thing must be some kind of an animal the Board should send a specimen when they get it, to our B. A. If it turns out to be the weevil or anything of that kind he can tell them. If the creature can be measured it can be done here by rule.

LAMENTABLE BEREAVMENT.—On Monday evening, 13th inst. Mr Wm. Hanbidge of Otonabee, and family left home to join a donation party who were about to wait on the Rev. Mr Gordon, leaving at home the youngest son James, and a boy who lives with Mr. Hanbidge. His son during the evening drew up a sofa near the stove and went to sleep. He awoke about ten o'clock, told the boy to put on a good fire, that he was going out but would be in in a short time. When Mr. Hanbidge returned, there was general wonder where the young man had gone, and search was made, but to no avail. In the search they discovered tracks, and following them found they led the river. In the morning fuller search was made, when his hat was found near where his tracks were seen on the ice, and the lately formed ice appeared as if something falling had broken it. The nicest search was made during that day and succeeding day but without success. A boom and nets have been stretched across the river lower down, with a view of preventing the body if in the river getting away to the lake. No reason can be assigned for this melancholy act, as it is generally believed he is drowned. He was a young man of about 25, of a very quiet disposition, very much esteemed by his family and all who knew him and his sorrowing father and family have the heartfelt sympathy of all who know them. in this sad bereavement. The body has not been found as we go to press.

Methodist Missionary Lost in the North West.

REV. GEORGE MACDOUGALL LOST IN THE SNOW.

From the Ottawa Free Press, March 13.

On his return from Church, yesterday noon, Hon. Mr. Ferrier, of Montreal, found a letter from Mr. Anthrobus, a member of the North-West Police Force, laying on his table The following was its contents;

ADW RIVER, 1st February, 1876.

Hon James Ferrier; Montreal.

SIR.—By this mail I forward a letter from the Rev. Mr. McDougall, whose mission is on this River, about 40 miles from here. I write to inform you of his loss. A week ago, yesterday, he was coming to this post, so as to be here for the purpose of holding service on Sunday last. On Monday night he left his two sons, who were accompanying him down, saying "I will ride on to camp."

When the sons arrived at the place which they intended occupying for the night, he was not there, nor did he arrive that night. Thinking he had got lost during the night and strayed toward Moleyville (his mission), one of his sons rode back, but found he had not been there. They then came down to this post. A number of us (Mounted Policemen) went out with them to look for him, but without success. He has not since been seen or herd of.

During last week the weather was very cold and stormy so a greatly fear his body will not be found until spring. That he is lost there cannot be the slighest doubt, as no man could not remain out even two of the stormy nights such as we had last week without perishing, and it is now nine days since he was last seen. His horse was found without either saddle or bridle. His loss I know, will be deeply mourned in Canada, where he was so well known, but by none more than we who, although we have only known him personally a short time have learned to respect him, not only as a clergyman, but as a man who has given up the pleasures of civilization, and the society of many friend, for the sake of propagating the Gospel in the Indian country. I did not know exactly whether to send his letter down since the above occured, but as he told me it was something in connection with the Sunday Scholl work, I sent it by the first opportunity.

I remain, Sir, your old't serv't,

W. T. ANTROBUS, N. W. M. H.

The above letter was read before the congregation of the Dominion Methodist Church, be Rev. W. J. Hunter, the pastor, last evening, and produced a deep impression. It is only one year ago since Mr. Macdougall was here, and preached missionary sermons in the old Metcalfe street church At that time he made a tour of the Maritime Provinces, in company with Mr. John Macdonald, M. P., and Rev. Alexander Sutherland, and everywhere was warmly received.

It is about fourteen years ago since he was sent out by the Canadian Conference to labor among the Indians in the North-west, and his labors have certainly been crowned with success. It has often been said that there was not an Indian who would harm George Macdougall—not one, in fact, who would not die for him. His power over the aboriginal tribes is instanced by the fact that he was employed by the Canadian Government to treat with the Crees, Blackfeet, and other tribes. To his influence, perhaps, more than any other man's the Government are indebted for the peaceable condition of the Indian tribes The hope has been expressed in some quarters that he may yet be found, but there seems no probability of such a desirable event. Already the news of his loss has been corroborated by a telegram received by hon. Mr. Laird, the Minister of the Interior. It is probable that he has been lost in the storm, and it is possible that his body may never be found. Accompanying the letter sent to Hon. Mr. Ferrier were two notes from Mr Macdougall, giving an account of the work of his mission at Morleyville. Mr Macdougall was about sixty years of age, and has one son engaged as a missionary among the Blackfeet

A vote on the liquor question recently obtained by the temperance societies from the large cities of Ireland—namely Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Waterford, and Limerick—resulted in 69,270 temperance votes ont of 78,185 being unfavourable to the movement.

Catarrh is a common disease—so common that suffering, spitting, and blowing of the nose, met us at every turn on the street. Your foot slips in these nasty discharges on the sidewalk and in the public conveyance; and its disagreeable odor, contaminating the breath of the afflicted, renders them offensive to their assocites. There is the highest medical authority for stating that with fully one half, if not two thirds, of those afflicted with Consumption of the Lungs, the disease commences as Catarrh in the nose or head, the next step being to the throat and bronchial tubes—lastly to the lungs. How important then to give early and prompt attention to the system by using Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which tones it up, cleanses the blood, and heals the diseased glands by a specific influence upon them; and to assist, use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche. This is the only way to reach the upper and back cavities where the discharge comes from. No danger from this treatment, and 'tis pleasant to use. The two medicines with instrument are sold by dealers in medicines.

Complimentary lines to Mr. KENNEDY the Scottish Vocalist on the receipt of a Book he presented to me as a small token of respect for the few lines I addressed to him, as a "Welcome" on his late visit to Peterborough.

I'm content-as you have sent it,
Shall I tell what it might be?
Just one book sir—it's the book sir
You with thanks have sent to me.

Charlie got it, and he smote it
With the palm of his right hand,
And he jump-et and he thump-et
Saying, "Bill man that is grand."

Sir, I took it, and I look-et
On the front handwriting shine;
Brackets date it as you wrote it—
Side by side, your name and mine.

Sir, thanks for it! I adore it
Though its value small may be;
'Tis the honor and the donor
Gives it priceless worth to me.

Few exceed it! as I read it
You are present in my mind;
Each song in it you can sing it
With the Scotish tongue combined.

"Love united, friendship plighted,"
By those simple lines I wrote,
I'm rewarded, you forwarded,
All I wished for you have got.

We are parted, but true-hearted
Let our friendship be the same;
In this book sir, I can look sir
On the Scottish Vocalist's name.

Friends may use it, don't abuse it,
Don't those signatures deface;
'Tis a token—silent spoken,
Time nor absence can't deface.

Time may wear it, hands may tear it.
Thieves may rob me of my prize;
Love to giver ne'er shall sever
Until death shall break the ties.

Yes, you gave it! I shall save it
As an heir-loom it shall be,
And believe it, I shall leave it
To my children when I die.

WILLIAM TELFORD.

Smith, March 17th, 1876.

PEOPLE WILL TALK.

You may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow,
If you listen to all that is said as you go;
You'll be worried, and fretted, and kept in a stew,
For meddlesome tongues will have something to do.
For people will talk.

If quiet and modest you'll have it presumed
That your humble position is only assumed;
But you're a "mill in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool,
But don't get excited, keep perfectly cool,
For people will talk.

If generous and noble, they'll vent out their spleen,
You'll hear some loud hints that you're selfish and mean;
If upright, honest, and fair as the day,
They'll call you a rogue, in a sly, sneaking way,
For people will talk.

And then if you show the least boldness of heart,
Or a slight inclination to take your own part,
They will call you an upstart, conceited and vain,
But keep straight ahead, don't stop to explain,
For people will talk.

If threadbare we or dress, or old-fashioned your hat,
Some one will surely taunt some of that,
And hint rather strong that you can't pay your way
But don't get excited, whatever they say,
For people will talk.

If, you dress in the fashion don't think to escape,
For they criticise them in a different shape;
You're ahead of your means, or your tailor's unpaid;
But mind your own business, there's naught to be made,
For people will talk.

Now the best way to do is to do as you please,
For your mind. If you have one, will then be at ease;
Of course you will meet with all sorts of abuse,
But don't think to stop them, it ain't any use.
For people will talk.

PEOPLE WILL TALK.

You may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow,
If you listen to all that is said as you go;
You'll be worried, and fretted, and kept in a stew,
For meddlesome tongues will have something to do.
For people will talk.

If quiet and modest you'll have it presumed
That your humble position is only assumed;
But you're a 'mill in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool,
But don't get excited, keep perfectly cool,
For people will talk.

If generous and noble, they'll vent out their spleen,
You'll hear some loud hints that you're selfish and mean;
If upright, honest, and fair as the day,
They'll call you a rogue, in a sly, sneaking way,
For people will talk.

And then if you show the least boldness of heart,
Or a slight inclination to take your own part,
They will call you an upstart, conceited and vain,
But keep straight ahead, don't stop to explain,
For people will talk.

If threadbare we or dress, or old-fashioned your hat,
Some one will surely taunt some of that,
And hint rather strong that you can't pay your way
But don't get excited, whatever they say,
For people will talk.

If, you dress in the fashion don't think to escape,
For they criticise them in a different shape;
You're ahead of your means, or your tailor's unpaid;
But mind your own business, there's naught to be made,
For people will talk.

Now the best way to do is to do as you please,
For your mind. If you have one, will then be at ease;
Of course you will meet with all sorts of abuse,
But don't think to stop them, it ain't any use.
For people will talk.

WHICH SHALL IT BE.

(A rich man who had no children proposed to his poor neighbour, who had seven, to take one of them, and promised, if the parents would consent, that he would give them property enough to make themselves and their other six children comfortable for life.)

Which shall it be? Which shall it be?
I looked at John, John looked at me,
And when I found that I must speak
My voice seemed strangely low and weak:
"Tell me again what Robert said:"
And then I listening, bent my head—
This is his letter.

"I will give
A house and land while you shall live,
If, in return from out your seven,
One child to me for aye is given,
I looked at John's old garments worn:
I thought of all that he had borne
Which I, though willing, could not share;
I thought of seven young mouths to feed,
Of seven little children's need.
And then of this.

"Come John," said I,
"We'll choose among them as they lie
Asleep." So; walking hand in hand,
Dear John and I surveyed our band;
First to the cradle lightly stepped
Where Lilian, the baby slept.
Softly the father stooped to lay
His rough hand down in a loving way,
When dream or whisper made her stir.
And huskily he said—"Not her!"

We stooped beside the trundle bed,
And one long ray of lamplight shed
Athwart the boyish faces there,
In sleep so beautiful and fair.
I saw on James' rough red cheek
A tear unshed. Ere John could speak
"He's but a baby too," said I,
And kissed him as we hurried by
Pale, patient, Robbie's angel face
Still in his sleep, bore suffering's trace,
"No, for a thousand crowns not him" he whispered while our eyes were dim.

Poor Dick! bad Dick! our wayward son—
Turbulent, idle, restless one—
Could he be spared? Nay, He who gave
Bade us befriend him to the grave;
Only a mother's heart could be Patient enough for such as he;
And so, said John "I would not dare
To take him from her bedside prayer."

Then stole we softly up above,
And knelt by Mary, child of love.
"Perhaps for her 'twould better be."
I said to John. Quite silently
He lifted up a curl that lay
Across her cheek in a wilful way,
And shook his head—"Nay, love, not then."
The while my heart beat audibly.

Only one more, our eldest lad,
Trusty and truthful, good and glad,
So like his father. "No, John, no!
I cannot, will not let him go."
And so we wrote in a courteous way,
We could not give one child away;
And afterward toil lighter seemed,
Thinking of that of which we dreamed,
Happy in truth that not one face
Was missed from its accustomed place
Thankful to work for all the seven,
Trusting the rest to One in heaven.

A Catholic View of Divorce.

Before the Reformation that law of Christ, which commands us not to annul the marriage vow under any pretext, was universally obeyed. Since then it has been the other way, and in this country divorce has become so shockingly frequent that it is almost a habit with us, and one which exposes Protestant Americans to the derision and contempt of Catholic communities. Many have endeavored to prove that the persistent attitude of the church against divorce is cruel and unjust. But those who think deeply will at once see the wisdom of God in this stern position taken up by the church in the presence of an evil so great and so injurious to the interests of humanity. Marriage, in the eyes of the church, is more than a mere contract for worldly and sensual interests. It is a sacrement, and as such binds those who receive it to live christian lives and to practice those virtues which elevate the Christain above the pagan. Both parties must live chaste and orderly lives. The wife is to obey the husband, and the husband to honor the wife. If the married pair carefully obey the laws of the church there will be no need of their being divored, for both are bound by the solemn vows to do their best toward promoting their mutual welfare and that of their children. This being the intention of Catholic marriage, it is manifest that divorce is desired by such only as marry with pagan or heathenish views of the holy estate of matrimony. In short, divorce among nominal Christians is so essentially Protestant institution, and it it is painful to live in lands where it is practiced on account of the terrible scandals to which it gives rise. Yesterday we heard of a man who died and whose will is disputed by five women to whom he had been married at vrious times and from four of whom he has been divorced. By each of these women he had a family of children who have had no fatherly care and whose notions of morality must be of the loosest kind. To-day we hear of a man and his wife who met at a hotel breakfast table the parties from whom they had been divorced eight years before. Ludicrous as was this meeting it had its tragic side, for one of the women asked the other what had become of her little daughter, and then learned for the first time, from the person who had filled her place, that the child she abandoned was dead. Wise is the church in not granting divorces. Let those who marry approach the altar in proper spirit and they will not need to be divorced in after years. The true catholic husband never wants to be divorced from his pure Catholic wife. It is her duty to bear with his faults and help him to overcome them; it is his to help her to correct hers. In riches and poverty, in sickness and in health, they are united until deathparts them. The evil consequences of divorce which the church so fully understood when she prohibited that institution are obvious. In the first place, it facilitates licentiousness; in the second, it destroys family unity; and in the third, the moral and physic sufferings of the children of a divorced pair can be better imagined than described. If they are allowed by the law to accompany their mother, they suffer from that vague feeling of distrust with which society treats a woman who is divorced: they are deprived of a father's love and tenderness and are exposed to the peril of having a stepfather who would prefer their room to their company. If they remain with their father, they are utterly without the care of a mother, and are in nine cases out of ten taught to treat their memory with contempt. If the father remarries their state is still more pitiable, for they will then be under the control of a woman of little or no delicacy, for unquestionably a delicate and sensitive woman will never consent to marry a man whose wife is still living. These are but a few of the many evils occasioned by divorce, and it is clearly evident that it is the most unchristianlike institution and utterly incompatible with Catholicity.—Catholic Review.

—A clergyman and one one of his elderly parishoners were walking on the ice one day, when the old man slipped and fell. "Ah!" shouted the clergyman, "the wicked shall stand on slippery places." The old gentleman looked at the parson a moment, and said: "I see they do, but I can't.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

HOW TO GET RID OF HOUSEHOLD PESTS.

A correspondent of the Scientific American says:

I have not seen a bedbug or a flea in my house for many years. If any army of them were to be brought in, mercury would speedily exterminate them; but I think cleanliness the best and perhaps the only preventive. The common house-fly I do not molest, being that it more than compensates for its trouble by clearing the atmosphere of effluvia and the animalcules which always arise from the putrefaction of decaying substances during warm weather.

So also with the birds, which are quite numerous here during the summer. Instead of shooting them, or setting up scarecrows to frighten them away, I throw out every possible inducement for them to build their nests in my fruit trees. The birds capture a large share of the insects in the larva state, and thus the millers are prevented from deposition eggs for future worms. As to the loss of fruit by the birds, the latter are always sure to be on hand in force in the season of ripe fruit, whether they come early to take the worms or not.

For the residue of insects which infest my vegetable garden, I find that the laboratory of the chemist furnishes fatal to them all, among which white hellebore and cayenne pepper are of the most utility. The bug or worm which comnot find vegetation unflavored with these articles will seek its breakfast elsewhere and leave a garden unmolested.

A few drops of carbolic acid in a pint of water will clean house-plants from lice in a very short time. If mosquitos or other blood suckers infect our sleeping rooms at night, we uncork a bottle of penny royal, and these insects leave in great haste, nor will they return so long as the air in the room is loaded with the fume of that aromatic herb. If rats enter the cellar, a little powdered potash thrown into their holes, or mixed with meal and scattered in their runaways, never fails to drive them away.

Cayenne pepper will keep the butter and storeroom free from ants and cockroaches. If a mouse makes an entrance into any part of your dwelling, saturate a rag with cayenne in solution and stuff it into a hole, which can be repaired with either wood or mortar. No rat or mouse will eat that rag for the purpose of opening communication with the depot of supplies.

TOP DRESSING MEADOWS.—The result of a single top-dressing on eight plots of nearly half an acre each of sandy warm soil of our State Agricultural College Farm exhibited the following facts at the end of three years. The top-dressing was applied in 1894, and the grass was cut twice each season in 1864 and 1865 and once in 1866. The produce of each cutting and of each lot was weighed separately and a perfect record kept. The results for the four seasons were as follows; On the plot to which on manure or fertilizer was applied the total weight of hay yielded per acre was 8,740 pounds. Where two bushels of plaster per acre was applied the yield per acre was 13,226 pounds, a gain of 4,484 pounds. Where five bushels of wood ashes were applied the yield per acre was 12,907 pounds, a grain of 4,195 pounds. Where three bushels of salt was sown per acre, the yield was 13 696, pounds, a gain per acre of 5,227 pounds. Where 20 loads of muck per acre was laid on, the yield per acre was 13,816 pounds, a gain of 5,074 pounds. When twenty loads of horse manure was laid on the yield was 14,586 pounds, a gain of 6,225 pounds. These results which indicate that there are fertilizers which will produce as good results as plaster For instance, the plaster yielded a gain of fifty-one per cent, while the horse-manure gave an increase of seventy-one per cent., or nearly a ton more grass per acre in the three years.—Michigan Farmer.

EXASPERATING.—To show anew that truth may be stranger than fiction, the Chicago Tribune tells this story:—"A remarkable occurrence took place last week on Wood street. A humble cottage on that street is tenanted by a young couple who last year made their bridal tour to California, Oregon and Washington Territory. While engaged in salmon fishing on one of the rivers, the bridegroom was so unfortunate as to drop into its current a valuable diamond ring belonging to his wife. The loss of the gem was, of course, mourned, but after a while the incident was forgotten, till last Thursday evening, when the young husband, returning late one night from taking stock, discovered that his wife had prepared for his supper a can of salmon. Taking it up he looked carelessly at the label and said: "Why, Marion, this salmon was put up at that very place where I lost your ring last summer. Wouldn't it be odd if a salmon had swallowed it, and been caught and canned at that very factory and put into this very can, and we should find the ring in it?" His wife answered him jestingly, but he said, "I don't know how to account for it, but I have a sort of presentment that I shall find the ring in some such romantic manner." She had said, "Don't be a goose, Gus," when hereye caught the glitter of something metallic in the can, and she fairly screamed, "Goodness gracious me, what's that?" Her husband, who was scarcely less excited than herself, removed the foreign substance with a fork, when what was his surprise to discover that it was indeed a big lump of solder that in soldering the can had fallen into its contents."

THE late Rev. Dr. Wightman, sitting later than usual one night, sank into the profoundities of a great folio tome, imagined he heard a sound in the kitchen inconsistent with the quite and security of a mouse, and so, taking his candle he proceeded to investigate the cause. His foot being heard in the lobby, the housekeeper began with all earnestness to cover the fire as if preparing for bed. "Ye're up late to-night Mary." "I'm jist rakin' the fire sir, and gaun to bou.' "That's right Mary; I like Timorous hours." On his way back to the study he passed the coal closet, and turning the key took it with him. Next morning at an early hour, there was a rap at his bedroom door, and a request for the key, to put a fire on. "Ye're too soon up, Mary; go back to bed." Half an hour later there was an other knock, and a similar request, in order to prepare for breakfast. "I don't want breakfast so soon, Mary: go back to your bed." Another half hour and and another knock, with an entreaty for the key, as it was washing day. This was enough. He arose and handed out the key, saying: "Go and let the man out." Mary's sweetheart had been imprisoned all night in the coal closet, as the minister shrewdly suspected, where, Pyramis and Thisbe like, they had breathed their love tarough the key-hole.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL. PURE. H. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA. VINEGAR BITTERS

Oriental Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no [illegible] is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic. [illegible] ever before so [illegible] adopted into use in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy, than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular actions to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued for some time, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

As occasional doses stimulate the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, and even Incipient Consumption, is the most effective remedy known to man, or beast, for the cure of which it has been tried. Its wonderful cures of pulmonic complaints, in every section of the country, are known to almost every man, woman and child in the community, and the public need not be told that it is the best antidote for the diseases of the throat and lungs that has ever been discovered. Although mild to operate, it is the most powerful remedy that can be used for the relief and cure of all pulmonary complaints, and will be found to break up the most distressing cough in a single night, when taken according to directions. Keep it by you, and when you feel the first symptoms of a cold, or hear your children hoarse or coughing, give them the Cherry Pectoral at once, and stop the disease while you can. Don't wait till the lungs are hopelessly involved, but check the cough, and heal the inflammation, before it is too late. Consumption always seems incurable to the patient himself, because the insidious nature of the disease fastens upon the vital organs before the victim realizes that the lungs are in danger. Nine-tenths of those who die of consumption might have been cured, if they had only known in time that Cherry Pectoral was the remedy they required. No one who has ever given this medicine a fair trial for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Asthma, Pains in the Chest and Lungs, or any affection of the Throat, Lungs, or Liver, can doubt its power to cure them. Consumptives may rely upon it as the best remedy that can be obtained, and the only one that will cure them, if cure is possible. Public speakers and singers will find it invaluable for clearing and strengthening the voice. Clergymen, who have overtaxed their lungs in preaching, will find speedy relief by its use. Many singers and public speakers have been restored to health and usefulness by the timely use of this remedy. Asthma is always relieved, and often cured, by it. Bronchitis is generally cured by it. Cherry Pectoral is not a new and untried remedy, but has been tested for years, and so generally are its virtues known, that we need not publish them here. It is the most reliable, speedy and effectual remedy for all pulmonary complaints that is obtainable, and may be relied on to do all that is claimed for it. Keep it in your house, and use it when you need it, and you will not be disappointed in the result. Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical Chemists, LOWELL, MASS. Sold by all Druggists everywhere.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Ague, and indeed all the diseases which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As a preventive, this Cure is of immense value. By preventing the accession of periodicity, it in many cases wards off completely the supervention of Fever and Ague, Bilious Remittent, and Congestive Fevers, Dumbness, Blindness, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Tic Doloureux. Those who live in districts where the above complaints are endemic, should not fail to keep this Antidote constantly at hand, that they may be enabled to counteract the first insidious approach of the disease. Travellers, by sea or land, should be provided with it, as it is the best protection against change of climate, water, food, or exposure to unwholesome influences. Every one who has once used it, knows that it cures, and that it is the cheapest medicine that can be purchased, as it is the most certain. Why suffer from Chills, when a few doses will cure you? Why have Fever and Ague, when you can get this remedy to cure it? Why be tortured with Neuralgia, when this will relieve you? Why have Rheumatism, when this will expel it from the system? Why have Bilious Fever, when this will prevent it? Why have Dumbness, Blindness, or Deafness, when this will restore you? Why have Tic Doloureux, when this will cure you? A BRAVE BOY.

A TRUE STORY.

A little white farm-house stands all alone on one of the Berkshire Hills in Massachusetts. It is built upon the edge of a wood, so that the barn and all the fields are on the other side of the road in front of the house. Here lived Farmer Scott, his wife, their pretty daughter Hattie, and Ben, their son, who was twelve years of age, and a very handsome boy in spite of freckles, sunburn, and never ending scratches on his face and hands; for his eyes shone large and bright, with an honest, fearless look, and his well-shaped mouth disclosed teeth so white and even that it was quite delightful to see him laugh.

Ben wore neither stockings nor shoes in summer, and except on Sunday, with regard to his clothes, he was a perfect ragamuffin. His father was a hard-fisted farmer, who meant that Ben should earn his own living, and had no intention of wasting good clothes upon him every day until he could earn enough to pay for them. So Ben drove the oxen, crying, "Whoa! haw, there!" for hours together, and he went after the cows and helped to milk them. He caught the old gray horse when he chose to kick up his heels, and race wildly around the field, preferring to eat clover to plowing up the ten acre lot. And Ben helped bind up the thistly wheat, and get in the hay, and the harvesting of the corn and oats, and worked as hard as anybody on threshing days. And in the winter he went to school, and chopped wood in the early mornings and late afternoons, and helped to kill the pigs, which last was such horrible work that the supper of delicious tenderloins hardly paid for it; and all this he did so cheerfully and steadily that at last even his father admitted that he had earned a suit of "store clothes," while his mother and Hattie, who loved him dearly, had thought so for a long time.

So one happy afternoon, early in October, Ben arrived himself in his well worn, home-made Sunday clothes, which had been pieced down in the legs of the trousers and sleeves of the jackets more than once. They were to become an every-day suit as soon as the "store clothes" were finished, and he was going this afternoon through the woods to the village, four miles away, to be measured by the tailor, to whom his father had given him an order.

"But look here mother," said Ben, I ought to have new boots, too, oughtn't I? My Sunday boots are going to split very soon.

"Yes, my lad, and here's the money to buy them," and she took down the old cracked tea-pot in which she kept her own private egg and butter money and took three dollars out of it. "Mind Ben," she said, "to buy a stout double-soled pair, with plenty of squeak in 'em and here are ten cents besides for peanuts, and sure you are back by sundown."

Ben thanked his mother, giving her a hearty kiss, and started off barefooted and as happy as a bird in spring. He went whistling through the woods, stopping sometimes to eat chokerberries or chew birch bark. He chased a little chipmunk up into a tree, and carefully avoided stepping upon a big spider, because old Miss Lucindy Tuckey said if you killed one it was sure to bring rain. He took out his jack-knife and cut down a sapling, and carved his name on the side of it, and at last he arrived at the village four miles away.

Ben soon reached the tailor's shop. He found him with his back to the door, sitting on the counter cross-legged like a Turk, stitching on a coat, and keeping time with his needle to such a funny old song that the boy crouched down on the door step to listen. The last line of every verse was repeated and bawled out in a long, slow way, and then the needle gave slow, solemn flourishes in the air, only to go on much faster at the next verse. This is the song:

In good old colony times,
When we lived under the King,
Three regular things fell into rhythm
Because they could not clash—
Because they could not clash!

The one he was a miller,
The other he was a weaver.
And the other he was a little tailor,
And three great rogues together!
And—three—great—rogues—together!

The miller he stole wheat,
And the weaver he stole yarn.
And the little tailor he stole broadcloth,
To keep those three rogues warm,
To—keep—those—three—rogues—warm!

The miller—was drowned in his dam!
And the weaver—was hung in his yarn!
And the Sheriff clapped his claw on the little tailor,
With the broadcloth under his arm!
With—the—broadcloth—under—his—arm!

And the tailor in making an extra flourish, kicked the scissors off the counter, and, jumping down to get it, he copied Ben with his hands over his mouth bursting with laughter. "Hallo! he cried, who'd a thought of seeing you my fine Scott! Come in, and tell all you know. How's your pretty sister?"

The tailor was dreadfully in love with Hattie, as there was a great deal of talking to do before Ben's measure was taken. "I'll make you a tip-top fit, Ben," he said, "you'll cut a greater dash than old Deacon Button, for whom I am just finishing this coat," which speech caused the boy to shake his curly head and laugh, for Deacon Button was a grandfather, and had a bald head as white and smooth as a billiard ball.

After Ben had been measured, and had promised to take the tailor's kind regards to his sister, he went to the store to get his boots. Of course you all know that a village store is a sort of omnium gatherum, where calicoes and cod-fish, mackerel and muslins, boots, butter, blacking, sugar, silk, soap peanuts, pails, tea, tea-cups, and everything else is, or ought to be, for sale. Here the dapper clerk fitted Ben with a famous pair of boots, that almost screamed, they squeaked so loud, and advised him to wear them home, so's to limber 'em," he said, which seemed to be each capital advice that after buying the peanuts Ben, or rather his boots, screamed out of the store like a pair of hoarse, quarrelling old katydids.

Now, all this buying and measuring and talking had taken a great deal of time, and it was late in the afternoon when Ben entered the wood for his four mile walk home. He knew every step of the way, besides which there was a narrow footpath which went straight through from one end to the other, and the boy would not have minded its growing dark so rapidly if he had not promised his mother that he would be home by sundown. So the good little fellow hurried on and on, while the sun sank low behind the grand Berkshire hills, and in a little while more buds that part of the world good-night. Outside of the wood it was still light, for gold and crimson clouds were sailing across the sky, but before long Ben could not see the end of his own nose, and soon all sorts of queer sounds came to keep company with the quarrelling old katydids in his boots. The coons scuttled past him into the thickets; the bats whizzed to and fro; and a great goggle-eyed owl sat in the fork of a tree and cried, "tu whit! tu whoo!" at Ben as he hurried along. But never a bit did he care for any of them. They were all old acquaintances, and he just kept his hands in his pockets and walked on fast as he could, whistling "We'll rally round the flag, boys!" to cheer him on his way.

At last through a long vista in the trees, Ben caught a gleam of light. He gave a glad hurra, for he knew that it was a candle which his kind mother had lighted for him and placed in a window of the farm house. "Almost home!" he joyfully shouted, when he stepped upon something soft, yielding, wriggling. A strangled hiss—a sharp quick, angry rattle! The boy's face turned to an ashen white, and his heart alm

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 30, 1876.

WHAT A FUSS

During the days of the Pacific Scandal and Tory rule at Ottawa, there was no reform paper at the capital and hence no means of reaching the ears of the people. The Hon. Malcolm Cameron felt that this was to be deplored, and to remedy it, he found the then proprietors of the Ottawa Times were desirous of selling out, and Mr. Cameron after consulting with a few of his friends bought the office presses, plant and all, and secured the services of men in support of his party to run it. It now appears that Mr. Cameron has not been fully reimbursed for the money he paid out, and lately he addressed a circular to that effect to his reform friends, to come forward and assist him. This circular has fallen into the hands of some conservatives and they are making a great howl over it.

But what is wrong in it? Mr. Cameron bribed no one, he subsidized no newspaper, he corrupted no one, he merely bought a newspaper office, and used it as he saw best, in the interest of what he believed to be sound political principals. It is certainly wrong in those friends who promised to help to pay the money not to fulfil their agreement, and since they failed to do so, he has done nothing wrong in reminding them of broken promises. There can be nothing wrong in this then what is the fuss about?

The conservatives did just the same thing. They started the Mail newspaper to checkmate the Globe. They subscribed $240,000, but have paid only $102,000 of that amount. The consequence is that the Mail is not on a satisfactory financial basis. But the conservatives instead of appealing to their conservative friends to pay up, apply to parliament to grant them special legislation, and they will get it. Now wherein do the cases differ? Merely in this, Mr Cameron supplied the money lacking, to buy the Ottawa Times, plant, &c., while the conservatives subscribed the amount necessary to run the Mail to date, although the discussion in parliament shows that the Mail Company is in debt.

As to Mr. Cameron spending money on his elections, it is well known that every candidate, under Sir John's regime had to spend money, either his own or some other man's. But Mr. Cameron and his friends have succeeded in doing away with this spending of money, and it ill becomes men who sought to continue this corruption, the heroes of another $10,000, to refer to money spending, except with bitter sorrow for their own short comings.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS

Under the new License Law Messrs John Hull, Lakefield, John McClelland, Jeweller, and A. Smith, of Boyd Smith & Co., of Peterborough, have been appointed Commissioners, and Mr. John Ritchie, Inspector for the West Riding of this County.

It was generally believed for a time that Mr. Pentland, would have been one of the Commissioners, but some of our citizens thought it would be too much in the interest of the Temperance cause to have him on the Commission, and advised that of Mr. A. Smith, instead. Mr. Pentland, is a faithful Temperance man, possessed of good common sense, and would have been a good Commissioner, but so will Mr. Smith, only that he is not a warm-hearted friend of Temperance. Mr. Hull, is a Teetotler and a good business man, and his name is well received by all persons. Mr. McClelland, is not a pledged Temperance man, and may, although we cannot say, does take a little liquor for his stomachs sake. He however is a good man, a conservative, liberal and a fair representative on the Commission. There are no two opinions in reference to Mr. Ritchie, he will make a faithful and officiene Inspector.

The East Riding presents more difficulties in making the appointments. There have been no less than ten applicants for the Inspectorship. The difficulty is to make the selection, and no wonder, when all are good men and well recommended by their respective friends, but the result must soon be known.

We have now in the hands of the Commissioners, the whole question of the Liquor traffic. The government have chosen some of the best men of County and Riding. The number of Licensed houses will be very much diminished, especially in Towns and cities, and it will remain with the Commissioners and Inspectors to see that the law shall be respected. There will be a difficulty for some time to prevent the illicit and illegal traffic in the lowest places in the suburbs of our Towns and some country places. We trust however, that the work will be done in the cause of morality, and that all who receive Licences will be compelled to respect the law in its entirety.

Respectable men will now see the propriety of maintaining respectable houses. In the past when drunken fellows were seen round our streets, the saloons got the blame of making them drunk. There will be no saloons after the first of May, and if drunkards then exist, there will be no difficulty in determining how they got their Liquor.

The question was lately put to us by an honest and candid farmer, viz: are the shops still sell by the glass? We leave the question unanswered, and let our readers draw their own conclusions, as to the practice in the past, at least in some places.

The appointment of commissioners and Inspectors being now independent of the popular vote, more will be expected of them, and for our own part we intend to keep a watchful eye over them in the interest of Temperance, as we believe this law is in the interest of morality, and not in that of tavern keepers, finances or politics.

LAW IS LAW.

Councillor Rutherford has got the Town Council into a fix—and now the question is how to get out of it. He rushed into that contract with Messrs. Croly & Curtis, and it appears that the whole thing is illegal.

The opinion of Messrs. Scott & Edwards was read in council on Monday evening, and they plainly say that the Statutes forbid the expenditure of money by any council outside of the limits of their municipality unless to aid other municipalities. They further say that the council has no power to enter into a contract to erect a bridge or cut down a hill unless within the municipality.

Councillor Rutherford is the cause of all this trouble. He led the council astray by misrepresenting facts. Mr. Hopkins, said, on Monday evening, that he always understood that the $500 subscribed were to be paid to carry on the work, and that if he had known to the contrary he never would have voted to undertake it. This is the fact:—Councillor Rutherford led the council to believe that they would have no money to pay; that Ashburnham and Messrs. Croly & Curtis would find the funds, and that thus all would be well so far as grading the approaches were concerned. It was also represented by him that about $500 would do the work, but before it is completed it will cost little short of $1000 The plans indicate about 3,900 cubic yards of excavating. Then there will be filling in on both ends of the bridge and other extras.

This lack of knowledge on the part of several of the councillors caused them to be less watchful, and hence Mr. Rutherford stole a march on them, but now finds himself at a halt for lack of funds. Had he received no check he would have rushed headlong into ruinous jobs and reckless expenditures.

Who is to foot the Bill?

It was argued on Monday evening that the town must pay the piper, no matter how illegal the acts of the councillors This kind of law is a mere subterfuge to quiet public opinion until the work undertaken be completed and paid for, and then where will be the remedy?

If members of a Town Council act illegally they can be restrained and prosecuted, and it certainly does not require much legal acumen to enable any one to understand that they can be made bear the consequences of their illegal acts.—Such a lesson would teach others to be more careful in public matters, and not rush headlong into expenditures that the Statutes declare cannot be undertaken—legally—by them.

It is no pleasant matter to be compelled to watch some public men lest they rush into extravagance. It is not very flattering to our intelligence to have to acknowledge that the people have not unbounded confidence in the men they elected to the council. Yet this is the position the ratepayers of Peterboro' are in with regard to some of those who have hitherto stood fair before the people.—The Town Solicitors have been asked to devise some legal way out of the difficulties into which Mr. Rutherford has led them, and they have proposed applying to the Ashburnham Council to take the place of the town as principals, with the town being bound to assist the village, but the Ashburnham Council may say, not so, Mr. Spider, we shall not go into your parlor Let us suppose they may, and still pay no more than the $200 promised already, who will pay the $400 to $500 additional required? Mr. Rutherford will say the Town. Now if the town in any case must foot the bill, were is the difference our legal friends will say in making Ashburnham the principals, and the town assisting, while the town still pays the money for Ashburnham, will not. It be a nice legal point, and one much needed to relieve the Town Council. But the equity of it; what of that? Somewhat like the other matters—"The Court of Chancery might decide very differently from a Court of Law, on the matter."

The truth is the council has been overmatched by design; and perhaps the best way is to foot the bill, and watch design ing men better in the future If Messrs. Scott & Edwards' opinion, however, means anything, it means that the council cannot spend money outside the town limits, as they are essaying to do, and there can be no two opinions but the members of the council are responsible for illegal acts knowingly commenced and carried on.

AN OLD TRICK.

It is said that in Lower Canada there is a very wide divergence of opinion on political matters. The people or laity are liberal in their tendencies—the clergy Conservative. Bishop Bourget has given instruction to the priesthood to use all the terrors of the church to prevent the people supporting liberal candidates. Mr. Huntington and Sir A. T. Galt have raised their voices against clerical interference in political contests. Mr. Thos. White, of the Gazette, however, has published a pamphlet in which he decries the course pursued by Mr. Huntington and Sir A. T. Galt, and in it he tries to court popularity by defending ultramontanism, and condemning Protestant defence organization. This has given rise to Grip's Cartoon in which Mr. White is, sponge in hand, trying to wipe out the words, "No Popery." The following letter from the Montreal Witness will show how far Mr. White has gone, to misrepresent Protestantism with a view to make friendship with ultramontanism:

"HONEST AT LAST."

(To the Editor of the Gazette)

SIR,—As a Conservative in politics, I have observed with feelings of regret what seems to me a disposition in your editorial columns as well as in many of your selections, to throw cold water on any and every Protestant movement of Ultramontane involvement, while yet willing to feed the flame of Ultramontane fanaticism by such unfair and furnished charges against Protestant leaders and Protestant organizations as appear in your editorial of yesterday under the heading "Honest at Last." I do not thank you to represent the Protestant Conservatives, at least in our general manner of treating from a narrow party standpoint questions which agitate the whole world, and accumulations which are nowhere—except perhaps in Spain—more vigorously acted than in this Province of Quebec.

Sir, in all your editorial you a Witness, Mr A. T. Galt, and that respectable part of the community with them on this particular question desire to suppress our Roman friends and fellow-citizens of the communion enjoy—and all this on the strength of a letter written by a correspondent of former three thousand miles away—you not only do an injustice to the motives of the writer, but you fan the very flame which, in the case of the Rev. Mr. O'Reilly's lecture on Ireland, you recently sought so vigorously to quench, and you go a very long way for material. It is just upon unfounded insinuations that the Ultramontane press and fanatics thrive; and if you condemned imputative speeches on the spur of the moment at a time when the Protestant Church of Oka was demolished, upon what principle can you calmly sit down and pen paragraphs which if true, would suffice to raise the hate and resentment of Roman Catholics against us the ought least the least? What better food for fanaticism like that of the editor of the Witness than such rebuking as the following:—"Are we prepared to say that over one-third of the people of this Dominion, simply because they are lay Papists, are to be deprived of the franchise?" Now, sir, I defy you to point to one clause of the constitution of the Protestant Defence Alliance, which I enclose you, or to one paragraph of Mr Galt's pamphlet, or to one editorial of the Witness, from its first to its last number, or to one speech during the Oka excitement, to justify your insinuations that they look upon "Catholic emancipation as all a delusion," or that they wish to deny them the civil rights they themselves claim. There is a challenge. Meet it by something better than evasion, by facts if you can

If, as you think, there is danger to the State from the agitation of a portion of its loyal, respectable and influential citizens, who believe that the Roman Catholic Bishop of Montreal Father Braun, Judge Routhier, and a whole host of others mean what they say and who accordingly take measures to check their assumptions, how comes it that you can look with such indifference or complacency on the daily aggression of the Romish hierarchy in the Province—an aggression which is being openly presented, as it has been in every part of the world, by Roman Catholics themselves? If you are so anxious for their secular welfare why not agitate for the removal of impediments to their civil liberty, of which they themselves complain? And if you are honest in your desire to see harmony between Protestants and Roman Catholics, why shut your eyes to a movement which has been so oppressive to Roman Catholics in every Roman Catholic Country, and so dangerous to the prosperity of every Protestant State—I refer to the political assumptions of Rome that Roman Catholics themselves in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Austria, Prussia, Poland, Switzerland and Canada have been the first to resist, and Protestants the first to suffer? These are questions you cannot escape. They are asked in plain, straightforward English. Will you answer them as fairly?

W. G. B.

ST PATRICK'S DAY IN TORONTO

After a stirring address by Archbishop Lynch on the mission of the Irish people to spread the true faith throughout the universe. The Bishop then said:

"Young men before me, of Irish birth, will you promise that you shall never relax your efforts, nor let an opportunity pass of forwarding the spiritual and material interests of Ireland by word and deed till she be as free and as happy as Canada is in her religious institutions, in her education, and in her own self-government."

A Contemporary says:

"At this moment the Archbishop raised his hand, and banners in the sanctuary were raised, and the cathedral looked supremely grand as the vast congregation made the solemn protestation. With arm uplifted he begged of the women especially, to pray for the consummation of it, saying that an enslaved people could not spread the gospel as ably as freemen."

How Canadians are to aid in securing Home Rule for Ireland, while the Imperial Parliament and a powerful party in Ireland also are against it, is more than common mortals can comprehend. The freedom of Ireland as foreshadowed in the words of His Grace Archbishop Lynch means the "spread of the Gospel" as believed and taught by the Bishop's Church. If this be the view, and it appears to be, of His Grace, and that Home Rule is to be obtained for this purpose, his labors will be in vain and Ireland will remain as she is.

THE CALEDONIA MURDER

Our readers will remember the case of a brutal murder near Caledonia, in November last, that of a farmer named Abel Macdonald, on his way home from Hamilton, by two brothers named Young, who were idle, dissolute and dangerous characters.

They were tried at Cayuga last week and found guilty. Since receiving the sentence of death the Youngs have confessed their guilt and the justice of the sentence. It is sad to think, that in Canada where, if grog shops be shunned, no man need be in want, the unfortunate man was murdered for the paltry sum of $30. Macdonald took tea at the same table with the Youngs, at the hotel of one Murphy in Caledonia they chatted together. They saw him pay his bill and have some money left. They waylaid and murdered him in his waggon with a club they made before he came forward. The club they dropped in the waggon. The horses without a driver stopped in a farmer's yard on the way home. The Youngs were immediately suspected and are now awaiting the reward of their iniquity. The men are young, unmarried, at least but strange, one of their photos was found in the possession of a young woman with whom they had been flirting. The photos bore blood stains and this was corroborative proof of their guilt, although such men may have shed innocent blood previously. Their footprints also bore testimony against them, and now they will suffer the penalty. It will be found that the Youngs were frequenters of saloons and houses of ill fame. That they lived by crime and very likely gambling, and although not to any great extent, can it be hoped that their history and sad fate, may prove a warning to young men, whose habits lead them to idleness and drinking, the end of which so often is crime, prison and death. The Youngs cannot hope for a pardon.

OTTAWA LUMBER TRADE.—The Ottawa Citizen says:— We are informed that several buyers have been noticed in the market during the week both from south and east and prices have advanced one dollar per thousand on most grades. We have heard of one sale of five million feet, and several others for smaller quantities, but prices and, terms have not transpired There has been some enquiry for new cut on contract at considerable advance on last year's figures. Some parties have offered as much as $3 per thousand advance on last year's average.

THE Conservatives have achieved another great moral victory They have elected Mr. Dorion by acclamation to the Commons, from the mountains, the liberal candidate not daring to face the music against the Church's candidate. And what manner of man this Dorion is will be seen from the description of him given by a Quebec paper. He should sit for Lincoln, in the Ontario House, according to this account, as he smells Rankee then either Rykert or Burrie, and that is saying a good deal:

"We understand that a great glory is in preparation for the House. Mr. Dorion found guilty of forgery (sic) in the Criminal Court dismissed per good conduct from his employment in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary is about to be elected by acclamation for the County of Two Mountains, the Liberal Candidate believing it his duty to retire in view of the popularity of his rival. The party of good principles must be congratulated on this brilliant acquisition. To select or be pleased with such a candidate as a party well and given it a fresh title to public consideration—a fresh lustre. It will certainly be a great honor to present Mr. Dorion in the House. We shall see to which it will fall. We offer him our condolences in advance. There is in reality but one man quite worthy of pronouncing Mr. Dorion to the House, and that is Mr. Dorion himself."

Mr. BERTRAM'S SPEECH ON PROTECTION.

MR. BERTRAM said that if instead of adopting the advice of the hon. member for South Norfolk, to send for Sir Francis Hincks to take the place of the Minister of Finance, the Government were to send an invitation across the House, the hon. gentleman himself might consent to fill the honourable office. The hon. gentleman had spoken of the extraordinary shrinkage which had taken place in values, and had spoken of shrinkage as consisting of two kinds legitimate and illegitimate. He (Mr. Bertram) thought it would be a good thing for the House to know the opinion of the hon. gentleman as to the legitimacy or illegitimacy of the shrinkage which took place in the famous Governmental fall of 1873. The question to which the motion of the right hon. member for Kingston gave rise was one of great importance, and one which should be approached with very grave consideration indeed. The motion, if it meant anything, meant they should overturn the present system and adopt a protective tariff. It was well that they had the experience of the United States and England to guide them in the consideration of this subject. It would, however, be unwise for them in considering the present condition of the country to forget the differences of the condition existing in the three countries. It was well known that land in England was very dear in comparison with Canada, and that money was more plentiful and much cheaper than here. This gave a great advantage to farmers in Canada, and if they examined into the condition of Great Britain they would see she was passing through a crisis almost of the self-same kind as that which Canada had been subjected to.

There was nothing extraordinary in England being in its present condition; which was due, as had been the case frequently, to over production. In the United States, the circumstance were some what different—over-production being combined with an inflated currency and shrinkage in the value of real estate. The crisis commenced there about two and a half years ago, and though they boasted of immense recuperative power and resources, their position was still but slightly changed, while with us the effects were far less grave. We had prospered under our present system, and he did not care whether it was termed incidental protection or modified free-trade, as their was nothing in the mere name. It had given us an elastic revenue, and encouragement to our manufacturers. By this amendment, the right hon. gentleman sought to overturn what he and his friends had built up, acting the part of an iconoclast. If it passed the parties should change names, as the Government would represent the Conservative party of Canada.

The right hon. gentleman stated that we should all take an interest in Canadian manufacturers; this was quite right, but it was only one half of the truth. for we should also take a deep interest in every individual in the Dominion. The right hon. gentleman further said, that we should encourage, assist, and support our farmers in their needs; these were fine sentiments, which he was sure every hon. member would endorse; but fine words alone would not do. We were asked directly to exclude American produce from our market; and one reason given in this relation, was rather extraordinary, viz:—that at least it would do no harm. This was inconsequential; and what good would it do? Thus it was the advocates of such a policy to show the exclusion of Indian corn was urged on the ground that our farmers would then raise rye, to be used by our distillers. Apart from the question of the necessity of making whiskey at all, was it expedient that our wealth and labour should be employed in producing rye, when whisky could be made of corn with one half the labour? He thought not. It had been asserted that the farmers paid the present duty of 15cents per bushel on barley sent into the United States, but he believed that he could prove that it was paid by the Americans. He took wheat as a standard of value for farm products, its price was regulated by that which was obtained in Europe. We competed in this article with the United States in Liverpool; and it stood to reason that our farmers would grow barley if they could get more money for it than wheat. The actual facts were that Canada was yearly exporting a larger quantity of the former; and he considered this was the clearest possible proof that the farmers found it to their advantage to do so; therefore the Americans paid that duty themselves.

An article had been read to show that foreigners were replacing English goods in Great Britain, and that there free-traders would soon be demanding protection. This might be so; but one thing would surely happen when England changed her policy in this respect; when she only manufactured for her own consumption, she would rank with Spain in the world's estimation, and in a few years hence the proverbial New Zelander might be seen standing on London Bridge.—There was no doubt that a small quantity of Belgian iron had been imported into England, but this was due to the strikes and demands for increased wages in the latter country. If the English manufactures desired to keep the foreign trade in connection with certain articles, they should pay more attention to their designs, etc., for instance:—At present electro-plated ware was largely brought into the Dominion from the United States, whereas, not many years ago, it had been imported from England. And why? Because the British manufacturer kept in the old grooves, while the Americans had secured new designs and new metal.

One reason was as good as fifty, and he had given one why English manufactures were being superseded in particular classes by those of the United States.

The neighbouring country was par excellence one of protection, and what was the result of the system there? In the iron trade they were at this day millions of dollars worse than idle. When the Morrell tariff was first brought into operation it gave such an impetus to industries, and the profits of manufacturing were so enormous that numbers rushed into such employment. The result was where there was only one or two manufacturing establishments of a particular kind, they combined for the purpose of simply robbing the people, and where there were a good many, the competition was so keen that the strongest only survived, the rest being ruined. When prosperity again returns this will be repeated, more people will go into those industries, and the extreme competition will end the same way. The position of this country was different, being neither one of free trade as in England, nor protection as in the United States. Our duties being very small prevent our manufactures from realising more than fair living profits. As an illustration of the results which sometimes arise from a high protective tariff, he referred to the combination of the coal miners of Pennsylvania a few years ago to obtain $2 per ton more than a reasonable profit for coal. If the Nova Scotia coal had not been excluded from the markets of the United States, the poor classes of the New England States and of New York would have felt the benefits of competition in the cheapness of fuel.

He could not take his seat without expressing the pleasure with which he had heard the announcement of the Finance Minister that the deficiency of the revenue was to be met by economy and not by increased taxation. That policy would be sustained not only by the House but by a majority of the people throughout the Dominion.

Last week a woman, in pursuit of a man who had abused the confidence of her sister, arrived in Galveston, Texas, and in telling her story to a reporter there, said: "I have followed him to San Francisco, to South America, and from there to New Orleans. I once caught a glimpse of him there, but he eluded me there. He went to Galveston, and I followed on the next boat. I heard he was here, and come to find him, but he has left; but I will find him. The world is not large enough for him to elude me, and he best days work I ever will do will be the day on which I can fairly face him. That moment will be his last in the world."

Your committee are of opinion that $42 61 of the above amount should be charged to Mr. Bradburn, being amount for gas pipes

Your committee recommend that only $2 be allowed for drawing the fire engine between the hours of 7 a. m. and 6 p. m., and $4 from 6 p. m. to 7 a. m.

Your committee have not been able to agree as to the grant to the Protestant Home, but recommend the appointment of a committee to meet the ladies at the Home on Wednesday next, to further consider the matter.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOS. CAHILL, Chairman.

COUNCIL CHAMBER, March 27th, 1876.

On motion of Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, the report was received and adopted.

Mr. Rutherford read and submitted the following report in reference to appointments:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENT.

March 21st, 1876,

Committee on appointments met, pursuant to notice.

Present, the Mayor, and Messrs Cook, Cahill, Hopkins and Rutherford.

On motion of Mr. Hopkins, seconded by Mr. Cook, and carried and recommended to this council:

That Dr Kincaid be appointed Town Physician for the current year at a salary of $150, medicine included, and in case of an epidemic an additional $50.

In consequence of a rumour that the medical men of the town are prepared to perform the work of a Town Physician free of charge, the chairman was instructed to enquire into the matter, and if found correct, the above resolution shall be void. The Doctors to forward to this Council through the Clerk, a written statement.

It is also recommended by your committee that it shall be the duty of the Street Inspector to have removed all obstructions from sidewalks.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) A RUTHERFORD, Chairman.

Mr. Rutherford refused to move the adoption of the report, and explained that he did not think a Town Physician was necessary, as there were not so very many poor in the town to require medical aid.

Mr. Paterson moved, seconded by Mr. Hopkins, that the report be received and adopted—carried.

TAXES.

Moved by Mr. Paterson, seconded by Mr. McClelland,—That the Finance Committee be a committee with the Collector in reference to those persons not able to pay their taxes—carried.

AUDITORS PAID.

Moved by Mr Cahill, seconded by Mr. Taylor, that the Auditors be paid—carried.

ACCOUNTS RE-AUDITED.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Douglas.—That the council go into committee of the whole on Mr. A. Kempt's petition, and also on Mr. McClelland's notice of motion—carried.

Mr Dixon in the chair.

Mr. Kempt and Mr. Lundy were asked to address the Council.

Mr. Hopkins was indignant at the petition, and moved the placing of it under the table.

Mr. Toole after a long attack on the promoters of the petition, moved that Mr Edwards consult with Messrs Nicholls, Claxton, Lundy and Kempt, and see if appointed will they audit the accounts. The committee arose and reported by resolution.

APPOINTED ON COMMITTEE.

Moved by Mr. Taylor, seconded by Mr. Cahill.—That Mr Haggart's name be placed on all committees in the place of Mr Helm's name.—Carried.

OLD IRON.

Mr. Cahill asked if anything had been done in reference to examining the old iron.

Mr. Douglass thought the committee should advertise the iron for sale, and so would be useless to get it weighed now, as the buyer would have to get it weighed and that ought to do.

AUDITORS BY LAW.

Mr. Rutherford introduced a By-law to amend the Auctioneers' By-law in reference to transient traders.

SEVERAL READINGS.

Also a By-law in respect of Signs over the Queen's Highway, Bonish Street, and to provide payment for the same.

BY LAW AMENDED.

The Auctioneers By-law was amended to make transient traders pay as follows: $20 for 1 day; for 2 days $30; for 3 days $40; for 6 days $60; for 1 month $75; for 6 months $100, for 1 year $125

The By-law was read a third time and passed.

QUEEN STREET BRIDGE.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Dixon.—A By-law to provide for erecting a new bridge on Smith Street was read a first time.

The council went into committee of the whole on the second reading The committee rose and the By-laws were read a third time and passed.

$100 TO RELIEF COMMITTEE.

Moved by Mr Taylor, seconded by Mr Hopkins,—That the request of the Relief Committee be complied with, and that $100 be granted to settle up their liabilities.—Carried.

GRADING.

Moved by Mr Dixon, seconded by Mr Douglas,—That Mr Belcher be instructed to grade George Street to Dublin Street, and West Dublin to Aylmer.—Carried.

AUDITORS REPORT.

Moved by Mr Cahill, seconded by Mr Taylor,—That 50 additional copies of the Auditor's Report for 1875 be printed.—Carried.

CONSTABLES.

The Mayor recommended that additional Constables be authorized for Saturday evenings and public days.

CONTRACT PAID

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Douglass,—That the Treasurer pay the amount due to Croly & Curtis on their contract, and that the amount be placed on the roll for the present year.—After discussion this was carried.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE

Mr Scott who was present during the discussion gave it as his opinion that the expenditure was illegal, but that the Council would be bound to pay for the work already done, and he advised the council to try if Ashburnham would not undertake the work and let the Town resist that council. He further said that they might pass a By law to provide the payment, but a resolution under the circumstances would do as well.

Mr Cahill reflected on the promoters for not providing the money for the contracts before undertaking them.

Mr. Hopkins said he understood that Messrs Croly & Curtis were to first provide $300, and Ashburnham $200, and that these sums would be used to go on with the work, and after that sum was expended the town to supply the rest. If he had known that this was not to be the case he would not have voted for the contract.

Other members of the council corroborated this view of he understanding in the council, and condemned the action of those who agreed to any different terms.

Mr. Rutherford tried to show that the work would cost only a trifle over the $500 promised, and that that sum would be paid as soon as the work on the bridge would be completed.

PROTESTAND HOME

A committee was appointed to wait on the ladies connected with the Protestant Home, and to get a statement of what they desired, and to report.

The council adjourned for two weeks.

WRECKED IN SOUTH PACIFIC

FIFTY LIVES LOST.—The following details of the loss of the emigrant ship Rathmore, from this port for New Zealand, have been received:—The Strathmore struck the rocks among the Cromer group of islands, in the South Pacific, on July 1st, and went to pieces immediately. Forty-four persons were drowned. The survivors saved nothing whatever, and subsisted themselves upon the rocks for six months upon sea birds and their eggs. When they were rescued they were much emaciated almost naked. Five died from exposure and want. The captain of an American whaler, the Young Phenix of New Bedford rescued them, supplied them with clothing and treated them with kindness.

A NOVA SCOTIA VESSEL WRECKED.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. March 27.

The brig A. Porter, of Annapolis, N. S. Captain Johnston, for Boston, with salt, went ashore on White Island in eight o'clock yesterday morning, knocking over board five of the crew, all of whom were drowned. About ten minutes later the vessel came of and struck on Lunging Island, half a mile distant, when the captain, second mate, and a seaman were lost. The first mate was the only one saved. The brig is a total loss and uninsured.

PORTLAND, Me, March 27.—The schooner Harriet Newell, Captain Kent, from Elizabeth port for Bath, with coal went ashore on Pluff Island, Scarboro, at two o'clock Saturday morning, and went to pieces. Captain Kent and wife were drowned. The crew were saved.

SAYVILLE Long Island, N. Y., March 27.—The steamer Great Western, which went ashore on Saturday evening, five miles east of Fire Island lighthouse, is badly strained. She will probably go to pieces. All hands saved.

FLOODS IN NEW ENGLAND AND THE SOUTH.

BOSTON, March 27.—The loss from the flood at Clinton, Mass, is now estimated at $2000,000, and two men supposed to have been drowned were inmates of one of the houses destroyed. The completeness of the wreck recalls the Mill River disaster.

Later advices swell the loss at Clinton, Mass., to $350,000. At Fairvale, Ct. five men were drowned by the giving way of a dam they were repairing.

LAWRENCE, Mass, March 27.—Some 5000 or 6000 mill operatives here are idle to-day, owing to the stoppage of many mills in consequence of the unprecedented high water. All the mills on the Spicket river are stopped. The water in the Merrimac flows nothing one foot over above the dams, and the ugly the river head tailpiece stones as many still higher water is predicted. The basket at Amherst, Mass., is 21 feet, and the damage to property $2 000,

MEMPHIS, March 27.—Great alarm prevails here over the unexpected disaster in overflow of the river, which is now within nine inches of the danger line, and rising rapidly. At Devil's Bluff, very many slaves, it can through to-day yesterday observing the overflowed of twenty miles A steady flow has been taking this morning

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 30, 1876

No Tidings.—Nothing has yet been heard of the body of the young man Hart bidge, supposed to be drowned.

Fenelon Falls.—The Royal Hotel in that Village was destroyed by fire on Monday night.

Use Clark & Co's Extra Quality Six Cord Cotton, with Anchor on Spool. Leading Sewing Machine Agents say it is the best.

Court of Revision.—The next sitting of the Fourth Division Court for the County of Peterborough, will be held in the Council Room, in the Village of Lakefield, on the 20th of April.

Boating Club.—The annual meeting of the Peterborough Boat Club will be held at the Club Room, over the boat house, on Monday evening next, 3rd of April, at 7.30. Business—election of officers for 1876.

Philharmonic Concert.—The Concert of this society last week was a musical treat, the performers ans ained the different parts with credit to themselves. The house was not large but was respectable.

New Spring Goods.—Look out for Mr Elder's advertisement next week, he is receiving a very large and well assorted stock of Dry Goods, Gent's Furnishings, &c, which he intends to dispose of at very reasonable rates for cash.

Dry Goods a Ready-made Clothing.—The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of D. Lemay, who states that he is in the receipt of 12 cases of new goods, which he seems determined to sell at the smallest possible profit.

Adjourned Sale.—Mr Alexander Bertram's Auction Sale of Household Furniture &c., is adjourned till Friday the 31st inst., at 1 o'clock, p.m. on account of the unpleasant weather. Remember the place next to Baptis & Stewart's Planing Mill.

Sale of Dry Goods.—Mr. Shillington advertises in this weeks Examiner a great auction sale of Dry Goods, Ready-made Clothing, &c. He has received two more Bankrupt Stocks to be sold at whatever they will bring. Read his advertisement in another column.

A Port Hope Bull.—The Guide says "A very heavy snow storm set in on Monday afternoon and continued all day and night." What remarkable time tables they must have when their all day commences in the afternoon. It must be true, for the Guide said so.

Insurance.—We would direct attention to the Stadnoma Insurance Co's advertisement in this issue. Mr. Maxwell Hall is Agent for Peterboro. The Company is a safe one, and Mr. Hall informs us he did a good business here last year. He will be ready to give rates to all who apply to him.

S. S. Jubilee.—The Jubilee in connection with the Sabbath Schools of the town will come off on Monday and Tuesday evenings next, and promises to be more than usually attractive. The programme is a good one. Mr. T Brown and Mrs. Bowman have consented to sing several pieces on the occasion.

The Assizes. The Spring Assizes commenced here on Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Moss. There were but five cases on the record, and two were placed on it by order of the Judge, from the Lindsay Court. There was no criminal case and according to custom the Sheriff presented the Judge with a pair of white gloves.

A Severe Snow Storm.—The snow storm of the season commenced here on Tuesday afternoon, about three o'clock, and continued during the evening, and night. The drift in Town was something terrible, then what must it have been in the country? The trains were snowed up on the Midland and other railways.

Toronto has had another supposed fatal abortion case. A Miss Berry, aged about 22 years, having died under suspicious circumstances. After interment the body was raised and an inquest held. A man named James Laing with whom she had been keeping company being accused of procuring the abortion was detained, awaiting the result of the investigation.

Lecture.—The lecture in the Y M C A. Rooms by Mr. Buchan, High School Inspector, was both instructive and interesting. The subject—"Poetry and Politics"—appeared to be a dry one, but in Mr. Buchan's hand proved the very opposite. The audience was not as large as the lecture deserved, but should he favor Peterboro with another lecture he will no doubt receive a better house.

Foreign Travels.—On Monday evening our citizens will have the rare opportunity of visiting all parts of the world without leaving Peterborough. Messrs Brown and Brock will show and describe in the Old Methodist Church, their collection of beautiful Stereoptican foreign views, and comic representations. Our exchanges recommend it as a first class entertainment, the views of the Holy Land being especially attractive. Go.

Michells v. Cumming.—Judgment This was an appeal from a judgment on demurrer in the Common Pleas, when the judgment was for plaintiff. The plaintiffs were assessed, as appeared from the slip handed to them, for $20 000 whereas the amount on the roll was $43,409. The plaintiffs did not allege that they had been assessed for too large a sum, or that they rendered the proper sum, but went on the ground that the assessment was void because of the wrong notice. The appeal was allowed with costs.—Mail

Pinkerton.—In this issue will be found Mr. Perrram's speech in full on protection in the House of Commons. It is a fair statement of matters in reference to this question and will be found worth a careful perusal. It is taken from the Hansard. This is now the question on which Conservatives hope to ride into office again, and hence one likely to attract attention in Canada for a year or two. It will, however, be discussed and so understood before the next election contest that disappointment will again be their fate.

Whose Duty is it?—In almost every town there are to be found parties having no employment and consequently no evident way of supporting themselves, who are unwilling to work and to beg are ashamed Is it not the duty of the police authorities to find out how such persons support themselves and where no satisfactory means can be shown, to confine them as idle and vagrant? This would put an end to loafing round street corners and prowling round at night, and would make all men see that he who does not work, neither should he eat.

Rome Rule.—Mr. Arthur Turcotte, one of the candidates for the representation of Three Rivers in the Quebec Assembly, vacant by the resignation of Hon. Mr Malhiot, in his address to the electors, declares himself a Conservative, like his father before him. He also declares that "in questions where religious interests may be concerned, I need not tell you that it will be my first duty to consult the proper religious authorities and that my votes in the House on these questions will be in conformity with their decisions."

The Montreal Star has a $100,000 libel suit on hand for publishing an item reflecting on the character of a young lady, to whom, Mr. J. S. Macdonald of Cornwall is engaged. The young lady is a daughter of Mr. Molson of Montreal. Criminal proceedings have been taken against Mr. Burden of the Cornwall Gazette for having published an article accusing Mr. Macdonald of the seduction of the young lady referred to. The man who could descend to thus damage the character of a young lady of unblemished character, deserves to suffer the full reward of his crime.

Y.M.C.A.—A lecture will be delivered in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, to-night, Thursday, at 8 o'clock, by the Rev. G. M. Clark, formerly of Boston and at present officiating in St. Paul's church in this town. Subject—"Music and its influences on the family and society." Admission free. A collection will be taken up in aid of the Association. An invitation to be present is extended to all. There will be a Service of Song next week, conducted by the George St. Methodist Church Choir, which will terminate the series of weekly meetings for this season.

Another Shipment for the Centennial.—In addition to the various exhibits mentioned as having passed from here for the Centennial, we would add a magnificent Rotary Force Pump, shipped on Wednesday, 22nd inst., by Mr. Henry Cox. The peculiar principles upon which this pump is constructed we are informed renders it an article of very great superiority. Much credit is due to Mr. Cox for the enterprise and mechanical ability manifested in getting up the above, which will doubtless go far in representing the manufacturing skill of Peterborough. We wish Mr. Cox every success in his enterprise.

Literary Association—On the 22nd inst., an adjourned meeting was held in Messrs. Dorenlaan Bro. & Galt's office for the purpose of forming a Literary Society in town. Several matters which had been referred to committees on a former occasion were discussed. The following gentlemen were elected officers of the association:—President, W. H. Scott, Q.C., Vice-Presidents Messrs. E. B Edwards and Toker, Secretary and Treasurer Mr. H. T Beck, Councillors Messrs. Shepley and Earl. The meeting adopted a constitution and formed themselves into a Society under the name of "The Peterboro Literary Association."

Port Hope.—From a report in the Guide of a public meeting held in Port Hope, it would appear that the people there are not pleased with each other on the Tariff Question. They held a public meeting; took sides; made speeches, and broke up in disorder Just so! They required the police to protect them from their own desire to take Mr. Beamish's plan of being even with each other, in hards words, at least, if not in blows. Can they not follow the Guide and live in peace with all men—but especially with themselves. Thirty persons out of a population of 6000 or 7000 voted for protection—all Conservatives. How nice! Sir John says this is the new plank, and all liberal Conservatives must sail on it or sink. They'll sink.

Our Town Council.—We regret to be forced to say, that our City Fathers have not that self respect that should be manifested by a body of men representing the wealth, intelligence, and industry of such a Town as Peterborough is. One wrong step too frequently leads to another, both in personal matters and in the business of bodies corporate, and in no instance could better proof of the truthfulness of this remark be found, than that of the Peterborough Town Council of 1876 An attempt was made on the part of one or two at the very commencement of the year, to rush into all manner of excesses These excesses were nipped in the bud, and the disappointed persons do not maintain that dignity under control that should characterise them. Let us hope that we will not be again called upon to refer to this matter. Let our City Fathers betake themselves to the proper and faithful discharge of their duties and cease to manifest their childishness. Of course there are exceptions, but we do not think it wise to be personal now The future will be guided by circumstances.

Goldwin Smith has ceased to write for the Nation the organ of the Canada First party. The cause has not been assigned He is a gentleman of considerable literary notoriety, but has not been a success in the political newspaper line of business. Always decrying party he was seeking to build up a new party on the ruins of old parties and thus manifested a degree of inconsistency that was soon used against him by both Conservatives and Reformers He commenced writing in Canada by condemning the political bitterness and personal abuse that had been incorporated with almost all political discussion, but soon became such and adopt in the same style of writing that he had previously in that line, and now has, who of late manifested a not very cordial sympathy with Mr Smith. All who know Mr. Smith, regret that he allowed himself to be led into partizan newspaper warfare. He is a man of advanced liberal views and would have done much to temper parties if he had maintained his independence of them and thus been prepared to condemn the extremes into which both parties are inclined to run.

Attempted Burglaries.—On Monday night, or rather Tuesday morning, about 3 o'clock, Mr. Chamberlain thought he heard some noise in the store of Messrs Lasher & Leary, and getting up looked round and found that some one had entered the store. He went and raised the Chief Constable, who went to the back door and saw a light. His son who accompanied him, and Mr. Foot went to the front. Mr. Burglar however found out what was going on, and left by the front door which he had taken the precaution to leave open He left just in time to escape. He fled down George Street, round Mr. Fairweather's corner, and got away; he did. He had taken out a pane of glass in the back window, entered, lit the gas, opened the front door as a means of escape if necessary, and then set to work to pack Ready-made Clothing &c., but fortunately was disturbed too soon to get much of the goods with him It is a great pity that he got away.

On the same night some person or persons entered the store of Mr. John Garvey, took a little loose change out of the drawer, a few boxes of cigars, perhaps a bottle of whiskey, and left by the back door, as the back door had the key in it It is supposed that in this case the burglar entered by the front door, and from the inside turned the key in the back door and went out on the market square He however, took only a little tobacco whiskey and a few cents. These instances are warnings to our storekeepers and money brokers to take care lest something worse befall them.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I find that a strong feeling is beginning to prevail among the ratepayers of the town in favor of voting down the new By-law for Bridge and School house debts, and compelling the Council to place these amounts on the roll. The reason assigned for this is a good one. It is assumed that the present Council, if not prevented in some way, will be sure to lay out a large sum of money upon streets and bridges and otherwise, as they have heretofore done, and that this expenditure will be yearly or quite as small as the debts for the South Ward Schoolhouse and for the Iron and Lock-Bridges, and it is considered that such expenditure is uncalled for and ought to be prevented. And no better and safer way presents itself than by voting down the new By law and by compelling the Council to collect the amount from the roll for this year, for if this be done the Council will not dare to go on, with the large expenditure of money upon works which can be dispensed with. So long as the Council find that they can confine the taxes to something like a cent in the dollar so long will they spend the people's money, whether it is required or not, and this cent in the dollar will enable them to do a large business in this way. If the Council would really try to be economical for this year the town could pay off these schoolhouse and bridge debts with the taxes very little more than the cent in the dollar and then these debts would be wiped out and the town would be freed from further taxation on their account. It is very unwise to increase the debenture debt of the town. It is already very large and if the Huron and Quebec Railway goes on this debenture debt will then have to be increased by $250.000 more and the people will then find that their liabilities will be about as much as they can very well bear, and the ratepayers must also not forget that every dollar of debenture debt incurred is a mortgage upon their property just as much as if they borrowed the money directly in their private capacity and gave a mortgage for the amount upon their lands. In town matters, as much as in personal matters, it should be the duty of the people to enforce economy. Let them begin now, and in addition to preventing a large outlay of their money this year by the Council, let them insist upon cutting off expenditure in other matters where expense is uncalled for. What need was there for this Council, embracing as it does, several mechanics, to appoint and pay $260 a year for occasional services of an engineer, when any man of good sense can do all that is required to be done just as well as an engineer, and if it did happen that upon any particular occasion his services were needed it would be very easy to get one and that too at a small cost. I find too that the town is paying nearly $400 a year for law costs and this to at a time when there is no litigation with the town. The Councillors too could not content themselves with sitting in the Old Council Chamber, which could be done free of rent, it being the property of the town, but they must compel the ratepayers to pay $650 a year in rent for a new and grander chamber, besides a considerable amount for fine furniture. I ask the ratepayers if all or most of this large sum of money might not have been saved. And there are still others which I could enumerate if I had time Let the above suffice for the present and let the people think over these matters and then say what they ought to do.

A RATEPAYER.

Peterboro, March 24th, 1876

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir, I think I have been long enough in this province to be able to judge intelligently its politics and its political parties, I find the people divided into two parties, distinguished by the names of Reformers and Tories. I take it for granted that now, in this British Colony of Ontario, the people are influenced in their politics by the same reasons and feelings which influence their countrymen in other parts of the world, that is, that Reformers are contending for justice and fair play, and their opponents striving to keep things as they are For this reason, I suppose, they are called Conservatives. I myself, have always belonged to the Reform party, because I felt that that party were striving to improve and advance the best interests of the country and I may safely say that for it the people of Ontario to-day would be half a century behind the times Reformers now struggled hard for the success of their principles, sometimes they have been uppermost, and sometimes they have been down, but in all their struggles they have been influenced solely by a desire to do the greatest good to the greatest number, and they have had to fight their battles, as a general rule, upon their own responsibility, and oftimes against sore discouragements from the hands of their own party. So long as they were fighting face to face with their political opponents they felt that they were fighting on open ground, and they were willing to contend in this manner and willing to abide by the consequences, believing always that when the day of victory came, they would be permitted to share in its benefits But in all their struggles I have always found that their greatest discouragement came from the leaders of their own party, and that just when the heat of battle was the greatest, and that success was about to crown their efforts, when, in fact, it required but little to turn the tide either way; and when Reformers were anxiously looking for all the support which their head men could afford them, that then that support never came and that too often they were met with coldness and neglect.

This is a poor way to keep up the courage of the party. This is a poor reward for all the trials and losses which they have had to endure, and there is no surer course to pursue to dampen their ardor and to destroy their faith in their own party than to be told at the last hour of their struggles that their are no longer needed, and that their opponents are to reap the reward of their success.

Reformers have too often had to meet rebuffs of this kind, and too often have they been made to feel that their leaders when they have placed in power have turned round and looked down upon them as only worthy of such contempt But in this day of enlightenment, when Reformers have learned that they are as good as other men, they will never again submit to such ignominious treatment, and the good old sturdy farmers and mechanics who have made the country what it is, will never again consent to see themselves and their children looked down upon, even by men in high places, and if they cannot enjoy that equality and that justice and fair play to which they are entitled, they will stay at home and let their would-be aristocrats obtain honors and power the best way they can, but no longer with their help They will only show all such that pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.

ONE WHO DEMANDS FAIR PLAY

Died Suddenly of Heart Disease.

How common is the announcement. Thousands are suddenly swept into eternity by this fatal malady This disease generally has its origin in impure blood filled with irritating poisonous matter, which circulating through the heart irritate its delicate tissues Though the irritation may at first be only slight, producing a little palpitation or irregular action of dull heavy, or sharp darting pains yet by and by the disease becomes firmly seated, and inflammation, or hypertrophy, or thickening of the lining membrane or of the valves, is produced. How wise to give early attention to a case of this kind. Unnatural throbbing or pain in the region of the heart should admonish one that all is not right, and if you would preserve it from further disease you must help it to beat rightly by the use of such remedy as will remove the cause of the trouble Use Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery before the disease has become confirmed and it will, by its great blood purifying and wonderful regulating properties, effect a perfect cure. It contains medical properties which act specifically upon the tissues of the heart, bringing about a healthy action. Sold by all first class Druggists

Heart Disease Cured.—Rockport Spencer Co., Ind., February 1st, 1874 Dr R V. Pierce Buffalo N Y.,

About two years ago I was afflicted with a disease of the heart, which at times created a pressure around it, almost causing suffocation I saw an advertisement of your Golden Medical Discovery recommending the same cure for disease of the heart I then bought half a dozen bottles of it, and after using three bottles I was entirely relieved and now am enjoying good health. Gracefully yours

WEDDED.

Heart linked with heart in each noble endeavor—
Husband and wife,
We're adrift, oh, my sweet, on the beautiful river—
The river of life.

The shore of my girlhood, far back in the distance,
Still I can see;
But your love, true and faithful, still makes my existence
A heaven to me.

The strong arm of love has never yet failed me,
Never, dear heart!
Nor your faith, oh! my darling, when censure assailed me,
Like, when depart.

Loose its sweetness; joy's radiant flowers
Bloom never for me.
As lonely I walk through the desolate hours,
Waiting for thee.

With Faith for the pilot, and Love to cast o'er us
The light of her smile,
The waves of the river of life yet before us
Look tempting the while.

There is nought in the past that is worth the regretting
My darling; instead
Not a moment this hour we would fain see forgetting,
Since we were wed.

Fear not the storm-clouds that hover around me,
Drifting with thee,
For the spring-time and summer of life ye have found thee
Faithful to me.

On, on to the shore of the blissful Forever—
Husband and wife;
Together we'll float down the beautiful river—
The river of life.

Popular Religious Teaching.

A writer in the Eclectic thus satirizes the popular sermonizers of the day:

With the spiritual thermometer below the freezing point, and the mental vision beyond the cure of man, there is sufficient and more than sufficient of the pretentious. Some step out like Italian dancing masters; others rouge and dress their sermons like a faded beauty; others give you such a tissue of stylistic nonsense and tasteless verbocity to cover their mental darkness, as constantly keeps you in the alternative of wonderment and fear. Substantives innocent adjectives wondering what happy accident has brought them together; figures which you may figure; a sentence with a tail, and no one to carry it, dragging in the mud: 'rosy-footed morning' and 'pink-eyed evening' hobnobbing to each other; 'gurgling streams' and 'meandering cherubim of glorious visions brighter than can be transplanted,' together with sleeping or gaping hearers, in short, Don Quixote in the pulpit, and Sancho Panza in the pews; a very useful combination.

We have heard of a rare compound of 'Bossergas' and 'Flowerpots' in the north of Scotland, who, utterly unable from sheer exhaustion, to proceed, could at last grasp out single words to electrify his hearers. 'Eh, wasn't he grand at last,' observes one of his hearers to the other on the word 'Mesopotawmia!' There is a great deal of this Mesopotawmia grandeur, where words are smothered in figures or figures in words, and both mental and moral nakedness concealed amid 'high sounding words of vanity.' Still, as this passes among the half-educated for elegance, and the uneducated for eloquence, and as preachers and hearers share in the unreality, 'Flowerpots' are decidedly the thing for the ecclesiastical 'season'

Christianity and its mysteries—what a theme! the wants of our fellow men, living, suffering, waiting, working, weeping, perishing—what realities! the mission of the Church—what a calling! And are these the performances, is this the food of souls, the light of the world the salt of the earth, this mass of canting, of inanity, and of unreality!—What we need is truth, life, love; one sentence of it is worth a volume of traditionalism, of terrification, and of trash. And yet how rare is it!

A good and useful preacher is one who, with mental cultivation, combines the prime qualities of spiritual experience and spiritual sympathy, who, instead of a system of doctrines, gives you what he has experienced, and what your heart and your life require for both time and eternity. He speaks to the hearts of his hearers. Out of the treasures of christian truth he brings the 'pearl of great price'; he wins your admiration for it; he gains your consent to purchase and to wear it. He is sound in doctrine and values orthodox truth, but he knows that formularies are without value unless they are understood and felt by himself and his audience, and he prefers to adapt his teachings to your and and your fellow creature's wants, rather than to tradition. He drinks at the spring of scriptural truth, he sympathizes with all that is holy, good, and noble; and having led his hearers to the cross, he points them to fields of becoming usefulness in the Church and the world. However unaffected, he is powerful; however simple his strain, such melody is divine.

A Square Game.

They tell a pretty good story of one of those wild eyed Lake Superior editors. He is a great hand to "jeff," and whenever he can make the nick on a "quad" settle a question, he prefers to do in that way. He "jeffs" to see whether he shall pay his hands in cash or store orders; "jeffs to decide whether he shall go to the lodge or to the weekly prayer meeting. It wasn't long ago that he attended a revival, more in the capacity of reporter than sinner, and before going drank something to make him feel good. When a call was made for sinners to come forward a church member stepped down the aisle and took the editor by the hand and entreated him to take a position to the anxious seat.

"Oh, I guess not," replied the editor.

"Come, we want to save you," continued the friend.

"Oh, I'm all right," was the reply.

"No one can be all right who is not a working Christian. Come, let us have your example."

The editor felt in his pocket, produced seven "em quads," and as he shook them in his hand he replied:

"I'll jeff you to see whether I go or stay!"

He staid.—Detroit Free Press.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

SCIENTIFIC POTATOE CULTURE.—Mr. Wm. B. Batonam treats this subject at length and with his usual shrewdness in the Country Gentleman. Having given special attention to the kind of exhaustion caused by successive potato cropping, he concludes that potash is most abundantly extracted from the soil, and suggests a plentiful supply of ashes as a renovated and fertilizer. He says:—"The better class of our farmers will no doubt continue to grow potatoes, though, probably not so extensively as heretofore; and this crop will doubtless continue to be profitable where the climate and soil are naturally so favorable. But the growers need to learn more of the science of fertilizing the soil for this particular crop. They need to study the teachings of agricultural chemistry, as to what elements are taken from the soil with each crop of those elements that are essential to the healthy growth of potatoes, are wanting in the soil, and need to be restored by artificial means.

For instance, it is known that about one-half the inorganic elements of the potato—as found in the asher—consists of potash and about one-quarter soda; and it has been shown by Prof. Johnston and others that every crop of potatoes, say 150 bushels, takes from the soil about 90 pounds of potash and 20 pounds of phosphoric acid, with smaller amounts of soda, magnesia, lime, sulphuric acid, chlorine, &c. Reliance cannot be placed on chemical analyses of the soils to show just which of these elements may be wanting, but a little study and experimenting with different fertilizers, but the farmers, would practically solve the problem.

On most of our old sandy lands, I am convinced that potash is the chief ingredient that is wanting. The past season I manured part of my potato ground with leached ashes pretty freely adding some that was unleached, and the potatoes on the land thus treated were as plentiful in yield as another part were stable manure was used, and the quality of the tubers (Peachblows) was very much finer. It is probable that the good results of the ashes were in part owing to the small portion of phosphorus and lime contained therein, besides the potash. This experiment in this season, when there is general complaint of the poor quality of potatoes, leads me to believe that quality as well as quantity may be greatly affected, by the judicious use of fertilizers.

In clayey soils, we are taught by the chemists, there is not often lack of potash, and hence, ashes are not of much use. I am not sure that this a clayey land that have been long cropped with potatoes. But such lands are not usually found suited for this crop."

Speaking next of the quality of the potato, which is not necessary proportionate to the quantity, and which Prof. Johnston used to estimate according to the relative amount of solid and watery matter contained in the tuber—Mr. B. goes on to quote:—"It may be therefore, that as by growing in unlike soils, or with unequal degrees of rapidity, our potatoes may contain different proportions of water, so by different kinds on fertilizers, which act in the same way as natural differences of soil, and cause the plants to develop, with greater or less rapidity, the same effects may be produced. One kind of saline substitute, such a nitrate of soda by hastening the growth, may give us a crop of potatoes containing much water; while another, such as sulphate of soda, by retarding the growth, may give a crop containing less water, and thus, though there may be no difference in the weight of the two crops, they may be very unlike in the relative proportions of dry food they contain. If such be the case, it is of great practical importance to determine the quantity of water which our several experimental potato crops contain, since, without this, we may draw very incorrect conclusions as to the value of our experimental manures—placing the highest valued upon that which give the greatest weight of raw material, and esteeming least, perhaps, that which produces the greatest weight of dry food." And adds in conclusion:—"I would specially recommend Prof. Johnston's last sentence above to the attention of all who are experimenting in the prodcation or culture of new varieties of potatoes, as well as those who are testing different manures for this crop.—Canada Farmer.

BALKY HORSES.—The brain of a horse seems to entertain but one thought at a time; for this reason continued whipping is out of the question, and only confirms his stubborn resolve. But if you can by any means change the direction of his mind, give him a new subject to think of, nine times out of ten you will have no further trouble in starting him. As simple a trick as a little pepper, aloes, or the like, thrown back on his tongue, will often succeed by turning attention to the taste in his mouth. A simple remedy is to take a couple of turns of common wrapping twine, such as grocers use, around the fore leg just below the knee, tight enought for the horse to feel, and tie in a bowknot. At the first cluck he will generally go dancing off, and after going a short distance, you can get out, remove the string to prevent injury by the tention in your further drive. Or tie a string tightly around his ear, which will serve to divert his mind to forget his stubbornness.

PIGS.—There are several breeds of hogs which will "fatten at eight or ten months old," and weigh from two hundred to three hundred pounds. If black pigs are preferred, the essex will make two hundred of pork at the age specified. The Berkshire, nearly black, will bring the scales down at the heavier weight. Among the white breeds the Suffolk will offset the Essex, and the Victorias the Berkshire. We are not aware that either of these breeds are called by any other names. The Essex, Berkshire, and Suffolk are English breeds, while the Victorias are American, and have been made by judicious crossing and selection, just as all breeds of fine animals have been produced.

PROVIDE WATER FOR FOWLS.—It is the opinion of a writer in the Farmer's Journal "that many of the diseases incident to poultry are due to neglect in providing them with pure water; particularly do I believe such to be the case, in the majority of instances, where Chicken cholera prevails. It is neglect that is decidedly adverse to success; hence it tends to diminish individual fancy for fowls, and works detrimentally to poultry interests. Those whom we occasionally here saying "there is no profit in poultry" are not qualified to have the management of the same, and in their attention may be classed with the thriftless and neglected parties who keep fowls to get drink when it rains."

SMOKING IN THE BARN.—"No smoking" is posted in most decent factories—it ought to be posted in every barn and stable. There is not much difference between having a horse-thief around the stables, and a man cleaning off horses with a pipe in his mouth; and there is no hired man much meaner than the one who, when his employer comes round, slips his pipe into his pocket or holds his head over it as if it were a bird. All such fellows should be paid off, or started off, and kept off. As for the farmer himself going into the barn with a pipe in his mouth no complaint can be made; but if his establishment should burn up no one should cry unless it should be the wife and children. Lightening and incendiarism, and spontaneous combustion combined, do not cause as many barns to be burned as the pipe: and generally at least one good horse goes also; It would be much better if the smoker could go up with the smoke, and have smoke enough for once.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURE J. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

OVERCOME THE HORRIBLE PROCRASTINATION OF VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glossy and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands shrivelled and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by its application. Instead of coating the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit and not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil the most delicate head-dress, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures. Many of these are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been completely cured by it. Running sores and ulcers, no matter how long standing, have been healed by its purifying influence. Even local tumors, which were pronounced malignant, have been cured, and the most skeptical convinced, that the public generally need to be informed of its virtues.

Scrofulous poisons, one of the most common enemies we have to contend with, lurk in the blood, which, when in this condition, is more or less impure in all its functions and tissues. Sometimes this impurity is inherited from parents, and sometimes it is the result of bad habits, or of the wrong kind of food. Whatever the cause, it seems to breed mischief in all the organs of the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of the loathsome forms of ulcer on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, the ulcers may be suddenly developed in the lungs or heart, or humors formed in the liver or kidneys. Such is the presence in eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Ague, Anthony's Fire, Boils or Carbuncles, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also, in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Scrofula or Tumoral and Mercurial Diseases are curable by it, though a large dose is required for subduing these deep-seated maladies. But long continued use of the medicine will cure the complaint. Tumors, Cancers, Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout in the chronic form can be accomplished of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, which arising, as they often do, from the swelling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find in it wellnigh relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Select Poetry.

John Jenkin's Sermon.

The minister said last night, said he,
"Don't be afraid of givin';
If you. He ain't nothin' to other folkn.
Way what's the use of livin'?"
And that's what I say to my wife, sure I.
There's Brown, the miserable sinner,
He'd sooner a beggar would starve than give
A cent towards buyin' a dinner.

I tell you our minister is prime, he is,
But I couldn't quite determine,
When I heard him a givin' it right and left,
Just who we hit by his sermon.
Of course there couldn't be no mistake
When he talked of the long-winded prayer
For Peter and Johnston they sat and scowled,
At every word he was sayin'.

And the minister he went on to say,
"There's various kinds o' cussin',
And religion's as good for every day
As it is to bring to meetin'.
I don't think much of the man that cusses
The loud emens at my preachin',
And spends his time the following week
In cheatin' and over reachin'.

I guess that done was in her enough
For a man like Jones to swallow;
But I noticed he didn't open his mouth,
Not once, after that, to holler;
Hurrah, says I for the minister
Of course I said it quiet—
Give us some more of this open talk
It's a very refreshin' diet.

The minister hit 'em every time,
And when he spoke of fashin'
And riggin's out in bows and things,
As woman's rulin' passion.
And comin' to church to see the styles,
I couldn't help a winkin'
And a-noddin' my wife, and says I, "That's you,"
And I guess it sot her thinkin'.

Says I to myself, that sermon's pat;
But man is a queer creation;
And I'm much afraid that most of the folks
Won't take the application.
Now, if he had said a word about
My personal mode o' shavin',
I'd have gone to work to right myself,
And not set there a grinnin.'

Just then the minister says, says he,
"And now I've come to the fellers
Who've lent this shower by usin' their friends
As sort o' moral umbrellas.
Go home," says he, "and pour your faults.
Instead of huntin' your brothers;
Go home," says he, "and wear the coats
You've tried to fit for others."

My wife she nudged, and Brown he winked
And there was lots o' smilin',
And lots o' lookin' at our pew;
It sot my blood a-boilin'.
Says I to myself, our minister
Is givin's a little bitter;
I'll tell him when the meetin's out, that I
Ain't at all that kind of a critter.

Mr. COLBY'S SPEECH ON PROTECTION.

Mr. Colby said he proposed to move an amendment of which he had long ago given notice in reference to the duty on petroleum. It was well known that the duties which had been paid on this article for years were exceptional in their character and burdensome to the consumer. When the duty of 15c. per gallon was placed on petroleum the article was being sold for 40cts. per gallon, and there was an excise duty of 8c per gallon. Since that oil had greatly depreciated in value. The amount of petroleum produced and consumed in Canada, and paying the excise duty, was 5,135,395 gallons, while the amount which appeared to be imported, paying the Customs duty, was 691,060 gallons. There was a great amount smuggled into the country, and assuming that to be double that which paid the Customs duty, there were over seven millions of gallons consumed in Canada. The revenue from the excise duty was $268,552, and from Customs, $103,665. He proposed to reduce the Customs duty from 15 to 7½ cents per gallon. He believed this reduction would reduce smuggling and induce importation. The refiner would still have a protection larger than any other manufactured in the country, from 20 to 30 per cent. The consumer in Canada had for years been paying 15 cents per gallon more than was paid in the United States, the refiner having added the amount of his protection to the price charged to the consumer. He quoted from the Montreal Herald in proof of this statement. The loss to the country annually had been one million less the revenue derived from Customs and Excise. If they were now discussing the tariff they might well urge that light should be placed in the same category with other necessaries of life. The tax to which he proposed to reduce the present duty would be nearly 100 per cent. upon the market value of the article—7½ cents gold as against 10 cents American currency. It was well known that a number of gentlemen in the West had taken the advantage of the high tariff to secure a monopoly, and to prevent competition had subsidized and closed up the large proportion of the refineries in this country. They stood between the consumer and the producer, and formed the first ring with which he was acquainted in Canada for the purpose of controlling the whole market. This was the result of the duty being specific instead of ad valorem. It was the duty of the Government and of Parliament to administer a sharp lesson to these gentlemen, and show them that no such ring could exist in Canada. He admitted that this was the result of unreasonable and undue protection, not of fitting and reasonable protection such as had been advocated on the floor of this House. Protectionists if consistent should denounce this as a caricature of protection, and should be the first to remove this stain from the name of protection, so that their opponents should not be able to point to it as an example of their views. There could be no doubt that the duty of fifteen cts. per gallon was injurious to the consumer. He believed it was injurious to the revenue, and it was also injurious to the towns where the closed refineries were situated. He had brought this matter forward in the public interest, and not with any desire to embarrass the Government. No one could justify the inordinate duty or the practice of the refiners. He contended it was an unmitigated evil and a great injury to the country. No member of the Government would hamper themselves in any way so as to prevent the continuance of this grievance. The Government were strong enough to open the door and do away with this tax, and to shut it again without allowing any other changes to enter. He was happy that none of them had so committed themselves. He was sure the Government could do a great deal more strengthen themselves than by allowing the House to vote according to their convictions, and he would like to see the individual who would vote on the merits of the case and say he would continue this tax It would be a subject of great satisfaction and relief to the members of the House if Government would allow this burden of half a million of dollars to be done away with. Perhaps he should not have obtruded this question, but he had done so simply because he desired to see an act done which should be done. He moved, "That the Speaker do not now leave the chair, but that it be resolved that it is expedient, in the public interest, that the Customs duty on petroleum be reduced from 15 cents to 7½ per gallon."

MR. SCRIVER, in seconding the motion, said that the hon. gentleman had discussed the matter fully and ably, but there were one or two points which he had overlooked. Members who did not live on the frontier had no idea of the amount of the illicit traffic which was carried on in this article. Before he came here he was aware of the great extent of illicit traffic, but since he had arrived here this session he had learned much more than he knew before. A great deal of the time of the officials of the department was taken up with this matter. He had not the slightest doubt if the duty was reduced one-half the revenue would be still greater. It might be unpatriotic to say it but it was nevertheless the truth, that the American article was far superior to the Canadian, and it was consumed by our people as a matter of choice. It was sad to reflect how much by this illicit traffic the morals of the people were affected. He would not say that the morals of the frontier counties were worse than those of others, but place other people under the same temptations and he believed the result would be the same. He referred to the manner in which a Customs official had been beaten, and said that he had been informed that the Government had seriously considered the question of arming the preventive officers. He was far from desiring to embarrass the Government, having supported their policy. He knew that it was not their intention to increase the tariff, but he was not aware that they were unprepared to give to the country the relief which was here sought for.

Opposition to Great Inventions.

Tradition says that John Faust, one of the three inventors of printing, was charged with multiplying books by the aid of the devil, and was persecuted both by priests and the people. The strongest opposition to the press has, however, been presented in Turkey. The art of printing had existed three hundred years before a printing-press was established in Constantinople. From 1629 to 1740 that pre-issued only twenty-three volumes. It was then stopped, and did not resume its issues until after an interval of more than forty years. About 1780 a press was established at Scutari, and between 1780 and 1807 issued forty volumes. Again its operations were suspended, and were not resumed until 1820, since which time it has worked more industriously than heretofore, although fettered with the patterns oversight of the Turkish Government. The ribbon-loom is an invention of the sixteenth century; and on the plea that it deprived many workmen of bread, it was prohibited in Holland, in Germany, in the dominions of the church, and in the countries of Europe. At Hamburg the council ordered a loom to be publicly burned. The stocking loom shared the fate of the ribbon-loom. In England the patronage of Queen Elizabeth was requested for the invention, and it is said that the inventor was impeded rather than assisted in his undertaking. In France opposition to the stocking-loom was of the most base and cruel kind. A Frenchman who had adopted the invention, manufactured by the loom a pair of silk stock

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 6, 1876.

THE BY-LAWS

The Ratepayers will be called on in a few days to vote on those By-laws providing for repaying the money spent in the erection of the South Ward School and the Iron and Locks Bridges These works forced themselves on the Town Council and School Board. The falling of the old Iron Bridge caused the Council to erect a new one at once. and the same may be said of the Locks Bridge when it was damaged. As to the School building everyone will say that the Board did right in erecting it. The Ward is a large one and is filling up very fast, and the School therefore was very much needed. The expenditure of money expend, there fore,so far as the nature of the works is concerned imperatively demanded and ought to be paid in such a way as to be easiest borne by the ratepayers. It would not be fair or just to force the Council to levy the whole sum of $9,000 over and above current expenses in one year. Those who may come after us will reap largely the advantages of those undertakings, and the present ratepayers would be foolish to force the payment in one year, and that too at a time when people have enough to pay to make ends meet.

There is no use in entering into the costs or outlays on either the bridges or the school house. The amounts have been paid, and the people will act wisely in going to the polls and voting for the by laws, so as to extend the time of payment. If dissatisfied with the acts of their council in the past, let them have an eye over them in the future and prevent any more outlay until the town shall be better able to provide for it. We hope therefore that wise councils will prevail. and the present by laws will be sustained The sums asked for are somewhat less than the entire costs, and no one believes that there could be to any extent undue influence in awarding the tenders, &c., all the work was let by tender.

The defeat of the other by-laws was mere intended to show the council that they were subject to the will of the people in their undertakings, than any desire to repudiate their liabilities, and also to prevent undue extravagance through the year unless provided for; and if the defeat of the first by-laws ensure this object the delaw will be amply repaid, but no good object can be attained by defeating the present by-laws.

Another feature in this matter is. The Council cannot levy the amount at all They cannot legally place the amount on the Roll, for if they did, any ratepayer could refuse to pay any portion of it. If the by laws be not passed as submitted the Bank which holds the Town Treasurer's paper will obtain an execution or judgement and cause the Sheriff to levy the amount necessary, and he will receive his poundage for so doing. This is not desirable and would be foolish in the extreme. To avoid this let the by-laws be passed, and let all be watched in the future.

THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES

In the eagerness of men to succeed to their highest ambitions. they are very often unmindful of their own best interests, and forget to take into consideration future consequences. In this eagerness, honor, self respect, their country's weal, and principles of true liberty are sacrificed.

In every country in Europe, and in the United States the questions that largely enter into political elections and political discussions are the influences of the Clergy, and the desire to build up dominant churches. Canada is not free from the contagion in this matter, and already the Clergy of some churches have spoken very plainly to their dominees.

There is no denying the fact, that the influence of the Clergy over candidates and electors in some places is such as to turn the scale in favor of their friends; and this has led many men. good men, to avoid public life In not a few cases it has brought to the rostrum men who were and are ready to sacrifice everything to their ambitions, and hence ready to pander to those who can afford them and when they require it, viz: at the polls.

In this eagerness to secure this aid at the polls, all parties, to a certain extent at least, have consented to subserve the interest of that church that could ensure the assistance required. This has been the means of inducing Bishop Bourget and others to believe that if they can control their own people they can control the elections, and hence control the legislation of the country in favor of their church.

Laymen are now beginning to find that to oppose the church influence would be political suicide, and they now do not fail to fall in with their superiors.

In a peroration on St. Patrick's Day in Toronto, which Mr. D A. O'Sullivan, brother of Doctor O'Sullivan delivered. we find the following sentence.

"I have attached myself to no political party. I am not one of those who is Catholic after his party is served"

Further on as regards the position of Catholics toward the state, he says:

"At any other time in the history of this country it would be unnecessary to say a word as regards the position of Catholics towards the State At present however, the discussion both here and in England justifies an allusion and I shall be true myself in speaking of it, but refer to authorities that will explain the situation It may be broadly stated that the position of Catholics in Canada towards the state, so far as regards civil allegiance is not dissimilar to their position elsewhere is the same relation, and that their civil allegiance is judged by a standard different from that which determines the allegiance of non-Catholics. Some extracts from a writer in the "Monthly" for December 1874 will explain this "Catholic Theologians" says F. Parkinson "of the school of Suarez and Bellarmine hold that there are two distinct powers in the world the temporal and the spiritual, each having its own sphere, its own end and its own mode of operation. that both powers are ordained by God, and that whatever authority resides in them comes to both cases alike from God" After defining the ends of these powers and showing that the infliting of high and eternal destinies of man as an immortal being, Suarez, he says is held in any well regulated state, he says: "it only remains to say that of these two powers the temporal is on a lower level to the spiritual power and in certain respects subordinate to it" He proves this position by the guidance of the temporal to the law of nature that of the supernatural but to complete revelation, and showing that the latter is capable of "throwing light upon and enhancing the prescriptions of the natural law, and therefore upon operation of the temporal order. Reason therefore it is that the temporal should in some way be subordinate to the spiritual order, and that all the more, inasmuch as it is the very reason of the being of the spiritual and supernatural order to aid and support the temporal and natural." He then states other proofs to which it is unnecessary to refer. I take the position as established, and note to which every Catholic will readily subscribe. The existence of these two powers give rise to the question of "divided" or "double" allegiance, and was one of the questions debated in the Gladstonian controversy. "With Catholics the voice of the Church is the external standard by which every utterance of human law requires to be measured before it rightly challenges obedience" (Dublin Review.) "With the followers of Mr Gladstone it is their own individual conscience A discussion as to the merits of the two different standards would be out of place here, but I may be permitted to repeat the words of the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminister that the "Catholic offers to the state as full allegiance, both in kind and degree as can be afforded to any one who believes in God and a Natural law."

Now here is a positive declaration of a layman that church obligations are above duties to the state, and hence an implied, nay indeed an asserted devotion to the church first, and to the state next, and also an assertion that he is not like Protestants, subject to his own conscience, for he says: "With Catholics the voice of the Church is the external standard by which every utterance of human law requires to be measured before it rightly challenges obedience."

This question has assumed an unusual importance in Lower Canada, and as our readers are aware, has engaged the attention of Sir A. T. Galt, and others. whose letters have already appeared in the newspapers of all the provinces, and only one Protestant newspaper—the Gazette, has been bold enough to defend the Ultramonte tendencies of political Clerical influence, and to condemn Sir A. T. Galt's letter. Since that Mr. Galt has written a pamphlet, the advance sheets of which have appeared, and in these

The matter is summed up as follows:—"In conclusion let me endeavour to comply with the demand made upon me from various quarters to point out some course of action which will avert the evils of which I complain. The course is plain and the result certain, but it involves the co-operation of the leaders of our rival political parties, and can, therefore, only be obtained through pressure upon them If the leaders of both political parties would, for once, lay aside their mutual jealousy and unite in a declaration to the hierarchy that their interference must absolutely cease or that all would unite in legislation to check it effectually this affair must end. To attain this object I suggest an organization composed of Catholics and Protestants, irrespective of creed, nationality, or political party, for the maintenance of the civil rights of the people. Such an organization, thoroughly in earnest, would bring sufficient pressure on our rulers both at Ottawa and Quebec, to ensure their compliance, and to settle for our day, at least the proper and harmonious relation of Church and State."

In view of the fact that a more than common effort is being made in Lower Canada to control the legislation of that Province, and of the Dominion also, in the interest of a foreign church, and in the interest of a power incompatible with civil and religious liberty, it may become the interests of the people of the Dominion to take the advice of Sir A.T Galt, and compel the leaders of both parties to lay aside their personal jealousies, and hopes of aggrandizement, and unite to resist an influence that is dangerous to the State and to the liberties of the people, and if need be, form a new party unbiassed by old party feuds and personal contentions

DEPRESSION OF TRADE.

It is amusing to read the evidence taken before the Depression of Trade Committee at Ottawa. The men brought before this committee appear to have no settled idea of the cause of the depression of trade, at the present time and all talk as if the depression was confined to Canada, merely. They appear to forget that the United States, England. Prussia, and other countries are suffering from both over-trading and over production, together with inflation caused by the "civil war," and the Franco-Prussian war. Turkey, is unable to pay her liabilities. Egypt is almost bankrupt, and Trade and Commerce affected everywhere. To look for a remedy for such general depression in protection for Canada is only a manifestation of ignorance of the causes and the extension of the depression. It is true that a few are ready to use the derangement of trade for political purposes, but those who may try this will find their great disappointment in due time. If Croakers, complaining of hard times would live within their means in time of prosperity there would be less complaining now, and less cause for it.

The following evidence before the committee will interest our readers.

JOHN RUTHERFORD. for many years Inspector of Coal Mines in Nova Scotia. Had—The quantity of coal sent from Nova Scotia to the Province of Quebec rose from 259,000 tons in 1871 to 671,132 tons in 1874; of this 258 973 tons were soft coal: the trade with the United States had been falling off, though in 1873, owing to exceptional circumstances, the exports to that country had increased; they had in Nova Scotia all kinds of coal; there were many American companies engaged in mining coal in Nova Scotia; the capital invested in coal mining was about twelve millions; the exports of coal to the United States in 1873 were 118,000 tons; the Sydney coal of Cape Breton comes nearest to Newcastle coal, in fact he considered it almost equal to that celebrated mineral; their steam coals was supplied to ocean steamers and considered satisfactory; the superior steam coal was very fine; the produce of the Sydney mines he accounted a local trade, as it was consumed in Newfoundland and the Provinces; there was more halls lity to spontaneous combustion in some kinds of coal; they sent Nova Scotia coals on the longest voyages without accident; in 1855 there were sold from the mines 635,000 tons; which were mostly sent to New York and neighbouring towns; the capital invested in the trade at that time was about eight millions; the United States coins were now supplied from Pennsylvania; the Cape Breton coal still went there was used for gas and also for steam; Nova Scotia coal could be laid down Boston at $2 25 @2 75; it could be laid in down in Montreal at the same price; he regarded the coal trade, as depressed; no doubt the first cause of the depression was the depression in trade generally, and the greater competition in the coal mining industry; the price of coal in the States was only a dollar per ton less than in former years; the number of men employed at the mines in Nova Scotia was over 4,000. but 5,000 men could be employed; several mines were closed last winter; in 1873 there were 180,000 tons sent to Quebec and Montreal; the returns for 1874 were not yet made up but he thought they would show a falling off, he could not say that he was desirous of seeing a duty put on the importation of coal; the price of coal in Pictou was $2 10, at which price they would be glad to sell, what was complained of was not the low price, but the want of sale; the freight to Toronto would be about $150; he suggested that a bounty of $1 50 a ton should be allowed upon coal, which would be equal to the difference in price between Nova Scotia and American coal.

The CHAIRMAN read a letter from Cassel & Brother, Cronkville, stating that they were manufacturing agricultural implements for Berlin, Germany. The firm which they supplied had branch offices in London, Vienna, Paris, and Moscow, being the largest dealers in Europe. Their contract extended for five years; they expressed the opinion that the supply exceeds the demand. A letter from Mr Massey, President of the Massey Manufacturing Co., was also read, stating that the company manufactured $100,000 worth of agricultural implements yearly, of which eight to ten thousand dollars worth were shipped annually to Germany. The company expected a continuance of that trade, and were satisfied with the present tariff, which was sufficiently protective.

The Committee then adjourned.

The Sombra Murder.

Mr. Henry Smith, who is under sentence of death for the murder of Mr. Finlay, in Sombra, in October last, has made a statement of the whole matter so far as known by him. In it he declares his innocence of the murder, and inculpates Mrs. Finlay. The statement below we clip from the Mail of Saturday last.

To the Editor of the Mail.

SIR,—As the above case is one of considerable public interest, may I ask you to accede to the wishes of William Henry Smith, the man charged with the murder, and condemned to death.

I have been visiting him in gaol since his conviction, and a day or two ago he sent for me, that I might receive his statement concerning the crime for which he is condemned, and, committing it to writing, might send it to you for insertion in The Mail

Herewith is the statement he has made, the truthfulness of which he persistently and most solemnly affirms.

Yours, etc.,
T. S ELLERBY.
Rector of St. George's church, Sarnia.
Sarnia, March 30th, 1875.

STATEMENT.

I, William Henry Smith, now under sentence of death for the murder of Ralph Spence Finlay, as charged against me at the Assizes held in Sarnia in October last, do hereby protest my entire innocence of that charge and wish to make the following statement:—

I entered the service of the late Mr Finlay about four years ago as a farm labourer.

With the exception of a few words of remonstrance respecting my wages, and his objections to my occasional untidiness of dress when I came into meals, I had never any difference or alteration with him, and never expressed or harboured any ill-feelings towards him.

The night of the murder I went to bed at my usual hour (nine o'clock) in company with my bed fellow, Richard Shanks, and my first knowledge of the event that had occurred was when Mrs. Finlay came and knocked at the outside of he partition of our bedroom calling on Richard Shanks. I was sound asleep at the time but was roused by Shanks laying his hands upon me. I asked him what was the matter, but before he had time to reply Mrs Finlay said, "You had better get up, Dick," adding, "you had better both get up. Finlay has gone to the stable with the lantern, and I hear the horses snorting and making a noise but cannot see any light, and am afraid something is wrong." Shanks and I at once got up, put on our pants and boots, and I went out into the kitchen, where we found Mrs. Finlay standing. We all went together to the door looked out, and could see nothing, but heard the horses still making a noise. I do not know whether or not Mrs. Finlay was fully dressed. All that I remember noticing was that she had wrapped herself in a shawl. She left us and went into the pantry to get a candle, which she handed to me and which was lighted by her, or myself, before we left the house. I carried it in my left hand with my right hand over it. Richard Shanks accompanied me, while Mrs Finlay remained standing at the kitchen door When we reach d the stable we found the door half open, and did not at once enter, but stopped on the outside and looked In. We saw Mr. Finlay lying on the floor with his legs partly drawn up. At this moment Mrs. Finlay shouted to us, asking "Is there anything the matter?" She then left the kitchen door, came towards the stable and enquired "Is he dead?" Either Shanks or I replied "He has not moved." On which she said "You had better go in and see if he is dead." We both of us then entered, I still holding the lighted candle in my left hand, covering it with my right. Shanks felt Mr. Finlay's hand, the left one I think, and said, "The ends of his fingers are cold, but the rest of his hand is as warm as mine." Mrs Finlay hearing this said, "It's cruel to see him lying there, better bring him into the house." My answer was "We had best fetch the neighbours first" Then it was proposed to tie up the loose horse, when Shanks said he would not tie him on, and I said I would not do it. We all three then returned towards the house discussing whether Shanks or I should go for the neighbours, Mrs. Finlay walking behind. When we had proceeded about seven or eight rods, she came up on my right side, and caught me by the right arm, and said, "You (meaning Shanks and myself) had better go and tie up the horse." I said I would not do it; and Shanks said he would not do it She then pinched me by the arm and said, "You had better go, and try to tie him, anyway." It was then I suspected, by her pinching my arm the second time, and by the way she spoke, that there was something the matter. All three of us then went back to the stable, and Shanks and I, stepped over the body, went inside about two yards We were still talking about tying up the horses. Whilst I was holding the candle at arms length, and facing towards Shanks and turning my head sufficiently to make a full turn round, I saw Mrs. Finlay put her right hand and take the gun from the bench. The gun had been standing against the bench, which had a bag of potatoes upon it, and projecting over it. She then stepped back with the gun about three paces, and, crouching down, let it rest on the butt end in the corner At the same time, looking up to where Shanks and I stood, and seeing me watching her, she shook her head at me, to warn me, as I thought, against taking any notice of her She then backed out of the stable After she was gone, Shanks and I went on talking about the horses, and decided at last not to tie them up—because they were dangerous. All this time, from what I had seen Mrs. Finlay do, I was getting more and more suspicious that there was something wrong. We then left the stable, found Mrs Finlay standing outside, and returned with her to the house, deciding on the way that Shanks and I should at once inform the neighbours. When we came to the end of the house, Shanks stopped there, and Mrs Finlay and I went into the cook house Then I put the candle, which I had been carrying in my hand all this while, into a milk pitcher that was on the table, and then Mrs Finlay told me not to take any notice of what I had seen her do in the stable, on which I said, "What shall I say then to the neighbors?" and she replied, "You do not know but that the horse kicked him."

I had no further conversation with her just then, and Shanks and I went off for the nearest neighbour. On our way I said to Shanks that, as he was better acquainted with Roebuck than I was, he must wake him up and tell him what had happened. I, from my associations, not wishing to be the spokesman When Shanks had told Roebuck, he said we had better wake up Alex McDonald, and tell him also We went accordingly and told McDonald because Shanks did not know him Whilst running back to Finlay's we overtook Roebuck and his brother proceeding to the house, and accompanied them All this time Mrs. Finlay was left alone in the house. Leaving Roebuck and the rest outside, I went into the cook-house and took the candle, which was still burning, from the pitcher where I had put it, and with the others went to the stable, and keeping outside look ed in and saw the body lying just as we left it. Soon afterwards the party was joined by Alex. McDonald and his man, and all who where there passed their opinion that the horse had killed Finaly. Mrs. Finlay who was there also, expressed the wish to have the the body taken into the house, saying the second time, "It's cruel to let him lie there" She also then suggested to McDonald that Dr Mitchell should be sent for, and she asked me to go to their friends at Dover and inform them of Finlay's death. Leaving Shanks with the others outside the stable, I went towards the house, and before I got there I saw McDonald leaving it. Then I went in, and said to Mrs. Finlay, had she sent for a doctor and she said she sent for Dr. Mitchell. It was then that she asked me if had seen what she did in the stable, and I told her that I had seen her take the gun from the bench, on which she got up from the lounge, where she was sitting, and began to cry, and said, "Only for that gun it would have been a secret to the world." She then went to the cupboard and took a Bible from off the top, and said, "I want you to swear that you will never repeat what I am going to tell you." For a few seconds I made no answer. She then said "Are you not going to do as I ask you, for I don't know the minute when some of them will be in?" I still kept silence, when she said if I would not do what she wanted she would poison herself before five minutes was over. I knew that she had poison in the pantry. I had felt badly scared before, but this threat to poison herself made me worse, and I answered her by saying, "I will do what you ask me in this way, so long as I am not put myself in danger," and she said in reply, "You know that I cannot do anything to you. She then told me how Finlay was killed, and said that she went out on the night before, and loaded the hammer gun, knowing that the horse would soon break loose, and fixed things to her hand, and that, returning to the house, she went to bed to Finlay. Whilst lying awake she heard the horses making a noise. She then woke up Finlay, telling him that the horses were loose in the stable, and that he had better attend to them, because he might get to the potatoes He then got up and she got up too, making as an excuse for so doing, that she wanted to warm some milk for the baby, and that she would go out with him. She told me that they went out both together, he carrying the lantern. He unlocked the stable door and went in, and as he stepped in she told him to be careful lest the horse should kick him also telling him to look and see if the horse had eaten any of the potatoes. She said, "I had now the gun in my hand; he stooped down to look, and as he was rising I shot him and as the gun went off I fell against the bench in a fright and the gun dropped out of my hands"

It was about an hour after the body was found that she told me all this. When I was going to dress myself, in order to go to Dover for her friends, she said, "Don't dress yourself, but go as you are, for it will look more like an accident and I did as she wished me, she giving me $1 to pay for a buggy. She also talked to me about the different doctors, and said she would not have Dr. Newman but wanted Dr. Mitchell, because he belonged to the Oddfellows, as did also her brother Robert, and that the two together would bring it to suicide and get him buried out of the way, and she would be free in the world once more.

I wish to mention some other facts She first of all said the charge of this murder upon another man, and told of her brother-in-law that if anyone had done the deed it must have been Buchanan. At the Coroner's inquest I was anxious to tell all that Mrs Finlay had confessed to me, but they would not hear me and ordered me out of the room A good deal was said at the trial about the bottle of brandy I bought at Wallaceburg on the Thursday. It was bought by me for her, and at her request I never tasted a drop of it When making her confession to me on the Saturday she told me that for six or seven years she had been planning how to get rid of her husband, and that the only sure way was to do it at night, because she could not do it in daylight when they were all about. She also said that about a week before the murder she sent away home the servant girl, Mary Ann, who was accustomed to sleep with her, while her husband slept by himself in another room. She did this to get her out of the way. During day after the murder she said to me, I am afraid it will be found out, and in reply I said, If you tell on yourself I cannot help it—I will not tell She rejoined, That is what I am afraid of. I might mention also that one day after our arrest, and when I was down stairs helping to wash out the gaol, she came to me and spoke through the window, and told me that she would not again charge me with the murder if only I would not repeat what she told me.

In conclusion, I repeat that I am entirely innocent of the murder of Mr Finlay, and that all that Mrs. Finlay has said against me in this matter is false, and has been invented by her to screen herself. I ask, therefore, the sympathy and help of the public, in order that the affair may be more searchingly investigated, and that I may not suffer the penalty of death for a crime of which I am guiltless.

TORONTO PRESBYTERY.

THE CASE OF THE REV. D. J MACDONELL.

HIS STATEMENT AND THE ACTION OF THE PRESBYTERY THEREON.

The Presbytery of Toronto met in Knox Church yesterday, Rev Dr. Topp, moderator, in the chair. The morning and afternoon sessions were occupied with the transaction of the general business of the Presbytery. At the evening session the clerk read the following statement, handed in by Rev. D. J. Macdonnell:—

To the Moderator and Members of the Presbytery of Toronto.

FATHERS AND BRETHREN:—At a meeting of this Presbytery held on the 4th November, 1875, a resolution was passed requiring me to report as to my agreement with the teachings of the Confession of Faith on the doctrine of future punishment not later than the last regular meeting before the General Assembly In accordance with the terms of said resolution, I desire now to submit the following:—

1. So far as the language of the Confession of Faith on this point is concerned I find that it is almost entirely borrowed from Scripture, and I declare my adhesion to it, understanding the phrase "eternal torments" to have the same meaning as everlasting punishment" in Matthew xxv

2. While I do not consider myself debarred by the teaching of Scripture from hoping that God may in some way put an end to sin and suffering. I am satisfied that it is not a part of the message with which I am entrusted as a minister of the Gospel to hold out any hope of future pardon to those who have in this life rejected Christ. "Now is the accepted time." What God may do hereafter is apparently not among the things revealed or intended to be known.

I hope that this statement will prove satisfactory.

I am, Fathers and Brethern,
Yours respectfully,
(Signed) D. J. MACDONELL.

Rev. DAVID MITCHELL said he would move the acceptance of the statement as a sufficient expression from Mr. Macdonnell of the position in which he had been placed. He thought it must be gratifying to the members of Presbytery to receive a latter so courteously expressed and breathing so kindly a Christian spirit. He thought that perhaps a great deal of good had been done by leading them all to the earnest study of Scripture on this tremendous matter, and he hoped and prayed that God would bless the experiences they had had in relation to it.

Rev. Mr. McKAY seconded the motion.

Rev. Prof. McLAREN said he rose with a good deal of reluctance to make a motion on this subject. He had listened to the document just read with much interest, and he did not feel at present that he was prepared to pronounce an opinion upon it. He was glad that in some respects, it was what it was, but at the same time he was not sure that it was all they must require. He thought that the proper mode of disposing of it would be to refer it to a committee, with instructions to report at a subsequent meeting. He did not think they ought to discuss it at present, particularly as many members were absent on important business, and he thought it would be desirable that before any judgment was pronounced on it, there should be an opportunity to think over its terms calmly and deliberately. He was sure if the terms in which it was couched were deemed satisfactory by the Presbytery no one would rejoice in it more throughly than he would, but he thought that the course he had suggested was the proper one to take. He would, therefore, make a motion to that effect. He thought the meeting should take place before long, as the matter should not allowed to hang over their heads for an indefinite length of time.

The letter was referred to a committee to report.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—I see by the minutes of the last session of the Township Council of Asphodel a resolution in reference to myself, which would lead the public to think there was some thing wrong. The facts of the case are—In the erection of the New Town Hall I had several changes to make which added to its cost. The Architect, Mr. Belcher, lived in Peterborough. The Council appointed a building committee of themselves, and they might as well have lived in New York—for when sought for counsel in reference to the progress of their work their answer was—apply to the Architect. This left me to exercise my own judgment in many instances, and at the closing up of the contract I had a bill of extras to the amount of $386. I laid the bill before the Council and they would not give it their consideration until the Architect would examine said building, and report to them. He did so, and was highly pleased with the work However, he did not report on my bill of extras, but simply stated that the council was indebted to me a certain sum, which reduced the bill to nearly one-half. I waited on the architect and asked him for the bill shewing the items he approved, and those he disapproved. He said he would remit it to me in a few days I called a week and then a note him for it, but for some reason unknown to me he neither answered my letter or remitted bill of items as he promised.

On the first Monday in February I laid a bill of the cost of said Hall before the Council, showing that it had cost $150 more than I had received exclusive of my own services. I only asked the Council for a balance of my bill of extras which was $123, nor did I ask them to vote me that sum; I simply asked for a public meeting of the ratepayers, and was willing to abide their decision. They promised to do so on the 24th of the same month When they met again Mr. J. P. Brown moved the following motion which appears in the Norwood Register of March 2nd:

Moved by J P Brown, seconded by Thos. Burke,—That this Council are of opinion that William Sargent, the contractor for the Town Hall, has now received all that he is entitled to for building of the same, and refuse to take any further action in the matter—Carried. And also in your own paper denying me an appeal to the ratepayers, and ending up what they promised.

I must say the Reeve's conduct towards me from the commencement of the work was courteous and gentlemanly, and Mr. J Finlay would not vote for the motion.

You will find copies of the Architects reports to the Council which you will please insert with my communication.

And oblige, Yours, &c.,
WM. SARGENT.

Peterborough, Dec. 21st 1875.

To the Reeve and Council of Asphodel:

GENTLEMEN,—On the 15th Inst., I visited, examined and measured your Township Hall, at Norwood, and it gives me great pleasure to state that Mr. Wm Sargent, your contractor, has faithfully fulfilled the conditions of his contract in the erection and completion of the above building in accordance with my plans and specifications. The workmanship and material in all its parts are of excellent character, and reflect credit on Mr Sargent and his subcontractor, Mr. Wm Harpe.

I regret to learn that Mr. Sargent's labors have not been rewarded in a financial point of view as the work merits they should be, do to the lasting silence in obtaining suitable material as convenient as he expected when he made his tender. Some of these I am informed he discovered before he signed the contract but with laudable determination he resolved to accomplish what he stated in his tender he would, and has done it well. In the face of these facts might I suggest to your honorable body without being considered presumptuous, the consideration of Mr. Sargent's losses on the contract, which he has stated to me to be about $125 beyond the amount of my enclosed certificate of balance of contract and extra works.

I am, Gentlemen,
JNO E. BELCHER,
C E & Architect.

Amount of extras over contract, $186.28.

WHEREAS by an agreement made the 20th day of February In the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Seventy Five, between William Sargent of the Township of Seymour in the County Northumberland, Contractor of the one part, and the Corporation of the Township of Asphodel, in the County of Peterborough, of the other part, it was agreed for the consideration and other the terms therein set forth, that he said William Sargent would erect a Township Hall for the said Township of Asphodel, in Norwood, in accordance with the plans and specifications, and in consideration thereof the said Corporation agreed to pay the consideration therein set forth. It was also agreed between the said parties that in the event of doubt, difficulty, or misunderstanding, in respect of the said plans and specifications, or any question arising in respect any extension, modification in the said intended works, to sub it all and singular such doubts, difficulties or misunderstandings and questions of compression of the substruments and decision of me the undersigned, John E. Belcher, on all and any such questions as might arise and be in difference between them. And whereas, variations extensions and modifications in the execution of the said works became expedient, and thereupon the function of arbitrator conferred by the said agreement became exercisable under the powers of the said agreement conferred I have inquired into the variations and extensions, and I have diligently considered the whole premises, and I do now hereby make and publish this my certificate concerning the same,

I do hereby certify that there is now due, and by the said Corporation of the Township of Asphodel to the said William Sargent, in respect of the work of the said building, and including the balance due on account of the contract for the erection of the same, of Eight hundred and thirty six dollars and twenty cts, to cents, ($836.20) and no more.

Witness my hand this 21st day of December, 1875.

JOHN E BELCHER,
Engineer & Architect,
Peterborough

hereby certify this to be a correct and true copy of certificate.

SIR,—The great fault of Reformers is that they do not know how to hold office when they get it Their leaders assume importance and neglect their friends as if they were to be no longer of any service In the old days of the family compact party, it was a prevailing idea that all the respectability centered in that party, and that Reformers, who were then ground down into the earth and were struggling for equal rights and privileges, were too low down in the social scale to be worthy of notice And this went so far as to deny to Ministers of what was then called, by way of reproach, dissenting churches, the right to marry their own people. But after many difficulties had been overcome, and many hard battles had been fought and won by Reformers, their odious distinctions were to some extent removed, and what was termed "common people" began to hold up their heads I have hope still, with all the advantages thus acquired, the "common people" have had to meet with drawbacks, and have often been made to feel even by their own political leaders that they were not quite as respectable as the Tories, and that they must be content to stand back and wait until their betters are served And, notwithstanding the vast improvements which have been effected in the social and educational condition of Reformers and notwithstanding that to-day, they, in all their qualities, stand at least the equal of any class of the people, still they are not respected by their leaders, and not trusted with that degree of confidence to which they are entitled, and they are passed by in the distribution of patronage and as good as told that that they are not worthy of it When the late John Sandfield Macdonald obtained office he although a life long Reformer, began to look down upon his political friends, and to look up to his opponents, until at last he ignored these "common people", and became to all intents and purposes as big a Tory as any And it looks as if he was not to be the last example of this kind with which Reformers have got to contend I hope and trust that I am mistaken, but it certainly looks as if the present members of the Government now in power at Toronto were following close in the footsteps of their predecessor. The possession of office seems to have a dangerous influence upon even professing Reformers, and they with the pride and pomp of power, however short-lived it may be, their hearts become turned and they too soon learn to look aside from their old friends and seek to ally themselves with their aristocratic opponents The atmosphere of a Government House, with all its pleasures and pomp and pride, makes sensible, sober men vain, and gives them a dislike for homespun, and a contempt for labor, until at last they begin like their neighbors to think his former friend cannot be a gentleman if he works The remedy for all this lies with Reformers themselves. If they will only respect themselves as they might, they will soon compel others to respect them also; and the best way to show this self respect is to turn their backs upon those who prove false to duty and to right principle

PETERBOROUGH. APRIL 6 1876

CONNECTICUT.—The Democrats have carried the elections all over this state

"TWA HOURS AT HAME".—Mr. Kenedy and family will give an entertainment in Cobourg on Good Friday, April 14.

THE STEAMER NORSEMAN is to commence her regular trips from Charlotte to Port Hope in a few days.

USE CLARK & Co's Extra Quality Six Cord Cotton, with ANCHOR ON SPOOL. Leading Sewing Machine Agents say it is the best.

SALE OF FAT LAMBS.—Mr. Stanleton, will sell 38 Fat Lambs at the residence of Mr. Joan Ludgate, Ashburnham on Friday, at 3 p.m.

PERSONAL.—Mr. C. Perry left for Ottawa yesterday, having received a telegram that his father, the Hon E. Perry, was seriously ill at the capital.

The Best Sewing Cotton for Hand or Machine Sewing is CLARK & CO'S EXTRA QUALITY SIX CORD. Notice the Anchor on each Spool.

PROTESTANT HOME.—It is proposed to have an entertainment in aid of the P.P Home about the 21st of April. There will be a sale of useful and fancy articles; contributions will be thankfully received by Mrs. James Campbell, Mrs. George Shaw, Mrs. Kemps, or any members of the Home Committee.

THE SOMBRA MURDER.—In another column will be found the statement of the man Smith, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of Mr. Finlay, of Sombra last October. If his statement be true, then Mrs. Finlay is a monster, a fiend in human shape, and it is desirable that the execution be delayed until Smith's statements be investigated and their truthfulness tested.

MEXICO.—This country is again involved in a revolution and the troops are deserting the government. The country will never be prosperous or peaceful until placed under a stronger central power or swallowed up in the great Republic. The latter is the more desirable as it would tend to a more progressive and liberal policy, greater liberty of conscience, more generally diffused education, and freedom from foreign influence not conducive to national prosperity.

Y. M. C. A.—There will be a Concert of Sacred Music, interspersed with select readings to-night, beginning at 8 o'clock in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association. As this will be the last meeting of the series for this season, we hope to see a large attendance No charge for admission, but a collection will be taken up to help defray expenses. A cordial invitation to be present is extended to all. This Association affords a thoroughly evangelical platform, on which all christians can meet to work for "the kingdom."

GOLD WATCH.—A valuable gold watch will be given away at P. D. Doran's store on Dominion Day. Any person buying a suit of clothes—for cash—of the value of Fifteen Dollars or over, will be entitled to a ticket; or if the purchase exceed Thirty Dollars, the person will get two tickets. The watch is guaranteed to be solid gold, purchased from the new firm of Muncaster & Sanderson, and is on exhibition in Mr. Doran's store window. Gentlemen wanting a new suit of clothes will do well to call on Mr. Doran as he has just received a large stock of Tweeds and cueting to select from, and we understand that Mr. Smith is a first class cutter.

SABBATH SCHOOL JUBILEE.—The Sabbath School Jubilee under the management of Mr. Lasher, was a success. The children acquitted themselves well, singing several pieces very nicely for so many voices. The assistance rendered by Mrs. Bowman, and Mr. T Brown, tended to that success. The Revd's Messrs Rice, Morrow, Watson, Carroll, Willoughby, and Maclennan, gave short addresses in intervals, on appropriate subjects, such as addresses to the young: the benefits of music, in the church and in the Sabbath School: addresses to the people, etc. The very sloppy state of the streets militated against the attendance, but taking all things into consideration, the Jubilee was successful

AN EXCITING RACE.—Some of our citizens were somewhat alarmed a few mornings ago, when looking out at early dawn, to witness an exciting race of three men in their slippers, shirts and drawers, merely. Fearing that some burglars had entered some of our stores, or moneyed institutions, and that the chase was with a view to capture the robbers, thieves or scoundrels who had attempted to rob us of our property, a full enquiry was made, when it was found to be only a question of speed: and the race was merely to test which was the fleetest.—The scene was a novel one to those who witnessed it, but suffice it to say that the one with best wind, swiftest step, and dexterity motion won Exercise before the sun rises is always considered an excellent sedative—better than a resolute or opiate for the nerves. It is not yet known whether a physician advised these early exercises, or whether they are a necessity to counteract the repose to shattered nerves—no matter which, exercise is good.

PETERBOROUGH LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of the above association was held on Tuesday evening last in the Firemen's Hall. Mr. Tabor, Vice-President, took the chair, the President of the Association being unavoidably absent. After the usual business of the Association was transacted the literary programme was proceeded with. Mr. Beak read "The Elephant" by Hastings, and Mr. E. B Edwards, B. C., read a very instructive essay entitled "A Hundred Years Ago." The following subject was then debated, "Was the British Government justified in issuing the last Slave Circular?" The affirmative was sustained by Messrs. Jeffers, B. A, and G. M. Rogers the negative by Messrs T. Acker and E. H. D. Hall Mr Edwards, one of the Vice-Presidents, who occupied the chair during the debate, after complimenting the gentlemen on the able manner they had discussed the subject, gave his decision in favor of the affirmative. A vote of thanks was passed thaking the Firemen for their kindness in allowing the Association the use of the hall for the evening. The meeting then adjourned.

HALIFAX

THE House of Assembly has passed a resolution to the effect that the manufacture, importation, and sale of all intoxicating liquors, except for medical and mechanical purposes, should be prohibited by law in the Dominion of Canada.

ON SUNDAY last Archbishop Connolly, of Halifax, preached in St. Mary's Cathedral, and referred to the late Chiniquy riots. He blames Protestants for encouraging Chiniquy, but denounced the rioters and their abettors in the strongest language.

A NUMBER of Christian Brothers have been teaching in the public schools here for some years. To-day, owing to some misunderstandin between the Superiors of the Order at Montreal and Archbishop Connolly, the Brothers have all resigned their positions in the schools, and leave here to-morrow.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The Board met on Tuesday evening.

Present, the Chairman, Mr. Stevenson, and Messrs. Edwards, McClelland Robertson, White, Johnston and Edmison.

The minutes were read and confirmed.

The Secretary read a communication from the Department of Education informing the Board that the apportionment of 1876 will be based on the number of children between 5 and 16 years of age in the Town, and requesting that the census of children be remitted to the department.

On motion of Mr. Edwards, this was referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. Stevenson, McClelland and the Inspector, with power to act.

From Mr. W. S Johnston, teacher of the Auburn School, submitting an acct for cleaning the school house. Ordered to be paid,

The Secretary read a report from the Principal, for March.

Mr Stevenson reported that since the Board met, Miss Dowling had asked to leave for two or three months, and that Mr. Cullen had taken her place in the meantime, subject to the will of the Board.

Mr. McClelland thought as Miss Dowling had left a substitute the Board did not require to take any action in the matter.

Mr. Edwards thought they had acted very much contrary to general usuage.

Mr Cox extended her leaving as she had a fee leave from the Chairman and other members, and she expected the matter to be brought before the Board at last meeting, but it had been neglected.

On motion of Mr. Cox, seconded by Mr. Edmison, the application of Miss Dowling for leave of absence was granted, she having provided a substitute.

Mr. Dixon expressed that he had taken five days and visited the Normal School, Upper Canada College, and the Collegiate Institute, Toronto. He had done so according to law, and he believed it was no loss to the Institute.

Mr. Edwards enquired if the committee to which the communication from the Department had been referred, was prepared to report.

Mr. Edmison explained that the chairman of the committee did not call a meeting. This he (Mr. Edmison) felt to be very blameworthy

Mr. McClelland also expressed his disapproval of the course pursued by the Chairman.

Messrs. Edmison and Edward strongly condemned the neglect of the Chairman of that special committee in not calling the committee together to consider the matter, as it was supposed to reflect on the school

Moved by Mr Cox, seconded by Mr. McClelland,—That the Secretary inform the Chairman of the Committee on Appointments that this Board had adjourned for two weeks to receive the report of that committee on the communication referred to them, when it is hoped he will be prepared to report.

Mr. Robertson asked if the teachers had a right to shut children out during dinner hour, and whether the children should be shut out till half-past nine o'clock.

Mr. McClelland agreed to enquire into the complaint, and report.

Mr Stevenson brought the matter of the Finances before the Board, as the Treasurer of the Town had refused to supply funds.

Mr. McClelland stated that he was surprised to find that the Treasurer had refused to furnish the money, and that he had done so by advice of the Mayor.

Mr. Edwards explained that he and the Mayor had considered the matter, and thought that the Board might as well raise their own funds as the town had voted down the Bylaws submitted.

Mr. Edmison was sorry that the town credit was held so doubtful, but he thought there was no fear that the town would be able to meet all demands. If the Town Council cannot manage matters better they should give way to their superiors

The Board adjourned.

DREADFUL SUICIDE.

A MAN INSTANTLY BLOWS HIMSELF INTO ETERNITY.

The Pembroke Observer has the following melancholy narrative:—On Wednesday last word reached town that a man named Joseph Mainville had been fatally shot at his residence on the Allumet Island, about two miles from Chapeau Village At first it was rumoured that the shooting had been accidental, but later intelligence proved, beyond all doubt that the unfortunate man had deliberately taken his own life.

It appears that on Wednesday morning about 4 o'clock Mainville got out of bed in his usual quiet manner, and after dressing with even more than usual deliberation, and saying his prayers, he quietly surveyed his ordinary duties—amongst others, the lighting a fire in a couple of stoves After this the family did not observe him going out, and knew nothing whatever of the tragedy which was being enacted so close to them until they found his body in the hay loft of an adjoining outhouse about two hours afterwards

The first discovery was made by one of the sons, who went out to the shed, and there saw blood streaming down the walls from the loft He immediately ran in and told the rest of the family that some of the poultry must have been killed by foxes, as blood was streaming from the loft. One of Mainville's daughters then went up into the loft, and found her father lying on his face on the floor, with a gun alongside his body. She turned him over on his back, and of course immediately saw what had happened—as he was lying in a large pool of blood, and with a gunshot wound in his breast about two inches in diameter.

From an examination of the position in which the body was found the jury came to the conclusion that after resting the butt of the gun on the log on which the rafters of the stable were fixed—and which was about three feet from the ground—deceased had placed the muzzle opposite his heart, and pulled or pushed the trigger by means of a stick This view was amply corroborated by the finding of a small piece of wood which had been used as a poker, and which was burned to a point at one end, and deceased's right hand had been blackened by holding the burned end still further proved this At the time of the discharge the muzzle of the gun must have been within a couple of inches of Mainville's breast, as the wadding and a portion of his shirt were found to have been forced almost right through his body. The gun was loaded with ordinary small shot—Death must have been almost instantaneous, as nearly half of the heart and a portion of the left lung were blown away.

The wife testified that on the previous Sunday morning he appeared very low spirited and refused to eat any breakfast, and on being remonstrated with by the rest of the family he burst into tears and said if he was doing any harm to take a stick and beat him His actions at this time also show pretty conclusively that his mind must have been dwelling on the dreadful act which he so successfully accomplished At one time he proposed to make over the half of his property to his son, with the object of the latter assuming all his debts and then leaving his wife with the remainder of his property free of all incumbrance. But the wife would not agree to, and he told her she knew best and he would leave it all to herself. The evidence of the remainder of the family was all very similar to the above, not differing in any essential particular. No reason of consequence can be assigned for the dreadful deed, as deceased was known to be of an unusually cheerful and happy disposition, and was besides in very comfortable pecuniary circumstances.

The jury returned a verdict to the effect that deceased had come to his death by his own hand while labouring under a fit of mental depression

The Canada Pacific Railway.

The New York Times reviews the situation of the Canadian Pacific Railway question and says:

"The old saying, 'One story is good till the other is told,' has a capital exemplification in the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the dispute with reference to it which has arisen between British Columbia and the Government of the Dominion. As long as the officials of the Pacific province had the recital of its grievance in their own hands they made out a strong case of bad faith against the powers that be in Ottawa. Now, however, we have the Ottawa version of the difficulty in the form of a minute in Council, the precise and apparently incontrovertible statements of which only vindicate the integrity of the Government, but go far toward establishing the wisdom of its policy in the matter of the projected trans-continental road"

"The present Government in its anxiety to keep faith with British Columbia, in 1874 incurred expenditures which rendered an increase of taxation inevitable, but with a proviso which reaffirmed the original resolution as part of the settled policy. The Dominion is in no condition to spend more money its surplus has disappeared and its revenue has declined. To comply with the demands of British Columbia in their entirety would be to assume such a burden as might—quoting the language of the minute before us—'plunge the country into ruin.' The latest specific complain of British Columbia—namely, that the Dominion has discarded a compromise entered into at the instance of Lord Carnarvon—is disposed of by the fact that the Dominion Senate rejected the measure designed to carry out the arrangement—Unless Canada is to be treated as a mere dependency of the Colonial Office, the right of Parliament to revise the action of its Ministers, and to give or withold its sanction according to its idea of right and duty, must be acknowledged. The Government, however, proposed to do the best it could under the circumstances. It offered a round three quarters of a million of dollars as an equivalent for what had, with an implied reservation, been promised. British Columbia spurns the offer. The offer itself cannot fairly be stigmatized as illiberal. Three-quarters of a million for the benefit of a population numbering about ten thousand seems, in these hard times, a princely subsidy to a province which has already cost the Dominion over the provincial contributions to the federal revenue. 'It only remains,' says the minute in Council, 'to endeavor to construct the Pacific Railway as rapidly as the resources of the country will permit.' A safe and sensible conclusion, and one that forbids the expectation of seeing a Canadian Pacific Railway very soon. It is evident that the present Government of the Dominion will not 'plunge the country into ruin' to please either British Columbia or the management of the Colonial Office."

EGYPT.

For some time the Egyptian finances have been in a very unsatisfactory state, and Mr Cave, of England, being sent to report on some feasible scheme of regulating the revenue so as to meet current expenditures and interest due on the national debt, says:—

"At the audience in which I took leave of the Khedive, His Highness acquainted me with an error he recently discovered in his calculations affecting land tax, whereby the revenue at the end of ten years would be more seriously diminished than he anticipated, so that in 1886 the Egyptian treasury would be o £2,500 000

Mr. Cave's report shows that Egypt has suffered much from the dishonesty and wastefulness of officials. The Khedive's Government, with the intention of raising enough capital to pay the floating debt, made a law enabling the land owners to commute the land tax on terms which entail a sacrifice of half the revenue from this source for all time for the sake of obtaining eleven times the annual amount for a period of twelve years The result is disasterous. The sum raised only suffices to pay the interest on the floating debt. The Egyptian revenue, which now produces about £56,445,340, will, after 1886, by the operation of the above law, lose the annual sum of £12,-226,000. The nominal expenditure is about £45,463,405, over half of which is devoted to the service of debt. Every available portion of the revenue is pledged as security for loans. The present pressure raises from the Khedive's inability to meet the bonds of the floating debts which are continually falling due, and estimated at least to £92,218,200. The report recommends the consolidation of the existing debt by the issue of a new loan at a moderate interest, and the appointment of a person who will inspire confidence at the head of the Board of Control to supervise the collection of taxes. If the present debt is replaced by one at a moderate rate of interest, there is no reason why the country should not quickly recover. Mr Cave says it would appear from his calculations that the resources of Egypt are sufficient if properly managed, to meet her liabilities.

A CURIOSITY.—Mr. Frederick King of the Township of Hamilton, has quite a curiosity in his flock in the shape of a sheep with six well grown good legs. two of which project from the breast. The animal only uses four at a time, but it is at be a great convenience and comfort to it, to be able to put two in its pocket and walk right along as usual—Port Hope Times.

KNIGHTS.

BLACK KNIGHTS.—A Preceptory of the Royal Black Knights of British America, in connection with the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, was duly organized in the Village on the evening of Friday 23rd of March by Sir Knight S. Stratton, M G C. and W. S K C., of Millbrook, when the following Sir Knights were duly installed into office:—D.A. McFarlane, W S.K. C.; J L. Knox, Chaplain: G. McCartney, Registrar, and Wm. Moore, Treasurer. The Lodge has been opened under very favourable circumstances.—

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

In the House of Commons yesterday.

SIR STAFFORD NORTHCOTE, Chancellor of the Exchequer, submitted his budget speech. He estimated the expenditure for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1877 at £78,844 000. and the Revenue at £77. 270,000. The Chancellor proposes an increase of a penny in the pound on income tax, which he anticipates will give the Government a surplus of £366,000. He announced a surplus of revenue for 1875 of £726.153.

In the House of Lords.

The Earl of Shaftesbury offered a motion for an address to the queen, praying her not to assume the title of Empress He argued that the title was distasteful to the vast majority of the people, and made a point that after the recent argument of Mr. Disraeli the assumption of such a title would be an insult to the Czar.

The Earl of Carnarvon opposed and Lord Selborne supported the motion, which, after a long debate, was rejected by a vote of 137 to 46.

The Royal Titles Bill then passed through Committee.

Thanks "From the Depths of the Heart."

WELLINGTON, Lorain Co., O., Aug 24, 1874.
Dr. R V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:
Dear sir—Your medicines, Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have proved of the greatest service to me. Six months ago no one thought that I could possibly live long. I had a combination of diseases,—scrofula, manifesting itself in eruptions and great blotches on my head that made such sores that I could not have my hair combed without causing me much suffering; also carrying swollen glands, tumors enlarged or "thick neck," and large and numerous boils I also suffered from a terrible Chronic Catarrh, and in fact I was so diseased that life was a burden to me I had tried many doctors with no benefit I finally procured one half dozen bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery and one dozen bottles Sage's Catarrh Remedy and commenced their use At first I was badly discouraged, but after taking four bottles of the Discovery, I began to improve, and when I had taken the remains I was well. In addition to the use of Discovery I applied a solution of Iodine to the Goire of thick neck, as you advise in pamphlet wrapping, and it entirely disappeared. Your Discovery is certainly the most wonderful blood medicine ever invented, I thank God and you, from the depths of my heart, for the great good it has done me.
Very gratefully,
Mrs L CHAFFEE

Most Medicines which are advertised as blood purifiers and liver medicines contain either mercury, in some form, or potassium and iodine variously combined all of these agents have strong tendency to break down the blood corpuscles, and debilitate and otherwise permanently injure the human system and should therefore be discarded Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, on the other hand, being composed of the fluid extracts of native plants, barks and roots, will in no case produce injury, its effects being a regthening and curative only. Sarsaparilla which use to enjoy quite a reputation as a blood purifier, is a remedy of thirty years ago, and may will give place as it is doing, to the more positive and valuable vegetable alteratives which latter medical investigation and discovery has brought to light. In scrofula or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Tumors, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations Indolent Inflammation, Mercurial affections, Old Sores Eruptions of the Skin and Sore Eyes as in all other blood diseases Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has shown its great powers in curing the most obstinate and intractible cases Sold by all dealers in medicines

The Landlord and His Victims.

"The shades of night were falling fast,"
As from a village tavern passed
A man, who'd drank full deep I wis,
Yet still, he grasped, tight in his fist,
More Liquor!

The landlord stood within his door,
And sniffing cold "have one more more,
For cold and bitter is the night,
He bids to keep you warm and bright,
More Liquor!"

The step unsteady now, and wild:
All home unfilled with sad child;
Those loved ones he had oft caressed;
Yet still the Landlord on him pressed,
More Liquor!

"In happy homes he saw the light,
Of household fires gleam warm and bright;"
He knew how cold and dark his home,
And mottered wildly with a groan,
More Liquor!

He looked up to the sky so black,
He took one forward step, then back
He staggered to the bar and said,
Though wife and child should starve for bread
More Liquor!

"You've drunk enough," an old man said,
"Your way is long and overhead
The storm is quickly growing worse,"
He fiercely answered with a curse,
More Liquor!

"O drink not now another glass!
You have a dangerous bridge to pass,"
This was his comrades last good bye;
He swore, "though send and body die,"
More Liquor!

He drained the glass that sealed his doom.
He turned and staggered from the room;
Along the road he drank his death,
Still muttering undergrowth his breath,
More Liquor!

When morning broke, so cold and grey,
His body in the river lay;
His soul—ah! that he'd sold I wist,
For what he still grasped in his fist,
More Liquor!

And still the old man's thirst his glass;
And still his comrades bid it pass;
And still the landlord proudly smiles,
And round his cellar walls he piles
More Liquor!

Though starving children cry for bread;
Though wives and mothers mourn their dead
'Tis nought to him, what does he care,
He'll sell by fool means or by fair,
More Liquor!

O God! are men's hearts made of stone?
Who for the sake of wealth alone
Can see such sights, and calmly stand,
And to their fellow creatures hand
More Liquor!

The "Poor Prisoner" of the Vatician.

William Howitt, who is now upwards of eighty, resides in Rome with his wife, Mary Howitt, the poetess, who is engaged upon a work which necessitates her residing in the Italian capital. Mr. Howitt has written a remarkable letter respecting the Pope, in which he says the American Catholic clergy were anxious that the Pope should send something to the Philadelphia Exhibition, so the Pope has consented to send a few specimens of mosaic and tapestry Cardinal Antonelli is commissioned to say that he would send more but for his "financial straits," and "the unfortunate deprivation of his States, of which he has been the victim." Mr. Howitt hereupon exclaims, "The humbug! All this is in true beggars' whine which the church has made universal as far as its rule has extended. Deprivation of his states has been the finest thing in the world for him. Those states only contained three millions of inhabitants, not so many as exist in London by a great deal. He has now no longer the expense of them, but their unfortunate deprivation has been the means of working on the feelings of the whole Catholic universe, and of pouring into his coffers treasures such as his predecessors in their most halcyon times never possessed. The fiction of his miserable imprisonment, with his lying on rotten straw, the open sale of little bundles of these fabled straws in most Catholic countries, the photograph of him peeping through his prison bars, with a soldier, with musket and bayonet fixed, on each side of him—all of these outrageous lies have drawn an actual river of gold from the bosoms of the silly Popish pelicans that tar outrivals the ancient Pactolus. The priests by such means have drawn not merely from the stupid rich, but from the millions of poor girls—servants and workwomen—their few pence, which should have gone to the savings bank or to buy them comforts, and these arts of priestly robbery have been enforced by the assurance of eternal damnation if they did not do all possible to relieve the sufferings of the holy father. By these infamous means no less than Twenty Millions of francs have been poured into the Papal chest during the year of jubilee just passed, and all this described as the voluntary tribute of the faithful! And all this time the King of Humbugs, this so-called miserable prisoner, has been living in a palace of eleven thousand rooms, crammed with such wealth as never before was collected in one place, not even in the Bank of England. Treasures of gold, of silver, of all precious gems, of the most beautiful and noble works of art, statutes, pictures by the finest masters, bronzes, coins, medals, crosses sparkling with the most valuable diamonds, rubies, emeralds, etc.; vessels and ornaments in silver and gold of the exquisite workmanship, by such masters as Benvenuto Cellini, by the richest arrases and tapestries, all of these arranged in galleries miles in length, and this wretched prisoner attended by hundreds of guards in an old costume very much like our Windsor Beefeaters and by crowds of cardinals, monseigneurs, archbishops, bishops, priests and lacqueys without end. As for money, besides the 20,000,000 francs paid in for Peter's pence and jubilee indulgences in 1875, the imbecile ex-Emperor of Austria has left him $3,000,000, and rich arras and gold vessels to adorn his chapel. The Duke of Modena, the father-in-law of the ex-King of Naples, and Count Chambord, has made him his heir, and it is said he will derive £10,000 sterling from that source annually. The last English aristocratic dupe, Lord Ripon, has lately arrived in Rome, bringing him a present of £10,000. A Belgian senator has brought another little present of £8,000 sterling. A silly old lady has lately left him half a million of francs. French pilgrims have brought him silver statues of the Virgin which, on a spring being touched, opened their arms and showered down streams of gold, and one Madonna even gave birth to a silver baby, to the Pope's great delight; and all this in the short space of one year. And yet he has the unparalleled impudence to tell the Americans that he cannot send much to their exhibition because of his poverty!"—Weekly Review.

MIND YOUR P's.—Persons who patronize papers should pay promptly, for the pecuniary prospects of the press have a peculiar power in pushing forward every public prosperity. If the printer is paid promptly, and his pocket book kept plethoric by prompt-paying patrons, he puts his pen to the paper in peace, his paragraphs are more pointed, he paints his pictures of passing events in more pleasant colors, and the perusal of his paper is of more pleasure to his people.—Puns this piece of proverbial philosophy in some place where all persons can perceive it.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

Fashionable Vegetables.

Did you ever hear of such a thing as fashionable vegetables? There are things of that character, if popular prejudices and notions may be regarded as criterions. Seed catalogues and current literature on agricultural subjects help to make certain things fashionable, and then wholesale advertising confirms the fashion quite.

Now there is probably nothing in the color of a tomato to forbid the yellow sorts from being as good as the red: indeed there are some of the former quite superior. But almost all the varieties advertized by the seedsmen are red, and they seem to be all the fashion. The popular sorts everywhere grown, and that all seedsmen advertise, are sure to be red. These are the Tilden, Trophy, Gen. Grant, Excelsior, Canada-Victor, &c. Each has been highly lauded, widely advertized; all are more or less popular, and all are red.

A few years ago the Mercer potato was the leading market potato at the east. It has never been popular here, and we doubt if one farmer in fifty has ever seen one of them. The peachblow is the leading potato here for winter use. It and the Early Rose are the only market potatoes. They are the fashion, and for once the caprice of the mode is founded on true merit, for both kinds are unsurpassed in quality in their respective seasons. Probably no two varieties are more widely disseminated or more highly prized all through the country than these two sorts, and we are heartily glad they are the fashion. The variety that shall displace either sort must be a very superior one, for many have been introduced here, but none compete with either.

We have had the Early Goderich, the Harrison, Breese's Prolific, Peerless, White-Rose, Garnet-Chili, Prince Albert, &c., but none are fashionable. Although the Peachblow is very late and not remarkably prolific, it is of such uniform quality and good character, that consumers will not consent to take others in its stead, no matter how much more cheaply they are produced. The Irish-cup is of equally good quality, is earlier, and will often escape fall frosts that will hurt peachblows; yields better, and would rival it in market, but for its excessively deep eyes that must forever forbid its ever becoming popular. The Garnet-chili, mother of the Early Rose, often gives a superior crop, equal to the Peachblow in quality, but is not reliable. From all that we know now the Peachblow is destined to reign queen of the potato market for some time to come.

Testing Milk.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman gives the following description of a few methods of testing milk, which appears to coming into vogue among dairyman. He says: It consists of a series of small cups arranged in a water-bath or receptacle, so that the contents of the vats may be heated either by steam or water. As the milk comes to the factory, a given quantity is taken from each patron's can and heated in these cups until a temperature of about 90. Fahr. is reached. At this temperature it is found, by practical experiment, that the smell of garlic, putridity, fever, or disease of the udder will each unmistakeable manifest itself by developing the peculiar odour which characterises. Whenever milk is found to be unsound, it may be rejected, so as not to leaven the whole vat of good milk with which it comes in contact, and at the same time the cause of the impurities can be maid the subject of investigation. If the milk shows no signs of being unsound or in bad condition, but is suspected of being skimmed or diluted with water, the sample in each cup is coagulated by adding rennet, the curd compressed to expel the whey, and the curd then weighed. By knowing the standard weight of the curd of tested, the variation shows the amount of water which has been added, or to what extent it has been skimmed, and the per-centage may be deducted from such patron's milk. Thus the difficulty heretofore encountered by adding sugar, salt, or any other ingredient, to increase the specific gravity of watered milk (two points in which the lactometer entirely fails, and which could be detected only by a thorough chemical analysis), is wholly obviated, and dishonest patrons cannot escape detection in their fraudulent practices. Experiments with the above "tester" have revealed not only putridity, but milk that has been skimmed; other samples that has been watered, with sugar and annatto added.

Capacity of Apple Barrels.

Mr. Avard Longley, of Annapolis, in a paper read before the Fruit Growers' Association of Nova Scotia, took exception to the present standard dimensions of the apple barrel as fixed by law, although the law is not strictly observed. Through its instrumentality much greater uniformity has, however, been effected as regards the size of the apple barrel now in use. Before the law was passed, the apple barrels made throughout the Provence ranged all the way from 1¼ to 2¾ bushels, or 7½ to 9½ pecks. The dimensions of the barrel as now prescribed by law are as follows: length of stave 29 inches, 19 diameter in the bilge, measuring from the inside of the barrel, and 17 inches across the heads of the barrel, estimated to contain 2¾ bushels, or 9½ pecks. For several reasons our apple barrel should be made to contain 2½. First, the Canadian and American apple barrel are made the same size as that of the flour barrel, and contain 2¾ bushels at least. While our apple barrels, is of a smaller size, we suffer both in money and reputation; as in our case there is not only the absence of any reliable standard size to the barrel, but its roughness and generally unsightly appearance are not creditable to us as Fruit Growers and fair dealers. There is also simplicity and convenience in the way of computing quantities with barrel of this size.

Great good would ultimately attend the passage of a law establishing the size of our apple barrels at 2½ bushels, and the attaching of adequate penalties for any and all violations of the law.

As regards the London, Liverpool and Glasgow markets, it is stated that the price obtained for apples is strictly regulated by and is proportioned to the size of the barrel in which they are packed. This is as is should be. Why should the same price be paid for a barrel of apples containing two bushels only, as for one containing two-and-a-half bushels!

An English gentleman has offered the sum of twenty-five thousand pounds towards starting a special fund for the extension of the Presbyterian Church in England.

NOTE IT DOWN.—The township of Ops has not one hotel or saloon inside its corporation, and all the school houses are of brick and a pattern of neatness.—Post.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

DR. J. WALKER'S CELEBRATED CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as the mild but efficient purgative Pills. The obvious reason is, that it is a sugar coated vegetable preparation, with the most salutual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by any body. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to regulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

CHURCH AND STATE.

FROM SIR A. T. GALT'S LETTER

Has such change affected the general rights of Protestants as citizens of Quebec, and especially weakened their guarantees obtained at Confederation?

The reply must necessarily be argumentative, and addressed rather to those Protestant politicians, now basking in the sunshine of Episcopal favor, who say: all this concerns Roman Catholics only; both political parties are alike in professed submission to the Church; it does not affect us so long as we are unassailed, and meantime we should act with those who in the past were our friends and allies. I answer that the past has disappeared, and we are confronted with a near and ominous future. The past was bright with actions and declarations all significant of equality of creeds, of liberty of thought and deed; the entire separation of Church from State was solemnly entered on the statute book; the Roman Catholic Church reposed on the guarantee granted by the British Crown; it was not aggressive; it meddled not with political strife, it pretended to no superior rights over other Churches, and though it was as a rule favourable to the Conservative party, it never presumed to dictate to the leaders of that party in their political course. All this has changed, and we look in vain for that independence of thought and action which characterised our former French Canadian leaders, in those who have since Confederation administered the Government of Quebec. The party may be called the same, but I fail to recognise it, and few will do so who know that that party was created and led by those wiser minds, who retrieved themselves from the false step of the insurrection of 1837-'8, and afterwards led the way in all the necessary Liberal measures that followed the union of Upper and Lower Canada; the settlement of the Clergy Reserve; the abolition of the Feudal Tenure—the introduction of the municipal system—the establishment of National Education, and a host of other benificent measures. These were the men who, understanding the mighty difference between Reform and revolution, passed when their goal was attained, and became the Conservative party to which I had the pride and pleasure to belong. Can any one say that the present men are their successors in aught but name? Can words expressive of profound submission to the priesthood be found than the language used in the debate on the address by their leader in the House of Commons, Mr. Massen, sustained, as it was, by Mr. Langevin, from whom I should have hoped for more independence.

It is natural that those who enjoy the present favour of the Hierarchy should be their defenders and apologists,—and it is also natural that those who have suffered through their interference should appear to be my allies at this moment, and it has therefore not surprized me, that in my recent pamphlets, I should be understood as having changed my political status.—My language has not, however, been weighed with the same care with which it was used by me. I have said:—"I find but one line of duty open to me, and that is to give my hearty support and sympathy to the Liberal Catholics of Quebec. The whole tone of my pamphlet showed, I think clearly, that I had no concern with the party politics of the day, which would have been the case had I transported the phrase and said Catholic Liberals. Unfortunately, I am too well aware that neither Rouge nor Bleue are free from clerical subserviency. What I asked for in my letter to Mr. Robertson of 31st May, and what I seek to obtain now, is "a public and explicit declaration that they reject and refuse to acknowledge the authority claimed for his Church by the Roman Catholic Bishop of Montreal in all matters pertaining to public law and the government of the country."

Such a declaration as the above can only have force coming from the party in power. It is clearly only to be obtained by a union of the Protestants, not merely with the Liberal Catholics of Quebec, be they politically Conservative or so-called Rouge, but with the Catholics in other parts of the Dominion.

According to my apprehension of the circumstances, I think the country is threatened with very grave evils, and I desire to avert the danger—not thro' the special action of any purely political party, but through an appeal to the good sense of all. It would be perfectly idle to expect that the Lower Canada Liberals would, as a party, take the same ground as I do, when we see that the very opening of the question arrays one of their most distinguished leaders, and a Protestant, in the same ranks with his life-long opponents.

There is scarcely a subject that can be named that does not fall more or less directly within the scope of the Local Legislature; and, as citizens of Quebec, the Protestants have, therefore, good reason for zealous apprehension at the encroachments of the Hierarchy. It is not sufficient for their reassurance to be told these measures concern Roman Catholics only, and that they may repose in security upon the guarantees obtained at the completion of Confederation.

These guarantees were obtained under a totally different state of public affairs from that which exists now; and, being intended as a protection for the faith and liberties of the minority against possible wrong to be sustained at the hands of the Roman Catholics, it becomes of essential importance to recognize the serious change that has been wrought in the Church of Rome through the publication of the Syllabus and the promulgation of the Vatican decrees. Responsible as I was, in a great measure, for the sufficiency of these guarantees, I claim that no blame can fairly attach to me for not foreseeing the attitude the Church of Rome was in a few years to assume, and the consequent extent to which the precautionary measures might prove inadequate. But this responsibility surely entails upon me the duty of raising my voice as soon as there is evidence of danger, and of doing what may, in my judgment, still appear possible to preserve the harmony and good-will we must all desire to maintain in a community differing as we do, in creed, language and nationality.

Let me, then, examine what the Protestant guarantees consist of, to ascertain that this Province of their children may present may be distinctly understood.

They are three in number—Education, Representation, and, most important to us of all, the Veto power reserved in the hands of the Federal Government at Ottawa.

EDUCATION.

By the 93rd clause of the British North America Act, it is provided:—

"93. In and for each Province the Legislature may exclusively make laws in relation to education, subject and according to the following provisions:—

"1. Nothing in any such law shall prejudicially affect any right or privilege with respect to the denominational schools which any class of persons have by law in the Province at the Union.

"2. All the powers, privileges, and duties at the Union by law conferred and imposed in Upper Canada on the Separate Schools and School Trustees of the Queen's Roman Catholic subjects shall be and the same are hereby extended to the Dissentient Schools of the Queen's Protestant and Roman Catholic subjects in Quebec.

"3. Where in any Province a system of Separate or Dissentient Schools exists by law at the Union or is thereafter established by the Legislature of the Province, an appeal shall lie to the Governor-General in Council from any Act or decision of any Provincial authority affecting any right or privilege of the Protestant or Roman Catholic minority of the Queen's subjects in relation to education.

"4. In case any such Provincial law as from time to time seems to the Governor-General in Council requisite for the due execution of the provisions of this section is not made, or in case any decision of the Governor-General in Council on any appeal under this section is not duly executed by the proper Provincial authority in that behalf then and in every such case, and as far only as the circumstances of each case require, the Parliament of Canada may make remedial laws for the due execution of the provisions of this section and of any decision of the Governor-General in Council under this section."

The only status, therefore, which we are guaranteed under the Imperial Act of Confederation is that existing at its passage. Now, it is well known that this was wholly unsatisfactory to the Protestants, especially in Montreal and Quebec; and an endeavor to pass the requisite amendments made in the last session of the Canadian Parliament was defeated. So important did I regard this defeat, that I resigned my seat in the Government, and declined any greater share of responsibility than was accepted by other Protestant representatives. However, as it threatened to interpose most serious obstacles to the acceptance of Confederation, it was finally agreed to be satisfied with the assurances of Sir George Cartier and the French Canadian Roman Catholics following him that, at the first session of the Local Legislature of Quebec, the required legislation should be obtained, and that the Local Government should be so organized as to ensure this result. Though not a member of the Government, I formed one of the delegation to London, and assisted in the compilation of the Act of Confederation; and, on the 1st February, 1867, when Confederation took place, I re-entered the Ministry, and, with the assistance of Sir George Cartier and the Hon. Mr. Langevin, the School Bill, as it now stands, was passed; but even then it was not attained without great difficulty, as can be testified by all who were acting with me in Quebec at the time.

The educational rights of Protestants as respects much of the principle and mode of taxation, separate management and other important points, are, therefore, not secured by the Act of Confederation: but rests on a Provincial Statute of Quebec that is subject to repeal, if not prevented by the veto power.

REPRESENTATION.

The representation guarantees enjoyed by the Protestants consist in the following provisions of the B. N. A. Act:—

"80. The Legislative Assembly at Quebec shall be composed of sixty-five members, to be elected to represent the sixty-five Electoral Divisions or Districts of Lower Canada in this Act referred to, subject to alteration thereof by the Legislature of Quebec: provided that it shall not be lawful to present to the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec for assent any bill for altering the limits of any of the Electoral Divisions or Districts mentioned in the second schedule to this Act, unless the second and third readings of such bill have been passed in the Legislative Assembly with the concurrence of the majority of the members representing all those electoral divisions or districts, and the assent shall not be given to such bill unless an address has been presented by the Legislative Assembly to the Lieutenant-Governor stating that it has been so passed.

ELECTORAL DISTRICTS OF QUEBEC SPECIALLY FIXED.

COUNTIES OF

Pontiac.	Missisquoi.
Ottawa.	Brome.
Argenteuil.	Shefford.
Huntingdon.	Stanstead.
Compton.	Wolfe & Richmond
Megantic.	town of Sherbrooke

At best, it was felt at the time to be a guarantee of a most illusory nature, liable to be disturbed by natural causes. But in what position does it now stand? Under the guise of re-patriation, large sums of money have been annually voted, and the most persistent efforts made for the purpose of filling our reserved constituencies with French Canadian Roman Catholics, whenever an opening could be found or made.

Already our hold on these constituencies is so weakened, that with one or two exceptions, the candidate receiving the Roman Catholic vote will always secure his election. And when the day arrives that Mgr. Bourget's dogma prevails as to "who are those who are not to be voted for," it will be seen that our guarantee is gone. One session, with an obedient majority from the guaranteed constituencies will be sufficient to re-cast the boundaries of each and all, and scatter to the winds this one of our irreparable securities; unless as in the case of the Education law, the sole power to control.

VETO POWER.

We have the guarantee that all local legislation is subject to revision and veto by the Governor-General; or rather, to speak more practically and intelligibly, by the Federal Government! The element in the Constitution Act are as follows:—

"56. Where the Governor-General assents to a bill in the Queen's name, he shall by the first convenient opportunity send an authentic copy of the Act to one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and if the Queen in Council within two years after receipt thereof by the Secretary of State thinks fit to disallow the Act, such disallowance (with a certificate of the Secretary of State of the day on which the Act was received by him) being signified by the Governor-General, by speech or message to each of the Houses of Parliament or by proclamation, shall annul the Act from and after the day of such signification.

"90. The following provisions of this Act respecting the Parliament of Canada, namely—the provisions relating to approbriation and tax bills, the recommendation of money votes, the assent to bills, the disallowance of Acts, and the signification of pleasure on bills reserved—shall extend and apply to the Legislatures of the several Provinces as if those provisions were here re-enacted and made applicable in terms to the respective Provinces and the Legislatures thereof, with the substitution of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Provinces for the Governor-General for the Queen and for a Secretary of State, of one year for two years, and of the Province of Canada."

The veto by the Federal Government is the real palladium of our Protestant liberties in Lower Canada. I have already shown that our educational rights are only safe under its shelter, and that our representation guarantees will, some day, "dissolve into thin air" without its exercise. Let me now point out that in the firm but moderate use of this vast power, safety may yet be found from the undue encroachments to which both Protestants and Catholics are exposed. But it is negative only; and if the opportunity for its exercise be lost, it is impotent to remedy the evil.

No one can blame me then for endeavoring to enlarge the sphere for discussion of our Lower Canadian difficulties. Our last and most potent guarantee is in the hands of the Federal Government, and if the exercise of this pre-eminent authority be assured, through the establishment of a sound and pronounced public opinion on the subject now under discussion, we may await the issue with less misgiving.

On the other hand, if no voice of warning be raised, if nothing be heard but adulatory paeans to the Hierarchy, to obtain their political support and influence—how can we expect to receive attention, when we appeal to a Government at Ottawa, almost all of whose supporters from Quebec owe their seats to the clergy and of whose opponents, a like proportion are hopelessly entangled? What chance of getting the veto exercised, if nine-tenths of the Quebec votes are ready to declare want of confidence in the Government that ventures to do it, and what else could the nine-tenths do in their position.

I might extend this argument much more, and support it by a variety of facts drawn from the legislation and administration of affairs in Quebec, since 1870, but I prefer

Neglecting the Heathen at Home.

The Toronto Globe contains the following homily to the Protestant Churches on the sin of neglecting the heathen at home, but no suggestion is offered as to the remedial means to be used, more than the mere effort of providing for their temporal wants :

"The external signs of prosperity of a certain kind are not wanting in any of the denominations. The improvement in church architecture, and the multiplication of costly and elegant structures devoted to the services of religion constitute one of the most remarkable features in the current history of this country. The ecclesiastical edifices of this city, to go no further, are certainly highly creditable to the taste and liberality of the community. The improved and the improving character of the religious literature of the country is deserving of notice. The multiplication of educational institutions, in which the youth of both sexes may be trained up under the shadow of the Cross is all the more remarkable on account of the apparent absence of any very pressing necessity for many of them, owing to the admirable system of public schools which exists among us. And perhaps there is no Christian community to be found any where that contributes more liberally, considering its numbers and wealth, than the Protestant people of Ontario do.

Now in presence of all these facts it requires no little courage, not to say hardihood, to even hint that there might be any grave defect in the work of these Churches. We have heard it confidently asserted, however, by persons who claim to be well informed and to know whereof they affirm, that these Churches are doing little or nothing for that class of the population which was the object of the tenderest solicitude upon the part of the Author of Christianity Himself—the despised, neglected, and outcast poor.—We have been pointed to the charitable institutions of another ecclesiastical organization among us, and we have been asked, where are the Protestant institutions comparable with these? It is said that while Protestant Churches are contributing enormous sums for the maintainance of missions among the heathen abroad, they are allowing an essentially heathen element to grow up at home; and that while spasmodic efforts are made now and again to extend help to the famine-stricken and perishing of other lands, there is no systematic and sustained effort to supply the wants of the perishing at our doors. Nay, it has been said that sundry of our wealthy Churches are fast becoming what the wealthy Churches of New York are—fashionable clubs, from which all but the rich are excluded. These are grave charges, and we should be very sorry to believe that the case is nearly so dark as has been represented; but if it is even partially true, it deserves the prompt and earnest attention of the Churches; and we are sure our motives will be appreciated in bringing it thus prominently to their notice."

The relief of the suffering and destitute is a duty encumbent on those to whom abundance has been given, but may not the sin of the cause of destitution and ignorance be laid to the charge of the Churches. There is no question but the great source of squalor, misery and want is the use of intoxicating drinks. Christians know this and yet they tolerate the existence thereof in every corner of the land. They give of their wealth to build costly places for the sale of it. They use the price of the misery, wretchedness and ignorance to build Churches and pay Ministers' salaries. They tax themselves to pay constables and other officials to quell the disorders the traffic in strong drink nourishes. They give their countenance to the use and abuse of it, and then they wrap themselves up in their religious professions, and regular church attendance, and over this place the mantle of their charitable spirit and liberality to the poor, and hope, rolled up in their indifference, to slip into glory. If they do, then justice must sometimes sleep an mindful of the charge committed to her

PRESBYTERIAN

The great question of the future state of the living has again come to the foreground at the meeting of the Presbytery Toronto. The Rev. D J. McDonnell submitted a statement of his views at present, which statement we published last week. By some members of the Presbytery it was received as satisfactory and very gratifying, and by others with distrust. He divides his statement as follows :—

"1 So far as the language of the Confession "of Faith on this point is concerned, I find "that it is almost entirely borrowed from "Scripture, and I declare my adhesion to it, "understanding the phrase 'eternal torments' "to have the same meaning as 'everlasting "punishment' in Matthew xxv.'

"2. While I do not consider myself debarred "by the teaching of Scripture from hoping "that God may in some way put an end to "sin and suffering I am satisfied that it is "not a part of the message with which I am "entrusted as a minister of the Gospel to hold "out any hope of future pardon to those who "have in this life rejected Christ 'Now is "the accepted time' What God may do "hereafter is apparently not among the things "revealed, or intended to be known."

In the first he professes to accept the confession of faith, but still with qualifications, and in the second he by implication at least, insinuates universalism. The question therefore is about as far from solution as it was when the Presbytery before met, and unless members now act wisely and insist on his accepting the standard of their faith and teaching it in its entirety, they will leave an opening for preaching any whim that may take possession of the mind; and this case will form a precedent not easily to be set aside or ignored. Indeed there does appear to be a considerable degree of incumsistency in any man remaining in a church association, while he teaches and preaches doctrines at variance with the accepted standard of that church. The effect of teaching qualified expressions of doctrin es by one Minister in that church and by another Minister of the same church in the same City, a very different doctrine, must damage the influence of the church which under a newly organized union and increasing influence must be powerful in propagating whatever doctrines are held by her Ministers. They must not forget that a house divided against itself cannot stand.

RELIEF COMMITTEE.

On motion of Mr. Paterson, Mr. Clementi and W. Shaw, was heard before the Council on behalf of the Corporation Relief Committee.

Mr. Clementi said, at the last meeting of the Corporation Relief Committee they had appointed a Committee to draw out a report of the money spent during the last three months, and had appointed two auditors to audit them, but one of them had been away from home, and since he returned he had not been well, and requested the Council to appoint two auditors to audit them, but if the Council did not see fit so do so they could have the accounts as they were handed over to them to-night.

Mr. Toole asked the Council if they would accede to Mr. Clementi's request, which they did.

REPORT OF CORPORATION RELIEF COMMITTEE, FOR THE MONTHS OF JANUARY, FEBRUARY AND MARCH 1876.

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough :

GENTLEMEN,—The time having now arrived when the unusual amount of distress caused, as well by the stagnation of business throughout the Dominion, as by local circumstances, including the difficulty of obtaining work by the laboring classes, may be supposed to be mitigated by the advent of Spring and the consequent revival of out door operations, the Corporation Relief Committee beg leave to resign into the hands of the Town Council the charge imposed upon them of providing for the weekly recurring necessities of the poor, and to submit the following report :—

In consequence of the anticipated hard times the Mayor thought proper to call a public meeting of the ratepayers of the town for the purpose of taking into consideration the best means of providing for the necessities of the aged, the sick and the unemployed during the then coming winter This meeting was held on the 22nd day of December, 1875

It was resolved at a subsequent meeting held on the 29th day of the same month that a committee consisting of two Ratepayers and one Councillor from each Ward should be organized for the purpose of dispensing the Town Charities and the following gentlemen were appointed on that committee :

Ward No 1—Rev. V Clementi. Mr. W. Martin and Councillors Helm and Taylor,

Ward No. 2—Messrs Geo. E. Shaw, and W Davidson, and Councillor Mc Clelland, Ward No. 3—Dr. Kincaid, Mr. Stapleton, and Councillor Thornton.

Ward No. 4—Messrs McDonald and Robt. McKee, and Councillor Cook.

It will be noticed that in consequence of the size of Ward No. 1, and the large number of poor and unemployed persons residing in that Ward, two Councillors were appointed to act therein.

The mode in which the Committee conducted their operations was as follows :—They met in the Town Council Chambers every Friday evening, when after reading and confirming of the minutes of the preceding meeting, the passing of accounts and the examination and revision of the list of those persons who had received relief during the previous week. One member was appointed to purchase provisions sufficient for the ensuing week, and to assist the Chief Constable in dispensing the same; and one from each ward was nominated to issue tickets for the same period to those who applied for relief, and who were deemed deserving of such assistance.

The list of recipients of relief alphabetically arranged with the kind and amount of such relief, together with the names of the members of the committee severally issuing orders have been from time to time submitted to the Town Council for their inspection; the lists in full are appended to this report together with an alphabetical list of all the persons relieved during the past three months from which latter list it will be seen that 74 persons have been so assisted. The Council have at various times placed at the disposal of the Committee the gross sum of $436 00, which sum is accounted for in he Treasurer's Report.

Considering that during the year 1875 the Town Council disbursed the sum of $1569 09 for charitable purposes, the Committee venture to express a hope that by contrast, the sum expended by them will not be deemed by the ratepayers unreasonable, It was hoped at the time the Committee was organized that suitable work such as stone breaking, clearing the sidewalks of snow, &c., would have been provided by the Council for the unemployed. Such work would have lessened the expenditure of the funds placed in the hands of the Committee No such work however was made for the employment of labour

The Committee would recommend that in the event of its being deemed desirable in subsequent years to organize a Relief Committee, such Committee so composed solely of Ratepayers who are not members of Town Council; such Committee being expected to report to the Council from time to time at such intervals as may be thought expedient.

The Committee cannot close their report without giving expression to the feeling of regret they entertain in some quarters of the publication in one of our local papers of unfounded charges against them, The donations of provisions by farmers and others which had previously been contributed, were suspended They felt that in consequence of the publication of those charges they were debarred from soliciting any further donations of assistance, and they consider that the ratepayers have thus lost considerably more than they can possibly have gained by the destruction and exposure of one or two cases of imposition to which all charitable organizations are every where more or less liable.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

VINCENT CLEMENTI,
Chairman of Sub-Committee.

Peterborough, April 6th, 1876.

Mr. Shaw was then heard before the Council on the same matter, and stated that the accounts were ready for them to audit both in detail and abstract, if the Council saw fit to appoint auditors to audit them.

Mr. Paterson asked who were the auditors.

Mr. Shaw said that Geo. Barlee and Richard Hall had been appointed, but that Mr. Hall had been away from home He thought if they were appointed by the Town to act that they would consent to do so.

Mr. Cahill said that he did not think it necessary to have them audited.

Mr. Clementi said that he desired them to be audited to clear the committee.

LICENSE REPORT.

Mr. Thornton read over the License Report which on motion was received.

The License Committee beg leave to report as follows :—

That they have considered the recommendation of the Commissioners of the Town Trust in reference to the complaint of the Butchers in the Market House, and recommend that all parties who make a business of buying and selling Butchers' meat in the market place do pay a fee of thirty dollars per year for liberty to sell. Your committee would also recommend that the Butchers outside the market pay a fee of twenty dollars per year in place of ten.

All of which is respectfully submitted

T. H THORNTON,
Chairman of License Com.

PROTESTANT HOME GRANT.

Mr Rutherford read over the report of the special committee on the Protestant Home Grant, which on motion was received and carried.

The Special Committee of the Protestant Home Grant, beg leave to report :

Present Councillors Paterson and Rutherford,

Your Committee waited upon the Ladies of the Home for the purpose of making arrangements if possible for the more general distribution of the Charities in the Town.—Your Committee regret that every proposition made by them was neglected; the Committee not agreeing in recommending the grant, it therefore remains for the Council to take such action as they deem best

The Committee was shown through the building and found it commodious and clean; there are eight inmates, three of them paying for their support.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A RUTHERFORD,
Chairman.

April 10th, 1876

STREET SPRINKLER.

Mr. Rutherford said that there was a communication from Mr. Barclay of Toronto, recommending the town to purchase one of their Sprinklers for watering the streets, and that the present contract did not run out till the 1st of May. They did not feel disposed to purchase this article which would cost about $400, and that water would be hard to get this summer, and that the Council might authorize the committee to purchase one if they saw fit.

The Mayor said that if the merchants wanted it that they would have to petition for it.

Mr. Rutherford said that a special tax would be imposed on the merchants for the purpose.

CROSSINGS.

Moved by Mr. McClelland, seconded by Mr. Taylor.—That the Inspector be instructed to lay a suitable sidewalk from the street to the school building in the south ward.

Mr. McClelland wished the Council to lay the sidewalk as it was really necessary

Mr. Haggart said that it would be just as well for the Street and Bridge Committee to look through the town and see what crossings were really necessary, and report at next meeting; but if the Council wished to do as they had done before, a petition would come from one part of the town and then from the other, and so on, from time to time, the finances of the town were not flush, and that repairs it was better to leave Mr McClelland's resolution over till after the report of the Street and Bridge Committee.

Mr. Rutherford agreed with Mr. Haggart in his proposition.

Mr. Paterson thought it was nothing for the Town Council to deal with at all, and said it was the duty of the School Board to deal with it.

Mr McClelland said that he agreed very much with Mr. Haggart, and they were going to economize this year, but this was really a necessity; although he had no objection for the Town to change it to the School Board

Mr Rutherford thought it was a matter for the School Board to deal with.

The motion was then put and lost.

BY-LAWS.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Taylor,—That By law No.—— to amend By law No. 323 in so far as the same relates to the license fee payable by transient traders be now read a third time and passed, and that the Mayor and Clerk do sign and seal the same.—Carried

BREAKING STONES.

Mr. Paterson asked for information as it was referred to in the Relief Committee report, whether there was any stone bought at that time or not, and if there was, that now was as good a time as any to have them broken.

Mr. Hopkins said that there had been stones delivered but none of them were broken yet.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr Haggart,—That the resignation of the Corporation Relief Committee be accepted, and that the thanks of this Council be and are hereby tendered to the said Committee for their arduous labours on behalf of the poor.—Carried,

AUDITORS APPOINTED.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Cahill,—That Geo Barlee and Richard Hall be requested to audit the accounts of the Relief Committee, and report to the Council.—Carried.

OLD IRON.

Mr McClelland asked if the committee on old iron had a report ready.

Mr. Haggart said that he being a young member of the Council and not knowing the custom of such, he did not think it necessary to make a report, but would state that they are going to sell the iron in three parcels. Wrought iron in one, cast iron in another, and the gas pipes in another They will be sold by public auction, on Thursday, at 11 o'clock, to the highest bidder.

Moved by Mr McClelland, seconded by Mr. Cook,—That the Inspector be authorized to supply the necessary plank for a sidewalk for South Ward School, and charge the same to the School Board

Mr. McClelland said that one member of this Council had remarked that he was the cause of the South Ward School being built at such a price. He said he was on the Committee but opposed the erection of a school that would cost so much, and that the member referred to was on the same committee, and urged the erection of the school.

The motion was then put and lost.

OBSTRUCTIONS REMOVED.

Moved by Mr Thornton, seconded by Mr Rutherford,—That Mr. Dumble and Mr. Bradburn be authorized to remove all obstructions from Rubidge Street, between McDonnell and London Streets.—Carried,

The Mayor said that he wished to draw the attention of the Council to the matter that to-morrow was the day for voting on the By-laws for the paying of the South Ward School, and the Bridges erected by the Town, and also that if the By-laws were voted down that he and the Treasurer would not renew any notes and that they would go to protest in the bank, and the Sheriff then would have to take charge of them, and he would have his expenses, and it would put more cost on the Town than was really necessary.

Mr. McClelland said he hoped that the By-laws would not be voted down as it would greatly injure the credit of the Town.

RECOMMENDATION

From Dr. Kincaid recommending the Town to send a young man named Wm. McDonald to the Hospital, as he was suffering very much, and was at the present time very low with disease of the knee.

Mr. Cook moved that Mr. Doherty be heard on the matter.

Mr. Doherty said that the young man had paid Dr. O'Sullivan $20 to cure him, and afterwards when coming from the post office he got it hurt again through some defection in the sidewalk, and that Dr. O'Sullivan had not attended him since.

The petition was referred to the Charity Committee with power to act,

The Council then adjourned for one week.

LAKEFIELD.

COUNCIL MEETING. Council met on March 24th. All the members present C. A. Boulton Esq., Reeve in the chair A communication was received from Mr. Adam Knox tendering his resignation as Assessor on account of ill health, which upon motion Mr. Hall seconded by Mr. Dinwoodie, was accepted. A By-law to appoint Thos. Secret, Esq., an Assessor received its several readings. Upon the second reading of the above by-law there was considerable discussion about the assessment of the village for last year—the assessment was according to the discussion, considered to be above the actual value The Auditors Report was handed in by Councillor Hall. Upon motion the council adjourned to meet on regular meeting night.

APRIL 10th—Council met pursuant to adjournment; Reeve in the chair All the members present except Councillor Strickland The minutes of the last regular and special meetings were read and confirmed. Moved by Mr. Hall, seconded by Mr. Dinwoodie,—That after hearing Messrs Griffin, Leonard and Davis, concerning the different streets, as the council cannot remedy the evil at present step will be taken during the summer to have the evil remedied.—Carried. A communication from Edward Beatty Esq. was read in reference to Mr W Collins' taxes, the council decided not to take any action in the matter as the taxes belonged to last year. Moved by Mr Dinwoodie, seconded by Mr. Shields,—That the Reeve and Councillor Hall are hereby appointed a Committee to enquire into the matter of purchasing a fire engine from Peterboro and Port Hope.—Carried An account of $2 50 for a cord of wood from H. Dunn for the Council Chamber was ordered to be paid. Moved by Mr. Hall seconded by Mr. Shields that it was the intention of this council in passing By-law No. 23 to prohibit all shop licenses and to allow three Tavern Licenses to be issued; and that it is the wish of this council that the three Hotels in Lakefield be licensed for this year 1876 and 1877.—Carried. In discussing this motion considerable indignation was expressed on account of the efforts of certain parties to induce the License Commissioners to deprive one of the three hotels in Lakefield of a license, and to grant a pop license in opposition to the council and people of the Village Moved by Mr. Hall seconded by Mr Shields, that the Collectors Roll be accepted, and that the Treasurer be authorized to credit him self with the arrears of Taxes in said Roll —Carried, Moved by Mr Dinwoodie, seconded by Mr. Hall, that the Reeve and Treasurer are hereby authorized to raise by way of a loan the sum of Three Hundred and Thirty dollars by note and place the same to the credit of the School Board as soon as a legal requisition is furnished —Carried The council then adjourned till the regular meeting night, at half-past seven.

Murder in Lambton.

The portion of Ontario from Hamilton Westward, is becoming somewhat notorious from the number of murders and robberies reported. It lies so near the borders, where men have been accustomed to live by rapine and robbery, and then escape across the lines, that more than usual boldness in crime is being manifesting.

This time an unsuspecting man named Monahan, is the victim. He was known to have $500 in the house at the time, and hence an attempt at robbery, and the murder of Monaghan. The details are as follows :

WATFORD, March 31.—A most cold-blooded murder was committed last night about seven miles from here at the house of Michael Monahan, whose house was broken into and whose brother Patrick was shot and killed. The two brothers are batchelors, and have since been kept by their sister, Mrs. Ann McGuire, and it is supposed the murderers went there with the intention of robbing it

A coroner's inquest was held at the house this afternoon by Dr. L Harvey, Coroner for the County of Lambton.

A jury being sworn in, the evidence of Michael Monahan, brother to the deceased was taken, as follows :

"I was asleep last night about eleven o'clock, when I heard the outside door knocked in; then I saw a light in the kitchen, and as Patrick had risen and taken the gun down and was coming into the kitchen to meet them, I heard two shots fired, I got up and went to meet him asking him if he had shot him; he said no, but they had shot him. Patrick and I slept in the same room but not in the same bed. I got up as soon as Patrick but I was looking for a pistol, so he came into the kitchen before me. We have a rifle and a revolver in the house; did not hear Patrick say anything; did not hear Patrick snap the rifle gun, for he told me afterwards it would not go off. (The revolver was produced at the request of the jurors. It is a six shooter with one barrel useless; the lock is evidently had not been discharged, and are all loaded but one : it has been loaded for more than a year.) They were all gone before I found the revolver; the door is kept barred with a bar across the centre; did not hear but one rap against the door, as that let the door off its hinges; I did not see the parties who came in, but Patrick told me there were two dressed in black clothes, and one wore moccasins, and one had on striped pants; did not see high way they went after they left; I then went into the loft and blew the horn to alarm the neighbours; Patrick shouted into the loft after he was shot; did not see anything about the appearances of the men he saw; do not know of any enmity existing between him and any one; his sister went for assistance to Mr. McLean's before Patrick died; she did not go sooner, being afraid of another attack, we had about $300 in the house; do not know if any person knew of us having the money; got the money for cattle over two weeks ago. Dog going out saw a rail about 4 feet from the door; the middle door was also knocked open, but a small knock would do that; am sure two shots were fired; heard the reports distinctly, and Patrick told me they missed him the first time; he did not say whether they had a pair of a rifle"

Mrs. Ann McGuire confirmed the foregoing evidence of her brother, and stated that Patrick said he was gone and to look out for themselves Patrick was 45 years old.

It is stated that Mr. John Cameron, minister of the late Liberal was an editor in the proposed Toronto Evening Telegraph and that Prof. Goldwin Smith has withdrawn from the Nation to devote attention to the new paper.

Mr. Brown, Professor of Agriculture at the Ontario School of Agriculture and Experimental farm, Guelph, has written a letter to the Globe stating that the Province of Ontario is not above the level of the sea.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Rightly or wrongly our Town Council seems determined to brave public opinion and build the Smith Street Bridge, even against the law Perhaps they have not sufficiently considered the consequences of their illegal actions, but some day they will find out that they involve most serious responsibilities. They had better, even now, stop and consider the effects of what they are doing. Their own common sense should teach them that they have no right to spend the money of the town in another municipality, and the municipality of Ashburnham extends to the centre of the river. The Council is simply a creation of our Municipal Act, and its authorities extend only so far as that Act provides and no further. If our councillors go beyond this they simply transgress the law, go beyond their authority, and become personally responsible, like all other individuals who do a wrong: and it is well, therefore for them to bear in mind that they can be made personally to account to the town for every dollar which they thus expend illegally. And I include the Town Treasurer in the part of responsibility. His appointment and his duties are all the creation of the above act, and he is equally, with the Councillors, as much bound by the law as they are If, therefore, he pays away the money of the town, even upon a by law of his council, the by-law being wrong, can give him no right to do so, and he is personally responsible for the money so paid out and can be made to replace it. If the council cannot lawfully thus spend the money, surely it follows that they cannot authorise him to spend it, for they can give him no greater authority than the councillors themselves possess And it is the duty of the Treasurer to know the law and to go by it. And as to a suggestion made, to have Ashburnham nominally assume the work within its limits, and that the town council can give them the town money by way of aid in the work, all I have to say is, that it is but a sham and will not hold water. Such an arrangement must have a bona fide basis to rest upon and must be acted in good faith, and should the town treasurer pay out money on such an arrangement he, as well as the councillors, would be acting illegaly and will be personally liable therefore And what ever the councillors may do in this matter, I would advise the Treasurer to keep himself and his sureties clear of trouble by refusing to part with the money of the town which he holds in trust for expenditure in a lawful and proper manner only.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Allow us to express through your columns the regret we feel at having to leave Peterborough, at the end of the month, but circumstances compel us to take this step. We also wish to tender our thanks to the members of the Philharmonic Society, the officers and members of the Band of the 57th Regiment, and to our private pupils We hope that at some future day when times are better, there may be an opening for us to return again. Before we take our departure we intend to give a Farewell Concert at which we hope we shall have the countenance of our friends yours truly,

F. HAMMERSCHMIT,
CH GERICKE.

Peterborough, April 12th, 1876.

OTTAWA

During the election of mayor in Ottawa last week there were several rows. Two polling booths were burst in and the windows knocked out, the tables broken and the polls closed for the day Served them right—they had plenty of whiskey somewhere near. So long as it is licensed it must curse the country. During the canvass free speech was frequently prevented: a Frenchman was shot.

JUST SO. SOME OF THIS AT HOME.

Sir John's rebuke this afternoon of the Premier's insolent manner and language was trenchant and richly merited. There are times when Mr. Mackenzie seems to forget that he is in the company of gentlemen.

We call this from the Ottawa despatches of the organ of the "party of gentlemen," the Mail. Those who know Mr Mackenzie and who have an opportunity of observing his conduct in and out of the House, know that he never loses sight of his own self-respect nor the dignity of the House. If, however, there "are times when Mr Mackenzie seems to forget that he is in the company of gentlemen," he might well be excused, for on too frequent occasions, the vulgar, insolent and insulting conduct of those who sit opposite to him, might well cause him to doubt that he is in the "company of gentlemen."—Ottawa Free Press.

The Montreal Witness' correspondent calls attention to the fact that in the division on the steel rails motion in the House of Commons, "Mr. Stephenson, the Ontario whip, purposely avoided the vote which is not a usual circumstance for whips, while Mr Macdell found himself so much interested in the Senate that he could not tear himself away until after the division had been taken.

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 13, 1876.

THE STEAMER NORSEMAN will commence her regular trips about the 20th of April.

THE BY-LAWS.—Both By-laws were carried on Tuesday. The vote was very small.

THE ASYLUM AT ORILLIA is soon to be used again. It is being repaired and put in a proper state for occupation.

ACQUITTED.—Mr. Martin, of Manitoba, who had been accused of assault upon a little girl, was acquitted at the Ottawa Assizes.

PERSONAL.—Mr. T. A. Greer, son of Mr. T. Greer of Colborne, has passed his final examination at McGill Medical College, Montreal.

MENDELSOHN QUINTETTE CLUB.—The Mendelsohn Quintette Club of Boston, will give a concert here on Friday, 12th May next.

MRS. MCEACHREN has received her Spring Stock of varieties, in laces, ribbons, toys, trinkets, etc., and invites an examination.

A WRIT OF INJUNCTION has been applied for to stop the expenditure of money outside the town limits by the Town Council.

The Best Sewing Cotton for Hand or Machine Sewing is CLARK & CO'S EXTRA QUALITY SIX CORD. Notice the Anchor on each Spool.

A. T. STEWART of New York is dead He was one of the richest men in the United States, although he began life on a small capital.

USE CLARK & Co's Extra Quality Six Cord Cotton, with ANCHOR ON SPOOL. Leading Sewing Machine Agents say it is the best.

PERSONAL.—Messrs John Bertram Esq. M. P., and James Hall, Esq., M. P., has returned from the Capital and are looking well.

PROROGUED.—The Parliament of the Commons of Canada was prorogued yesterday. The Government is stronger than when the House met, the Opposition weaker.

MONTREAL.—A Mr. Nicholls, minister of the Primitive Methodist Church, and stationed to Montreal, has applied and been admitted as a minister of the Presbyterian Church.

NO MORE DISPLAY.—The Irish Canadian advises dispensing with St. Patrick's Day processions, and of course Twelfth of July celebrations, as they prevent the union of Irishmen on other questions.—Will the advice be taken?

FISH PROTECTION.—It is reported that about $20,000 worth of bass have been caught in the Miramichi River this winter. This great increase of fish is due to protection of the spawning grounds in spring and summer.

ST PAULS CHURCH.—The Rev. Mr. Torrance, of Montreal, will preach next Sunday in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Peterborough, Mr. Torrance is very highly spoken of wherever he hasbeen and no doubt will do himself justice here.

OPPOSITIONISTS object to Reformers investing $5,000 in a political journal, but the proceedings in the Private Bills committee of the Commons on Friday showed that Conservatives require not less than $125,000 for a similar purpose—the keeping afloat of the Mail.

W. FAIRWEATHER & Co'y have received large additions of Spring Goods in new styles, and at prices that must induce purchasers to supply themselves with all they require. Read their advertisement in another column, and call and examine goods and prices.

NEW BUSINESS.—Messrs Lane & Co'y are opening out a large stock of drugs, paints, chemicals, perfumes, oils, etc., in Dr. Bell's old stand, next to Berram's hardware store, where they offer to do business on liberal principles. Read their advertisement in to-day's issue, and give them a call.

CLUBS.—It is said that some of our saloon keepers contemplate converting their bar rooms into Clubs, and then defeat the law in closing them. It is not said the members are to be U. E. Clubs, but not all the saloon keepers everywhere have been, it may be inferred that they are going into that "big" entirely.

THE LICENSE LAW.—A Mr. Hutchinson of Bowmanville, has entered an action to quash a By-law of the Town because it limits shop licenses to one—which the plaintiff wishes to establish, as creating a monopoly. Mr. Hutchinson will have to pay his own costs, in part, the town also has to pay part, the portion limiting shops to one, being held illegal.

PRESENTATION.—There is at present displayed in the shop window of J. R. Ormond, Esq., a costly jewel appertaining to the Masonic Order; in form it represents a pair of Compasses in Fine Gold, between the extended points is a Triple Triangle richly engraved, in the centre of the compasses is a crown, set with Rubies and Diamonds, placed on a radiant circle: On the Apex of the compasses is set a Brilliant (or Diamond) weighing about one carat, it is worn in pendent on a sash which accompanies it, colour of which is Purple, Scarlet and Blue and fringed with massive gold lace. On the Reverse of the Jewell is the following Inscription:—Presented to M. E. Comp. C. D. Macdonnell, Grand Z by the Grand Chapter of Canada. We presume there are few or any in this district who have the honour of wearing such a regal gem.

GRIST SAWING.—Mr John Hughes who resides near Springville in the Township of Monaghan, a few weeks ago sawed 43½ double cords of wood for Mr W. Wood, teacher, in 6 hours and 5 minutes, with one saw, which was not sharpened during the time, and without the least idea of having it published.

BIG SAWING.—Messrs J. and A. Mann sawed for Mr. Michael Lamb, on lot 29, 6th con. of Eeqwesing, on March the 17th, one hundred and thirty three cords of wood in seven hours, being at the rate of nineteen cords an hour, with a machine manufactured by Mr. John Stewart, of London, Ont. This is big work.—Milton Champion.

THE GUIDE SAYS—Mr. Wm Bletcher has received the appointment of Grain Inspector for Port Hope, Peterborough and Victoria, and Mr Archibald Sands has been appointed Inspector of Gas for Port Hope, Cobourg and Peterborough. The Guide also learns that on Wednesday there was an investigation at Millbrook over alleged irregularities in the Post Office.

COLBORNE.—High School matters in Colborne have come to a dead lock. The boys have been unruly, and the Board did not act prudently in putting a stop to their disorders. The people called a public meeting to consider the matters of the Board, and also ding matters till two o'clock in the afternoon, separated without accomplishing anything. Law is threatened, and the harpies, thereof, may step in and pluck all concerned.

DEPRESSION OF TRADE.—Mr. John Mc Donald, M. P., of Toronto, before the Depression of Trade Committee, gave it as his opinion that depression or stringency in trade is caused by mercantile agencies who marked traders high. Then these men received large credits. Over crowding in trade was a consequence, and finally failures. This he considered a fruitful source of depression, together with over-production and over-importation.

PROTESTANT HOME.—The Committee of the P. P. Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for February and March:—Headcheese from Mrs Bertram; from a friend in the country, a parcel of clothing and some quilts; Mr. Wainright, a quarter of mutton; a friend several pairs of German felt slippers; 50c from a friend; Milk from Mrs. Adam Hall, jr; from Mr. R. A. Brown, a quantity of onions; from Mr. G. Edmison, potatoes and turnips; Mrs. Bertram, quantity of mutton.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.—On Thursday last, while examining the vacant store on George Street, lately occupied by Mr. E. Walton, it was discovered that some bricks had been removed from the wall between it and Mr. J. R. Ormond's Jewelry store, it is supposed with a view of entering the latter. Nothing further, however occurred. It is believed that whoever made the attempt imagined he or they had only a scantling partition to go through, but finding it to be brick, were disappointed.

AN UNFORTUNATE FAMILY.—In his address to the Jury the Coroner referred to the fact that the young woman Barry, who had died from the effect of an abortion in Toronto last week, was one of a very unfortunate family—several of her nearest relatives have come to violent deaths. The brother of the girl's mother was murdered by Brook's bush gang; her brother-in law was drowned in a beer vat; her mother died shortly after confinement; and a brother and a sister were burned to death.

TWO MEN FOUND DEAD.—On Thursday last two men were found dead in a drain near the railway track not far from Wellington Square. One of them is a farmer who went to examine a tile drain affected by the floods, and is supposed to have become dizzy while stooping over the drain and falling in, was drowned or suffocated. His name was Baxter. The other named Wm Thurston, a black smith, was found dead in a ditch alongside the railway track. No marks of violence were discovered. He was said to be a sober industrious man.

AFRAID.—A Mr. Spafford, near Colborne, has been preaching about he signs of the approaching dissolution of the world. The Editor of the World (Cobourg World) hopes the Express may succeed in choking Spafford off, as the thing is getting too near home for him. If the earth should dissolve in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, where would the Edi or go to publish the World? Or, if fire should overtake this world of ours, could he escape the conflagration? Let not his heart be troubled—Mr. Spafford will depart hence first, for the end is not yet, but when it does come we hope the World will have its lamp trimmed.

PETERBOROUGH LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—The members of this Association held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday evening last, Mr. E B Edwards, M. A., Vice-President, occupying the chair.—Mr. Shepley, M. A., read "The Sea Shore," Anon, and Mr W. D Beck read an extract from Henry VIII, Shakespere. The following subject was then debated: "Should trial by jury in civil cases be abolished?" The affirmative was sustained by Messrs. D. Haggart and G. M Roger; the negative by Messrs McVitty and F. E. Bell. The chairman, after discussing the arguments adduced by the various speakers gave his decision in favour of the affirmative.

A MARRIAGE IN THE SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.—A marriage was lately contracted in the St. Martin's Lane Friends' Meeting House, between Mr. Theodore Harris, a Friend, and Miss Gertrude L Russell, daughter of Lord Charles Russell, and a communicant of the Church of England. No minister took part in the ceremony. The marriage vow was repeated, according to custom, by the bride and bridegroom standing up, after a short interval of silence, in the front of the congregation. A certificate recording the actual words used by the newly married couple, and giving a description of their parentage was then signed—first in presence of the meeting by the bride and bridegroom, and then by a number of their friends, and then read aloud to the meeting. A ring was permitted in this case.

EASTER BEEF.—Our Butchers have been catering in their line for their patrons and have succeeded almost beyond past years. Mr. Wainright has several very fine animals, especially a cow, fed by Mr Jas. Campbell, one by Mr. Evans Ingram; two fine steers fed by Mr. Wm. Millar of Otonabee, besides other animals, all well fed. Mr. H. Winch also secured some very fine beef fed by Mr Joseph Watson of North Monaghan. They were admired by all who saw them besides. One steer fed by Mr. Charles Moore of Smith, and one by Mr. Mahony of Dean, were very fine animals. Masters Howden, Coe, Heather and Laflamme have also provided well for Easter, but from whom we did not learn. The show of Easter beef in Peterboro will equal, if not surpass, any other place in Ontario, perhaps in the Dominion.

A MAN SETS FIRE TO HIS OWN HOUSE AND BURNS HIS WIFE.—In reading some of our western exchanges we are ready to think that westward they are beginning to believe there will be no hereafter. We have had sickening accounts of murders, robberies and fiendishness of no ordinary degree; but the last item under the head of murder is the most fiendish yet. A man named Christopher Ward, on Mono road, County of Peel, married a wife last fall, but allowing jealousy to disturb his repose and confidence, he became cruel to her. One witness says that she learned from the wife that he would keep her on knee his for hours spitting in her face and otherwise tormenting her. He concluded his brutal conduct on Thursday night last by setting fire to the house, and thus burned her in the ruins. The body badly disfigured was found under where she lay, with some of the bed near her, a butcher knife lay near the remains, but the head or skull could not be found. If there be no devil for the hereafter it must be because he has assumed human shape and is now among men. Ward has been committed for trial. He must be insane or a fiend.

WHAT A MISTAKE.—The Norwood Register is very much exercised; his nerves quite unstrung, and hence the public interests must be suffering; because the Editor thereof has not been appointed Inspector of Licenses, and also because some one from Norwood, perhaps an ex-M. P., or some intimate friend has not been placed on the Commission. It must have been an oversight on the part of Mr. Mowat's Government, but there can be no doubt that they made a sad mistake indeed, in not appointing Mr. Burke Inspector; and to thinking men it will be a cause for wonder. But then it is fondly hoped that the Commissioners appointed will do their duty even if the Register should wail. Might we drop a hint to the Commissioners without being considered impertinent? Would they not act wisely in renting the Register office for the transaction of business. It is sometimes necessary to quiet important personages by bestowing a little favor. They could also appoint the Editor, Secretary; and as a detective may be required, it might be a matter for consideration to throw that in his way too. These little things might act as a sedative, and aid in restoring his shattered nerves.—These are only hints to the Commissioners, and may or may not be worthy of their consideration.

On Monday the Committee on Agriculture Interests examined Senator Hawthorne, of Prince Edward Island, who stated that he was opposed to a retaliatory tariff against the United States; believed in a tariff solely for revenue purposes; was opposed to discriminating duties, and did not think legislation was necessary to make farming profitable; farmers should bear their share of the expense of the country; believed it would be advantageous to admit cattle, &c., from the United States free, but would not be disposed to favour any meddling with the present tariff; was strongly in favour of reciprocity, and believed there was a disposition in the United States to return to it.

One of the Testimonials!

From Dr DUNCAN McCALLUM, Montreal—

I the undersigned have been suffering very much for the last two years from Rheumatism in the ankle joint, so much so that I was often prevented from attending to my calling, but three applications of Birnbaum's Rheumatism and Gout Remedy gave me that relief from pain and stiffness which I did not experience for the last two years, and after eight days' use of this remedy I find myself entirely cured.

I owe this statement to the public, to the profession and to the merits of that genuine article

The Parson's Coat.

That holy robe—O divine text it,
Spoke o'er many saints who often wear it—
The lads in black.—BURNS.

He's over in the world been known
When he who wears the Cleric gown
Is said to have commonly shown—
Mith means to hint;
The news soon 'round about is goin',
He's torn his coat.

A saying this world's tortured
When parsons wear a coat more rude,
It means they're mighty fond
To [illegible] is lewd
[illegible]ER AN[illegible]'s find.
Man's [illegible] soon forged,
When [illegible]ainst them's brought;
And what [illegible]ess or not
[illegible] is borne;
As gossips [illegible]o Beecher's coat
[illegible] be torn.

That many a long year has been
Upon his back [illegible]n' about
Till end an' [illegible] opinion.
[illegible]
'Guinst Beecher, who his days has tore
An' kilt's his wife.

He's lov'd the cost o'er wool to tear it,
Or monotonously basmear it;
Had he been one who drank claret—
A rake like some;
Temptation mair than he could bear it
Mosht him o'ercome.

But an aged Reverend, he,
To say that he would stoop up' prose
Tilson's writer's mane when sickly she
In bed [illegible]
Talk wi' a grudge [illegible]
It is a lie.

Youth up in years they now has grown
Since he the body coat put on,
An' needs o' grease been duty sworn
Wi' wind intent,
Which thousands readily are to own
His times soon spent.

His lots the same as men's here,
After they've toil an' battle'p seen,
Leadin' their flocks in pastures green
O'er hill an' brake:
Has had to [illegible] these years gone
O' his coat.

J. GRAHAM.

KNOX COLLEGE.

At the closing exercises of Knox College, (severs of the professors and Ministers of the City being present) Principal Cavan read a paper on shall it exist for ever or not? He said the question was clearly one of the utmost moment, and the answer would have a tremendous power over our religious belief. Some persons believed that it was mortal, and that it perished with the body, and asserted that nothing would remain of conscience, tho't or mind after the dissolution of the body. This was the doctrine of the materialists. A similar doctrine, and one that could scarcely be distinguished from that, and held by some who believed in the Bible, was that immortality belonged only to those who were in Christ, and that the unredeemed ceased to exist after death, thus distinctly endorsing the psychology of the Materialists. Others contented themselves with the belief that the Scriptures taught the mortality of the soul, and that continual existence after death could only be expected after redemption. Another doctrine akin to these was that the mind or soul could not act without its union with matter, and therefore after death if it existed at all it must have some connection with the body. He pointed out that these doctrines were not new, for as early as the second century similar [illegible] were current. The doctrine of the immortality of the soul was credited by many heathen philosophers; hence it was that many who were opposed to its attributed it to be a heathen doctrine. But, it was pointed out, to say that it was embraced by some of the best and wisest of the heathen was surely nothing against it. The simplest argument in its favour was [illegible] yearning that humanity has for immortality.—Human beings had capacities which were, as yet, imperfectly unfolded, and which had yet to be gratified. The history of man would be a web of incongruities if the life that now is would be the last. It was the intention of the speaker to answer that question, "Is the human soul immortal?" He did not expect to find a definition or statement of a theological character in the Bible, because the Bible always spoke as if there was no doubt on the subject. He would, however, find that there was no authority for the idea that the soul was mortal unless redeemed, and that there was abundant evidence that the entirely opposite view was correct. Materialists and those who opposed orthodox teaching contended that the death of the soul was a covenant made with Adam; that such words as "he that hath not the Son shall not see life," were to be taken literally; and that the final annihilation of the wicked was understood by such expressions as "perisheth," "being destroyed," "being consumed," and "being burnt." The speaker, although speaking of the immortality of the soul, wished it to be understood that he did not believe the soul could exist in virtue of its constitution apart from God, because God only is immortal.—When he claimed immortality for the soul he meant that God had made it to be immortal, and it was his wish that it should be so. When God created animals he said "Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creatures that have life," and with regard to the earth he said" Let the earth bring forth the living creature, after his kind;" but in creating man he used words of deeper meaning. "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness," etc. It was contended that man, created in God's image, must have his spiritual image, which after being made a "living soul," entitled him to be called one of the sons of God. Many persons had maintained that the the immortality of the soul was not taught in the Old Testament, but that it remained to be proclaimed by the Messiah. Unconsciously, [illegible] tacitly indicated the belief in the raising of Samuel who told Saul that "to-morrow shalt thou and thy son be with me," and the declaration in Ecclesiastes, xii 7, "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, then the spirit shall return unto God who gave it," were opposed to it. In that aspect man would participate in the imperishableness of God. The text "Who knoweth the spirit of the beast that goeth downward," was looked upon as a plain statement that the soul would not perish with the body. Had this passage been the question that it was claimed by materialists to be, it would have been evident that it was the language of an ungodly [illegible], as it was it was evidence that the doom of man was something different from that of animals. It was strange that persons could not hold such a doctrine as the death of the soul. Take the belief in immortality away, and anticipating the fate of the beasts, man would become careless, and God's means of protection society would be lost. The soul was spoken of as an existence distinct from the body. Man was, doubtless, of his personality, and there was [illegible] plurality of consciousness, but [illegible] distinction between the mortal and immortal was clearly pointed out. "Fear not them who kill the body, but cannot harm the soul; but rather fear Him who can destroy both body and soul in hell" were words that could be understood if it were assumed that the soul was a part of the body. Principal Cavan referred to the defence of Paul before Felix, in which he expressed his belief in the rising of the just and the unjust, as a portion of the Jewish belief, in the words, "And have hope toward God, which they themselves allow, and there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust." In II. Corinthians, v. 10, St. Paul again touches upon this point, and says that we must all appear before the judgement seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in the body, whether good or bad. The rev. gentleman also referred to the words of Christ in Matthew xxv., 30, 46, "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal," and other passages touching on the same point. From these he came to the conclusion that there was nothing to favor the opinion that the human soul would be annihilated. His opinion was that the soul and spirit were distinct from the body; that the soul maintained a conscious existence after leaving the body at death; that there would be a general resurrection of the dead; that all would stand before God in judgement; and that all human souls, the renewed and the unrenewed, the righteous and the unrighteous, would continue to exist for ever and ever.

[illegible]

VARIETIES.

Keely's prospects are said to get remoter and remoter.

The man who had a project on foot went to a corn doctor.

Why should it be easy to break into an old man's house? Because his gait is broken and his locks are few.

"Going to church," in Gælic, is still "going to the stones," a description that carries us back to the days of the Druids.

Visitor:—"Jane, has your mistress got a boy yet?" Maid-of-All-Work: "No, sir; please, sir, I clean all the boots, sir!"

Some men keep savage dogs around their houses so the hungry poor who stop to "get a bite" may get it outside the door.

"Isn't your husband a little bald?" inquired one lady of another. "There isn't a ball hair on his head," indignantly replied the lady.

To dance well a man should know as little as possible of everything else. He can balance partners better if his hair was parted in the middle.

Little Harry, five years old, was called to see the new baby. After a moment's contemplation, he turned to his expectant papa with, "We didn't need that."

Cheerfulness, and great activity of intellect are engendered by Fellows Compound Syrup of hypophosphites, and its capacity of imparting power of endurance to the brain and nervous system is shown in its property of sustaining persons through mental difficulties

CARRION. In our changeable climate coughs, colds, and diseases at the throat, lungs and chest will always prevail. Cruel consumption will claim its victims. These diseases, if attended to in time, can be arrested and cured. The remedy is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

To Housekeepers.—The attention of heads of families is respectfully invited to the superior quality of burnett's Flavouring Extract. They are entirely free from the poisons and acids which enter into the composition of many of the factitious fruit flavours now in the market. They are highly concentrated have all the freshness delicacy of the fruits from which they are prepared, and are less expensive. Vanilla, Lemon, Orange, etc., may be greatly improved by Burnette's Extract of Celery.

As NUTRIMENT is latent force, and as the assimilation of force is dependent upon the recovery of that race which absorbs nutriment it follows that any process or means which provides for the assimilation of food, must augment the energy of the great nervous centres. Fellows' hypophosphites contains the principles which acting upon the stomach and intestinals, cause the due and perfect assimilation of food, and thus restores that energy which makes a strong and vigorous manhood.

GENIUS AND LABOR. Alexander Hamilton once said to an intimate friend; Men give me some credit for genius—but all the genius I have lies just in this—when I have a subject in hand I study it profound, reading and thinking it in before me—I explore it in all its bearings and my mind becomes prevaded with it." Now a great deal of study has been destroyed on the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" to make it what it is—the first of pain removing agents and the best medicine for the cure of colds, coughs, rheumatic, neuralgic, summer complaints, &c. Sold by all Druggists and medicine dealers. Price 25 cents per bottle.

HORSE SAVED The lives of thousands of horses have been saved during the past year, and the credit is due to "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy. This preparation is being extensively used, and exacts from all the highest praise. Nothing of the kind has ever before been half as successful or given such universal satisfaction: it cannot be equally satisfaction it cannot be equalled We can confidently recommend it, and would advise all who own horses to keep a supply of it on hand—it may be the means of saving your horse's life. Remember the name and see that the signature of Allen & Co., is on each package. Northop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., Proprietors for Canada Sole by all Medicine Dealers.

THE ART OF PROLONGING LIFE CONsists in understanding the essential condition on which the fact of life depends. But to reconstruct the human system after it has become physically demoralized by disease, is [illegible] of doctors, now [illegible] fact, that this can be done is capable of actual demonstration. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of [illegible] Galisaya, by aiding the digestive process, and furnishing the elements of [illegible] muscle And nerve, protects the assimilation of food, and complete nourishment of the tissues: morbid products and humors are removed from the blood, and a healthy process of repair set up, which gradually restores and vitalized all the organs, according to natures process of building up the feeble constitution

CONSUMPTION CURED.—An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple Vegetable remedy, for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis Catarrh, Asthma, Colds, Sore Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and Radical Cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper.

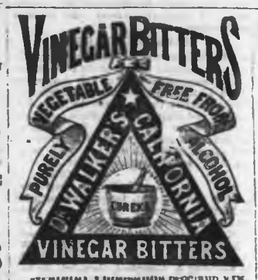
VINEGAR BITTERS



OPERATING A REMARKABLE PROCURED VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, see pamphlet around each bottle, which gives specific directions for each case requiring assistance, and a treatise on the cause of disease, which we desire to send free to any person who will address us a postal card asking for it. Ask your Druggist for a circular, or send to us.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is not only agreeable, but elegant and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by its application. Instead of fouling the hair with a nasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil the most delicate fabric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and [illegible]

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Obstinate affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination used they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or [illegible]

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and untold tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed into taint throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pile, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and all [illegible] affections of the [illegible] and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism in its acute and chronic forms, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Constipation or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

GEORGE STREET,

Is now receiving their Winter Stock of

Stoves, Coal, Coal Oil, Lamps,

And Household Furnishings in General.

The question is repeatedly asked where can you purchase the best and cheapest articles for the least money? The answer is, at the Giant T. How is that? Because they get their goods direct, either from the Manufacturers, or leading houses in the Dominion,

COAL! COAL! COAL!

COAL OIL! COAL OIL!

What! do you think at LAZZET'S they can lie. They open a barrel and give away Oil.

Well, if this be so let no one sit in darkness the coming winter, but come along and get a plentiful supply while the Oil is flowing.

STOVES! STOVES!

The latest improved patterns both for wood and Coal stoves at all prices to suit the times. Remember on one nothing but the best material, combined with First-class workmanship.

Select Poetry.

What Makes a Man?

A truthful soul, a loving mind;
Full of affection for its kind;
A spirit firm, erect and free,
That never basely bends a knee;
That will not bend a feather's weight
Of slavery's chance for small or great;
That truly sparks from God within,
That never makes a league with sin;
That snaps the fetters despots make,
And loves the truth for it's own sake;
That trembles God, and Him alone,
And bows no more than at His throne;
And trembles at no tyrant's nod;
A soul that fears no one but God,
And dies one smile at curse or ban—
This is the soul that makes a man.

What Makes a Woman?

Not costly dress nor queenly air;
Not jeweled hand, complexion fair;
Not graceful form, nor lofty trend;
Not paint, nor curls, nor splendid head;
Not pearly teeth nor sparkling eyes;
Not voice that nightingale outvies;
Not breath as sweet as spicatine;
Not gaudy gems nor fabrics fine;
Not all the stores of fashion's mart,
Nor yet the blandishments of art;
Not one, nor all of these combined,
Can make one woman true, refined.
'Tis not the casket that we prize,
